The Homecoming queen will be selected from the organization sponsors who will appear as princesses of the occasion. The queen will be picked by a group of judges selected by the Blue Key National Honorary Fraternity. The selection will be announced at half time during the PC-Wofford football game Saturday night. The remaining princesses will serve as her court.

The judging will be a continuous process beginning with the parade Friday .

The parade will be lead by the Presbyterian College ROTC Battalion under the direction of Cadet Major Victor Vierra of Mount Pleasant.

Music will be provided from the PC ROTC Band and high school bands from Clinton and Newberry.

A prize will be given by the merchants of Clinton to the merchant who has the best store window display concerning Homecoming activities.

Marts and Lundy Reveal Their Plans

L. B. Avison, representative of Marts and Lundy, Inc., stated in an address Monday in chapel that the students of Presbyterian College would be given a birds-eye view of the coming convocation and future plans for the 75th anniversary campaign.

Marts and Lundy, Inc., is a firm that lends a helping hand to institutions who have problems, for the preservation of these institutions are essential to the future of America.

Mr. Avison said, "Marts and Lundy is like a group of doctors who are in consultation concerning a patient. They find the trouble or need and then move to relieve the condition."

In the past 27 years they have raised between 800 to 900 millions of dollars in this type of work.

In a recent interview Mr. Avison issue da challenge to the students of PC, by stating that there are at least three things they can do that will greatly help in the coming campaign. They are as follows:

"1. Liven up the convocation by their participation.

"2. Pass on the word to friends about the convocation and the 75th anniversary campaign.

"3. Organize a campus campaign to see how much the students can raise and by so doing they will impress the older folks."

Outstanding Men to be Heard; Gov. Byrnes to Speak Saturday

A complete list of the speakers for the Diamond Jubilee Convocation at Presbyterian College has been released by Dr. Marshall W. Brown, president.

The list reads like a page from "Who's Who," as in it are included some of the nation's most prominent men in their respective fields. Outstanding leaders from the realms of education, religion, and politics, will be heard here that weekend.

To lead off the speaking engagement wil be Dr. Russell J. Humbert, president of DePauw University. Dr. Humbert is one of the country's most prominent men in the field of religion and also in education. Before going into his position at DePauw, Dr. Humbert was in the active ministry, serving as pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church in Youngstown, Ohio.

Second on the prominent speakers' list is Dr. Henry Hill, president of George Peabody Teachers College. Dr. Hill is considered one of America's leading educators. Shortly after he speaks here, Dr. Hill will leave for Washington where he is scheduled to take part in President Eisenhower's Conference on Education.

He has been president of several outstanding educational organizations among which are the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges, and the American Association of School Administrators.

Perhaps the most well known of the speakers, in this area at least, will be the Honorable James F. Byrnes. Mr. Byrnes will join the ranks of the speakers, as he presents the political aspects of the Dawning Renaissance.

Byrnes has held positions of prominence in the state as well as national governments. He has been Governor of South Carolina, Secretary of State of the United States, a member of the United States Supreme Court, and a United States Senator.

Another of the speakers will be Dr. Marshall Scott Woodson, president of Flora McDonald College in Red Springs, N. C. Dr. Woodson will deliver the Sunday morning sermon at the First Presbyterian Church.

Woodson is a graduate of Presbyterian College, and is a highly respected college administrator.

Rounding out the group of notables will be Dr. Bernard H. Boyd, professor of Biblical Literature at the University of North Carolina. Dr. Boyd, at one time, was a professor of Bible and Greek here at Presbyterian. He is also an alumnus of this school.

Dr. Boyd served with the United States Marine Corps in the position of chaplain. While serving his country, Dr. Boyd received the Purple Heart for wounds inflicted during the Okinawa campaign.

Boyd, in addition to his teaching duties, conducts a very popular television program in North Carolina. His television stint has gained widespread recognition throughout the South.

It is interesting to note that all the men slated to appear here over the mammoth three-day weekend are listed in "Who's Who In America".

Editorial . . .

For the second time in two semesters the Student Council has had to declare an election unconstitutional. It is high time that the elections be held properly or that the Constitution be changed to allow some discretion in dates.

It is understood that the Council was not totally at fault in today's election as it had been in the former one. Today's election was suggested for the sake of expediency. With the hope that no protest would be received they went ahead with it.

Now a Constitution should be abided by, and should not be disregarded just for the sake of expediency. If a Constitution becomes inefficient or unwieldy it should be changed A well informed Student Body, realizing the circumstances, would be quick to effect such changes that would be necessary.

First Floor Bailey Ready by October 12

The Presbyterian College administration reports that it expects the final work on Bailey Hall to be completed and the building ready for use by Oct. 12.

The college plans to use the first floor to house some of its distinguished guests during the Convocation Oct 14, 15, 16. Students will be able to move into the first floor rooms as soon as the convocation activities are completed.

Election is Illegal; Students Call Protest

The Blue Stocking learned early this afternoon that today's class nominations have been declared unconstitutional.

In the Presbyterian College Student Body Constitution, the dates for all nominations and elections are prescribed. In a move to expedite the organization of the classes before Homecoming, it was hoped that this election would be declared official.

Several students noticed the rules infraction and called it to the attention of Bill Toole, president of the Student Body. After an official protest was lodged with Toole and George Anderson, Dean of Students, the nominations were declared illegal.

It was decided, then, by Toole and Anderson, that the ballots would all be destroyed, and the nominations would be held over on the correct date, Wednesday, Oct. 5.

Duty Calls

All elements of Presbyterian College life have now been asked to participate in the "Dawning Renaissance" program which has been ably set before us by the college Board of Trustees, administration, and Marts and Lundy, Inc. The most significant fact, it seems to us, is that the Student Body has been asked to cooperate in all parts of the new development program.

This fact is a challenge. A challenge which opens all our doors to the public for their consideration. The public sees Presbyterian College through us; through our enthusiasm; through our service and loyalty to the college.

Then, a feeling of obligation begins to creep upon those of us who feel that these qualities are essential.

The word "convocation" means that we are actually a part of a body assembled for one common goal. How can this goal be obtained unless the most vital part of the assembly cooperates to the fullest extent?

This sense of duty cannot be fully realized until campus organizations and individual leaders stir the Student Body through their influence upon campus activity. Then it is up to us as individuals to stir the ideas of advancement among the various groups and to relay this enthusiasm to friends and alumni of the college.

Knock It Off!

Radios and phonographs have been driving many of the students batty during the past weeks. One phono was found going full blast and not one interested enough to remain in the room with it. Now why can't we turn those things down, eh? Umm hmm, I believe that's right.

AT EASE, Y. O.!

By C. Drayton Cooper III

Since Yorick O. Why, great exponent of the Blue, has been confronted more and more by men wearing the cadet grey, and SOP khaki, he has decided it is time to write another glowing tribute to the staunch defenders of the right.

What with such an outstanding cadre of officers as we have here at ol' P College it is no wonder we turn out such rip-snorting, gung-ho, spit-and-polish, semper fidelis, dum-vivimus-servimus, R. A.-all-the-way, military men. We have those great leaders in combat and classroom, Gen. Schmidt, El Capitans Schmutledge and W. P. (for West Point) Kraag leading the Presbyterian SS troops to the foe.

Then of course, we can't leave out the Kadet Korps of Officers; there's Field Marshall Vierra, lent to our unit from Franco's Tropa de Guerra; then there's Acting Kolonel Kristian Pattico, who in real life is a Commodore in the Swiss Navy.

The next leaders for us to consider are the lessers-in-command, the S group of the SS branch. These are the S-1's, 2's, etc. We have that bad sabre-swinging islander, Ed Kolukanahai Hay, direct from the South Sea Islands. Next is the S-2, Herr Adolf von Lordst, the Tiger of the Afrika Korps. An interesting sidelight to Herr Lordst is that he was the chief keeper of the foxes for the Desert Fox, Rommel. Herr Lordst also ministers to the spiritual needs of the Korps in the position of Chaplain. He dons his clerical collar, and his Doktor's hood from the University of Berlin, and punches all the TS cards for the trainees at 0900 every day.

Serving as S-4 for the red hot Piedmont Korps at Presbyterian is a business man turned soldier. He is none other than the Earl of Maplestreet, Kenneth Norton Baker, IV. It is interesting to note that Baker's father was at one time Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Kingdom of Chicagoland.

The job of spreading the word about the great body of the military falls upon the able shoulders of Leftenant Franklin Young, recently Wing Commander with the Royal Australian Naval Air Force. While serving down under with the Aussies, Lt. Young edited the Wing newspaper, the Kiwi; this is where he picked up the valuable experience that has carried him so far in the publicity field. For a sample of his efforts, see page one of this issue.

With the stirring sound of the bugle blown bright and early every morning, the men come streaming out of their barracks, into the low-hanging mist of the new day. As they rush wildly to the armory to draw their deadly weapons, it is apparent upon the faces of all the eager young men, the momentous task that lies ahead; to defend our stronghold against all invaders, and to conquer and anihilate them. Such a pity that boys as young as these should be given such a merciless mission. Like lambs to the shearers they go, dumb, speaking not a word, theirs not to reason why, theirs but to do and die.

When the men have finally taken their positions, they are aroused to a fever pitch by the thrilling appearance upon the field of Armageddon of their Kommander, Herr General Schmidt, with his staff of understudies led by Kapitans Kraag and Schmutledge. As these noble leaders appear, the sabers flash in the morning sunlight, the deafening roar of the "Sieg Hiels" split the air, and 300 pairs of heels click in unison. It is a stirring sight.

As the General reviews his companies, the rousing strains of martial music begin to waft across the breezes. Herr Musikmeister Verner leads his 178 piece military marching band in the playing of "Presbyterian Uber Alles"; as Herr Verner conducts, Major of the Drums Sappstein, filled with wild enthusiasm, prances gaily in front of the assemblage, twirling his silvery baton with wild abandon.

As the SS troops goose-step by the reviewing stand, and back into their respective positions upon the field of battle, the time for awards has come. Field Marshall Vierra proceeds to the line to present the medals of the day. First of all, there is the Juan Peron Memorial Sabre, to be given to the most dictatorial company commander. This coveted honor goes to Herr Leftenant Ernst Wahl, of Kompany D.

The next honor to be granted is the Benning Award of Merit to the most wayward commander. This award, among cheers from his men, is presented to Leftenant Nelson Charles, exchange sol-

Book Bids Adieu to Tristesse

By CHARLES JOYNER

BONJOUR TRISTESSE. By Francoise Sagan. Translated by Irene Ash. 128 pp. Dutton $2.50.

This is a first novel by Francoise Sagan, a pseudonymn for Francoise Quiorez, a petite, dark, intense, and sensitive 18-year-old (she's 19 now). Francoise Quiorez is the daughter of a very well-off Paris manufacturer. She entered the Sorbonne at age 17, and began her novel in July, 1953.

"Bonjour Tristesse" (The title comes from a poem by Paul Eluard, and means "Good Morning, Sadness") was France's best seller last year, selling more than 250,000 copies, and copping the coveted Prix des Critiques. It promises to do even better over here. Already it tops all best-seller lists; and the film version (to star Audrey Hepburn) is forthcoming.

The plot concerns a young woman (who is having a little holiday at a French seaside resort with her poor widowed father and his mistress.) Before long, daughter acquires a beau (her first), and father, daughter, mistress, and beau are enjoying a very nice holiday.

Into this playground of sunlit, pagan passions and pleasures barges a beautiful, accomplished, and upright Paris dressmaker (She's 40, and the-old-friend-of-the-family type) with a matrimonial gleam in her eye. She wishes to reform and enrich the (lustful) life of the widower. He (for some reason) falls prey to her Lifebouy-scrubbed charms, and deserts his mistress.

To the daughter, this presents a dire threat to her heretofore blissful life of leisure with her poor widowed father (and his mistress). Diabol she sets herself to the task of breaking u tete-a-tete. She has her own young lover a discarded mistress pretend to a love affair ruse is more than Papa can stand. He has with his former mistress which just plan wheims the hopeful bride, and she goes on death by automobile, which the daughter is suicide. Bonjour Tristesse.

In a mere 128 pages the authoress e each character to the quick... Apparently Sagan is a born literary psychologist. She quite a command of the plottings and pe ties of the adolescent heart.

Francoise Sagan, a piquant example of fant terrible", has been described as a bl reserve, exuberance, recklessness, and w wisdom; a charming 18-year-old monster likes nothing better than whizzing around new Jaguar sports car. She reads Proust 18th century literature, associates with ex literary wheels as Jean-Paul Sartre and A Camus, loves dancing and sports. She w prised that her little book was taken so se (I'm not.)

Ho, everyone that thirsteth after dirt! Here it is, another Friday night and time once again for all the latest news from Gus Gash's trash pile. This is the stuff that even Confidential won't print, the things that even Walter Winchell is scared to write about. Boy, this is the most, to say the least.

Tom "Bird Dog" Richards was seen giving after-hours assistance to one of the coeds in lab the other afternoon. Standby, Tommy, for a word from Decatur.

The pony express has finally come through. Jimmy Newsome, at long last, has heard from Kay. After a dozen or so letters, and three or four phone calls, she has said "yes" for the dance. Pin a rose on him, fellows.

Dave Collins has finally struck it rich; his claim paid off the other night. Our cohorts tell us he slipped a pin onto the, well, he gave Jennie his fraternity pin. He's expecting full dividends on that investment. Tell me, Dave, how's the stock market running these days?

Seems there's direct communication between Limestone and Winthrop. At least that's what Walt McConnell thinks. Shirley found out about Barbara. Well, that's the way the ball bounces.

The Great Exit...

By CHARLIE DUKES

This is, indeed, the year of the great exit. Droves of our A can populace from a wide variety of stations in life are pouring far away places with strange sounding names, much to the econ benefit of those places.

The glowing accounts were too much, the mystic song has w its kelp-like strands around the captive heart, the lure-key o New World (i.e., that which we've never seen) has cast asunde shackles of mundane endeavor, and the author has succumbe the call of travel. Fear not, we shall lose ourselves forthwith engaging relation, not skipping a step.

The author's domicile companions (roomos, for short) know mediately when he contracted wanderlust. Upon entering room after class one day, they found him devouring huge qu tities of material from a pile of travel folders that all but sm omed his desk.

His eyes chewed each word twenty-three times; and by the they reached the gastric portion of his brain each individual ex was explosively ready to race to excite every gland conducive travel recreation.

With just the barest acknowledgement of their chorused gree he assumed a Prince Valiant stance before the open window, lo as if against a world that confronts all travelers in the realm o cinema house (flicks).

His gaze toured the broad expanse of Jacobs Hill, envisio such extraneous continental flavors as water venders, rich w cafes, the Appian Way, moonlight on Fujiyama, and MG's gra up the wrong side of the road.

His room shares in the hospitality (again, roomos for short spected the mound of lithography while he was detached in projection. Foremost in the deluge was a provocatively colored er extolling the virtues of "lovely Rockhill-on-the-Catawba, Hom the Celanese Plant." Being a frustrated horticulturist at h the author naturally divined that the "Celanese Plant" was a oriental flower. This was too much for the author to resist; h now compelled to commit to history his exhaustive perusal of h hill-on-the-Catawba.

He must go, ere the flame of the wild goose waste to the dazz of those manacled to the routine. He rushed downtown and p chased a complete array of Brooks Brothers attire and all ne sary accessories, packing it all into bags that bulged with the sire to acquire the impressive adornment of a coating of ba stickers.

At the completion of all the preliminaries which must needs f from such a magnanimous undertaking as the one now unfolding author rode forth amid shouts of "Bon Voyage!" and trailing lands of rosettes from all parts of his car which afforded an ad ment.

His chamber-fellows noticed that the lure of the continent now raised to fever height, for he drove from the right-hand of his car, a feat of no mean dexterity in a domestic auto.

It was, indeed, a lucrative excursion. Though sadly misled a the Celanese Plant, our hero managed to have himself linked ro tically with the countess Suzanne of Dilworth-on-the-Mooreho true plume for the chapeau of any mere tourist.

Clyde Brown Gives Life for Stockings

By LAWRENCE YOUNG

On the right wall of the vestibule of LeRoy Springs Gymnasium is a bronze plaque given in memory of Cary Clyde Brown, born June 11, 1901, died Oct. 8, 1923, on the football field. "He nobly gave his life for his alma mater" says the plaque.

Cary Blyde Brown, 6 ft. 175 lb. right end of the 1923 Presbyterian Blue Hose, was mortally wounded on the gridiron in a practice game, Oct. 5, 1923.

He entered Presbyterian in the fall of 1922. Considered by the coaches as one of the most promising ends of the state, he was a rough, hard player who didn't give quarter to anyone. Among his many assets was that he was a tackler second to none.

During an intrasquad game that day of Oct. 5, Cary was taking the defensive tackle out of the play on an off-tackle drive by the fullback. By some stroke of fate the fullback ran up his back and drove his head into the ground. In this accident his first five vertebrae were broken.

After being carried to the hospital, Brown was paralyzed from his waist down. He lived through three days of mental and physical anguish and passed on to the Divine Gridiron Oct. 8.

Throughout the entire game with the University of South Carolina on the next day, silent prayers were offered in memory of Cary Clyde Brown, who died for his alma mater.

Grantland Rice once wrote: "For when the One Great Scorer comes to write against your name, he marks—not that you won or lost—but how you played the game." It could be truthfully said that Cary Clyde Brown played the game of football as well as the game of life to the hilt.

Sports Question

The Broadway Theatre is sponsoring the Sports Question this week. They are giving one free pass to the person winning the contest.

Contestants are required to answer at least two of the three questions and a contestant cannot win more than once in a month.

What famous football player for the Alabama Crimson Tide later became a popular movie star?

Who was known as the "12th man" in the Notre Dame football team after his death?

What pinch hitter kept the New York Yankees from sweeping the 1947 World Series from the Brooklyn Dodgers by blasting a two-out pinch hit double in the ninth inning of the fourth game?

Cecil Geddings was the winner of last week's contest. The answers to last week's questions are Red Grange, June Moore, Harry Bolick, and Georgia Tech.

I-M Rifle Matches To Begin for Year

Intra-mural rifle marksmanship matches are being planned again this year in order to promote competition in the firing of small-bore firearms.

Each fraternity will be represented by one team and the non-fraternity students will organize one team. Each team will have six members who must be in good scholastic standing.

Practice firing will begin Oct. 3, and team elimination on Oct. 10. Competitive firing will continue for six weeks.

Awards will be given to the top team and individuals as well as miscellaneous awards for qualifying men.

It is hoped that the students will take an active interest in this so that PC may retain its high position in inter-collegiate meets.

The Intra-Mural Committee of the SCA has held a meeting to Discuss rules for intra-mural sports. The sports to be played this year are football, basketball, volleyball, softball, track, swimming, and small-bore rifle matches. Tommy Reeves is the chairman of this committee.

Blue Hose Down Governors; Squeeze Out Hard-Earned Victory

• Benson and Mavromat Score

Presbyterian College gridmen were making good use of the open date this week to sharpen their game for the impending clash with a strong Davidson team on Oct. 8.

With a hard-earned 13-7 victory over Austin Peay behind them, the Hosemen were evened up at one-and-one for the season and giving a green team added experience with each workout.

Presbyterian, despite a long trip to Clarksville, Tenn., continued to rack up yardage on the ground against Austin. The Blue Hose accumulated a total of 250 rushing yards on the heels of several hard-running backs operating behind a fast-charging line.

Sophomore Fullback Ken Webb, who had accounted for 59 yards against Clemson the week before, continued to demonstrate his smashing ability with 117 yards in 22 tries. He now leads the Hose attack with 176 yards gained in two games for an average of 4.8 yards-per-carry. Freshman Halfback Tony Benson, of Chester, follows Webb as a rush-er with 54 yards in 11 tries for an average of 5 yards-per-carry.

With most of the emphasis on ground action, PC has attempted only 16 passes to date and completed five for 90 yards. Quarterback Felder Cook leads this department with a completion record of four out of eight for 73 yards. This yardage, coupled with his 57 rushing, puts him next to Webb in the over-all offense department with 130 total yards.

Scoring honors in a none-too-lucrative department thus far go to Halfback Mitchell Mavromat, who scored the winning touchdown against Austin Peay and then added the extra point to mount his figure to seven.

Coach Bill Crutchfield's delight in bounding into the win column last week-end was tempered by the amount of work he visualized ahead before he can face Davidson.

I-M Committee Plans Football

The Intramural committee met last Thursday night with Tommy Reeves as chairman to plan the rules governing touch football.

The committee discussed the rules, eligibility of players, and the protesting of games.

Play will begin Thursday afternoon, Oct. 29, with seven teams competing. Those teams are as follows: Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Nu, Theta Chi, Pi Kappa Phi, The Charlotte Colonials, and the Bo-Rat freshmen.

Freshmen vs Pi Kappa Phi, 4:00 P. M.

Junior Varsity Wins; Plays Gordon Here

The PC Blue Hose Junior Varsity met Gordon Military College Thursday night in the first engagement of the JV schedule of the year.

The first quarter was uneventful for both the Cadets and Socks with no threats of scoring. However, with a lapse 2:45 in the second quarter, Messer went over for PC standing up. The conversion was no good and the score stood 6-0 in favor of the "Blue Socks" which held the same to the half.

After the half the Cadets started a drive on Isser's 45-yard run but bobbled away the chance and the Socks recovered on their own 15-yard line.

Richard Bell ran the ball back for 22 yards, but the Blues could not move it from there and had to punt. Ed Messer broke away on a 30-yard run in the beginning of

Blue Hose Net Team Travels Summer Circuit

• Individuals Are Winners

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose were well represented in the summer tennis circuit this year. Allen Morris, state singles champion, Guice Potter, John Brownlow, and Harvey Jackson played well in tournaments from the Mississippi to the Hudson.

Allen Morris began the summer by winning the Anniston Invitational Tournament and the Druid Hills Championship. He was a finalist in both the Blue-Gray at Montgomery and the Southern at Memphis. Morris's tennis was interrupted by a five week stay at ROTC summer camp. During this time he won the Southeastern open at Columbus, Ga.

After camp, Morris played in the Eastern Grass Court circuit which is endorsed by most of the top players in the nation.

Although Morris was eliminated in the first round at Newport, he and Les Longshore reached the sixteenth round in the National Double.

In the very last Natoinal Singles, Morris won two rounds before being eliminated. In the best three out of five matches Morris lost only four games.

Morris then encountered America's number one, Tony Trabert, in a top-notch match. He played excellent tennis before being eliminated, mainly because of Trabert's experience. In the second set Morris had Trabert 3-0.

Many of the more prominent sports writers noted that Morris was steadily improving.

Potter and Brownlow played the strong Southern circuit and reached at least the quarter-finals in almost every tournament. Potter won the Tennessee State Open at Chattanooga, where he beat Alex Guerry.

He also won the Anniston Country Club Championship defeating a rival of long standing, George Lonshore. He had recently defeated Potter when Rollins met PC on the home courts. This win indicated the considerable improvement in Potter's game during the season.

Brownlow, after playing the Southern tourneys, moved to the quarter-finals and semi-finals in every tournament. Brownlow's outstanding win was with Joe Russell in the Northwestern.

Jackson, playing in fewer tournaments, had a fine summer on the road. He won the West Carolina Championships and the Asheville City Championships. Although he played an excellent match, Jackson lost to Bitsy Grant in the Georgia State.

Jimmy Shakespeare, a freshman from Hollywood, Fla., has joined the team for the coming season. Coach Jim Leighton said, "We feel fortunate in having Shakespeare as a new freshman. He was much in demand all over the country, and he should make an outstanding player for us.

Coach Leighton added, 'Potentially, we have the best team PC has ever had. We're planning a big schedule with a trip to Texas to replace the Northern trip."

STUDENT BODY SUPPORT

PC's Battlin' Blue Hose are well underway in their preparation for their game with Davidson on the afternoon of Oct. 8. The Hose are known for their spirit and hustle in the years gone by.

This spirit was due to the ambitions of the ball players and their will to win. Many times they have been forced to play the role of David in a battle against Goliath, but they, as David, never gave up until the final whistle.

Although the spirit of the Blue Hose has been accredited to the desire of the players themselves to win, the old timers on the PC campus know that this spirit is due mainly to the student body. Our student body has been exceptionally loyal in the past years in supporting its athletic teams. Student body support is a main cog in a winning football machine.

A clockwork precision football team is no good without a winding stem. Student support is our winding stem and the mainspring of the Hose efforts. Don't let our watch go to Davidson without a winding stem and mainspring. This could prove disastrous for the Blue Hose bandwagon.

BASKETBALL SHOTS

Our basketball teams have built up a reputation for themsleves in the State of South Carolina and also in adjoining states. This year's squad is composed of tried veterans and promising freshmen. Last season's record was one of PC's best, and this year's team is out to better the record.

SHORT SHOTS

A few of the Hose cindermen have already hit the track . . . . . Fullback Ken Webb is still murdering the opposition with his mighty thrusts at the line . . . . . Freshman Ron Isger's defensive ability proved fatal to the Austin Peay passing attack Saturday night . . . . . The Hose won the Austin Peay game in typical Hose fashion. They pulled it out in the fading minutes of the game . . . . . Candidates for the All-Plaza touch football team have been battling it out in front of Spencer Dormitory the past few days . . . . . PC's team mascot is so hepped up over getting the Davidson Cat that his custodian had to make a leash for him . . . . . Intramural football is underway and it looks as if we'll have a fine season due to many returning stars of last year . . . . . FOLLOW THE BLUE HOSE!

Floyd to Acquire B D; Aids in Military Dept.

• Has Triple Career

A new face to the campus in more ways than one is that of W. R. (Bob) Floyd. He is a regularly enrolled student and also an assistant in military. In addition to these functions, Mr. Floyd is the pastor of a church, preaching several times each week.

Bob finished high school in 1946 and enlisted in the Marine Corps soon thereafter. He spent two years of duty there, before he went to school again to further his education.

He entered PC in the fall of 1948 as a ministerial student. He spent three years here then, leaving in 1951 to go to the seminary. Being exempt from Basic Military Science, he enrolled in the Advanced course, and was awarded a commission in the Infantry when he left PC.

Bob thereupon entered the Columbia Theological Seminary, spending three years of study devoted to becoming a minister of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. He completed his studies there in March of this year, and was ordained by the Augusta-Macon Presbytery.

As a pastor, the Rev. W. R. Floyd serves the First Presbyterian Church of Augusta, Ga., as assistant pastor. He also has charge of the Cliffwood Presbyterian Chapel in the same city. The Rev. Mr. Floyd preaches two sermons every Sunday for his congregations and makes a radio broadcast on Sunday afternoon. He spends his weekends in Augusta making visits to his parishioners.

As a scholar, Bob is a regularly enrolled student seeking a Bachelor of Arts degree. His Bachelor of Divinity degree from the seminary is pending his earning a BA. He will complete the requirements this year and will get his degrees next June.

As a soldier, 1st Lt. W. R. Floyd is a Reserve Officer of the 322nd Infantry Regiment, and currently attached to Company L, 3rd Battalion, 323rd Infantry Regiment, which is stationed at Clinton.

He is also earning retirement points by assisting the college Military Department in the supervision of drill. He has spent one year on active duty as an Infantry officer in addition to his time in the Marine Corps.

Bob met his wife while he was a student at PC before. She is the former Jean Parker, who was secretary to Dr. M. A. Macdonald of Thornwell Orphanage. She is doing the church's work in his absence, he stated.

The "Rev. Mr. Lt." Floyd says that one of his most prized possessions is a blue ribbon boxer by the name of Dagmar. Such a name causes his members to raise their eyebrows when he calls, "Dagmar," when he wants his pet, but he says that he wouldn't have it changed.

Lucas carried to the two and Messer plunged the two remaining yards to pay dirt to put the Battling Blue Socks ahead 12-0.

The conversion was no good. With 5 min. remaining in the fourth period, Blalock ran 48 yards to pay dirt for the Cadets. King's pass to Davis was incomplete for the extra point, making the score 12-0 in favor of the Blue Socks.

The last two awards to be given are perhaps the most desired of all. We have first the Shamrock Award of the I R A, for outstanding and meritorious service. This goes to the lad from the blarney, Leftenant Patrick O'Sloan of Kompany C.

And now as the tension mounts to the greatest point of all the morning, it is time for the presentation of the Combat Kelly Fit To Fight Banner. The crowd is hushed as Marshall Vierra calls the guidons to be brought forward. Then, as the beautiful Royal Purple, Bilious Chartreuse, and Robin's Egg Blue banner unfurls in the breeze, Leftenant Arnold Stone, straight from the North Carolina Home Guard, steps forth to receive his great honor. The crowd goes wild as the banner is tied to the guidon.

As the troops file away, the once crowded plain is left empty except for one figure. As we swing our all-seeing eye nearer we discern the form of Kapitan Kraag, writing something on two little slips of paper. It is then that we realize that a soldier's work is never done.

All is quiet on the western front.

Band to Toot at Davidson . . .

The Presbyterian College ROTC Band will play at the Davidson-Presbyterian football game Saturday afternoon at 2:30 P. M. The game will be played at the Davidson Stadium. The Band will leave Presbyterian College at 9:00 A.M. Saturday morning, and will travel in a Queen City Trailways Bus. The band members will eat lunch in Charlotte, N. C. Mr. Harry A. Bouknight, director, has made a new arrangement of the Presbyterian College Alma Mater that was originally written by William Plumer Jacobs, of Clinton. This new arrangement will be played by the Band at Davidson.

Outstanding Alumni to be Named; Presbyterian Laymen Also Honored

• Nominations Submitted by Synods

Outstanding Presbyterian College alumni and Presbyterian laymen from the Synods of South Carolina and Georgia will be presented with citations for outstanding work in their respective fields during the Convocation exercises, Oct. 14-16.

The alumni, 25 in number, are selected each year by the alumni association from their ranks. Those excluded from nomination are alumni Gold P. winners, those holding Honorary degrees, staff and Board of Trustees members.

The Presbyterians, who will also number 25, are nominated by ministers and congregations of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., throughout Georgia and South Carolina.,

The alumni awards will be presented at the annual Alumni Banquet Saturday, Oct, 15, at 1:00 P.M.

The Presbyterians will be cited during the last Convocation exercise Sunday, Oct. 16, at 2:30 P.M.

Fraternity competition is again enticed this year by awards given by the college fraternity which has the best decoration ideas for Homecoming.

The sites drawn for the six national fraternities are as follows:

Alpha Sigma Phi — Spencer Dormitory.

Pi Kappa Phi—SCA Building.

Pi Kappa Alpha—Bailey Dormitory.

Kappa Alpha—Science Hall.

Sigma Nu—Sigma Nu Fraternity Lodge.

Theta Chi — Administration Building.

Andy to Speak At SCA Convention Soon

The State Student Christian Association Conference will be held October 7,8 and 9 at Camp Long, near Aiken.

The theme for the conference will be "Building on Rock" and the main speaker will be the Rev. Henry Mobley of the Oakland Avenue Presbyterian Church of Rock Hill.

The other speakers will be the Rev. George Anderson of Presbyterian College, Dr. Fred Poag of Columbia, the Rev. F. B. Mayes of Columbia, and the Rev. Alfred C. Payne of Atlanta, Ga.

The officers for this group are Tumpy Payne of Columbia College, president; John Connally of The Citadel, vice president; Ann Faulkenberry of Winthrop, secretary; and Ed Walpole of PC, treasurer.

Two delegates from the PC SCA Cabinet will attend the conference.

Switchboard Added To Connect Offices

Presbyterian College announced today that the administrative offices will begin using an intercommunication system in the near future. The phones will be operated by "Key Board Equipment," according to a telephone company official.

Mrs. Charles Sloan has accepted a position as switchboard operator and receptionist. There will be ten stations on the board, which has a capacity of twelve circuits.

Two phone numbers, 144 and 733, will be used to call the college. The development office will be included in the new system, but it will retain the direct line it is now using.

Beginning with the next edition of a Clinton phonebook, the college administration will have only one number and each office will have extension numbers. This new syste mwill make it much easier for the officers to talk among themselves. At the same time, this system, with only one number, will serve the public very efficiently.

It should be noted that this switchboard will have no effect on the other campus phones.

Glee Club Reveals Plans for Season

The Presbyterian College Robed Choir under the direction of Dr. Edouard Patte will make its first appearance at the first public meeting of the convocation exercises Friday, October 14, at 7:30 P. M.

At this time, the double quartet, strengthened by three new members, will render two numbers, "Cantate Domino" and "If Ye Love Me". The three additional members are as follows: Harold Gallimore, of Tryon, N. C., first tenor; Edward Galloway, of Jacksonville, Fla., second tenor; and John Childers, of Birmingham, Ala., first bass

Other members of the quartet are as follows: Blair Baldwin, of Blair, first tenor; Frank Harrington, of New Zion, second tenor; Richard Oliver, of College Park, Ga., first bass; and Drayton Cooper, of Sumter, and Chris Patte. of Clinton, second bass.

The entire choir will appear on Saturday, Oct. 15, at 9:30 A. M. at which time a speech will be delivered by Dr. Henry Hill.

"A Spacious Firmament" and "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" will be featured as special numbers of the morning.

Robert Reynolds, of Clinton, is the practice accompanist for the Gleesters, and Ray Lord of Dublin, Ga., is concert organist.

The first concert will be held Sunday, Nov. 20, at 17:30 A. M. at the Mayesville Presbyterian Church, Mayesville. The second rendering of the choir's full program will be presented at Sardina Presbyterian Church Sardinia, Sunday evening, Nov. 20.

To add a new touch to regular seasonal activity, the choir has been asked by the college administration to make available a selected group of singers to accompany speakers for the $2,000,000 endowment fund campaign throughout South Carolina and Georgia.

PC Has New Canine Mascot; Sparks Hose Athletic Contest

A new member of the college community named Crutch has brightened the campus new look during the past few weeks. In case some person hasn't heard yet, the canine Crutch is a little black and tan hound.

During the late spring of last school year, Y. O. Why, outstanding journalist, and champion of the Blue Hose spirit, expounded upon the needs for a campus canine to act as mascot for the Blue. In response to this plea, someone, who has thus far remained anonymous, brought little Crutch back to P College this fall.

Who the donor of the mutt was, or just who he is now, will probably remain a mystery. But even with his mysterious past, Crutch has already endeared himself to all the students here at the College. Not only does he support the varsity footballers, but he also lends a helping hand to the Plaza All-Stars in the duties of "shoes-watcher."

In this position, though, Crutch often becomes over-zealous, and extremely hungry, and unless he is supervised, he will be tempted to run off with someone's white bucks.

The football team is not the only organization that Crutch is loyal to. He has been seen, and heard, at several Glee Club practices. They say music has qualities to soothe the savage beast; it must be so, because every practice that he attends, after several nasty looks at Dr. Patte, Crutch will usually curl up, and dream away his two hours at the practice session.

From all indications, Crutch is really entering into the PC spirit. He lives up to the college motto, "The Friendliest College in the South," by making friends with everyone he meets.

His infectious tail-wag, which has been likened to Eisenhower's famous grin, esaily captures the affections of all. His playful attitude is comparable to that of most of the Student Body; but he also is aware that there are such things as classes—that's when he does most of his sleeping.

Right now, we've heard that Crutch is being prepped for the big fight with the Davidson Wildcats tomorrow. Bill Epsilante's cat, "Daddy-O", and Crutch have been seen sparring around the past few days.

So don't be surprised tomorrow afternoon if you should see Crutch come tearing across the field up at Davidson with a wildcat by the tail.

The Blue Stocking sends a hearty thank you to the person responsible for Crutch's appearance at PC. We think it was a step in the right direction toward building up the Blue Hose Spirit. Yorick O. Why also adds his appreciation.

Advice to "Newboys"

Hey, "Newboy!" How biting that phrase sounds to many an ear. Why this continued harassing, embarrassing and ridiculous ratting? The voices raised in perplexed protest are legion. The whole freshman class. Why?

"Young men and women, the world is yours. Go out and take over." How many well-meaning ministers give this baccalaureate advice to poor unsuspecting high school graduates each June!

And how many upperclassmen take it upon themselves to teach the freshmen that the world is not theirs each September. "GIN, FRESHMEN! FRESHMAN, YOU'RE A DISGRACE TO THIS INSTITUTION!" Why? Why all these endless favors, errands, and embarrassing situations.

There are as many answers as there are questions. Upon the assurance of their baccalaureate address, many college freshmen do set about to take over this world they just inherited.

College is no high school. The differences are vast and many. So you were a big wheel in high school? So was the man in front of you. So was the man behind you. You may be a big wheel here. But not yet.

That is only one defense. Another answer is that it helps combat that age old enemy of college freshmen—homesickness. Homesickness is a natural emotion for one who is experiencing his first extended stay away from home. It shows that one came from a good home.

Independence is not as exhilirating as one expects. When freshmen are alone with their thoughts, and their minds must make a choice between thinking of those words on the page of the book he is attempting to study or thinking of home, and family, and that blue-eyed girl, the poor freshman doesn't have a chance.

The rat system helps ease this. The freshmen, through errands and the like, are kept thinking. An idle mind is the devil's playground. Mind you, the rat system does not completely eliminate homesickness, but it helps.

Probably the most important reason for a rat system is that intangible something known as school spirit. To obtain a little of PC, you've got to give a little to PC. Put something in. Then take something out.

Freshmen, you're going to be at Presbyterian for four years, most of you. You can either be a part of PC, or a tourist. Which is it going to be?

The rat system is not for the upperclassmen. Its purpose is not to inflate their ego with a "sir", or to save them a few steps in the dining hall, or to gladden their ears with a "gin".

The rat system is for freshmen. Enter it with that spirit; and you'll find, possibly to your surprise, that this school means a great deal to you.

Be a part of Presbyterian, freshmen. Who knows, you may graduate from here some day.

Sympathy Extended

The Blue Stocking wishes to extend its deepest sorrow and sympathy to Sam McGregor upon the loss of his father last Tuesday.

What is A PC Student-

By NOBLE COLLINS

Somewhere between the ages of adolescence and early manhood but long before that state known as maturity a strange creature known as a PC student is spawned. Being a total misfit in society, (too old for school and too young for serious work), he must spend a four-year waiting period compiling experiences which will serve as topics for three-fourths of his conversation for the rest of his life.

During this period, a PC student is many things. He is the biggest man in the world with a rat cap on his head and the smallest man in the world with a diploma in his hand.

He is the epitome of innocence with a water-balloon behind his back and the world's only conscientious objector in a class "A" uniform.

When he looks into a mirror, Beau Brummel, Don Juan, and Rocky Marciano all look back at him, but at a fraternity social he is horrified to see Emmett Kelly, Boris Karloff, and Mr. Peepers reflected in the eyes of everyone who ventures a glance his way.

His dormitory room is a many-splendored thing containing such spectacles as empty Pepsi bottles; dozens of cigarette butts; dozens of empty ash trays; a picture of a girl in an evening dress; a pencil-marked calendar with a sexy picture at the top; fifteen pairs of shoes (all under one bed) and enough assorted books to fill two libraries.

To all freshmen, upper-classmen are diabolical madmen whose complete vocabularies consist of one acidic phrase—"Gin Freshman."

And to all upper-classmen, freshmen are clumsy, "new boys" who know only how to say "I can't".

Nevertheless, there is a unity between the two that makes them inseparable in every phase of college life.

Yes, a PC student is everything that any other college student is and just a little bit more.

He is every good adjective you can think of, and most of the bad ones. Most of all, however, he is a disguise—never the same two days in a row, never revealing his true identity.

What's all the gripe the coeds have about having to sign out? You Rah Rah girls ashamed of who you're going out with?

Speaking of coeds, my C Section correspondent tells me that Richard Boland really has the hots for Gayle Robertson. Do you have any comment for the press, Richard?

What the Heck - Any Way?

COOPER — Again?

Neville Hall burned to the ground late last night. That was the sad news that faced all the PC'uns when they turned out for classes this morning.

The fire was first discovered by Frank Young as he was walking in front of Spencer with a bucket of gasoline about 3:30. Young waited until he was sure the building was on fire, then he calmly walked to the fire department and reported it to the chief. Since the chief was not in at the time Young arrived, he had to wait until he woke him up.

As the fire trucks sped to the scene, they were delayed enroute by Richard Oliver and Drayton Cooper as they threw up a road block at the end of the campus. They wanted to be sure the firemen were authorized to enter the campus.

When the two mighty engines pulled up at the one fire hydrant on the plaza, a terrific argument ensued as the two drivers fought over who had the right to attach the hose first.

By this time, the heat from the inferno had awakened all the other PC'uns, and they were busily engaging themselves in trying to keep the fire from spreading to the other buildings by throwing every combustible article they could find into the fire. This meant books, beds, desks, etc.

As the noble firemen played the streams of water on the fire, they were greatly inspired by the cheeering section from Smyth B section. This added to the din of the fire, greatly held up the operations of the brave men fighting the raging blaze.

When the smoke had cleared away, to the sadness of all Presbyterian College men, it was obvious that Neville Hall was no more.

Y. O. Why - As Us

C. DRAYTON COOPER III

The other day, Yorick O. Why, great exponent of the PC Spirit and outstanding journalist, was looking for two things: a ride to Davidson to watch the so-called "Country Cousins" take their sophisticated relatives by the tail and twirl 'em out of their cockiness, and an idea for a column.

Well, as yet, ol' Yorick still hasn't found a ride that'll take him up to that booming metropolis of Davidson, North Carolina, but he did find an idea for a column, in fact several ideas.

He, that is, Y. O., was chatting with the fightin' parson, Bob Floyd, the other afternoon at football practice about the fact that there are so few home football games.

The Reverend was bemoaning the fact that he hasn't been able to see the Blues play yet, and probably wouldn't get to all year. Well, his isn't the only gripe we've heard.

Well, the administration will probably tell us that we don't make money on home games, and that's so, too! But very few other colleges would make money on three home games either. Really, though, it doesn't help our team any for the student body to be left behind when they play a real tough game.

They say that no one but college students would turn out for these home games, but there are roughly 8,000 (so the propaganda sheet says) people in this town we call our second home. It seems to us that there would be at least 500 of that number who would come out for the games. And, if the team were really publicized all over the state through newspapers, radio, and television, there would be even more people that would turn out.

When a PC'un mentions school, if he is more than 50 miles from Clinton, some sure to pipe up with the question, "Where's that pl

Well, if we got some of games here, and then really it up about our school, the ple who have never heard would become enlightened a good policy to have t come here to play, it mean visitors to the campus, in turn, means a greater knowledge of Presbyteria lege to the public.

Now, we're not advocatin ing such teams as Nort Georgia Tech or Maryland, but it sure would be a trem help to student morale could look in the Blue S next fall, and see about fiv slated for Clinton. Hones believe it would pay off long run.

Whatever comes of th umn we would like to se games involving the P played either here, or a It sure would keep the P it up.

Since the first half o week's column was devoted football team, we might make it all of it.

Word got on our campus this week that up at D they call PC students "Country Cousins". Now lows, that's not nice. know that down here at lege we're just a bunch o down-to-earth college s trying to get an educatio have a good time, as th may be.

We readily admit that w go around wearing Be shorts to class or really d up in Brooks Brothers cl for a trip to the canteen.

We also are aware of th that we don't sit up in chap hiss and boo at the speake city-dwellers in North C do. No, I guess if things l brand us as "Country C then we're from the count

Now we don't have Armstrong to play for dances down here, and don't have those lovelies at Queens to date, but w have Tony Pastor, and Morrow, and Charlie Sp and Dean Hudson to play our little dances.

And we have the pla country girls at Winthrop verse, Lander, Furman, bia, and particularly Agnes that like to go out on a Sa night with us Country men.

Presbyterian College is without a bulging student ment of nearly 800, and w live in a fashionable subu Charlotte, either.

What we do have, thou 505 rootin'-tootin', red hot ho, wide-awake fellows an who know they're just po good people, that are going their little ol' country bo go up to that TREMEN city of Davidson. North Ca and beat the living stuff that citified bunch of they call a football team.

Battle of Calvins Set Saturday; Hose Meet Wildcats in Big Test

• Big Crowd Expected at Davidson

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose, rested after an open date, meet the Davidson Wildcats, fresh from a victory over The Citadel, on the latter's home field at 2:30 tomorrow. The Blue Hose have copped six of the tilts while losing seven. One game ended in a tie.

The Hose, victorious in their last three games with the Cats, are out to tame the highriding wildcats. Coach Bill Crutchfield has high hopes of keeping his record clean against outer state opponents.

This year's game will hold many exciting events if it follows the pattern of the games of previous years. Last year two safeties proved fatal to the Cats when they visited Johnson Field.

Senior end of this year, Bobby Jackson, was responsible for both of the scores for the Hose. Jackson, in the first quarter, tackled one Davidsonian in the end zone and blocked a kick which bounded out of the end zone. These two safeties proved to be the deciding points in the game.

The Hosemen drove 55 yards to paydirt in the second quarter and held a 10-0 lead at half-time. The Blue Hose held off a mighty Davidson rally in the second half to win by a score of 10-7.

The PC team now boasts of a one win-one loss record with a loss to mighty Clemson, now ranked sixteenth in the nation, and a win over Austin Peay.

The Blue Hose have shown a powerful rushing game this year, gaining more yardage against Clemson than any team last year including tough Maryland University. Sophomore fullback Ken Webb has been the big gun of the Hose running attack so far this year. If the passing attack comes through as it has in the past few years the Blue Hose should gain their second victory of the young season.

Another bright spot in the Hose play so far this year has been the kicking of quarterback Felder Cook. Cook got off kicks of 57 and 68 yards against Clemson. The kicking of Harry Hamilton in last year's Davidson game kept the Cats deep in their own territory almost all night.

Davidson coach Bill Dole is out to stop the Blue Hose victory string over Davidson at three. He has been putting his charges through the paces all week in preparation for the PC game.

It all adds up to a very fast and exciting game between the two Presbyterian institutions.

Behind the Blues

HOSE MEET CATS

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose, after an open date last week, are fully prepared for their battle with the Davidson Wildcats this week end.

The Cats boast of a fine team this year, and they earned their spurs this past week by taking a hard-fought contest from The Citadel Bulldogs.

The games of the past few years have been loaded with excitement. The Hosemen have been triumphant in the last three games. Each game has featured a different star for the Presbyterians from P College.

Quarterback "Lefty" Harper was PC's shining star in the 1953 game. His pin-point passing led the Blue Hose to a 14-12 victory. Another passer, Harry Hamilton, threw two TD passes in the '53 game to pull out a last minute victory for the "Battlin' Blue Hose."

End Bobby Jackson made the 1954 Homecoming a happy one for the Hose by scoring two safeties which proved to be the margin of victory for the PC team.

It is this writer's opinion the "Battlin' Blue Hose" of Presbyterian College will bring home their fourth straight victory over the Wildcats this week end. Our team needs the support of the student body. We should all make it a point to travel to Davidson and cheer the Hose on to victory!

Sports Question

The Broadway theatre is again this week offering a free pass to the winner of this week's contest. A contestant must answer all three questions to win.

What Southern Conference team lost thirteen straight Homecoming games?

What outstanding end on a PC team was named "the most outstanding player I have ever coached" by Lonnie McMillan?

What team ran up the most total points ever scored by a college football team in a single game?

Wiley Keller was the winner of last week's contest and will receive the free pass to the Broadway theatre. No contestant can win more than once in a one-month period.

Intramural Football Starts Student Sports

PC's intra-mural sports program got underway Thursday afternoon, Sept. 29, on the practice field, as touch football began.

In the first contest of the afternoon, Pi Kappa Alpha downed Pi Kappa Phi 20-0. The following game came to a close with Theta Chi ahead of Kappa Alpha, 8-0.

Monday's games saw Sigma Nu fall to the Charlotte Colonials, 7-0, in a close one; and Pi Kappa Phi giving the freshmen a forfeit victory. Wednesday afternoon, Sigma Nu took KA 15-6 and Pi Kappa Alpha handed Theta Chi a 12-0 defeat.

The standings through Thursday, Oct. 6, are as follows:

Kappa Alpha, 0-2	.000

Basketeers Open Season's Practice

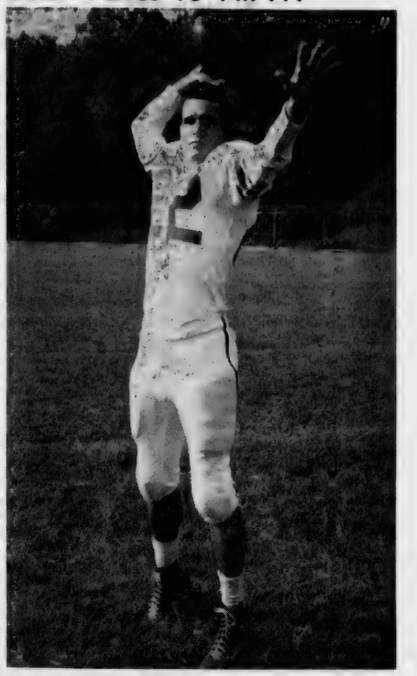
Season practice began Sept. 21 for the Presbyterian Blue Hose Basketball team, under the supervision of Coach Russ Murphy, who steps in as head coach replacing Coach Norman Sloan, who is now coaching at Memphis State.

Returning from last season are Wyatt Aiken of Greenville, Bill Lipp, of Frankfort, Ind., Bill Toole, of Indianapolis, Ind., Dave Thompson, of Michigan City, Ind., Arnold Stone, of Maxton, N. C. and Chuck Sloan of Clinton. The new men are Tom Cherry, Ken Caswell, Clarence Leitzon, Bill Sullivan and Clayton Adams.

New men who show good potentialities are Ken Caswell and Bill Sullivan at guards. Sullivan should boost the Blue Hose considerably, and in working for a first string berth. Caswell and Cherry should see plenty of action. Clayton Adams, who will be out of action for at least three weeks because of a sprained ankle, should, upon his return, strengthen the forward position.

Of the old timers, Bill Toole, Dave Thompson and Bruce Thompson are looking exceptionally sharp in early season practices.

Bill Lipp, who was also bothered with an ankle injury earlier this season, is whipping into much improved form. Wyatt Aiken, who is also much improved over last year, is expected to see plenty of action.



Arnold Stone and Chuck Sloan are in better form with Stone showing more aggressiveness than last year.

Coach Murphy, who makes his debut on the PC Cage this year, will run practically the same patterns as were used in the past by the Blue Hose.

Up to this point the Hosemen are looking sharp, hampered only by ankle injuries.

A scrimmage game with a mill team in Greenville is expected to be scheduled at a later date.

Cook Takes to Air . . .

Junior quarterback Felder Cook will lead the Blue Hose football team in their annual tilt with the Davidson Wildcats tomorrow afternoon at 2:15. Cook has played fine ball this season and his kicking has been exceptional. Cook was instrumental in PC's fine showing against Clemson and their win against Austin Peay.

Battle of Presbyterians Has Long Dusty Past

By LAWRENCE YOUNG

Throughout the history of the "Battle of the Presbyterians"—PC vs Davidson, every game has been hard fought with no quarter given. Since the 1955 game is on tap this week end, the Blue Hose have won six while losing seven and tying one.

In 1919, when the first game was played, John Calvin could not decide which Presbyterian school he wanted to win. When the dust settled on the gridiron, the score read 0-0.

The next year Lady Luck favored the mighty Blue Hose when Shoalar passed to McBride for the only TD of the day. The only other scoring was PC kicking the point after touchdown to win 7-0.

When the 1922 season rolled around, Fate seemed to favor the Hosemen from Clinton throughout the entire season as they rolled over their opposition with a 6-2-1 record.

They rolled over all the denominational schools including Davidson. Late in the fourth quarter of the 1922 tussle with the Wildcats leading 7-2, the inspired men of Johnson roared back to win 8-7 with a long drive into paydirt.

For the next four years the Father of the Presbyterians smiled upon the Wildcats from north of the border. The traditional rivalry came to an abrupt end when the Wildcats kicked a field goal in a hard fought game at Winthrop College to defeat the Hosemen 3-0.

When the Hose-Cat rivalry was begun again in 1949, the Blue Hose seemed to have contact with headquarters as they rolled over their big brothers from the north 27-7. The Cats couldn't gain much ground through the line because of Little All-American Tackle Bozo Weir.

In 1952 the McMillianmen upset the Wildcat homecoming with a spectacular 14-12 victory. Lefty Harper led the inspired aggregation from P College to victory with his accurate passing arm.

Again in 1953 another left-handed quarterback, Harry Hamilton, spoiled the Davidson Homecoming by passing two paydirt aerials. With only three minutes remaining and the Wildcats leading 18-13, Hamilton faded to pass, then decided to run with the pigskin when he couldn't find a receiver open.

He raced down to the Wildcat one before he was overtaken. On the next play he sneaked across the double stripes for six points and a 19-18 victory for PC.

In 1954 the Crutchfieldmen downed a previously unbeaten Wildcat eleven in the PC Homecoming by a score of 10-7. End Bobby Jackson was the star by performing the unbelievable feat of scoring two safeties in the first quarter by tackling one Wildcat behind the goal line and blocking one punt which rolled out of the end zone.

In the second quarter PC drove 55 yards on four plays to score. Throughout the second half the mighty Hosemen played a tight defensive game, permitting Davidson only one touchdown. When the final whistle blew, the score was 10-7.

GAME TO BE BROADCAST

The PC-Davidson football game will be broadcast on WLBG, Laurens, direct from Davidson. Air time is 2:15, with Bill Hogan and Chris Patte at mikeside.

Macadoo in Bwana Land . . .

By CHARLES DUKES

Macadoo: traveler, bon vivant, aesthete, philosopher; whatever you will. The following is a report given to the author to be released at will. It concerns Macadoo's findings in the land of darkness, in the wilds of Carolina. The report:

"Look, there ain't no sense in losing my head over describing this place, see? Just picture a flick with Stew Granger and Grace Kelly, say, in the jungle, and there you are. All wild, and all that. Well, we was floating along down the river when I see a monkey leaping around the shore. With a minimum of effort, I sight quick signals the driver of the boat of pole over there. You ain't seen nothing 'till you seen a native trying to pole with a outboard motor, but gee, the guys in the movies always pole their boats around. When we got to shore I says 'Say, friend, how far to the lost tribe of Clinton-on-the Dismals'?

"He scratched his ear with his foot for a few strokes, and says, 'Oh, 'bout a couple more bends in the creek, I guess'."

(Look, you guys don't ask questions, see? Just print the stuff.

I once knew a dog who read the newspapers. He liked the columns best.)

"Well, we gawked at the scenery for a couple more bends, 'til we sure 'nuff bumped up on the beach at C.O.T.D. We kinda came at it cautious like, 'cause natives what don't know what a white man is are sorta shook at first sight of one.

"I didn't really have no need to be upset at first, 'cause the beach didn't have no one around. In fact, we wasn't really sure that we was at the right place 'till we saw a little hut with a sign that said, 'Tribe canteen'.

"There was marks in the sand kinda like a pinball machine would leave if it was being drug away, but I guess it would not have no place here nohow, huh?

"Anyway, we didn't see nobody around, but we heard all kinds of noise coming from what must have been the village. We kinda played snake-in-the-grass and snuck up to see what was going on.

"What we saw was enough to make me yearn to have my old fireside at home in front of me right away. They was all kinds of natives hollering and screaming and leaping up in the air, while a bunch of natives around them was yelling at them.

"Well, sir, I was convinced it was a war party, and they was getting up steam for a little head-hunting party.

"It was enouh to make a feller button his collar. My guides put me at ease by saying that it was merely a tribal pep rally to whip up spirit for a wildcat hunt next Saturday. We had moved in closer during this time, and one of my guides struck up a little parley with one of the townsfolk.

"He says, 'What's the chance of a outlander coming in to case the joint?'

"The feller says back 'Sure, man, fall over to the info office and ask for G. Ed Cannibal. If he can't fill you in, we got a visiting Arabian, Abou Ben Hammit, what can really give you the low'.

"We tromped around 'till we came to a hunt marked 'Library'.

"Let me tell you about this job. G. Ed. wasn't in, but we jawed with his secretary, who occasionally had to knock off the chatter to answer the drums.

"After we talked with her, we went to see G. A. Anthropoid, Dean of Aborigines, and got the scoop on what cooked with the boys. Or what boys got cooked, you might say."

Here the report leaves off, so let us return again another time for more Macadoo.

This year's total includes 23 women. There are 63 veterans on the campus.

Blue Key Sends Group To Wofford

The Blue Key National Honor Fraternity sent their official annual goodwill delegation to Wofford College in Spratanburg Thursday.

This affair has been a project of the Blue Key for the past several years in order to promote better relations between the two schools.

"Dawning Renaissance" Has Splendid Bir

The "Dawning Renaissance" program has begun with a magnificent birth as the campus hustles with the spirit of the Convocation and the 75th Homecoming exercises. This proposed program of progress floods the campus with a dim light shining toward the ultimate of those who support and stand for the ideals upon which this college was based.

This campaign of progress can be halted in its tracks, however, unless a coordinated effort by each individual alumnus, Student Body member and friend of the college is put into effect. We cannot hesitate. We must follow through because of the magnanimity of the plan.

Student participation will be based upon the sense of the individual. Each person here should realize the needs for a new student center, chapel, and many other improvements. This does not need an explanation to the students.

We feel, however, that the dawn should break in the minds of the Student Body in regard to the future of the college. Most of us know that we will not remain here for much longer than a four-year period. "Why, then, is there a need for my effort?" says the student.

First there is the standard that we should forget our needs and project our thoughts to the good of the future. This phrase seems to be overly used, but it still portrays a vivid picture to the few who realize that this development in conjunction with the Convocation will be of benefit to the future of the college, as well as to the students who will receive the advantages of the completed program.

But one important phase has been overlooked. This program will benefit us as alumni of Presbyterian College.

The editor was privileged to attend a meeting of the Convocation Steering Committee this week at which time the leaders of the Development Program had an organizational meeting which kicked the lid off the $2,000,000 program. The editor wishes that more of the Student Body could have attended the meeting and could have seen the vital interest shown Presbyterian College by those influential men. We repeat, these men ARE interested in Presbyterian College. Our interest should be at least on par with that of these men.

We must then be convinced of the needs of of PC in order to support the program with our prayers, moral strength, and, of course, finances. Men, this is it! We must always have our minds set on the advancement of Presbyterian College. We must set aside other interests and focus our attention upon the use of our influence on the public regarding this drive.

This campaign demands student leadership of the caliber which now exists on this campus. In connection with leadership, we must have organization. By these "foundation stones" the campus participation in the development program may be spurred. Without these nothing can be accomplished.

Our principal duty is to sell the school. Our duty is to see that PC stays at the top of educational circles, and is also to insure that future PC students have an auditorium which will seat the entire Student Body, and a Student Union Building which will house facilities for publication and recreational facilities.

To achieve these ends, we must have a great effort by each member of the Student Body toward the $2,000,000 goal.

Need for Communications

The editorial staff of the Blue Stockin a request to make of the school administ

For some time, one of the most annoyin tors of dormitory life has been the inef handling of telephone calls. It is more left up to some unfortunate first-floor d to answer all calls. The only way in someone could be summoned to the phon been through the use of the answerer cords.

This is highly unfortunate. Oftentim portant calls are missed, causing unnec hardships and embarrassments. All of th efficiency could be done away with throug installation of individual telephones, but this is too costly and impractical at this another method is suggested.

A small, one-way public address syste stalled in each building would greatly all the problem. The master unit could be p on the first floor beside the telephone, an ondary units could be placed at either e each hall. This would necessitate only speakers and the master unit at the most. cost would be far from prohibitive, and the ed convenience would be immeasurable.

If this plan cannot be carried out in a dormitories, it should be given to Bailey out fail. The enclosed type of hallway t in Bailey will make it impossible to shout the lounge, where the phone is located, r either of the higher floors.

The Blue Stocking asks that sincere c eration be given to this request. It has made after countless students have asked voice their pleas. We, the students, r greatly appreciate such a venture by the s as a step toward building a better PC for

Macadoo on Anniversaries and Things

By Charles Dukes

That Macadoo really gets around. The author spent quite a bit of time and stationery trying to locate him, until finally the job was turned over to "Beagle Ben" Hammit, who rounded him up in short order. The following is written from one of Macadoo's lush villas in the mountains of Italia.

'Dear Charlie:

"Your letter caught me at just the right time, 'cause it so happens I been thinkin' about his here thing of anniversaries. I had a little time to think while I'm recovering from a broke leg, but don't worry about that gam. My Italian nurse, Mrs. Boborini, is giving me aspirins which is fixing me right up.

"Seventy-five years, huh? Man, that's plenty of time to figure out what's comin' off. From your letter, it looks like the guys down at the Library is really gettin' cn the stick and puttin' the total of all that know-how into that Convocation. Kinda reminds you of a kid putting long pants on for the first time, huh?

"I go for the theme you guys have took—'The Dawning Renaissance.' It's too bad some of the fellars on campus is saying, 'What's with this "Dawning Renaissance?" they trying to get serious about this place, or something? Whatta bunch of phonies!'

"You know, Charlie, maybe it's stuff like that what's been holding P College back until now, huh? Maybe this weekend will change their minds.

"C. boy, I'm sorry to hear that the upperclassmen are all put out kinda with the Fresh, but I guess that subject comes up every year. It's a shame. What kinda Renaissance is you all gonno have if the school starts growin' and the students git less and less growed up? Huh? You don't have to print this what I'm going to say next, but at least put it in your hat and smoke it. You gripe about the Fresh. All right.

"But don't you realise that every time you let a rat go by without his lid, or his signs, or bowing to the mail box, or if he jumps up and tries to be the first one outa Chapel, that you are as much at fault as he is? Maybe even more.

"That Fresh is an A-1 Harry when he comes on your campus, and he ain't gonna be nothin' else until you guys show him what a real upperclassman is. Is it his fault that he ain't a real Joe his first day or first month or even his first smester at P College? No, it ain't. But do you know whose fault it is if he's still a Harry High after that time? You, Bo. Number One.

"Don't think I'm trying to play Mother Goose to the Fresh, either. They gotta do their job to the hilt, too, and their job is a lot harder than yours is.

"Now, don't go burnin' the letter 'cause I chomped ya, here. I don't mean all yuo guys or all the Fresh are at fault. But just make the best use of whatcha got.

"Well, back to the subject. By the way, you guys are goin' to have to learn to pronounce that Renaissance right. It's Re-NAI-ssance, see? O. K.

"Man, it sounds like it's really going to be ON in Clinton this weekend. Visitors, wheels, queens for the P men, wow! I guess the Renaissance ain't the only 'dawn' you guys will be up to see, huh? 'Course the Fresh will be losing some sack time guarding the campus.

"That's real cloak and dagger stuff, hey, boy? (From the way things turned out last year, we'd better have the Battalion camped around Clinton in trenches.) I can see it now. Wide-awake eyeballs boring into the pitch black, just waiting for the merest hint of a marauder. Zounds! What drama: what pathos! I wish I could be there to see it all.

"Hold everything down this week end lad. I have sent my bull whip I got in India to you so you can keep those P College stags away from your Winthrop queen. See you next issue.

The Blue Stocking photographer has captured a rare moment for posterity. It is not often that the outside world has an insight into the goings-on of the campus newspaper, but this week our dear editor decided to reveal our weekly seances to the world. 'To Catch a Thief' - Thriller

"To Catch A Thief" stars Cary Grant and Grace Kelly in a Mercedes-Benz paced story of a reformed jewel thief forced to call upon every criminal skill at his command to save his own life. Directed by the old master of the suspense film, Alfred Hitchcock, it is set and filmed on the French Riviera. For pure chilling power, plot intrigues, and heart-stopping suspense, a Hicthcock film is hard to beat.

Cary Grant portrays a retired Rassles, known as "The Cat", who is living respectably on the Riviera when a series of burglaries reminiscent of his former technique break out. It seems the Gendarmes are of the sort that jail you first and ask questions later, so "The Cat" is forced into hiding and an undercover quest for his imitator.

Grace Kelly, whose memorable performance in "The Country Girl" won her an Academy Award and the applause of the world, adds a striking new portrait to her screen credits, in the role of a rich, lovely (Natch!), and spoiled American heiress whom "The Cat" encounters in the course of his unorhtodox sleuthing.

"The Cat" conceives the dangerous plan of using GRACE and her diamond-laden mother as bait. He is set to catch a thief, but GRACE has other ideas. The romantic sparks that fly between these two are enough to up the temperature at the Broadway Theatre at least 20 degrees.

"The Hitchcock Touch", that magical talent for using every aspect of motion picture-making to create suspense, lightning-like movement, and dramatic, true-to-life reality, has been brought to the peak of perfection in his latest thriller.

Camera technique, background, color, and tricky editing place 'To Catch A Thief" among Hitchcock's greatest. It's in VistaVision and Technicolor, and it's coming to the Broadway Theatre for a day run opening October 17th.

Y. O. Why Speaks Out

C. DRAYTON COOPER III

Since this is Party Week at P College, and all the dignitaries are around to help us throw a real affair, Yorick O. Why has come up with an idea for a Convocation that would top them all. We would call this one, instead of Dawning Renaissance, the Setting Sun, 'cause after it was held, everybody concerned would have to be moving along just like the setting sun.

Well, as the scenario writers would put it, the affair would begin as we take a long shot of Clinton. Long bluish-white fingers of light feel the sky as spotlights play their weird beams into the heavens. As we draw closer, we see that the center of the activities is the newly erected Hose Bowl Stadium, in the heart of the Presbyterian College campus.

The nearer we come, the more of the hustle-bustle we can witness; nattily attired campus cops, led by the Parson Policeman, George "Private Eye" Anderson, are directing the thousands of cars into the parking lots. Out on the field, the 178-piece concert band, in their scarlet and royal blues are serenading the incoming crowd. The murmur of the many voices of the spectators fills the air. There is a feeling of great anticipation in the tense scene.

As we glance over the program of events for the mammoth event, we see that two days before, The Right Reverend J. Raymond Lord, bishop of the diocese of Greater America, and former rector of the Washington Cathedral, had opened the affair with an address on the religious aspects of the Setting Sun.

And so, dear readers, Y. O. Why has taken you for a trip into the misty realm of the future. We hope you have enjoyed what you have read, and that 25 years from now, through your cooperation and interest, several of the items foreseen in this bit of nonsense will be actual fact.

Blue Stocking Takes the Highlight; Serves Student Body for 35 Years

This year marks the 35th anniversary of the Blue Stocking of Presbyterian College, which has had the merit of distinguished progress under many, various, and sundry editors, styles, and honors. The All-American banner which waves from the reign of Ray Lord as editor 1954-55, has underscored an outstanding career.

Last year, for the ninth time in its history, the Blue Stocking received the Associated Collegiate Press' highest stamp of approval and ranks as the only South Carolina collegiate newspaper with such a record.

The latest winner was edited during the past year by senior Ray Lord of Dublin, Ga., who managed to cop the coveted award for two successive semesters.

The Blue Stocking first rolled off the presses at PC in January, 1920, under the editorship of Carl W. McMurray, who is now pastor of the Marion (N. C.) Presbyterian Church. It has served up the campus ever since, except for a three-year break during World War II.

In addition to the nine All-American citations, the Blue Stocking has been rated twice among the best in the nation—regardless of the size of the institution.

The first All-American rank came in 1941 under the editorship of Charles B. MacDonald '42, now with the US Army Department of History. It achieved this rank both semesters that year, the second group being declared among the ten best in the country.

Ben Hay Hammet, '43, now public relations and alumni director at PC, followed with two All-Americans in 1942, with one semester's publications judged among the seven best in the nation.

Editor James Banbury, '46, now sports editor of the Florence Morning News, produced an All-American in 1947; and the sixth citation came soon after under Harry Shuler Dent, '51, now serving as public relations director for J. Strom Thurmond, distinguished Senator from South Carolina.

McMurray, one of the founders, graduated in June, 1920, and so he was able to serve only one semester as editor. R. G. Matheson, now president of Paducah, (Ky.) Junior College, replaced him at the editorial helm in the fall of 1920.

From this point on, the names of past editors of the Blue Stocking and their performances form a list of distinction.

After a trip to New Orleans to a press convention held in the spring of 1939, Editor Tucker Irvin, the first junior to ever edit the Blue Stocking, came back to the campus with new ideas about college newspapers.

He radically changed the layout and style of the Blue Stocking, with the result that it ranked among the first in the state during the late spring.

With an excellent literary staff, Irvin came back in the fall of 1940, after an entire summer of study at the University of Minnesota, and again made history with the paper, as he made it, in the opinion of those who should know, "The best Blue Stocking in at least eight years."

To the diminutive editor, and to his staff, we take off our hats, for we know that the work they did and the example they set, has been a highlight in Presbyterian College's literary history for many years.

ROTC Has Interesting Background; Has 35 Years of Service to Country

By FRANK YOUNG

Presbyterian College's Reserve Officer Training Corps is celebrating its 35th anniversary this year in conjunction with PC's Diamond Jubilee. From those first days in 1920 to the present, the cadet battalion has gone through many changes. In that period of time the PC graduates have distinguished themselves as field soldiers, par excellence.

SATC Ancestor of ROTC

In September, 1918, the college suspended the regular curriculum and used the plant to train men for second lieutenants. This program, which was sponsored by the government all over the country, was known as the Students' Army Training Corps, hence its abbreviation SATC. This name was slurred by many into "Safe at the College".

Second Lt. Roy L. McFarland was in charge of the SATC at PC, until the spring of 1919 when the SATC was disbanded. During the life of the SATC the cadets were held to strict military discipline, with the troops rising at 5:30 A. M. to police the campus. Laurens Dormitory was turned into an infirmary because of the flu epidemic among the cadets.

ROTC Established

The college made application for an ROTC unit when the SATC was withdrawn. In November, 1920, the Government responded, appointing Col. E. L. Glasgow as PMS&T. The enrollment then was only 100 students.

From Col. Glasgow to the present PMS&T, Lt. Col. F. V. Smith, the ROTC has continued without interruption. The PC Military Department has had several outstanding men as Commandant in that time.

Wysor Has Great Influence on Cadet Corps

R. E. Wysor, Jr., was appointed PMS&T in 1929. A captain at that time, Wysor advanced to the rank of major before he left PC. His tenure of office lasted for nine years, equalling the tenure of Col. Glasgow.

He was subsequently promoted to colonel, from which rank he retired. He is the donor of the R. E. Wysor, Jr., saber to the best company commander and the medal to the best drilled freshman. Since his retirement he has made his home in Clinton, across the street from the tennis courts.

PC Graduates Serve as PMS&T'S

Three alumni of PC have returned to direct the cadets' military education. The first of these was Henry M. Wilson, Jr., '36, who was appointed Assistant PMS&T in 1940. A native of Brooklyn, N. Y., he was associated with the college for several years previous to his appointment. He came as a first lieutenant and was later promoted to captain while at PC.

One alumnus became the Commandant, Powell A. Fraser, '41. After the war, in which he served with distinction, Major Fraser was appointed PMS&T. He was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel while at PC. Col. Fraser was affectionately known as "Pop" by PC students. A leader in Presbyterian circles, his Alma Mater recognized him with an alumni Gold P. He has recently been made a colonel.

Serving as Assistant PMS&T under Fraser was Major Felton H. Moore. Major Moore was also an alumnus of class of '41. While a cadet Major Moore served as Cadet Lt. Colonel his senior year.

Congressional Medal of Honor Winner

George L. Mabry, '41, is the Congressional Medal of Honor winner among PC alumni. Mabry has recently been promoted to Colonel. He too, was awarded an alumni Gold P for outstanding service.

Uniform Goes Through Evolution

The first uniform issued to cadets was the olive drab uniform of WWI, complete with "riding breeches," and Sam Browne belts and leather leggings for the cadet officers. In 1929 the ROTC obtained new uniforms similar to those worn by the cadets today. Gone were the leather leggings and OD color, but the Sam Browne belt was retained.

In 1933 Juniors began wearing the officers' "pink" trousers. Virtually no change in uniform was made until the issuance of HBT uniforms, known as fatigues. Since the unit drilled every day the wear and tear on wool uniforms was too much. The wool uniform was for parade and inspection wear only.

The next change of uniform came in 1954, when khakis were issued to be worn in fall and spring. This made for a more distinguished looking unit.

Years ago cadets had to buy their own shoes. Adair's Men Store in Clinton supplied the students. Now the army issues shoes to the cadets.

Unit Excels At Summer Camp

One has only to look in the trophy case in Neville Hall to learn that PC's cadets made honors at summer camp. These honros covered many fields, the more recent of which was the Best Drilled Platoon and Squad at Ft. Bragg in 1954.

Summer camp was held at Ft. McClellan, Ala., in the old days, and is currently held at Ft. Benning, Ga. One year, 1933, the camp was held at Clemson College, of all places, and was dubbed Camp Clemson. This was done on account of lack of Federal funds to hold it somewhere else.

Distinctive Features Noted

The Presbyterian College ROTC is one of the few civilian colleges that drill every week day. Also distinctive unit insignia worn on the shoulder loop, and patches on the sleeve are to the appearance of the unit. Both of these features came into being in 1953.

To add to its appearance the college purchased eleven sabers in 1929 to be worn by senior cadet officers. Since there were not enough to go around they took turns wearing them. On Monday, Wednesday and Friday, the company commanders and platoon leaders wore them. On Tuesday and Thursday the executive officers and assistant platoon leaders wore these symbols of an officer.

Rifle Team Outstanding Feature

The PC ROTC rifle team is one of the college's more prominent features. It has repeatedly done well in state and national competition. If anyone wonders what the cement wall is for down in centerfield on the baseball field, it's to stop bullets fired by the cadets in rifle practice. This range was completed in 1935, but was later abandoned.

In 1933 a co-ed rifle team was organized, and it held forth for several years. There were many red-faced cadets when a girl outshot them. In competition between male and female rifle teams, the girls were allowed to harass the boys verbally while the latter fired, but the boys had to leave the girls alone.

LITTLE JACK HORNER

Little Jack Horner sat in an angle meditating. Before we go further
Please clearly understand that this is blank verse.
If it reads strangely, and the accent falls
In unexpected places, do not dare
To criticize. Remember once for all,
That I and Milton judge questions like that—
So much said, I start again In a corner he sat, remote
From comrades. Resolutely his hand clutched a delicious pie. Anon his thumb from the pasty depth produced a currant.
(Excuse another interruption, but observe the beauty of that ultimate line!
With equal ease I might have written it
"Produced a currant from the pasty depth," but I Prefer to be original.) In his soul
The obsession of his own superior virtue
Grew and prevailed, till at the last he cried,
"I am a paragon of Excellence." Oh, Happy Jack Horner,
Thus fully convinced of his remarkable superiority and Happy Readers,
Who peruse his tale retold in such magnificent blank verse.

Blue Hose to Meet Wofford Tonigh

Presbyterians Favored Over Terrier

Little Three Championship in Balanc

By TOMMY RICHARDS

The Battlin' Blue Hose of Coach Bill Crutchfield meet the Terriers of Wofford tonight at 8:15. This 39th meeting of the two teams with the Hose w twenty-two while losing thirteen and tying three.

Although the Blues have lost five out of the last six gam majority were by close scores. The Blue Hose have scored a 529 to 357 for Wofford.

PC is fresh from an upset win over the Davidson Wildcats. Coach Crutchfield was very well pleased with the line play of the Hose. The PC'uns will attempt to stop Wofford's offensive-minded Terriers with a crashing forward wall. The outstanding line of the Garnet and Blue has limited the opposition to less than 100 yards per game.

Combined opponents in three games have registered only a total of 291 yards rushing against the stout defense of the Blues. Among these three teams were representatives fo the strong Atlantic Coast Conference and the Southern Conference.

Coach Jerry Wampfler and three linemen were cited for their exceptional up-front in the Davidson game. Senior tackle Robert Harrington used a crashing initial charge and a quick charge to register five individual tackles and throw the Cats back for a total loss of seven yards.

Sophomore end Bob Stevens turned a Davidson fumble on an attempted pass into a 40-yard touchdown run. Freshman guard Richard Shrigley played outstanding ball in making six individual tcakles and a key pass interception.

The second platoon line, made up of ends Bobby Jackson and Ken Daughtry, tackles James Lee and Wayne Shoemaker, guards Alvis Poe and Bill Tsacries, and center Guy Haddix, was cited for its tremendous game in backing up the first platoon.

The backfield play of the Blue Stocking clad team was also at a peak for this season. Halfback Gene Butler ran well and also hauled in a 32-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Felder Cook.

Power runners Ken Webb and Eddie Brockenbrough kept the Davidson line honest with their mighty thrusts at the line. Quarterback Cook looked sharp in his passing and ball handling.

Wofford presents a strong offensive threat in halfback B. B. Stevens, last year's top s man, who has been out a the year with a kidney Stevens was in a shoc against Newberry, and Conley Snidow expects to be in top shape for the PC

The Terriers have three offensive threats in halfb Frank Greene and George rence nad fullback Fra Prete. Quarterback C Jones is a more than ad passer and signal caller.

The line is paced by George Rice, guard All nis and end and tackle W and Weldon Burns.

The Wofford-PC rivalry of the bitterest in South lina. The game should be with excitement and hat by both teams. The Hose tempting to avenge a clos loss at the hands of the last year.

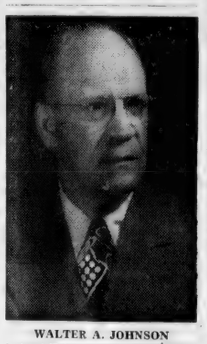
Johnson Builds PC Football Power; Serves College in Arduous Career

Forty years ago Walter A. Johnson, a native of Milwaukee, Wis., came to Presbyterian College when the school had only 185 students enrolled to start another milestone in PC history. As alumni, friends, and students celebrate the Diamond Jubilee, Coach Johnson is vividly brought back to the minds of sports fans all over the Southeast, because he has been credited with "doing more for South Carolina athletics than any other individual."

Most of the credit for developing the Presbyterian athletic plant which rates with the best among small colleges is given to Walter Johnson. When he was not giving his best to his college, he participated in athletic advances throughout the state on the theory that it would help each individual school.

As we look into the past, "Coach" was instrumental in establishing the first coaching school in the South which was held at the University of South Carolina in 1922. To the forerunner of the present day Coaches Clinic, Coach Johnson served as football and track coach.

Among the tangible elements of Johnson's record are his promotions of Presbyterian College into the limelight along the athletic front. He fomented night football in the state by giving PC the state's first floodlighted football field.



Being the key figure in the founding of the state intercollegiate track and field meet, South Carolina's Little Olympics, which has been held annually at PC, Johnson has acted as director since 1926. He played a leading part in bringing collegiate boxing to this state, but PC has dropped it from its program in recent years. He was the instigator of PC having the first indoor swimming pool in the state.

He also helped build PC into a national tennis power and promoted the net game within the state. Incidentally, PC has never lost the State Tennis Tournament since its organization.

Coach Johnson's record as a coach, athletic director, sportsman, and gentleman will always be remembered by fans in the South. His forty years of continuous service to the Garnet and Blue has earned the title of Dean of Southern Sportsmen.

Twice during these forty glorious years he has responded to the call to National colors by serving the year of 1918 and the years 1941-1946 with the Armed Forces overseas. Upon his return after the war, he confined his duties to those of athletic director.

In 1935, the student body of the University of South Carolina presented him with a sterling silver service "in appreciation for an influence helpful to college sports far beyond the campus of the institution he directly serves".

September 21, 1940, was designated as Johnson Day to pay tribute to Coach Walter A. Johnson on his 25th anniversary of service to PC. On that day the Clemson Tiger-Presbyterian Blue Hose annual football opener was shifted to Johnson Field — the one and only time in the long history of the series with an overflow crowd of 6,000 fans watching.

When a voluntary contribution was taken by the Clemson student body, every cadet on the campus donated to present Johnson with an engraved desk set "in recognition of his leadership in developing intercollegiate athletics in South Carolina." On this particular occasion Governor Burnett R. Maybank was on hand to thank Johnson for his services to South Carolina athletics.

Two years ago Presbyterian College took an unprecedented step in bestowing the honorary doctor of laws degree upon the head of the athletic department —the one and only Dr. Walter A. Johnson. He rightfully deserved this honor because of his belief in good sportsmanship and his record as a builder of character and high moral fiber in the individual.

Behind the Blues

THE OLD AND THE NEW

The Battlin' Blue Hose of Presbyterian College are not as airminded in 1955 as they have been in the past three years. The elevens of '52, '53, and '54 were sparked by two passing aces, both lefties.

"Lefty" Harper, who led the '52 team, was a passer with an accurate eye and arm. Harry "Sniper" Hamilton pulled quite a few games out of the fire in 1953 and 1954 with his aerials. The Newberry win of '54 was probably the most memorable victory that came via the aerial route.

This year's team is relying mainly on a strong running attack. The forward wall has been a pleasant surprise both on offense and defense. Although Felder Cook has completed more than fifty per cent of his passes, this years team does not mainly rely on its passing attack.

WOFFORD . . . OH!

Well, the bitter rivalry has really been flaming the past week. It seems that the Wofford football field has acquired a "New Look." A little gasoline and a few matches did the trick. It has also been brought to this writer's attention that numerous parts of the Gold and Black campus have been freshly painted. Was it Garnet and Blue paint?

WHERE'S THE FLAG?

Where's the Davidson flag? It was on the flagpole Sunday. It really looked great upside down and at half mast. The campus was in mourning for the poor Davidson Wildcat. It died early Sunday morning because of a broken heart. Don't rub it on too hard, boys. heh. heh!

SHORT SHOTS

Sophomore Ken Webb is the leading ground gainer for the Blue Hose this year . . . The Shrigley brothers, George and Rich, are playing great ball this year. They are a real credit to the PC team . . . The Hose held the Davidson Cats to a measly twelve yards on the ground last Saturday afternoon . . . The team mascot has a new uniform. Many of you noticed this at the Davidson game . . . Who left the broken flagpole in the Davidson stadium? It was minus a flag, too . . . Those Rock Hill boys really stirred up some extra action at the game Saturday . . . See you all next week . . . Oh, by the way, there's going to be a fine ball game on Johnson Field tonight . . . Remember, no fights!

Tennis Tournament Begins Evaluations

Jim Leighton, Blue Hose Tennis coach, is currently running his players through individual tournaments started shortly after school began and will continue indefinitely, with a new tournament starting every two weeks.

Coach Leighton feels that these tournaments should help in his deciding the positions that the boys will play when the season opens. He reports that the competition has been very keen thus far with Allen Morris winning the first tournament and John Brownlow the second.

The third round is to start Monday and the finals are usually held on Thursday or Friday.

Country Cousins Tame Cats; Ruin Davidson Season Record

Webb, Cook and Brock Star; Hose Selected As Team of Week

By JOHN THAMES

The mighty Blue Hose of Presbyterian College fed the ot-so-mighty Wildcats of Davidson College turf salad last Saturday to the tune of 16-7. Under the direction of jun- or quarterback Felder Cook of Charleston, the Blue Hose collected a total of 187 yards rushing while holding the 'Cats" to a total of 12 yards rushing.

The Hose Big Guns in compiling yardage were Ken Webb, F.B.; Eddie Brockenbrough, R.H.; and Gene Butler, L.H. Felder Cook, calling the signals, compiled the passing yardage by completing five out of seven erials for the Hosemen.

Webb carried 17 times for a ain of 63 yards, while Butler elivered 54 yards in 9 tries. Cook completed five passes out of seven tries totaling 67 yards, with Brockenbrough gaining 53 yards in 11 tries.

Center George Shrigley was consistent with good snaps and played a commendable defensive game, while his brother, guard Richard, probably played the best defensive game of the contest. The powerful guard made six individual tackles, intercepted a pass, and assisted in many other tackles. End Bob Stevens made his bid for honors by grabbing a fumble in mid-air and racing to pay dirt for six points.

Stevens also made six unassisted tackles. Tackle Robert Harrington, who has been called "the best tackle in the state" by Coach Crutchfield, played his usual outstanding game on both offense and defense, compiling five unassisted tackles, and nailing Davidson runners for losses time after time. Harrington also showed great ability on offense.

Tommy Warren at guard maneuvered his 189 pounds effectively and played his usual good game, charging hard and placing a handicap on the Davidson right side with his vicious tackling. Tackle Lee Frierson, who combines with Harrington to make the tackle positions the strongest department in the line, showed great all-round ability with sharp blocking and consistent tackling.

End Don Daniels shone brilliantly on defense by rushing the passes consistently, and also showed spirit on offense.

In last year's scrap with favored Davidson, the Cats led the Hose in the box score in everything except passing yardage, punting average, and pass interceptions; however, in the more recent contest the Hosemen dominated the box score in most respects.

The Blue Hose will meet the Terriers of Wofford College here tonight in what should be the most spirited contest of the season; however, the Big Blue should have a slight edge because of a backfield that tips the balance toward the Blue mark. In any event it will be no contest to miss.

Ken Webb Holds Lead in Rushing

According to statistics released this week fullback Ken Webb holds the lead in total rushing yardage for the Blue Hose in three games this season. Webb has accounted for 239 yards in 54 attempts for a game average of 79 yards. This is an average of 4.5 yards per carry.

Halfback Gene Butler holds down scond place by rushing 24 times for 115 yards. This is a game average of 37 yards and an average of 4.8 yards per try.

Quarterback Felder Cook is the team's leading passer with 9 completions in 15 attempts for a total of 149 yards. This averages up to 50 yards per game and 16.7 per completed pass. Cook has thrown one touchdown pass and has had one intercepted.

Halfback Buler also leads the team in pass receiving with three catches. Butler's catches have netted 46 yards, one touchdown, and 15 yards per catch. Eddie Brockenbrough has caught two aerials for a total of 15 yards and an average of 7 yards per catch.

Past Encounters Promote Arch-Rivalry With Wofford

By LAWRENCE YOUNG

Twice in previous years, as recorded in available old Blue Stockings, the Presbyterian Blue Hose have played host to the Wofford Terriers in the annual homecoming. One of the three ties in the thirty-eight year history of the Blue Hose-Terrier series was played in 1934 when the Gold and Black led by a score of 7-0 until the first few minutes of the fourth quarter. In 1940 PC won another homecoming tilt by the score of 12-6.

Statistically speaking, the Battin' Blue holds a decided edge over the Methodists by winning 22 games, losing 13, and tying 3. Down through the years the Blue Hose have scored 576 points to the Terriers' 350 points.

In 1939, Wofford scored in the second quarter and led until the first few minutes of the fourth stanza. Higbe scampered for 17 yards to the Terrier 16. Bond went for a yard over center. Then Perrin shot a bullet pass to Quarterman across the double stripes for the TD.

With tension in the air "Little Giant" Horne booted the pigskin through the uprights to tie the score at seven all. Incidentally, Harry E. Bolick was named at the end of the 1934 season as PC's first Blocking Back Trophy winner.

The other two ties occurred in 1927 and 1939 when the scores were 7-7 and 12-12, respectively. In the 1939 game June Moore, PC captain and all-state candidate, was hurt and PC's passing was hurt because of this. As the season ended, June Moore was named to receive the Jacobs Blocking Trophy, the highest stamp of praise for the best blocker in the state.

With Coach Lonnie McMillian at the helm in 1941, he installed the T-formation for the first time in the Southeast, and the Blue Hose won 6 and lost 3. In the next to the last game of the season the mighty Blue Hose manhandled the Methodists by the score of 44-0.

In this game the McMillianmen ran roughshod over the Terriers as they rolled up 477 yards on the ground and in the air. As the game started, it was rated a toss-up, but the hard-charging forward wall held the Terriers in check and they were only able to come inside the PC 25-yard stripe once and that was on a fumble.

As old timers look back in the history of these arch-rival foes, they remember that J. W. C. (Billy) Bell, one of the greatest left tackles at PC, played every minute of every game for four years without ever wearing any pads or helmet. He was named on the state All-State team in 1915, the first PC'un to earn such an honor.

Other old timers remember that in 1915, Coach Johnson's first year at PC, C. E. (Chick) Galloway drop - kicked three field goals, ran one touchdown and drop-kicked the extra point to single-handledly defeat the Wofford Terriers by a score of 16-6.

In 1917 Galloway also went into paydirt for the touchdown and booted the pigskin through the uprights to gain a 7-6 victory for the Garnet and Blue.

Sports Question

The Broadway Theatre is again this week offering a free movie pass to the winner of the contest. In order to win, a contestant must answer all three questions correctly and turn in their answers to the sports editor. No member of the Blue Stocking staff is eligible to win, and no contestant can win more than once in a one-month period.

What was the highest score ever compiled by a Blue Hose football team? (Hint: It was against Wofford.)

Who was the first man to ever coach a Presbyterian College football team?

What foreign university did the Blue Hose play in the 1944 season?

Billy Fulton was the winner of last week's contest. The answers are: Davidson, Joe Kirven, and Georgia Tech.

Last Week's Fare

Charlotte Colonials Lead In PC Intramural Schedule

Only two I-M football games were played prior to Thursday of this week, but they both proved to be important as the Charlotte Colonials jumped into first place and Kappa Alpha came out of the cellar.

Monday afternoon the KA's won their first game of the season by upsetting the PiKA's in a game decided by the Montana system. This game dropped PiKA out of first place and upped KA into a tie for fifth place.

The Charlotte Colonials got by Theta Chi 7-0 in the second game of the afternoon. The Colonials gained the first place position by taking this game, and Theta Chi dropped into a tie for fifth place along with Kappa Alpha.

Tuesday's game between Sigma Nu and Pi Kappa Phi was postponed because of the rifle matches.

The standings as of Wednesday	Won	Lost	Pct
Charlotte Colonials	2	0	1.000
Freshmen	1	0	1.000
Pi Kappa Alpha	2	1	.667
Sigma Nu	1	1	.500
Theta Chi	1	2	.333

Hill and Humbert Address Convocation

HILL

Dr. Henry Hill, noted educator and president of the nationally famous Peabody Colige for Teachers, addressed a large audience this morning on the subject of "The Renaissance of Learning and Culture."

Dr. Hill brought out that the word "renaissance", in addition to its classical meaning of revival, connotes much that is new and different. He stated further, "If we are to have such a renaissance it will be on a broader educational base than ever before in the history of mankind."

He also stated that the independent liberal arts, denominational, and professional colleges and universities must have honesty of purpose and integrity of commitment. "Every college today ought to have clearly defined and stated its excuse for being, its unique purpose or the distinctive values which it hopes to achieve."

Hill stated further that a renaissance which involves most of the people must preserve and utilize both the practical and pragmatical approach of the door of learning.

HUMBERT

America faces a new day of climbing into the creative realm of ideas and ideals, President Russell J. Humbert of DePauw University, said in the opening address of Presbyterian College's Diamond Jubilee Convocation here last night.

Speaking on the general convocation theme, "The Dawning Renaissance," he added:

"I do not share the pessimism of many who feel that since we have discovered once again the means of our mass destruction that the end of civilization is imminent. Man is ready for the climb into the realm of ideas and ideals, and that's why we have Christian education institutions like Presbyterian College."

Dr. Humbert reviewed the past accomplishments of the nation in three major fields: the building of a sound, just and productive economy; the field of fundamental education, public and private; and the field of a living religion.

He cited the economy as one built on the creative competition of our free enterprise system, and he quoted an eminent foreign observer as stating that this nation surpassed all others in the abundance of knowledge, abilities, and skills of its people as a whole.

It's too late now!

It's too late now for fire prevention. Rush the kids out of the house—a quick phone call to the fire department—lucky to be alive!

Face one fact squarely: fire is possible in your home now. Only constant vigilance will prevent it. Nine out of ten of all fires are directly traceable to human error or neglect. Fire prevention is more than a set of rules. Each person must become fire-aware so that he or she can anticipate what things may cause fire and avoid them.

Remember, to keep your home and job free from fire: Don't smoke in bed—Don't use flammable cleaning fluids—Be careful of oil stoves—Don't let children play with matches—Don't overload your wiring system—Don't let junk accumulate in attic and basement—Don't use ordinary extension cords on heaters and irons—Don't be careless with cigarettes. Be fire-aware. Don't give fire a place to start!

Kay Wilder Named H-C Queen – 1955

The Homecoming Queen for Presbyterian College this year was Miss Kay Wilder from Atlanta, Ga. She was the sponsor for the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. Her court consisted of Miss Jane Powell, sponsor for Kappa Alpha; and Miss Joyce Foxworth, sponsor for Pi Kappa Phi. These two girls were the runner-ups in the Homecoming Queen Contest. Each fraternity and the two PC Clubs had an entry in the contest.

The queen was selected as the judges watched the entries' performance at the Homecoming dance and parade. The committee of Judges consisted of members of the Alumni Association and members of the faculty.

Miss Wilder was escorted during the week-end by Brother Jim Newsome of Pi Kappa Alpha. The Queen and her court were presented during half-time at the PC-Wofford game Saturday night. Each member of the court received a corsage of carnations immediately before the ball game. The winner of the contest was announced at that time.

During the presentation of the Queen, she received a bouquet of red roses. Also at this time the president of the student council, Bill Toole, presented the queen to the student body.

Her hobbies are tennis, swimming and dancing. She has a small part in a television show every Sunday afternoon in Atlanta. Kay is also a model for one of the large clothing stores in Atlanta.

The competition was close among all the beautiful girls who were selected as contestants for queen.

College Day Programs Start; Ed Campbell to Tour States

A traveling program which contacts prospective students has begun again this year. G. Ed Campbell, registrar, will represent Presbyterian College in "College Day" programs in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. Members of the faculty and a few PC students will sometimes assist Mr. Campbell in these programs.

Cities and communities which have more than two high schools usually present their programs on successive days. It is occasionally necessary for Mr. Campbell to spend a week in such places. Included in these large cities are Atlanta, Charlotte, Columbia, Greenville, Charleston, and Spartanburg. Presbyterian College expects to participate in approximately seventy-five "College Day" programs this year.

During these programs, interested junior and senior high school students are given information concerning entrance requirements, courses of study, and fees. An extensive follo-wup program is employed by the college.

The students, whom Mr. Campbell contacts, later receive a letter, a catalog, view books, and brochures from the President of the College. It is estimated that Presbyterian College receives a large number of students through these programs annually.

Mr. Campbell stated that these programs are valuable, because they show the high schools, as well as the general public, that Presbytreian College can participate along side the larger colleges and universities, and that this proves that the program at made it just as inviting as the PC has certain attributes which larger schools.

Campbell wishes also to remind the PC students of the aid that they can give in such a program. He says that the students should submit names of promising prospects to him.

He also stated that the students can help by encouraging their friends in the home town high schools to take advantage of the opportunities of an interview with the registrar during a college day program.

Well, the big game has come and gone and as usual we lost it. This was not expected by most, but feared by many. The Blues played a great game as far as rushing yardage was concerned, and a fairly good defensive game.

However, as far as the ability to hang on to the ball was concerned, they were below even what could be called terrible. It was lousy, I say again, LOUSY. In some unofficial statistics we have turned up that the Hose have fumbled approximately 29 times in four games. It doesn't take a slipstick to figure that average up—it comes to more than six a game.

The Clemson game was a case in point. Lost on fumbles; we lost the ball five times; they scored five times. In the Austin Peay game the Socks had to come from behind in the waning minutes to pull it out of the fire, again, the Hose had miscued five times.

The only thing that prevented the Bee from going on the Low Diet was the Bisons fumbled. This time, however, they were lucky. Davidson couldn't capitalize on them. Well, Wofford could, and would, more than the Terriers deserve to experience the ones that Hoser experienced. What a sinking record.

We wrote a column last week that, at the last minute we decided not to print. Its main topic was the sorry officials that have plagued us in the Wofford series. We have kicked ourselves from one end of the plaza to the other (big job) since the game because it was not run.

Day students who drive cars to school have [illegible] tional problem. With no place to park near the Hall save the street, the students form a line all [illegible] to the library. At Neville Hall the parking [illegible] jammed with professors' and students' cars. T[illegible] in such a haphazard fashion that it's not in [illegible] one blocked in by other cars.

New Bailey Hall Illuminates Campus With Modern Design

The first floor of Bailey Hall was completed this past week and the students have completed their moving. Previous to this time, the 32 students that are now residing in Bailey first floor had been placed in the gym, SCA building, Judd Hall, and various other places.

The dorm now accommodates 96 men and is completely modern throughout, not only does it present a top-notch appearance from the exterior, but also the interior appointments are of the very latest design.

It has been said that this new building compares favorably with any new school structure in the South. Care has been given to all details possible to afford living comfort of the highest degree to all residents of the hall.

In the past, many of the rooms in the older buildings have suffered from inadequate lighting. In Bailey each room has a large central light, installed in an attractive fixture mounted flush with the ceiling. In addition to this main light, there are recessed study lamps over each desk. These lights are of sufficient wattage to provide easy reading, and are mounted so as to cut down on glare, reflections, and shadows.

Each floor has a modern, complete bath room. The fixtures are of the most recent design, and are well installed in order to give the maximum in efficient service. Here again the accent is on good lighting; above the glass shelves over the lavatories there are fluorescent tubes, affording good light for shaving.

The furnace is fired by natural gas, and is of the steam heat type. The individual radiators, recessed into the walls of each room, have cut-off valves in order that the occupants of the rooms may, to an even greater degree, regulate the heat.

New desks and form-constructed study chairs have also been supplied. To round out the furnishings, single beds of maple, equipped with Serta Perfect Sleeper mattresses, are in each room.

The highlight of the building is the Common Room. It is a huge room, paneled in black walnut, and furnished with exquisite furniture. Here in this room will be the common gathering point for the leisure hours of the residents. There is a Philco 21-inch television set in the room, as well as lounging chairs, and an eight-foot sofa. The furniture is upholstered in genuine leather. Still to be placed here are several more chairs, and a few end tables.

As a final note to the modernistic influence in Bailey Hall, there has been installed a completely enclosed, sound-proof telephone booth. It is also located in the Common Room.

Gene Mabe, of Clinton, N. C., was the winner in last week's Chesterfield contest. Mabe guessed the closest to the actual score in the PC-Wofford game; his estimate was Wofford 19, PC 13, the outcome of the game was 20-13 in favor of the Terriers.

The runner-up in the contest was Miles McAlister of McCormick. The winner received a carton of Chesterfields, the second-place entry will receive a half-carton of the cigarettes.

The contest was staged on this campus by Blair Norris, campus representative of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company.

Company L Invites Students to Enlist

Company L, 323rd Infantry Regiment, USAR, is now taking men for enlistment without an active duty obligation. This enlistment is for a period of six years, and does not call for active duty through the reserves.

The enlistment is designed especially for college students. A college man can enlist in the reserves and not have to go on active duty until he finishes. If he is commissioned via ROTC he has built up time in service which will entitle him to an increase in pay. If he is not commissioned he will have built up time in service and will have advanced in grade also.

Students who have completed one year of Military Science will be enlisted in the grade of Private E-2. Competion of two years entitles him to the grade of Private First Class, and of three years to grade of corporal.

All students who enlist must present a certificate signed by the PMS&T, saying that he has completed so many years of military.

In addition to the certificate DA forms 88 and 89 must be presented in duplicate. These medical forms may be obtained on request from the ROTC administrative office. These must be signed by an officer certifying that they are true copies.

Community Chest Drive Asks for Student Support

• Blue Key Fraternity Is Solicitor

The Community Chest drive for 1955 on the Presbyterian College campus, which began this week, is now in full swing. The campus campaign will be added to the Clinton Community Chest as a token from the forces of Presbyterian College.

This year, the campaign is being handled by the local chapter of Blue Key National Honor Fraternity. Its chairman is John McLean, president of the chapter.

The Community Chest Campaign has been held in Clinton for the last four years and a token gift from Presbyterian College has always been a part of this campaign.

George A. Anderson, dean of students, is campaign manager for the campus. Mr. Anderson emphasized that since the students are a vital part of the community, a gift should be secured in order to maintain the aid being given to the needy of the community as well as to other parts of the country. Mr. Anderson said further that many of our men have taken part in the work of the community in helping with the Little League teams, churches, and businesses of the town.

The faculty and staff will also be called on for their aid in the nation-wide campaign.

Chairman McLean has chosen the following to assist him in the campus canvass:

John McLean and Vicky Vierra, Smyth B; Ray Lord, Smyth A; John McLean, Smyth C; Ray Lord, Laurens; Bill Dantzler, Spencer; Ed May, Bailey first floor; Dick Marshall, Bailey second dfloor; and Richard Oliver, Bailey third floor. The above are members of the campus Blue Key chapter, but were at liberty to choose dependable assistants from the student body.

Anderson noted also that this will be the only organized money raising charity campaign on the campus this year, and token gifts are urged from the students to support this drive.

PC Student Council To Have Open Meet

The first Student Council weekly meeting in each month will be held open to the Student Body, Ed Hay, vice president, announced today. The meetings will be held at 5:00 P. M. in the Radio Forum each Monday.

The purpose of these meetings will be for student participation in discussions of items of campus interest. Any student so desiring, may submit suggestions or complaints at this time.

The council also announced that a lost and found department has been established at the library circulation desk. Mrs. T. Layton Fraser has consented to take charge of this arrangement. All lost or found articles should be left at the desk.

Dantzler Signs 30 For Montreat Weekend

Bill Wantzler, president of the Student Christian Association on the Presbyterian College Campus, announced that the annual Montreat-PC weekend will be held Nov. 5-6.

"This weekend is an annual tribute from the student bdy of Montreat College to the Student Body of Presbyterian, since PC is one of the few colleges in the Carolinas called upon to be represented each year," Dantzler stated.

Thirty PC men have signed up for the trip. They are provided with rooms and meals by their dates. Activities include a square dance at the college Saturday night and a dawn watch on Point Lookout, overlooking the campus, on Sunday morning.

Kappa Alpha Holds First Open Social

The first open social of the season was held by the Beta Pi Chapter of The Kappa Alpha Order.

A very large percentage of the student body attended the social which was held in the fraternity's room located at the rear of the campus. Refreshments were served and girls were imported from various colleges to make the evening an enjoyable social activity.

Mu Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha will present its social next week in their suite on the third floor of Neville Hall. The other four fraternities will hold their socials weekly in the following succession: Theta Chi, Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Nu, and Alpha Sigma Phi.

Co. 'D' Declared As Best by Staff

Company D, commanded by Cadet 1st. Lt. Ernie Wahl, was chosen this week as the best drilled company in the PC ROTC battalion. Selection was based on manual of arms, dress, column movements, position of attention, and other drill movements.

The company will be the Honor Guard Monday, Oct. 31, for Major Gen. R. G. Gard, who will come to PC for an informal inspection. Cadet 2nd. Lt. Arthur Pue is company executive officer, and Cadet 2nd. Lts. Bob Burgess and William Herlong are platoon ledaers.

Blue Stocking Moves in; Staff Changes are Told

BLUE STOCKING OFFICES

The Blue Stocking acquired new offcies this week through the auspices of the college administration. Work was begun on the arrangement and organization of the accommodations last Saturday, Oct. 22, and is still in progress with the issuance of this edition.

A system of organization, which has been in practice since the editorship of Ray Lord, has now been fully established with desks for the various editors.

The facilities include a processing room with desk space for the news editor, sports editor, feature editor, circulation manager, assistant to the editor, and exchange editor. A work table which measures twelve by three feet will be used for layout and circulation purposes.

The editorial room, which features desks for the editor-in-chief, managing editor, associate editor, and business manager, will prove very helpful in providing adequate space for editorial and business work, according to Editor Oliver.

The facilities also provide cabinet and closet space for business materials, ads stationery, mats, and photos.

The suite of rooms was formerly occupied by students who have now moved into more suitable living quarters.

CHANGES OF STAFF

Richard Oliver, editor of The Blue Stocking, announced several changes in the staff of the newspaper.

Charles Dukes, of Atlanta, replaces John Hall, also of Atlanta, as News Editor of the Sock. Dukes assumed his duties Monday morning with the assignnig of the various articles to his staff. Hall resigned his post because of pressing school work.

Serving now as reporters and members of the News Staff are Dick Mendenhall, Ramon Veal, Blair Baldwin, John Summers, and William Turner.

Columnists who will be writing weekly for The Blue Stocking, in addition to those whose work already appears, are Chris Patte, Lawrence Young, and Noble Collins.

All these additions tie in with the reorganization of The Blue Stocking and its removal to the new publications offices.

Gen. Gard to Visit ROTC for Inspection

Major Gen. Robert G. Gard, deputy commanding general of the Third Army, will be at Presbyterian College Monday, Oct. 31, for an informal inspection.

In addition to his duties as deputy commander, Gen. Gard is responsible for the ROTC in South Carolina. His visit to PC is part of a tour of inspection for all ROTC units in South Carolina. He will visit the Citadel, Clemson, Furman, Wofford and South Carolina State on this tour.

Gen. Gard and those accompanying him will be met by the Honor Guard, consisting of the best drilled company and the band, at 11:30 A. M. He will have lunch at the college dining hall, and hold a conference with Dr. Marshall W. Brown, President of the college.

After he has inspected the military personnel and facilities, he will go to Wofford College to continue the tour of inspection.

Accompanying Gen. Gard are Col. Raymond G. Stanton, Chief of the South Carolina Military District; Lt. Col. R. R. Reed, Chief, ROTC branch, G-3, Third Army; and Gen. Gard's aide, 1st. Lt. N. J. Baird.

Columbians to Lead State Gift Campaign

Students Are Organized For Campus Participation

Two prominent Columbia men will serve as South Carolina co-chairmen of Presbyterian College's Diamond Jubilee Development program, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

They are Joseph Walker, Jr., of the firm, Joseph Walker Company, and the Rev. Fred V. Poag, pastor of the Shandon Presbyterian Church.

They will serve to organize a state development committee in South Carolina which will in turn organize and supervise fourteen regional co-chairmen who will be responsible for the eraising of major gifts.

President Brown said that he was pleased and deeply grateful to obtain the assistance of two such outstanding young men, and he expressed the opinion that their leadership would mea nmuch toward the successful completion of the program.

Presbyterian College is now preparing to launch upon a long-range $2,000,000 development program in the Synods of Georgia and South Carolina which control the institution. Dr. Poag and Walker head the South Carolina organization, and details are being completed to obtain leaders i neach section of the state.

Top leaders in the home campaign organization for the development program were also announced by home drive chairman Robert M. Vance of Clinton.

Tom Addison, also of Clinton, serves as co-chairman in this drive within the home area of Laurens and Newberry counties, and the Steering Committee is composed of these members:

P. S. Bailey, of Clinton, Special Gifts chairman; Robert C. Wasson, of Laurens, Laurens county chairman; Hugh L. Eichelberger, of Clinton, Clinton chairman; Judge Hewlette Wasson, of Laurens, Laurens chairman; David Neville, of Newberry, Newberry chairman; J. B. Hart, of Joanna, Joanna chairman; Joe H. Simpson, of Whitmire, Whitmire chairman.

W. C. Baldwin, of Clinton, Arrangements chairman; Hugh S. Jacobs, of Clinton, Prospects chairman; and Ben Hay Hammett, of Clinton, Promotion chairman.

The advanced special gifts committee under P. S. Bailey includes the following members:

Student participation will be a major factor in the home campaign including Laurens and Newberry counties. The Student Council of the college has named the following students to serve as representatives from their respective classes:

Freshman class: Tom Williams, Bill McElveen and Gene Ransdale.

Sopomore class: Ramon Veal, Jimmy Newsome, and Blair Baldwin.

Junior class: Stan Johnson, A. C. Reed, and Charles Dukes.

Senior class: Bill Toole, Mack Ballard, and Dick Marshall.

A goal of $250,000 for the home campaign has been announced earlier by Vance. The goal for the first year has been set at $750,000, which is to be collected throughout the controlling Synods of Georgia and South Carolina.

SCA Announces Freshman Cabinet

The Student Christian Association announced Wednesday the election of ten freshman to the freshman SCA cabinet. These ten men will assist the senior cabinet with their work on the campus through the remainder of the year.

SCA President Bill Dantzler announced that there will be a banquet in the near future honoring these newly elected cabinet members.

Cabinet Announces New Series for Chapel

Charles Kinsey, chapel representative of the Student Christian Association cabinet, announced a plan for student participation in Friday Chapel programs at the cabinet's meeting Oct. 26.

All fraternity chapters and other organizations on campus who wish to contribute are encouraged by the SCA to present a program. The programs will be of a religious nature, and will serve to familiaze the student body with the various groups represented.

The new system is meant to provide a more varied chapel schedule and will extend over a period of seven weeks.

McIntyre Serves As New Biology Prof

Mr. Robert Allen McIntyre has been appointed as a member of the faculty this year. He serves as assistant professor of biology in order to strengthen the biology staff.

McIntyre received his BS from Wake Forest and MA from the University of North Carolina. He has also done graduate work at Duke University, Johns Hopkins University, and at the University of Maryland.

He hails from Lumberton, N. C., and came from a position at Coker College where he taught for three years.

Praise for Council

This year celebrates the second anniversary of the re-establishment of an Honor System at PC, an Honor System which was started by a group of men who believed that each student at Presbyterian would be able to support and uphold the principles on which the system was based.

Through the active work of the Student Cuoncil of the school year 1953-54, the system was inaugurated. Again, the Student Council of Presbyterian is at work, and has declared the first Monday of each month during the school year as a meeting day for student participation in the council work. These sessions will be essentially for the students who have good reason to present grievances, not of a personal nature, to the Student Council. Many activities of the Student Body can be consumated by this action, and The Blue Stocking takes pride in the council for making this valuable move.

In glancing over one of a brother college's newspapers, we find that much inducement and persuasion had to be provoked by the weekly tabloid in order to secure the same privilege. In fact, we consider ourselves lucky to have an open meeting in which to discuss the politics and underlying grievances of government with the council.

This action will undoubtedly provoke a new light in student government, and will cause a greater interest in the inside nature of a student council which has been quite shaded in the past. We have seen results, but have not understood fully the provocation for these actions.

The Blue Stocking congratulates the council for this exceptional move, and sincerely hopes that the meetings will be met with huge success.

Thanks to Administration

The editor and staff of The Blue Stocking wish to thank the Presbyterian College administration for its fine support in securing the excellent office facilities which are in use for the first time this week.

This action displays the interest of our publishers, and it is our wish that a new system of coordination and efficiency may be established through these accommodations.

Life Can be Beautiful

(If You Work At It)

By CHARLES YOUNG

Henry Worthless Oddfellow, Freshman and would-be poet, first espied Sal Hepatica, also Freshman, winsome - as-a-cat's-tail, and fairer than the morning dew, as she was leaving Leo's Grill at the edge of the campus. It was infatuation at first sight. Her gorgeousness overwhelmed him.

"You're beautiful," he said, shyly, looking down at his dirty white bucks.

"Why gee, thanks!" Sal answered, blushing prettily. "What position do you play?"

"Position?" asked Henry, absently, while looking at her askance. (The askance is small ligament behind the ear.)

"On the football team," Sal explained patiently.

"Football!" He ejaculated, his lip curling in horror. "Football is violence, and violence is the death of the mind. I am not a football player. I am a poet."

"So long, sonny", murmured Sal sweetly.

Though he was quite frail, as many poets are, even delicate, weak, and plumb feeble, not to mention tubercular and anemic, he tried out for the team with such fervor and enthusiasm that he made it. We opened the season against South Hollywood Institute of Technology. The Potters were always a mettlesome foe, but this year, strengthened somewhat by the addition of four exchange students from the Belgian Congo, who had been nurtured by she-apes, they were rather formidable. To quote our scouts, "The Potters are the team to beat."

Oddfellow's team-mates were not noticeably inspired as he came charging dauntlessly onto the playing field. Up to the huddle he dashed nad silently he took his place with the big, strong silent men who were here to do or die. Quietly, almost like Ronald Colman, he spoke: "Gentlemen, there may be some among you who may regard poetry as sissy stuff. But now, in our hour of trial, I can think of no words more apt than these lines from Shakespeare's HENRY V: 'Once more unto the breach, dear friends, once more: Or close the wall up with our English dead! In peace, there's nothing so becomes a man, as modest stillness and humility: But when the blasts of war blow in our ears, then imitate the action of the tiger."

So inspired were the players by this fiery exhortation that they threw themselves into the fray with utter abandon. As a consequence, the entire squad was hospitalized before the half. The college was forced to drop football. Sal Hepatica, having no football players to choose from, took up with Henry Worthless Oddfellow, and soon discovered the beauty of his soil. Today they are seen everywhere, together, holding hands, smooching, and all that trash. So, you see, life can be beautiful.

Author's Note: Several weeks ago Yorick O. Why composed a column of much import; however, because of the wealth of copy over the Convocation weekend, much of the material was deleted. It will be remembered by the more careful readers that Why dealt with Homecoming 25 years hence. This column is also based on events 25 years into the future.

Yorick and Dashan Rammit were chatting the other day about the future of Presbyterian College. The two old heads were pondering over the lack of freshman spirit, and what-have-you, when they began to muse over the conditions that would prevail a quarter of a century from now. Their conclusions will be found, recorded for posterity, within the annals of Yorick O. Why.

As we begin a tour of the sprawling PC campus of the future, we enter through magnificent gates at the western end of Plaza de Brown, named in honor the president of the school then. An interesting sidelight to the gates is the fact that music of extremely high fidelity strikes one's ears as he enters. Someone said that this Hi Fi was a fad that was all the rage back in '55.

Roving Reporter Reports

(Editor's Note: The letter below came from we know not where, but because of its implications, we are printing it verbatim . . .)

Special to: The Editor, BS,

Dear Ed.,

I hope you will forgive me for the impersonal greeting, but as I have not heard from you for so long I do not know who is the Editor of our tabloid.

As you may (or may not know), Algenon O. Dunbar, one of the more distinguished former Eds., assigned me as overseas (over-anywhere for that matter) correspendent for the BS. This was done in order to heighten the culture, integrity, and prestige of the paper . . . and to fill up space.

Since my assignment, I have hot-footed it all over the globe, without even as much as a say-so from your office. While I'm thinking about it, send by return mail, a check for $400 which should should cover my expenses since arrival here. Itemized statement is too much trouble and would take up too much space out of my report which follows.

But, I will say that, in order to build up the prestige of the BS, I must, and I repeat, entertain all the important and often lovely women, girls, and other females with whom I associate (in connection with my assignment, of course). Surely, you, as a newspaper man, must realize that a reporter must put up a good front, ie., socialize with the wom-(correction) people from whom he expects to gather news. So please send the moo, cash, or whatever you call it. Now the report.

By the way, before I write my report, will you please send an extra $25 with the above cash. I need a new ribbon for my typewriter; and as we are, to say the least, out in the sticks, they are rather expensive. This has nothing to do with the arrival here of a very friendly, cooperative, helpful, and not so intelligent fellow reporter from the "Vanguard". She is lovely, dumb, but wow! She and I are collaborating (never out in the open) in order to publish an extremely well written report, which will follow on tribal life here.

As you may well imagine, she and I will be spending a lot of time together (writing this report) as it will require much thought and two heads are always better than one, anyway. Now my report.

On the other hand, better make it two ribbons ($50), as it will take much time, and we wouldn't want to run out, would we?

I would enclose my usual report here, but I have run out of time, and this letter is heavy enough now for the special mail service. If you will just send your check by return mail, I will have my report out on the next mule train. (If you think I'm kidding, just smell this letter).

Write if you get word, send money, and hang by your phone,

Former Editor Surveys New Offices

The other night, as the Fourth Estaters of Presbyterian College were busily engaging themselves in the weekly preparation of the Blue Stocking, a knock was heard at the door. (Since the Sock has moved into new offices, people are very polite these days.)

Frank Young, ace managing editor, answered the resounding pulse of the impatient knocking upon the portal. We could all see the look of ghastly surprise steal across Young's countenance as he viewed the visitor with shock.

"Good Gosh!" cried Young.

"Howdy," quoth the visitor.

We could all tell by the smell that it was none other than Guzzle Phith, former editor of the Blue Stocking.

Phith, gaylord and man-about-society, spoke in glowing phrases of the new headquarters of the news organ. He compared it with similar offices he had seen in Miami, Nassau, Hamilton (Bermuda), New York, and Glutout. After much talking, and gesticulating, he was heard to say, "This is one heckuva place."

All of us writers sat with mouths agape as Phith unwound tales of journalism. "Did I ever tell you about the time we printed an ad for a Sundown Shop in the Blue Stocking. Well, it was back during the good old days before Deacon Andy. You should have seen the look on Fraser's face when it came out that Friday."

With this, the Fourth Estaters blushed innocently for they knew nothing like that could ever get by nowadays. After all, this is the Dawning Renaissance.

But Guzzle was not through. "Do you fellows remember how I got to be editor of the Sock? Seems Cooper wrote one of those caustic satires of his on the some suggestions for improvement and Anderson and Beatty ran him and Ollie out of town. Those were the days."

"Ah yes, then there was the time A. O. bar and his sidekick, Little Dickie Mendo blasted off at the chow hall and chapel. ol' G. P. came through. Speaking of Dr remember when he sent Roger Le Rover a that overseas assignment and forgot about Well, I've got a letter from Rog right he my bag."

Guz fumbled through the bottles and and came up with a piece of yellowed copy from the faithful correspondent. "I found couple of weeks ago over in Tanganyika around with some British babe from the Daily Mail." (For Roger's letter, look else on this page.)

Cooper remarked, "I'll bet she didn't good as Hazel did t'other night in that fire red dress."

"That's beside the point," replied G. P.

"I know it, but I wanted to say it, anyhow

"Fellows," Guz went on, "I've really been heartened since the good ol' days, and I just stand it any longer. All this new blood in Sock, these new offices, everything has me spired to write again. I'll give up all my bu its if you'll give me another chance."

He continued, "Fellows, I've been of many newspapers, The Glutout Satyr name one, but I thought I wanted to back and be with all my comrades here Sock. You'll never know how I've missed Dashan, I. M. Fulluvit, and all the rest fellows, gimme another chance."

And so, after much consideration, Oliver ed him to a contract. Guzzle Phith will go week to search for Roger Le Rover, the Stocking's roving reporter who is now lost heart of deepest, darkest Ugandiboodle.

Editor's Note: If this has no point to it on Cooper. He just had to write somethi

Basketeers Begin Season's Practice

Season practice for the Presbyterian College basketball team began Sept. 21. The Hose team is coached by Russ Murphy who is replacing Norman Sloan, now coaching at Memphis State.

Returning from last year's excellent team are Wyatt Aiken, Greenville; Bill Lipp, Frankfort, Ind.; Bill Toole, Indianapolis, Ind.; Dave Thompson, Frankfort, Ind.; Bruce Thompson, Michigan City, Ind.; Arnold Stone, Maxton, N. C.; and Chuck Sloan, Clinton.

New men are Ken Caswell of Kentucky; Clarence Leitzow of Indiana; Bill Sullivan, of Indiana; and Clayton Adams, of New Jersey. Caswell and Sullivan show plenty of potentialities and should see plenty of action this year. Adams, who has been out with a sprained ankle, should strengthen the forward position considerably.

Old timers looking exceptionally sharp are Bill Toole, Dave Thompson, and Bruce Thompson. Lipp, who has been bothered by a sprained ankle also, is showing much improvement over his form as a freshman last year.

Aiken, who is also much improved over last year, is expected to see plenty of action this year. Stone and Sloan are in better form with Stone showing much more improvement.

Sports Question

The Broadway Theatre, for the fourth week in succession, is offering a free movie pass to the winner of the weekly contest. There was no winning contestant among last week's entries.

A change in the rules has been made, and it will be in effect this week. The former rule stated that a contestant could not win more than once in a period of one month. The new rule states that no contestant can win two weeks in a row.

The answers to last week's questions are Dode Phillips, a former Erskine star; Mackie Prickett, quarterback of the University of South Carolina; and PC tied Duke University six to six when Duke was known as Trinity.

Behind the Blues

HOSE LOSE—SHOW POWER

Although the Presbyterian College Blue Hose lost a hard fought game to The Citadel Bulldogs and fumbled too much, they showed an offense and a defense that merits praise. Offensively the Hosemen drove 76 and 97 yards for their scores, while The Citadel got theirs on drives of 36 and 20 yards. The Hose passing attack accounted for one of the two touchdowns.

Ken Webb was at his usual peak with 66 yards in 20 attempts although he was injured for a good part of the game. Felder Cook kept his passing percentage well above the 500 mark and threw one scoring aerial to end Don Daniels.

FOOTBALL MANAGERS

Behind every winning combination there is a group of lads who are very seldom recognized. This also holds true for the Hose football team.

The Blue Hose are very lucky to have managers and trainers who are willing to devote the majority of their time to the work behind the scenes. It's all work and no play for the managers and trainers of the PC football team.

The head manager, Buddy Hodge, and the two trainers, Gene Carter and Wiley Keller, rate a hearty tip of the hat. While the Blue Hose team rolls along, let's not forget the boys who keep them moving.

TENNIS TOURNEYS

Al Morris defeated John Brownlow last week in the ladder tournaments held every other week by Coach Jim Leighton. The tournaments offer Coach Leighton a yardstick by which he can measure his players. The win by Morris advances him to the finals against Dick Macatee.

SHORT SHOTS

Henry Mitchell, sophomore from Spartanburg, has been named manager of the tennis team for the coming season . . . The Blue Hose have been mighty tough to beat in the shadow of their own goal posts the past few games. They have put up some tremendous goal line stands, especially against Wofford and The Citadel . . . "Crutchy", the team mascot, has really gotten fat. It seems that the chow hall food is agreeing with her . . . The Hose are going to stomp Catawba . . . Let's go out and watch the Battlin' Blue Hose win tomorrow night.

Blues Lose to Cadets; PAT Decides Contest

Johnson Hagood Stadium in Charleston proved to be another Waterloo for the Presbyterian College Blue Stockings last Saturday afternoon. The Hose fought valiantly but futilely in the afternoon to go down in defeat at the hands of the Cadets from the Citadel, 14-13.

The story of the loss could be written again in one word, fumbles. The Socks miscued seven times through the day to enable the Bulldogs to set up both their touchdowns. The score could have been larger had it not been for two more outstanding last-ditch stands by the blue stockinged defenders.

The Socks tallied first when Ken Webb, 200-pounder from Decatur, Ga., ripped through the Citadel line to chalk up six points for the Presbyterians. Mitch Mavromat added the extra point to move the Hose ahead 7-0.

Before the half ended, the PC'uns had scored again. A pass from Cook to Daniels accounted for this marker by the Calvinists. The decisive play of the day proved to be the try for conversion after this touchdown. Webb went back to attempt, but a charging Bulldog line broke through, and blocked the kcik.

The Cadets came back in the second half to add another TD and PAT. This gave them the 14-13 score which they held on to until the final gun.

A fourth quarter drive by the Hose was too late, as the game ended with The Citadel victors in the 1955 version of this ancient and unpredictable football rivalry.

Felder Cook, PC quarterback, continued to show great improvement, and seemed to find himself this week with his passes. Heretofore, the Hose have passed very little, but Cook tossed Saturday with good success.

Ken Webb, who is marching on, piled up more yardage last week. He was the thorn in the side of the Cadets all afternoon. Had he not been bottled up in the first half, he would have undoubtedly accounted for much more yardage by the Hose.

The sad tale of fumbleitis was told again this week by the Socks. They lost the ball five times in seven fumbles, to squelch two drives that would have possibly led to PC touchdowns.

Johnny Sauer, Citadel mentor, gave great credit to the Blue Hose. He remarked after the game that PC presented the best team he had played all year, except the surprisingly powerful Richmond eleven.

Bill Crutchfield commented again, "It's a shame to throw away another game on fumbles. The boys played well, but the fumbles ruined us."

As usual, PC dominated the statistical game in all phases.

'53 Hose-Indian Game is Thriller

By LAWRENCE YOUNG

Presbyterian College's 1953 Blue Hose eleven defeated the Catawba Indians by a last minute touchdown in probably the most interesting game played between the two schools in recent years. With only seconds remaining, quarterback Harry Hamilton tossed a 27-yard pass to end Bobby Jackson waiting in the end zone to give the Blue Hose a thrilling 26-19 homecoming victory over the Indians at Johnson Field, Oct. 31, 1953.

With the score tied at 19-19, the Seneca Sniper heaved the pigskin into the land of milk and honey to Jackson to make the score 25-19. Fullback Gene Carter passed to Jackson for the extra point to complete the scoring.

Early in the first period the Blue Hose showed their might to score. Charles Twitty blocked an Indian punt and end Ken Daughtry scooped the pigskin up on the Catawba 23-yard line and galloped over the double stripes for the score. Carter then booted the ball through the uprights to give the Blue Hose a 7-0 lead.

Late in the first stanza, Swanner intercepted a Blue Hose pass for the Indians. Four plays later Smith crashed over from the ten to make the score 7-6. Counts blocked the Indian attempt for the extra point.

Catawba drove 68 yards in the third period to go ahead 12-7. Elmont Holt bulled the last 20 yards to gain the honors.

The red-hot Blue Hose started travelling when Charles Twitty, end, recovered an Indian fumble on the Indian 30-yard stripe. Two plays later Hamilton passed 20 yards to Counts for the second TD of the night for the Blue Hose to give the Blue Hose a 13-12 lead.

Early in the fourth quarter center Frank Boulware recovered another Indian fumble on the visitors' 32-yard marker. Then Hamilton hit Jackson with a 23-yard aerial to stretch the margin to 19-12.

With less than two minutes left in the game, Harold Carter completed an eight-yard pass to Hood for the Indians' third TD. Paul Barnes then converted to tie the game at 19-19.

The Indians' attempted onsides kick backfired as Shoemaker grabbed the pigskin on the Blue Hose 45. Hamilton then passed to Curtis Freeman for a 28-yard gain to the Indians' 27. At this point Hamilton uncorked his throwing arm and pitched the winning TD pass to Jackson.

Hose Meet Catawba On Gridiron Tomrrow

• Webb to Spark Running Attack

The Battlin' Blue Hose return home this week to play host to the Indians of Catawba in a gridiron battle at 8:00 tomorrow night. This will be the second home game for the Hose thus far this season and a large crowd is expected.

The Blue Hose will be attempting to get back on the winning track after losing games to Wofford and The Citadel. The PC team, with two wins and three losses, will enter the game as a slight favorite.

The past two games have shown the power of PC's ground attack, but fumbles have kept the Hose from emerging victoriously. Quarterback Felder Cook's passes have also been very effective in the past two games.

Once again the running attack of the Blue Hose will be sparked by fullback Ken Webb, who is the team's leading ground gainer, and halfbacks Gene Butler and Eddie Brockenbrough. Butler has also been one of the team's most consistent pass receivers.

The line has been mainstayed by tackle Robert Harrington, guards Tommy Warren and Richard Shrigley, and center George Shrigley. These veterans will be counted upon heavily to stop the running attack of the Indians.

The Catawba team is expected to rely on a balanced offense featuring both passing and running. Catawba scored touchdowns against the Hose last year, both on the ground and in the air.

The Blue Hose team emerged victorious against the Indians last year by the tune of 33-13. This will be the fourteenth meeting of the two teams with PC leading in the series with seven wins. The Battlin' Blues have outscored the Indians 184 to 170.

Brimm Receives Honor

Dr. Henry M. Brimm, former Clinton resident and now one of the nation's outstanding librarians, is shown here receiving the Alumni Gold P Award as Presbyterian College's alumnus-of-the-year for 1955. It is being presented to him by Dr. Marshall C. Dendy, executive secretary of the Board of Christian Education for the Presbyterian Church US, who is also a PC alumnus.

Alumnus Gets Gold 'P' For Outstanding Work

Dr. Henry M. Brimm, librarian at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, was named as the Presbyterian College alumnus-of-the-year at the annual Alumni Banquet held at Judd Dining Hall Saturday, Oct. 17.

The annual Alumni Gold P Award was presented to Dr. Brimm from the PC board of directors for his "outstanding progress and achievement in his chosen profession." He has been declared one of the nation's outstanding librarians, and has been instrumental in securing new library buildings, expanding the book collection, establishing a recataloging program, and for developing an extension loan service for ministers at Union.

The 1955 recipient of Presbyterian College's highest stamp of approval for alumni received his BA degree from PC in 1917 and his library training at Columbia University. He has been associated with Union Seminary since 1930.

This citation marked the second time in the last three years that a member of the Union Seminary staff has been singled out for the Alumni Gold P Award. Dr. John Bright, professor and author, received the award in 1953. It went to Dr. William Peter Beckman, director of the South Carolina mental health program, last year.

Taking chances may be part of growing up— But when you're a man

IT'S KID STUFF!

This fellow takes chances. He's a crazy driver.

Why? For attention! So—people will know he's around. He thinks it makes him stand out. Same as when he was a kid.

If he only knew!

His friends have him pegged—"strictly juvenile." They have an expression—"Careless driving is kid stuff." That's him.

If he only knew. He'd wise up and drive right.

CAREFUL DRIVING IS KID STUFF!

Blue Stocking Rated All-American for Tenth Time by ACP

The Blue Stocking has been rated All-American for second semester 1954-55 by critics of the Associated Collegiate Press, recognized as the best judge of collegiate journalism in America today. Last semester's rating marks the third consecutive time the student publication has been awarded the ACP's highest stamp of approval.

Out of 281 collgeiate newspapers entered from all over the nation in the 53rd All-American critical service, 84 received the ACP's highest rating. Honor ratings for colleges and universities are divided into five classes as follows: All-American (superior), first class (excellent), second class (good), third class (fair), and fourth class (no honors).

The recognition given The Blue Stocking marked the tenth time in the history of the publication that an All-American honor has been bestowed upon the staff. Having originated in January of 1920, with the now Rev. Carl W. McMurray as founder, The Blue Stocking first received All-American honors during the first semester of 1941, under the editorship of Charles McDonald. The now obsolete All-American Pacemaker rating was awarded the staff of '41 for having one of the ten best newspapers in the nation, regardless of size. The second semester staff of that same year also copped A-A honors.

All-American fame again struck The Blue Stocking in 1942, with Ben Hay Hammet, presently serving the institution as public relations director, as editor. During the second semester, the weekly newspaper was raised to heights unknown, being judged by ACP as one of the seven best collegiate publications in the U. S., regardless of size and was awarded the All-American Pacemaker.

After four years of silence during the war years, The Blue Stocking began rolling off the press in 1946. In 1947, the student paper gained its fifth All-American. James Banbury was editor at that time.

Last year the publication received two consecutive A-A ratings under Ray Lord as editor.

The criticism was divided into four general deral departments as follows: coverage, content, and physical properties. In the first division, the Sock received 340 points; the second, 610 points; and the third, 695. Altogether, the paper garnered 1645 points. The total needed for the top rating was 1600.

Out of a possible 23 "superior" ratings in regard to the different aspects of publication, the newspaper gained the following two: editorial page features and sports display. The next best category "excellent" had twelve ratings, and nine made the grade of "very good." All the papers entered in the 500-minus class were analyzed and rated by Gareth Hiebert, a staff member of the St. Paul, Minnesota, Pioneer Press, and a former member of the faculty of the University of Michigan School of Journalism.

Hiebert stated the following concerning the inside pages: "You illustrate one of my contentions—that an inside page can be made interesting by good display." He stated further, "Your editorial page is, so far as I'm concerned, the most interseting page in the paper. There is a lot of good reading there."

Members of the staff at the time of judging were as follows: Richard Oliver, of College Park, Ga., editor; Frank Young, of Clinton, managing editor; Drayton Cooper, of Sumter, associate editor; Dee Parker, of Laurens, business manager; Bill Cashwell, of Fayetteville, N. C., assistant to the editor; John Hall, of Atlanta, Ga., news editor; Stan Johnson, of York, Blair Baldwin, of Blair, and Jim Fleming, of Charlotte, N. C., news staff.

Also, Cecil Geddings, of Paxville, and Tommy Richards, of Heath Springs, sports editors; Bill Roberts, of Danville, Va., and John Thames, of Manning, sports staff. Robert Reynolds, of Clinton, feature editor; Charles Joyner, of Myrtle Beach, and John Knox, of Decatur, Ga., feature staff. Ray Lord, of Dublin, Ga., contributing editor.

Perry Hogue, of York, fraternity editor; John Summers, of Charlotte, N. C., exchange editor; Harold Giles, of Athens, Ga., associate circulation manager; Glen Crofton, of Maxton, N. C., Billy Fulton, of Atlanta, Ga., and Pet eRaynolds, of Blair, typists; Charles Dukes, of Atlanta, Ga., columnist.

The honor rating certificate will be sent as soon as it can be printed and lettered, possibly between Dec. 1 and 15.

The paper received its rating in the 500 minus class, and if enrollment remains at the present level of 500, this semester's paper will be moved into the 750-501 classification.

The Sock is printed by the Chronicle Publishing Co., of Clinton.

Laurens and Newberry Churches Will Observe PC Sunday, Nov. 8

• Students Aid in Services

By BLAIR BALDWIN

Presbyterian College Sunday will be recognized by all Presbyterian Churches in Laurens and Newberry counties on Nov. 6. Pastors of all p r o t e s t a n t denominations have been asked to prepare their messages in accordance with this day or to have some guest speaker deliver a relevant message.

Presbyterian College has supplied each of these churches with pertinent bulletins which bear information about the College.

The First Presbyterian Church of Clinton, has asked John McLean, Harold Gallimore, and Neung Kwon Suh to aid in Sunday's services.

The Lieutenants Dinner, which is a part of the formation of the campaign, will be held next Tuesday night, when all of the first regional campaign organization heads will meet with the lieutenants attending for the first time.

If the total organization attends, their number will be 241. The three purposes for this dinner are to enthuse the workers, instruct them on the proper ways of promoting their solicitation, and to distribute to them all prospect cards. Coach Walter Johnson will speak to the organization.

The 75th Anniversary program has been very highly organized and it is much more complex than it seems to the average layman.

South Carolina has been divided into 14 regions and Georgia into 9 regions. Laurens and Newberry counties compose the first region in this state and it is the first region to experience the anniversary program with the hope of raising their goal of $250,000.

The organization for the campaign is called "Pyramids of Power" under which come a number of sub-divisions of men and groups. There are first the regional co-chairmen, who are followed by the other groups which are the steering committee, colonels, majors, captains, and lieutenants. Each of these groups have been meeting in consecutive weeks for the purpose of furthering the development program.

It has been so arranged that each group will be in charge of a given number of prospects and no solicitor will contact more than five prospects, excluding himself. The number of leaders will vary according to the number of prospects and the regional population.

There are approximately 57,000 Presbyterians in South Carolina and 59,000 in Georgia. The number of Presbyterian College Alumni in this state is 1800 and approximately 400 in Georgia. The most highly populated region is Fulton County, Ga., which contains 20,000 Presbyterians in its limits. In a region such as this the organization will have to be much larger than in one of the sparsely populated regions of lower South Carolina.

Mr. Lawrence B. Avison, Marts and Lundy representative, stated this week, "The campaign looks pretty sound at the present."

Robed Choir Tells Theme

"The Christian Gloria" has been chosen as the theme of the Presbyterian College Robed Choir's program for this year. The program, which is based upon scripture readings and sacred musical renderings, will center around the thought of "Praise to our God".

Narration and the first musical rendering will begin the program with a declaration of the theme. The opening words of the reader and the first selection will be "Glory to the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit".

The choir will use three hymns of the Reformation and three of Russian composition. Three Spirituals and two selections of the Romantic composers will also be included. The different origins of the musical selections put variety into the program.

The program develops as the musical selections, together with the scripture reading illustrate one by one the main characteristic of each person of the Trinity.

Dr. Patte stated that he is greatly encouraged by the quality of the choir this year which is composed of 60% new members. The first concert of the 1955 season will be in Mayesville, Nov. 20, at the First Presbyterian Church.

The spirit and enthusiasm of the men has provoked the following statement from Dr. Patte: "I'm delighted".

1903 Greenville Daily News Cites Needs of Presbyterian

Presbyterian College is on the springboard of a fund-raising campaign that will net the school some two million dollars over a long range scope. The Synods of South Carolina and Georgia are preparing now for this mnounental task.

In an edition of The Greenville News dated March 25, 1903, an article appeared that was headed, "The Presbyterian college of South Carolina—Its Needs and How to Provide for Them." The writer of this article, timely in 1903, could well be quoted today as the college once eagain appeals to its supporters for monetary help in facing the future.

Quoting from the 52-year-old article, we give you this for your consideration. "(One of the) needs is for repairs on the property of the college. At the present time the recitation hall (now Mr. Glover's home) is badly in need of paint, as are also the professor's (sic) cottage . . . and the refectory."

Today we have Neville Hall, there are apartments provided for many of the instructors, and the refectory is Judd Dining Hall. But they are not void of their needs.

But let us turn back the pages of time once more, and read further of the needs of PC a half-century ago. "The four acres of land on which the recitation hall is located should be fenced in. On the sixteen acres of land where the other buildings are situated, some grass should be set.

"We are constantly in need of additions to our equipment in chemistry and physics. The library, too, is continually calling for money."

Following these paragraphs were statements concerning the needs of the athletic facilities at the college.

In a sum-up paragraph, we read, "Such are some of the pressing material needs of the college. In addition should be mentioned the need of money with which to pay the expenses of the Board of Trustee."

And so, Presbyterian College has grown with the years. With its physical growth has been an upsurge of monetary needs to meet the competition of other schools if we are to survive in the race for good education.

N. C. Automobile Wreck Injures Dr. Harris, Wife

Word was received at Presbyterian College late yesterday afternoon that Dr. and Mrs. John W. Harris had been involved in an automobile accident near Pittsboro, N. C.

At first report, it was believed htat Dr. Harris was the only one injured, but it was later discovered that Mrs. Harris had sustained painful injuries also.

Dr. Harris is the head of Presbyterian College's English department; he was on leave of absence to recuperate from a broken leg.

Third Army General Praises ROTC Unit

Maj. Gen. R. G. Gard, deputy commanding general of the Third Army, stated that he was pleased with the Military Department of the College, in an inspection here Monday.

Gen. Gard was met by an Honor Guard, which consisted of Company D, Cadet 1st Lt. Ernie Wahl, commanding, and the Band, Cadet 1st Lt. Thomas Turner, commanding. He stated that he was pleased with the guard, and described the band's rendition of Ruffles and Flourishes and the General's March as excellent.

In an interview with President Brown, he commented on the high esprit de corps among the PC cadets. Although an official report of the inspection has not yet been released, Gen. Gard said that PC's ROTC program was in excellent condition.

Mutual Obligations of Students

The editors feel that the administration of Presbyterian College is doing an excellent job of student selection this year, which will motivate a better academic and moral spirit on this campus in future years.

But, the time has come to say a few words on the condition of the Student Body and its mutual obligations at the present.

As we come up through the classes a certain realization of influence dawns upon us. We realize that we are being watched as examples and certain ones of us either do not care or are not aware of the tremendous influence that we have upon the actions of the underclassmen.

Some of us do not have foresight enough to realize that the morals of this college rely on our influential traits of character. Certain of us should have never come to Presbyterian College because of our unwillingness to uphold the Christian principles upon which this college was based..

We are talking of those who make fun of Student Council actions, of the various programs carried on by the administration to rid the campus of these distracting and detrimental influences which seem to be inherent qualities of some of the abnormal characters who roam the campus trying to disrupt and destroy the peace of mind of various students who expected more from PC than this situation.

We are talking of the men who purposely lead new students astray from their moral convictions simply because it gives them a boost to see someone traveling down the immoral road which they have followed.

The new students will have to realize that everywhere one goes he is plagued by those people who tend to think that an immoral deed or a move which will make the student of high character squirm is a quality of an adult. These men are not adults, they are children. Some never grow up. Some realize, only too late, that they have thrown their education to the winds by overriding it with bad habits which plague them through life.

No one can truly measure a man's character by just meeting him. This is the tremendous job of the administration. This year more emphasis than ever is being put upon the character of the individual. They cannot succeed in elimination of characters who do not live up to our code of God-fearing principles until the Student Body itself cooperates in the sorting out of men who do not meet the standards.

Phith Pinch Hits for Why

C. DRAYTON COOPER III

What with mid-semesters coming up, the red hot editor of the Presbyterian Slander Sheet, forced Yorick O. Why into exile this week for fear he would wax too injurious and have the whole staff flunked. Therefore this week's column is being written by Guzzle Q. Phith, one of America's most outstanding journalists.

"Good evening, my friends. It is indeed a pleasure to greet you once again in official capacity; it seems ages since I have been associated with the Sock, but at last, you will be graced again with my efforts as a writer (Editor's note:?)

"You of the Clinton chapter of the American Association for the Preservation of Better College Newspapers, Playboy Magazines, and Skin Sheets have honored me no end by inviting me as your after-dinner speaker on this fine night.

"I shall do my best to enlighten you on the subject of publishing a college newspaper of merit; a prime example of such a paper is the Blue Stocking of Presbyterian College.

"To put out a tabloid, you must first have news. That is why the Blue Sock is not a tabloid. But let me progress. When the news editor has gone through all his gossip and rumor files to see what might be breaking on a particular week, he assigns certain articles to certain people.

"Now he must choose his news staff very carefully. The man who will cover events stemming from Dr. Bellngrath's office must be one who is over-cut at least seven times in all his classes. This gives him an inside track with the dean, since the dean is already acquainted with the reporter and knows that he is a man of outstanding worth.

"The same thing holds true for the sports staff; one who is to interview Coach Crutchfield should be the intellectual type who has never seen a football game, or if this type is not available (It isn't in our case.—Ed.), the reporter for this task should be a baseball player who quit football because he was chicken.

"When the news has been assigned, all the reporters should dash wildly from the publications building, fired up with enthusiasm, notebook in hand, and the thought in their little pulsating minds that a scoop is in the offing. You should see this spectacle at PC on Monday afternoons; hundreds gather in front of the Kiker Publishing House just to witness the mad melee as the eager newshounds sprint to the assignments.

"Incidentally, it is good to have a man on the staff who is adroit at reading the chow hall bulletin board since this seems to be the main source for most of the news articles. Of course, if the B Board won't tell you, there's always Ray Lord.

"The excitement reaches a peak on Wednesday night as the farflung chroniclers begin to phone in their stuff. The wires hum with great news beats from 8:00 until 'way past midnight each Wednesday as the loyal journalists call in their stories from the remote regions of the world. Finally, the trusty old reporter, Y. O. Why comes through with the latest poop from the bulletin boards around campus, and the paper's ready to be put to bed.

"Friday afternoon approaches, and with its advent the loyal editors, Oliver, Young, Why, and Phith (plus a few other notables), wend their way to the local publishing house to get out the sheet.

"As the long hours crawl slowly by, the paper begins to shape up, and finally, Oliver, in a voice rasped from cigarettes and cokes, shouts out the magic words, 'Roll 'em'.

The End of Sam

By NOBLE COLLINS

(Had you forgotten about Sam—the unluckiest boy in the world? Remember—Sam had been promised by the Wizard of Oz in a dream that he would be granted any wish he desired. We find Sam still asleep.)

Gears meshed in an old rusty alarm clock and sent a shrill clang-clang-clang echoing from the walls of Sam's room. After a few moments, the clanging ceased as abruptly as it had begun and a new sound took its place—the morning ritual of college boys uttering oaths and corny maxims as they crawled out of the sack. "Rise and Shine"; "Up and at 'em"; "Early to bed, early to rise" "Aw, knock it off".

Sam leaped from the bed on the wrong side and thudded into the wall, then got up and began dressing quickly. "Starting the day out right again, huh roomy?" ventured Sam's room-mate. "And by the way, that's my uniform."

"You're right" replied Sam. "Sometimes I wish all I had to do was to say 'be dressed' and I'd be—".

Suddenly, before the last word had escaped Sam's lips, he was completely dressed in his own uniform. "Hey, what happened," cried Sam, "all I did was to say 'sometimes I wish'—".

A cold chill ran over Sam as he remembered his dream of the previous night and then realized he had made a wish and it had come true—swish—just like that. "This is amazing" cried Sam, "All I have to do is to wish something and it comes true. I can't believe it."

"Oh, I wish you'd shut up" said Sam angrily, and instantly Sam's roomy was bound tightly around the mouth with adhesive tape. Sam laughed loudly, "Ha, ha, you didn't believe me, did you?" "Well, watch this" and he proceeded to wish any number of small miracles to take place. Sam's roomo stood wide-eyed and helpless as wish after wish was made. Soon, it was becoming obvious that the strange gift had gone to Sam's head. He was beginning to wish in a big way and there appeared to be no stopping him. He wished that he had a million dollars, then he wished he had all the money in the world, then he wished that he had the world.

Then Sam made his one fatal mistake—he began to get big-hearted and wished that all the wishes in the world would come true. It seems that Sam's roommate was wishing very hard at the time that Sam would disappear off the face of the earth.

So, remember, if you think you're unlucky some time don't feel sorry for yourself and start making wishes. Remember—everything happened to Sam.

Roger Reports on Roya

Special to the Editor:

West of Zanzibar (CP) Dear Guzzle, Thanks very much letter and cash which arrived last week. Now that I have plied with expense money, I shall proceed with my factual of the news.

There was much ado among the savages this week. A the royal family seems forthcoming . . . Seems like, fair, and highly eligible Magrit, daughter of Chief Dook Owdi up and fallen in love with a handsome, dashing young sund, a group leader among the local spear hurlers.

It looks like Chief Dook won't let daughter Magrit because Toonsund, in his younger days, was married (and vorced) to and from a local yokel. The Chief has been much pressure from supporters of both factions.

The "don't marry him" faction is being led by the tribe doctor, Bishp Cantberry, who also has the support of Chief and Queen Lisbet. Local customs (perhaps out of date) dition (another great hindrance to progress) are also with the and the Doctor.

The "marry him" faction is under the leadership of drum-beaters' union. They are so enthusiastic over the for the past few nights, I have been kept awake by incessorials being beamed to all parts of the empire.

The majority of the common public are with this "you They think that Princess Magrit ought to throw away her to royalty, and marry Toonsund . . .even if he is but a commo hurler. After all, they add, he goes to lion hunts, kangaroo and bolo matches just like all royalty.

A few days ago, Magrit made a decision. Chief said it decision anyway, but this reporter rather doubts it. It that they were both very much interested in each other. had been seen taking Magrit off for the weekend to many wooing place. But Chief Dook had always tried to keep the Why, last year, he even appointed Toonsund as Ambassado Boondocks, a primitive tribe many moons away. This had romance for a while, but eventually Toonsund, like MacArt turned.

Her decision (or was it one handed down by Dook, Lisbe Bishp) was to forever do away with all thoughts of romance handsome dashing Toonsund. To this reporter, the news ca great shock. After all, even if she had been thrown out of the hut (by wedding Toonsund), the royal family could have her by giving them some scraps from the table every now a Magrit was third in line for the royal club. This did as much of a factor involved in the case because, unless Dook and baby son Edvord, were all squashed to death by the elephant, she would never have to take over any royal duties reviewing the guards, and going to teas).

Summing up . . . a romance started, a problem arose, a decision was handed down . . . a decision which leaves the onous ful tribe of Brit-huns in a state of turmoil.

As I am here as a reporter, and not a commentator, I hope kept to the facts in the above report, and not let my humble sonal opinion seep into it . . . but in case it did I'm glad.

That's it for today, Guzzle . . . I'll be leaning against the ole palm tree in the middle of the same ole clearing, typing other ole report next week. Until then, send more money, you get word, and hang by your phone.

Indians Fall to Hose 20-13 in Thrilling Game

• Armstrong Makes 84-Yard Run

Ken Webb, in his usual brilliant form, raced 23 yards to score here Saturday night to put the Blue Hose ahead of the Catawba Indians 20-13. Don Daniels recovered a Catawba fumble to set up the play on the Indian 23, from which Webb scored.

The most sensational play of the night, however, came when PC's Johnny Armstrong, of Honea Path, raced 84 yards to score at the start of the third period. Webb ran the extra point and tied the game 13-13.

Freshman fullback Jimmy Nichols climaxed a 38-yard drive which was set up by Ron Isger's pass interception and 22-yard return, when he plunged over from the one.

Ecah team collected 10 first downs but the PC running attack went forward in full force with 252 yards, while Catawba was held to 99 on the ground. Catawba relied mostly on passing in gaining 108 yards in the air to only 14 for PC.

Johnny Armstrong led the Presbyterian rushing attack for the night with 111 yards from scrimmage, and averaged 15.9 per try. Ken Webb, PC's 200 pound fullback, who lead the attack for the Hose, added 54 yards to his total.

Halfback Mitchell Mavromat recorded 25 yards, Halfback Eddy Brockenbrough had 23 yards, and Halfback Tony Benson had 20 yards.

PC's Vice-Prexy is Former Star

By LAWRENCE YOUNG

Otto Walter Ferrene, former Blue Hose end and now Vice-President of Presbyterian College, has achieved success both on the gridiron and in life after grdauation.

Ferrene started his gridiron winning ways by playing on the 1926 Class C State Champions at Thornwell Orphanage. In 1927 he played on the Blue Anklets, the freshman football team.

Ferrene climaxed his playing days by yielding a great helping hand to the 1930 version of the Blue Hose to win the S.I.A.A. championship with six wins and no defeats in the association. Throughout the entire season the Blue Hose had a 9-1 won-lost record. Cocah Walter Johnson's miracle team of 1930 turned back the last seven opponents scoreless as they roared onto the championship in which Ferrene's outstanding play at end played an important role.

After receiving his BS degree in 1931, Ferrene taught and coached football in high school in Alabama for one year. Then he advanced to Dean of Students, Coach of backs and ends, and professor of chemistry and biology at Presbyterian Junior College at Maxton, N. C.

In 1936 he retired from the coaching scene to devote his full time to his position as Dean of Instruction. He held this position until 1955, when he came back to PC to accept the position of Vice-President in charge of expansion.

In his undergraduate days at PC, Ferrene was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity. In military he was first sergeant and executive officer of Company A in 1930 and 1931 respectively. By earning a block letter in football for three years and in boxing in 1928, he won his right to be enrolled in the Block "P" Club.

Sports Question

The Broadway Theatre is again this week offering a free pass to the winner of this weekly contest. Cecil Coke Geddings, Jr., won last week's pass by answering all three questions correctly.

The answers to last week's questions are as follows: PC won none and lost ten in the 1937 season; the Hose won nine while losing one in the season of 1930; and Banks McFadden, former Great Falls High School star and Clemson College star, was named to the All-American squad for two year's straight as a tailback in Clemson's single wing attack.

In what year did Coach Lonnie McMillian take over as head coach of the Presbyterian College football team?

At what university and under what famous coach did Coach Bill Crutchfield play during his college days?

What conference is the Presbyterian College football team a member of?

Hose to Meet Hatters In Deep South Tonight

The Blue Hose of Coach Blil Crutchfield will invade the home grounds of the Stetson Hatters this weekend and are out to raise their won-lost record over the .500 mark.

The Blue Hose of Coach Bill Crutchfield will invade Indians which raised their total of wins to three as compared with their losses which also stand at three.

The Battlin' Blues showed a sparkling ground attack in outlasting the Indians who put up a game struggle all the way. The Hose expect to throw a powerful ground game at the Hatters and balance it with an equally effective passing attack which is in the capable hands of quarterback Felder Cook.

Most of the Hose power will be expected to come from 200 pound fullback Ken Webb whose running so far this year has been nothing short of spectacular. The PC team boasts of a fine array of pass receivers led by Ken Daughtry, Bobby Jackson, Don Daniels and Bob Stevens.

Halfback Brockenbrough is also counted on for plenty of yardage along with halfbacks Gene Butler, Mitch Mavaromat, and Johnny Armstrong and fullback Jimmy Nichols.

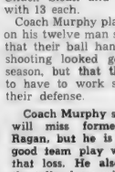
Linemen who have been outstanding in past games are captain and tackle Robert Harrington, center George Shrigley, guards Tommy Warren, Alvis Poe, and Richard Shrigley, and tackle Lee Frierson.

The Blue Hose came through their battle with Catawba with no serious injuries and are expected to be at full strength to take on Stetson. The Hose are rated as slight favorites in the game at Deland, Fla., tonight.

The Hatters feature a strong passing attack from a spread formation and also a group of speedy halfbacks running from the T-formation. Last year PC toppled Stetson by a 28-7 margin.

The Hose lead Stetson in the series by the count of seven victories against no defeats with one game ending in a tie. This will be the ninth meeting of the two teams. PC holds a scoring edge with 118 points to 50 by the Hatters.

Basketeers Defeat Charlotte Monarchs



The 1955-56 PC basketball team got its first taste of action Friday night, Oct. 28, when they defeated the semi-pro Charlotte Monarchs, 119-53, in Leroy Springs gymnasium.

The Blue Hose had six men to score in double figures with Dave Thompson leading the way with 31 points. Other high point men for the Hose were Bill Toole with 18, Bill Sullivan and Bruce Thompson with 15 each, and Chuck Sloan and Arnold Stone with 13 each.

Coach Murphy played every one on his twelve man squad. He said that their ball handling and the shooting looked good for early season, but that they are going to have to work some more on their defense.

Coach Murphy says that they will miss former star, Ron Ragan, but he is hopeful that good team play will overcome that loss. He also hopes that the taller boys will improve to give them more strength under the boards.

This game was used as a preseason test of strength before the team goes to Richmond, Ind., to compete in a tournament during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Behind the Blues

LITTLE ALL-AMERICANS

Robert Harrington, senior tackle for the Blue Hose, was named to the pre-season All-State team by sports writers and coaches from all over South Carolina. His play this season has definitely shown him to be of All-State calibre.

I would also like to nominate him for Little All-American honors. Harrington is thought of by his PC coaches and teammates as the best tackle in the state, barring none. His teammates showed their respect for him when they elected him captain of this year's team.

Guard Luther Shealy, a member of last year's team, was named to both the All-State and Little All-American teams as a senior. He was a mainstay in the Hose line the whole season, and averaged close to sixty minutes of play per game.

Another nominee from this year's team is sophomore fullback Ken Webb. Webb is the team's leading ground gainer so far this year. No team has successfully stopped the 200-pounder, including Clemson. He has also been a jack-of-all-trades on defense. His speed and size make him a deadly tackler from his corner back position.

I definitely feel that these two PC players are of both All-State and Little All-American calibre.

SECOND TEAM PRAISED

Coach Bill Crutchfield had high praise for the showing of his second unit against the Catawba Indians Saturday night. When the first unit could not seem to move the ball on offense and were having trouble stopping the Catawba backs, the second unit took over and in the words of Crutchfield, "They saved the game for the Blue Hose." Two of the Hose scores were registered by members of the cond unit. Fullback Jimmy Nichols scored once on a short plunge, and halfback Johnny Armstrong brought the crowd to its feet with an 84-yard scoring run.

GO, BLUE HOSE, GO!!!

The basketball season is rushing onward at breakneck speed, and soon the Leroy Springs Gymnasium with the echoes of "Go, Blue Hose, Go."

A word to the freshmen . . . Newboys, the spirit at the Hose basketball games is something that you won't believe the first time you see it. We old timers here at PC have seen our Battlin' Blues come from behind to take quite a few games.

SHORT SHOTS

It semes that Bill Tiller, a catcher on the Hose baseball team last year, has assembled quite a high school football team at Hill Crest near Sumter. His team has already captured the district Class C title. Their lone defeat came at the hands of an undefeated B lass team . . . The Blue Hose, at right o'clock tonight, will take on the Stetson Hatters at Deland, Florida . . . The Hose are on the move now. The fumbleitus is cured and a winning combination has been secured by Coach Bill Crutchfield . . . The Blue Hose will bring back the Stetson Hat when they return to the campus Saturday night.

Presbyterian Has Birthday Party

Challenge Gift Offered By Prominent Clinton Family

By CHARLES DUKES

A crowd of 332 persons turned out for Presbyterian College's Diamond Jubilee Dinner at the Clinton Armory on Tuesday night.

The occasion served as a 75th anniversary birthday party and officially launched the College's long-range development program.

Highlight of the evening, concerning the Development Program, came when President Marshall W. Brown announced a challenge gift of $75,000 offered anonymously by a Clinton family on a dollar-for-dollar matching basis within the home area of Laurens and Newberry counties. Every dollar contributed within this area will be matched by this gift, up to and including $75,000.

President Brown pointed out that this generous offer gives the program a fine start toward its successful completion.

A varied and colorful program was presented at this dinner. Dr. Charles Haddon Nabors, pastor emeritus of Greenville's First Presbyterian Church, spoke dynamically on what Presbyterian College had meant to him, and he urged greater support to Christian education through his message "A Challenge to the Future."

President Brown spoke on "Dum Vivimus Servimus," developed around the college motto 'While We Lived We Served". In this address, Dr. Brown related how the succeeding presidents of the college pursued unswervingly the ideals of consecrated and sacrificial endeavor set forth by its founder, William Plumer Jacobs.

The 32-voice PC Robed Choir provided musical entertainment with three selections. A technicolor motion picture "Its Your Presbyterian College" was shown and narrated by Ben Hay Hammet, dirctor of public relations at the college.

Robert M. Vance of Clinton served as master of ceremonies at the dinner and introduced the guests of honor. Among those guests present were Joseph Walker, Jr., and the Rev. Fred V. serve as co-chairmen of the Development Program for the Synod of South Carolina. Their wives were also present.

Dinner Crowd . . .

Tables were crowded at the Jubilee Dinner held Tuesday night where a large crowd of interested Laurens and Newberry workers listened to the varied program led by Master of Ceremonies Robert M. Vance, of Clinton.

PiKA's Make First Student Gift of $125

By BLAIR BALDWIN

The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity made the initial contribution of the Student Body of Presbyterian College last Tuesday night by serving as waiters at the Diamond Jubilee Kickoff Banquet. A check in the amount of $125 was presented to Robert M. Vance, co-chairman of the local drive, by Lynwood Gaskin, president of Mu Chapter.

This is the first step in the student participation drive which has the support of the majority of the national fraternities on campus as shown by a recent poll taken by this writer.

In the past weeks Lawrence B. Avison, Marts and Lundy representative, and Otto Ferrene, vice-president of Presbyterian College, have met with the six fraternities. Their purpose was to present to the fraternity men information pertinent to the Development Program so that the men will be aware of the situation when the time comes to organize if an organization is desired.

Avison and Ferrene stated that through their experience, leadership is centered in campus fraternities, and it was decided that by presenting the situation in fraternity discussions the students would have a better opportunity to express their views.

Various perceptives have been formed by the different groups on campus during the past weeks.

Y. O. Why - Comic Critic

C. DRAYTON COOPER III

Yorick O. Why, in addition to being a journalist, lover, man-about-town, big man on campus, and singer, is also an art critic. He has to be because he's taking fine arts this semester. Well, anyway, he's an art critic, and this week, Y. O. Why will take you, the readers of this fine newspaper, behind the scenes of the leading comic strip creators.

First of all will be Jester Grould who draws Dick "The Tick" Gracy, detective of merit and honorary member of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America. At present, "Tick" is involved in chasing down one of the greasiest, slimiest, nastiest criminals in the history of The Big Town. This nasty old man delights himself in going around blackmailing people, and killing widows. Oh, he's a mean one. Incidentally, the crook's name is "Slim", and his diet consists of nothing but raw oysters and tomato juice.

All of Tick's readers are hung in suspense now, wondering if their hero, and his loyal sidekick, Bud Fetchem, will be able to apprehend this culprit and bring him to justice before he can commit another felonous deed.

Next in line is that lovely lady of the strip, The Lungs of Juliet Bones. Julie is created by a cat named Dan Strake who seems to have a knack of drawing those sweet next-door-girls, and putting them into all sorts of situations. Right now, Julie is mixed up with a couple of mixedups.

Her lover has a civil engineering degree from Reuben Gape College in Glutout, Ga., but speaks in tones poetical as if he had graduated from old Siwash with a major in Eddie Guest.

But the thing that makes Julie so popular is that all the boys steal Dan's words to write to their girls. Of course her sister, li'l Eva Mae adds some pleasant scenery, too.

Perhaps the most read of all the strips is Gypsy . . . wrong strip.

Well, as we were saying, the comic that gets most of the readers around here is probably Steve "Sigma Chi" Valley, he's a real deep character. Steve's creator is none other than Millie Gonigh, a man who has been around the comic world for a long time. Milt will be remembered for his earlier efforts with Perry and the Tyrants.

Perry is now being drawn by Georg Vunder, who is adept at drawing freckles on the nose of Cold Shot Carlos, one of his heroes.

For those who like to read satire there's always Little Orphan Abner, now officially daid. Ab is involved in two plots at once. How he can work it out, I can't figure, but he's got Bloodstone of the Irish Republican Army to help him out.

Another of the satirists is Walt O'Kelly, who draws Gogo, the All-American Possum. Gogo is a possum after our hearts 'cause he's straight from the South. All the Georgia boys go for Gogo cause Gogo goes for Glutout.

We could go on forever, but Oliver just came in to tell us that there's a man out here from Mad Comics to interview us for a job, so I guess we'd better run along. Oh yes, the man's name is Alfred E. Neuman.

Well, see you in the funnies.

Dr. Ohyu Kidd Seeks Missing Dorm Floors

By NOBLE COLLINS

My name is Dr. Ohyu Kidd, Ph. D., LL.D., F.F.A., Campfire Girls, (I had to lie about my age), etc. I am a criminologist. In my off hours, I am also a pinboy at the bowling alley.

My dealings with crime have carried me to the four corners of the earth, thus proving once and for all that the world IS square.

I have seen many strange sights in my travels, but none so strange as a thing that occurged recently at my old Alma Mater—Presbyterian Home For Boys.

I had spent all of one afternoon peering from a precarious perch, pondering the position of affairs on the campus. With my glass eye, I mean my eyeglass, I scanned the campus closely for curiosities, but found none.

A plane was flying low over the campus spraying the colors of a rival school over everything. Out on the plaza, students were hoisting a new yellow Chrysler up the flagpole, and over in one of the dormitories, water was pouring from the third floor windows. Nothing new I noted.

In fact, everything was so droll I decided to stroll over to the little white building known as "Lonnies" for a couple of "cool ones".

I strode briskly up to the bar I mean counter, and slyly whispered to the attendant, "the usual."

"Sure," he replied, "two Pepsis and an oatmeal cookie, coach."

Then as I sat munching away, I couldn't help overhearing the conversation of two students. "Say, Man," cried one, "That new dormitory is really the coolest, ain't it?"

"Yeah," replied the other, "It's really gone."

Aha, so the new dormintory was gone was it? Well, here was a perfect opportunity to display my prowess as a super-sleuth. I would find it!

Cleverly, I disguised myself as Neville Hall and crept over to the scene. Oddly enough, the new dorm was not missing. It was still very much in place. "Perhaps it is one of the floors that is gone" I pondered, and I began to check.

I checked each floor one by one and found each to be in it's place. Then, I discovered it!! All the floors above the top floor were missing!

Feverishly, I ran about asking questions and looking for clues, but my questions only drew puzzled look and there were absolutely no clues to be found. I was floored.

I could make a long story out of this and tell how after many years I finally solved the case, but instead I'll tell the truth. Unable to solve it myself, I turned it over to a touring lion tamer named Beaty (not Clyde), and as far as I know, he's still working on it.

Library Noises

A monitor system which has been recently instal the Student Council in the dormitories will undou squelch some of the noise which has irritated studer some years. An immediate need was seen by the and something was done about it. We can now ho successful results.

Although the noise in the dorms has been d down, many students who require complete qui study atmosphere retreat to the library, where pe supposed to prevail. Not so. In fact, at times a noisy place cannot be found for study.

It seems that many consider the library a place t typical PC bull session, which, as we all know, can b to the early morning hours. Many libraries have able through some manner to maintain a study a phere, and it is our impression that this, other than t of material afforded the student for reading, is th pose of a college library.

In high school, a common form of punishmen write the phrase "Silence is Golden" for a great n of consecutive times on the blackboard, as a penal those who cannot contain their articulate powers un proper time. Of course, we are considered as adult and common sense should tell us that we are distu others when we tromp across the floor or shout to ou dy about some joint juncture which only concerns a not the people who are trying to pound a few k knowledge into their brain.

We realize that probably none of us were born barn, and that we have had better training at home to disturb others while engaged in important work.

Therefore, let's start a "Silence is Golden" can in the library, as corny as it may sound, and help ou dies to better their academic averages.

Two Senior Players Close Careers Soon

Two Presbyterian College footballers will play their last game for the Garnet and Blue when the Hose meet the Newberry Indians in their Thanksgiving Day battle Thursday. Captain and tackle Robert Harrington and Co-captain and end Bobby Jackson will take to the gridiron for their last Blue Hose game next week.

Harrington was a popular pre-season choice for All-State honors in the South Carolina Football Annual. He is also a candidate for Little All-American honors.

He was elected captain of the Hose for the '55 season by his teammates. Harrington hails from Montclair.

Jackson was elected co-captain of the team and he has been outstanding as an agile end during his stay at PC. He was voted lineman of the week in South Carolina during the 1954 season for his outstanding play in PC's win over Davidson. Jackson is from Charlotte, N. C.

Bucketmen Cop Third Encounter

The Presbyterian College basketball team took their third exhibition game of the young season at the expense of the semi-pro Charlotte Monarchs, 80-48, in Charlotte Monday, Nov. 14.

Leading the attack for the Blue Hose were Bruce and Dave Thompson with 23 and 19 points respectively. Ex-PC star, Bob Burgess, paced the Monarchs with fifteen points.

Coach Russ Murphy was satisfied with the team's shownig and the defense in particular. He said that the offense was hampered somewhat because of the court's condition.

Hose Meet Newberry Thursday

• Bronze Derby at Stake

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose will meet the Newberry Indians on the latter's home field next Thursday afternoon and the Bronze Derby will be at stake. The Hose will be out to keep possession of the valued prize which they hold because of their victory in last year's Turkey Day duel.

Head coach Bill Cructhfield and his Battlin' Blue Hose got down to serious business Wednesday afternoon after a two-day layoff. The Hose hope to make it two straight over the Indians of Coach Harvey Kirkland.

The strong rivals have met 40 times with PC holding a decided edge in the series with 26 wins. Newberry has taken eleven games with three ending in ties. The Hose have outscored the Indians by 567 points to 332.

The Blue Hose took last year's game in the fading minutes on the strength of a scoring aerial from Harry Hamilton to George Blue. The score was set up by a fine run by PC's best broken field runner, Gene Butler, who is a returning letterman at the left halfback position.

The Hose will depend mainly on their excellent running attack. The Hose ground attack has been very efficient in grinding out huge hunks of yardage against their opponents this year. - Fullback Ken Webb has been the big gun in the PC attack so far this year. His running mates are Butler and Eddie Brockenbrough.

Quarterback Felder Cook, a doubtful starter at the beginning of this season, has shown considerable improvement in his passing and running. He has also shown considerable promise as a runner and his kicks have been better than average.

The Newberry ground attack is led by veteran halfback Grady Ray. Ray was a continual thorn in the side of the Hose in last year's encounter. Ray is a former star at Camden High.

Danny Brabham, who is considered the best quarterback in the state by his coach, will be at the helm for the Indians on Thursday. Brabham is an excellent operator of the split T and this year blossomed as a competent passer.

The Blue Hose line is bolstered by two lettermen tackles and a host of fine ends. Captain Robert Harrington will be out to insure his position as a tackle on the All-State eleven. His running mate is Lee Frierson The end positions are manned by three veterans, Ken Daughtry, Bobby Jackson, and Bob Stevens, and a transfer student of last year, Don Daniels.

There is only one letterman at the guard position, but the play of the unried men has been very pleasing. Veteran Tommy Warren. Alvis Poe, Bill Tsacrios, and Richard Shrigley will be out to stop the talented Newberry backs. The center position is well manned by George Shrigley, Jim McLauchlin, and Guy Haddix.

Against mutual foes this season the Hose have won one, lost two, and tied one. The Indians have won one, lost one, and tied two. PC has registered a win over Catawba and have suffered losses to Wofford and The Citadel. The Hose tied Stetson.

Newberry has won over Wofford, lost to The Citadel, and tied both Catawba and Stetson. It all adds up to an exciting game with plenty of action.

Last week the Blue Hose lost to the Appalachian Mountaineers while Newberry and Stetson battled to a 12-12 tie. Both teams have open dates this week in preparation for their annual battle. Game time is 2:30 P. M.

Bronze Derby Symbolizes Forty Years of Rival Play

By LAWRENCE YOUNG

The Bronze Derby, symbol of 40 years of athletic encounters between Newberry College and Presbyterian College, has only a short history. It was first instigated in 1946 when the topper was snatched from Jimmie Kellett, former PC student, during a free-for-all after a Presbyterian victory over Newberry in Basketball.

Charles MacDonald, former PC public relations head, immediately pounced upon the incident, had the hat returned, and sent if to be bronzed by a novelty firm in Ohio.

Until last year the hat has been at stake whenever the two schools met in football, basketball or baseball. Under the influence of the public relations head, Ben Hay Hammet, the Bronze Derby has been changed to be the symbol of football rivalry between the two schools only.

On Derby Day all past records can be forgotten because no quarter will be given. Throughout the past forty years, the Battling Blue Hose have won 26, lost 11, and tied 3.

In the last three years the margin of points has not exceeded two points. The Blue Hose edged out the Indians 14-12 in the last minutes of the 1952 Thanksgiving game.

Down at Newberry on Turkey Day in 1953, the Indians tied the PC'uns 7-7. Last year Harry Hamilton and George Blue led the Hose to a 14-12 victory over the Indians.

Behind the Blues

HOSE END SEASON

The Battlin' Blue Hose of Presbyterian College will draw the final curtain on the 1955 football season when they meet the Newberry Indians at Newberry Thursday afternoon at 2:30 P. M. Although the Hose record for this season has not been as impressive as the one of the '54 season, they have shown promise for the years to come.

Quite a number of new stars have been unveiled during this season. With a full year's experience the promising newcomers should offer considerable service to next year's team. Three very promising freshmen have added needed depth at the important quarterback position. Ron Isger has started more than one game this season and has shown plenty of promise as a passer and defensive ace. With a little improvement in speed Isger could be very valuable in the coming year.

The Hose team has not been short of halfbacks this season. With two returning lettermen from last year's team and the conversion of a fullback, the halfback position has been strong in both size and speed. Freshmen Tony Benson and Jerry Yoder will be around for at least three more seasons and this sounds encouraging for the Blue Hose.

Linemen who should offer considerable aid in the coming year are ends, Ted Leahy, Richard Alexander, and Don Segrest; tackles, Joe Negley, Jim Kline, and Jack Coppley; guards, Richard Shrigley, and Alvin Hampton; and centers, George Shrigley, and Marion Parrish.

COOK COMES THROUGH

Although quarterback Felder Cook was not expected to start for the Blue Hose this year, he not only started the season off as the regular quarterback but has come through in fine fashion for the P College team also. Cook has been a capable field general for the Hose this season as well as an excellent ball handler.

Cook's booming kicks have soared over the heads of opposing safety men quite a few times this year. He was not expected to be able to carry on the PC aerial attack that has been such an asset for the past few seasons. Although the Blue Hose have not relied on passing as much this year as in the past, Cook has had a better than 50% pass completion average for this year.

During a number of games Cook has shown quite an ability for carrying the pigskin. This definitely shows his versatility; as a T quarterback has very few opportunities to run the ball. All in all he has shown that the Blue Hose will not have the quarterback problem next year that they had at the beginning of this season.

Halfback Jim Ollis scored two touchdowns and converted five straight to lead Appalachian to a stunning 35-6 football victory against Presbyterian last Saturday.

Appalachian scored with the game only three minutes old, left end Johnny Matthews racing 40 yards with an intercepted pass.

Ollis ran sensationally down the sideline 64 yards to score with a punt return early in the second stanza. A few minutes later Appalachian end Bob Ward pulled in a high fourth down pass from halfback Aubrey Elam in the end zone.

Ollis scored with six minutes left in the game when he took a 24 yard pass in the end zone, thrown by quarterback Charles Taylor. Just before this, Appalachian guard Hilliard Clark recovered a Presbyterian fumble on the PC six, halfback Bill Stanley driving over from three yards out for the touchdown three plays later.

Presbyterian marched 70 yards for its tally, halfback Tony Benson going the final 18.

Appalachian	7	14	0	14	—53
Presbyterian	0	0	6	0	— 6

Appalachian scoring: Touchdowns—Ollis 2 (64, punt return; 24, pass from Taylor); Matthews (40, pass interception return); Ward (23, pass from Elam); Stanley (3, run). Converstions—Ollis 5.

PC Campaign At Halfway Mark

Contributions to Presbyterian College's Diamond Jubilee Development Program have mounted to $105,564 in the home area campaign.

This total was registered at the second report meeting held in the PC dining hall Tuesday night. It represents just under one-half of the goal of $250,000 set for Laurens and Newberry counties as the home solicitations drive passes its mid-point. Two other report meetings are scheduled before the Region One campaign closes on December 12.

The figure of $105,564 represents a gain of $20,538 over the past week, with $10,269 raised and this total matched by a simi-

COMMIES GRAB MOON

Lt. McQueen, '54 Alumnus, Held By Red Police in Berlin

Lt. "Moon" McQueen, '54, former prominent student leader at Presbyterian College, was involved in a reported "harrowing" experience with the Russians this week while serving as escort to two American congressmen in the East German zone in Berlin.

The party was held at pistol point at the Russian War Memorial Center in Treptow. The German police contended the visitors had violated the laws of the Communist state by using an automobile equipped with a two-way radio, according to a story last Monday by the Associated Press.

While the group strolled across the grounds of the Red Army cemetery, which attracts foreign visitors daily, an East German policeman looked into the parked vehicle and noted the radio telephone. When the party returned, the policeman demanded the car keys. That is when the whole incident broke loose.

McQueen took the keys from the driver of the car and refused to turn them over to the Red who then pulled his pistol and cocked it. At this time "Moon" decided it the best thing to turn over the keys. He then tried to use the radio to notify his headquarters of the incident and a second policeman brandished his cocked pistol.

McQueen then decided to let well enough alone and wait for an interpreter, who arrived on the scene two and a half hours later. The group was released soon afterwards.

U. S. officials submitted a verbal protest with the East German government as the situation challenged some of the Allied occupation rights in the four-power city of Berlin.

The lieutenant was a member of the Blue Key National Honor Fraternity, football, basketball, and track teams while at PC.

Torre and Woodward To Perform for Dances

The popular dance orchestra of Woody Woodward will serenade the holiday dancers next Friday night, Dec. 9, from 9:00 P.M. until 1:00 A.M. at the Clinton Armory. The dance will really get underway after the basketball game between Presbyterian and Pheiffer College here in Clinton.

Saturday evening will surround the highlight of the week-end, which presents the 15-piece group of Tony Torre's Columbians at the formal Chrismtas Ball. This is Torre's second appearance at Presbyterian College, which shows the popularity this band enjoys among the PC students. The dress for this dance will be formal, PC style.

The Christmas dances are sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council. The colorful Yuletide decorations will be provided by the members of the IFC.

Tickets purchased for both evenings will be $3.50. If tickets are purchased separately, the price will be $2.00 per night. These tickets for non-fraternity men may be purchased from any member of the IFC.

Promoted to cadet major is Chris Patte, who steps up from executive officer to battalion commander. Edward L. Hay was promoted to cadet captain, replacing Patte. Richard A. Oliver became Band Company commander with the rank of cadet first lieutenant. Frank C. Young, Jr., advanced to cadet first lieutenant, with duty assignment of S-2.

Cadet 1st Lt. Thomas E. Turner, III, was changed from Band Company commander to Battalion S-1, replacing Hay. Cadet 1st Lt. James R. Lord was relieved from duty as S-2, but will continue as S-3. Victor S. Vierra assumed a new position as assistant platoon leader, with rank of cadet second lieutenant.

Cadet 2nd Lt. Richard H. Macatee was changed from assistant platoon leader in Company A to executive officer of Band Company.

Alpha Sigs, Pi Kapps Are Campus Scholars

Alpha Sigma Phi social fraternity has again copped top scholarship honors for the school year 1954-55 as announced by Ed Campbell, Registrar, this week.

Second place honors went to the brothers and pledges of Pi Kappa Phi, which represents a rise from fourth place last year. Theta Chi fraternity took third place honors, and the next three positions are occupied by Pi Kappa Alpha, Kappa Alpha, and Sigma Nu.

The overall average for fraternity men was 1.35 in comparison with the non-frat average of 1.09. The total student average was 1.22.

There were 201 fraternity men enrolled for the year and 266 represented the non-frat total, compiling a total of 467 students.

Sock Polls Men on Honor; Mixed Reaction is Result

By NOBLE COLLINS

As Shakespeare once said, "Do you think the Honor System here is working or not to be, that is the question", and indeed that was the question this week to many students all over the campus.

In general, however, students were certain that the Honor System was working very effectively and they felt that PC was becoming a better school because of it.

It must be admitted that this question sounded a bit fishy, but just for the halibut, this writer decided to give it a try.

The first student who was approached turned out to be a serious young man who suggested that the clause about giving students a second chance should be eliminated. He seemed to think that this actually invited students to cheat at least once "on the house". Perhaps he was right.

Another confessed that he certainly was doing less cheating as a result of the Honor Code. And a third stated that in his opinion the System would work a lot better if the faculty took it more seriously.

Only one person answered in the negative, and he explained that he was bitter about the way the trials for various breaches were being held.

He seemed to feel that partiality was being shown somewhere along the line.

Drill Competition Set For Next Wednesday

Watch Holiday Driving Habits

President Eisenhower has announced a nationwide safe driving campaign which will culminate in S-D Day on Dec. 1. In this area of the country many drivers and passengers are killed needlessly by someone who is unaware of his bad driving habits.

Last year traffic accidents killed 36,000 Americans—7,800 of whom were of college age. Many of these fatal accidents occurred during Christmas holidays when poor driving conditions combine with peak use of automobiles by college students, according to the Lumbermens Mutual Casualty Company of Chicago.

National accident figures show that auto accidents are of the non-collision type and that the vehicles in these accidents either overturn or run off the roadway. Figures also show that in auto accidents that one person is killed every 14 minutes and one person is injured every 23 seconds.

Many drivers of college age consider themselves to have excellent physical equipment, good co-ordination, fast reactions, and sharp eyesight. These suppositions are true. But, because of careless driving habits and faulty atttiudes, students have caused a large percentage of major highway disasters.

The Blue Stocking, as the voice of the Student Body, urges each operator of a motor vehicle to re-consider his habits concerning common horse sense and courtesy, taking into account the highway conditions while driving in order to lower the usual high accident toll of the holiday season which will be upon us soon.

We are urged by the safety council to consider the life or death question while we endanger others on the road by excessive speed, drunken driving, and other senseless indulgences which cause the need for the great number of junk yards and filled cemeteries in our society.

Keep the following question in mind when operating an auto: Are you going to die a needless death over the holidays?

SPECIAL TO THE EDITOR:

West of Zanzibar (CP). Dear Guzzle. In order to give ter reports from Buana Buana Land, I have decided to much more closely with the natives. In order to do this ly, I have enrolled as a special student at a small dess college in the rich agricultural section of South Slobovia College, as it is called, has an enrollment of about 500 nativ ly young men. Most of the femmes in the jungle here st and cook, or have rich uncles who send them to far away sch Sinfrop, Reverse, or Agnes Shot. Anywho, I am now offic rolled as a student (?)

My first day was very uneventful . . . I met the presider school, an intellect who sells hot hi fi records on the side. tally, I think he must be of Scottish ancestry or maybe Gen he rolls his rrrrr's. Very nice though, he offered me a real on a new record of earthquakes and heartbeats. In order an impression, I just had to buy the record . . . I enclose th on my account.

Next he introduced me to the registrar or office boy o thing—very jolly little fellow by name of Ted Gamble. He be too important because he shares his office with someone executive in the BSU movement. Gamble filled out all m told me I was wise to have chosen this college, and took me the Dean of Students, Dandy Henderson.

Mr. Henderson, too, was a very pleasant individual to u dithough at times he is hard to understand. He sprinkles h sations with such little phrases as . . . "Coals to Newcastle that's right, and Umm Hmmm."

While I was in his office he tried to sell me a ticket to Henderson-Stump football game. I understand there is a between their numerous offspring. I bought two tickets fr I enclose my charge account.

Next I met the Dean of Instruction at the school. Jolly Grathbelling. I tried to squeeze in a few words while he to me but every time he wasn't talking, he was laughing o about Margret and the grandchildren. He must be quite a man. As I left, he slapped me on the back and left me with tle understatement, 'College Is Hard'.

Why Reports on Social Life

C. DRAYTON COOPER III

Many folks consider Presbyterian College to be a dead place, devoid of any social life. They just don't know; Yorick Why, prominent member of the leading social set in and around Clinton-on-the-Creek (Duncan's, that is) will let all you readers in on a little affair held recently at the beautifully appointed and spacious club house at Lake Thomasina Country Club.

The party was being held by the Bacchanalian Literary Society and the Kegabeerian Senior Order, both of which have chapters at Presbyterian College. The br-ball was scheduled to get underway at half past the hour of seven, but there were several present before the appointed hour.

These early comers were those men of distinction, gadabouts and first-nighters Messrs. Charl Joyneur, late of the Random House Publishing Company, B. Linton Baldwin, wealthy planter from the Broad River section, and James van Newburgh, of the Druid Hills Newburghs. We find these men standing near the fireplace sipping slowly on their favorite beverage, Tom, Dick, and Harry.

As the evening progressed, there were others of the party set arriving almost every moment. The landing strip behind the clubhouse had been reserved for the use of the members who might fly in. Presently a plane was spotted circling overhead, and in a few moments, Chan McCaskill, complete with bagpipes and kilt, had settled his new Beechcraft Super 18 on to the runway.

The Smiling Scot crawled from the cockpit of his Beech, lifted his goggles, threw off his scarf, and greeted the mass of revelers. "It was a smooth flight, encountered very little turbulence along the way. Glad I could work this jaunt into my tight schedule."

After the arrival by air of a few more of the invited guests the throng retired to the club house for the night's activities.

On the agenda for entertainment was an organ recital by "The Kitten of the Keyboard", Ray "Tiger" Lord. Ray was most noted for best book on music theory, "How To Attain tivity With A Pipe Organ." The tome had sold more than a million copies, mostly club accompanists.

The program called next for a round club's special, The Thomasina Twist. This drink is made by mixing two gallons of with three barrels of vodka. Then add fi of Jack Daniels No. 7, garnished with Creme de Menthe (about six quarts).

When the smoke has cleared, don asbest and proceed to stir in slowly twelve liters alcohol. Some prefer wood alcohol, but t little hard on the eyes. As soon as the has settled, quickly throw in a bit of Pres similar anti-freeze, to protect against girls at the party.

A reminder to anyone who desires to fine old traditional drink: be sure to conta local fire department, notify the Civil D coordinator, and call out the National Gu

The next affair was a dramatic readi sented by the Readers of the Kalosophian Included in the foursome were Sir Cedric John Barrymore Williams, Charles Laughto ter, and Basil Rathbone Cooper. The quart sented a lively little thing called, "Dea in Hell". It was greeted with a burst of ap from the intellectuals.

Well, the party began to get rough abou because the barkeep, King Martinsky, passing around his latest creation. It was simply, "King Kong", and was made of a Sterno, three quarts of Griffin Ace abso carefully strained through a loaf of whole bread, and two barrels of vanilaa extract. tinski added a dash of Hadacol and Oil of wood for flavor.

Like I said, the party got rough, so all th Clubbers had to leave. They were in t you know.

Basketeers Make Debut

Beat Centre College By Decisive Score

By JOEL PATRICK

The Presbyterian College basteers made their 1955-56 hardwood debut in Richmond, Ind., on Thanksgiving Day and took Centre College (Ky.) quintet by a decisive 91-74 score. The Blue Hose were paced by Bruce and Dave Thompson with 31 and 0 points respectively.

The following night the Hosemen ran into a tough outfit from Southeastern of Oklahoma and had to call upon a full court press to get a 72-70 win. Bruce Thompson with 20, Dave Thompson with nineteen, and Bill Toole with sixteen were high point men.

This win put the PC'uns into the finals with McNeese of Louisiana on Saturday night, Dec. 22. In this game, Coach Russ Murphy's charges held a comfortable lead during the first three quarters but the Louisianans put a pressing defense into use and it worked well enough for them to eke out a 81-59 victory.

Driving Dave Thompson poured nineteen points through the hoops during the championship game and was chosen on the all-tournament team.

The Blue Hose travel to Charleston this weekend where they will meet the College of Charleston Maroons on Friday night and will play The Citadel Bulldogs the following night.

Webb Selected All-State Back

Ken Webb, P. C.'s pile-driving fullback, paced the Blue Hose on offense with his terrific line plunges this past season. Webb consistently racked up yard after yard for a total of 828 yards rushing in only 9 games.

The big 200 pound fullback from Decatur, Ga., averaged 17 carries per game in sharing the brunt of the P.C. rushing attack. In 155 carries he was stopped behind the line of scrimmage only twice for only 3 yards. His 828 yards gave him a 92-yards average per game and an average of 5.3 per carry.

For this tremendous individual performance, he was selected as the state's leading fullback on the All-State team.

Adding this year's total yards to his freshman output of 441 yards, Webb's two-year total reaches 1,269 yards and pits him to become P.C.'s greatest running back in history.

Webb had his biggest night against the Wofford Terriers by gaining 162 yards in 25 carries. He passed the 100-yards-gained mark in three games this past season.

'Blue Stockings' Tab of Early Presbyterians

By LAWRENCE YOUNG

Originating back in Scotland, the athletic teams' names of Presbyterian College received their names of "The Blue Stockings." Back in the days of our forefathers in Scotland and England, the name of Blue Stockings was given to that strict and straight-laced group who called themselves Presbyterians.

While other inhabitants of the the community wore expensive stockings of silk and other materials, this group called Presbyterians wore stockings made of homespun which were usually dyed blue.

Even the representatives to parliament wore their blue hose into the parliamentary chambers. Here they were laughed at and derided, but these were the men who fought for their freedom and right, and for the separation of church and state.

In a poll taken by the "Blue Stocking" staff in chapel Monday, Nov. 4, 1947, 59 per cent of the student body favored the name of the "Fighting Parsons" for Presbyterian College's athletic teams.

In the balloting, the "Blue Deacons" lost by a narrow margin. Next in line was the "Fighting Deacons", Fourth in the balloting was the "Blue Devils".

On Nov. 11, 1947, the attempt to officially change the name of the athletic teams from the Blue Stockings to the "Fighting Parsons" failed by a narrow margin. Many other names have been suggested, but none have fitted as well as our present name of the "Blue Stockings." During the last few years through publicity and usage, the football and basketball teams have been called the "Blue Hose". However, the official name of all the athletic teams is "The Blue Stockings."

Newberry Noses Blue Hose, 20-18, Thanksgiving Day

The Newberry Indians edged the Presbyterian Blue Hose Thursday in the annual Bronze Derby clash 20-18. The game was played before a capacity crowd and the event climaxed both team's regular season play.

Newberry scored first by moving approximately 70 yards. The drive was climaxed on a pitchout pass play from quarterback Danny Brabham to halfback Hyler Dufford who passed to end Ed Blanko for the score. The extra point was good.

The Blue Hose scored on a 55 yard drive with halfbacks Tony Benson plunging over for the score. The kick was wide. The Indians scored again in the second quarter and led at the half time 14-6.

The Hosemen bounced back in the third period with an off tackle play by Ken Webb which netted 65 yards and a score. It was the most brilliant run of the afternoon. Gene Butler scored from 25 yards out on a fine run that made the score 18-4 in favor of the Blue Hose.

Early in the fourth period Newberry went ahead as Paul Davis ran over for the score. The final score was 20-18.

Behind the Blues

-:- -:- -:- By Tommy Richards

HOSE END SEASON

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose ended a not too successful football season on Thanksgiving afternoon by going down in defeat before a strong Newberry eleven. Although the Hose record was not too hefty on the win side of the column, the Battlin' Blues played a fine brand of ball all season.

It seems that the PC team was plagued with tough breaks all year. The Hose had their share of the breaks this season, but they were all bad. Then there is the argument that a team makes its own breaks. This holds true to a certain extent, but only so far.

I'm not trying to make excuses for the poor season, but with just a few good breaks the Hose could have registered one of their best seasons in quite a few years. The season of 1955 is over and now all eyes are being focused on the '56 season.

With only two players being lost by graduation, the Hose should be in fine shape if all the underclassmen return. This year's play revealed quite a few promising freshmen and transfer students. The gap at quarterback has been filled and that will no longer be a problem. If all turns out as expected the Hose should compile a record worth boasting about in the 1956 season.

ROUNDBALL NEWS

The Hose basketball team started off with a bang this year. They were undefeated in pre-season games and reached the finals of a Thanksgiving holiday tournament in Richmond, Ind.

The Hose won two games to reach the finals before being defeated by McNeese State of Louisiana in a close contest. Dave and Bruce Thompson have carried the brunt of the scoring attack so far this season. Dave will be out to regain his position on the All-State team of 1954. The Hose will miss the services of All-Stater Ron Ragan this year, but things look bright for the Blue Hose basketeers.

WEBB MAKES ALL-STATE

Sophomore fullback Ken Webb of Decatur, Ga., was named to the South Carolina All-State team as announced last week. Webb has turned in some brilliant performances on the gridiron this season.

He was the leading ground-gainer for the Hose this season with a total of 828 yards in nine games. Webb was also a fine defensive halfback. His speed and size make him a deadly tackler and a more than adequate pass defender.

Webb, with two year's of eligibility remaining, should stand out as one of PC's greatest stars of all time. He has compiled a two-year total of 1,269 yards rushing.

Frank Young Attends PC To Prepare Medical Career

By JOHN KNOX

Frank Coleman Young, Jr., represents the senior class as this week's celebrity.

Following in his father's footsteps, who was the 1912 vice-president of the senior class and second honor graduate, Frank also maintains the office of senior class vice-president and is on his way to an honor graduate of the college.

Frank was born and reared near the flourishing city of Clinton where he graduated from high school as valedictorian.

Young

His mental capacity is tested with his double major in chemistry and mathematics, and double minor in biology and Bible. He is a consecutive Dean's List member.

Senior Young is a brother of Pi Kappa Phi social fraternity where he has held the position of Archon, secretary, treasurer, and historian. Frank was selected as a Pi Kappa Phi Scholar by the national scholarship committee.

He is a member of the battalion staff where he is S-2 and Public Information Officer. He holds the rank of first lieutenant and is a member of Scabbard and Blade National Military Fraternity. He is also a corporal in Company L of the active reserves in Clinton.

Frank was tapped for the Blue Key Honor Fraternity last year. He serves the Sock as managing editor and is fraternity editor of the PaC-SaC.

He will go directly to medical school upon graduation and afterwards hopes to serve his army tenure in the Medical Corps.

Young hastens to the Broadway Theatre when Stewart Granger or Grace Kelly appears, and he relaxes to the music of Mitch Miller.

An ardent baseball fan, he says that he will stick with Stan Musial as the greatest.

CAPTAIN KID STUFF

(OR . . . JOHN'S MISTAKE)

John was growing up. (He shaved. He drove a car. He wanted to impress girls.)
But John was impatient. He wanted to be more grown-up. He wanted a grown-up reputation.
In short, he wanted to make a name for himself.
That's natural. Most young men his age feel the same way.
But John made a mistake. He expressed his impatience and his ambition behind the wheel of a car.

He became another "highway cowboy."
He purposely drove fast . . . didn't use chains on snow or ice . . . skidded . . . took chances . . . raced on crowded streets.
He thought this would make him seem more grown-up. But the gang could see through his antics. They gave him a name all right—"Captain Kid Stuff."
They were smart enough to know that Careless Driving is Kid Stuff.

THE SIX RULES OF WINTER DRIVING

1. ACCEPT YOUR RESPONSIBILITY to do all in your power to drive without accident. Don't blame the weatherman for an accident.
2. GET THE "FEEL" OF THE ROAD. Try brakes occasionally while driving slowly and away from traffic. Find out just how slippery the road is and adjust your speed to road and weather conditions.
3. KEEP THE WINDSHIELD CLEAR of snow, ice, fog and frost. Be sure headlights and defrosters are in top condition and windshield wipers don't streak.
4. USE TIRE CHAINS AND GOOD TIRES. Don't rely on worn smooth tires. Use tire chains on snow and ice. They cut stopping distances about half, give 4 to 7 times more starting and climbing traction ability.

But even with the help of chains, slower than normal speeds are a "must" on snow and ice.

5. PUMP YOUR BRAKES to slow down or stop. Jamming them on can lock the wheels and throw you into a dangerous skid. A little skidding can carry you a long way.
6. FOLLOW AT A SAFE DISTANCE. Keep well back of the vehicle ahead—give yourself room to stop. Remember, without tire chains, it takes 3 to 12 times as far to stop on snow and ice as on dry concrete.

Student Drive Gets Underway

Campus Expected to Give $28,000 for Student Building

The Student Development Program in connection with the Presbyterian College Diamond Jubilee was gotten underway last Wednesday night at an organizational meeting held in the chapel. Committee Chairman Tommy Turner distributed the pledge cards to be given to each student on the Presbyterian College campus.

The students will signify on the cards the amount they wish to contribute on a semester basis to the proposed Student Union Building. A total contribution of thirty dollars will be asked as an avergae gift, with the payment spread out over six semesters.

A total of $28,000 is being expected from the Student Body. The gift will be commemorated by a plaque in the main lounge of the building, if the Student Body so desires.

A report on the progress of the campaign will be presented on Friday, Jan. 13, in chapel.

The campaign is set up to work through the classes, with each class being divided up into a major, two captains, and subordinate lieutenants. The class with the highest percentage of contributions will receive a silver cup, and each organization attaining its goal will receive a citation signed by the president of the college.

Each student may credit the contribution he signifies on his pledge card to any or all of the campus organizations to which he belongs.

figure it's worth a try and some kat out there named Mr. M. U. Nybags might haul off and give a cool million. Sounds impossible, but it might happen. Howsoever, if we goof off and don't back the affair they'll figure we don't give a flip and won't give a cent.

In other words, let's get out and give it that ol' PC Spirit. It won't hurt too bad to chip in a little here and there, in fact I might even let the Purple Passion Wagon sit still one night and give the money I would have spent on gasoline to a new building.

And, oh yes, Ray Lord, Charlie won't go broke if you give up one cool one for the program.

Well, that's it. I'll be back next week with some more of the usual. Bye.

Yorick O. Speaks For Gift Program

Well, Fellers and Girls, this, in case you haven't already noticed, is a sort of special edition of the Sock. We're kinda kicking off the big fund-raising campaign for the New Year.

Now, while I could talk a lot about those frantic parties, cool yules hot dates, and other such trivia that went on during the hiatus we had, I'll wait 'til next week for that. This week, instead, I want to inject just a sentence or so about the big campaign.

COOPER

Now there's not a cotton-pickin' one of us here that hasn't griped and raised all sorts of sand about the poor condition of P College's plant is in, and there's not a one of us who hasn't had some plan to propose that would raise all sorts of money.

Well, as you know there can't be 515 successful plans, so these real smart fellows who are sorta what you might say experienced in this kind of thing have put their heads togethor (that was a funny-looking sight, but we'll save that for another issue) and have come up with ONE ripsnorter of an idea.

It is going to be up to us, students at PC, to see that our part of the deal is carried out. People out there in South Carolina and Georgia, specially those tight-wads down in Glutout, are going to be watching us to see just how we take this program as members of the college community and how we support it.

If we do a good job, they'll

Georgia Synod Starts PC Development Drive

• Young and Fifield Direct

Presbyterian College's Diamond Jubilee Development Program moves into the Atlanta area in January and February after achieving more than $150,000 in the opening campaign within the home area of Laurens and Newberry counties.

Local friends in the home area of Laurens and Newberry counties, meanwhile, have sent the development program off to an impressive start by subscribing $153,890 in the opening campaign last month. They averaged $153 per donor.

Four prominent Atlanta Presbyterians will head the leadership in this area. Serving as co-chairmen for the Synod of Georgia are H. Lane Young, retired president of Citizen and Southern National Bank and the Rev. Harry Fifield, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. The co-chairmen for the Atlanta Region are L. H. Parris, retired vice-president of Citizen and Southern, and the Rev. Arthur Van Gibson, pastor of Morningside Presbyterian Church.

The Atlanta campaign is expected to be the largest single drive in the program which seeks $750,000 for Presbyterian College from its two controlling Synods of Georgia and South Carolina during the first year.

The four top leaders already have started forming their organization, and a series of meetings for voluntary workers is scheduled throughout January. Active solicitations among the churches of Atlanta and vicinity will start early in February. Twelve counties are included in this area, designated as Region 15: Fulton, DeKalb, Cobb, Gwinnett, Walton, Rockdale, Newton, Henry, Spalding, Clayton Douglas, and Fayette.

President Marshall W. Brown has expressed his deep appreciation for the fine response indicative of the confidence of the local people and for the enthusiasm of the Atlanta leaders as they plan the next phase of the development program.

The drive, directed by Marts & Lundy, is aimed to raise $2,-000,000 for the school. A new chapel-auditorium and a student center are the first goals sought.

PC — "College of Choice"

Presbyterian College has begun on the greatest campaign of its 75-year history to the tune of a $150,000 start in the local areas of Clinton, Laurens, Newberry, Mountville, and Whitmire, and we on campus will soon be asked to pledge our funds to a Student Program which will really tell the people who have given their money and time relentlessly our appreciative spirit.

The town of Clinton, our home town, raised $53,301 from 301 persons which presents an incredible amount for such a small town. We are deeply grateful to them for their interest.

Now it is our turn to show the same interest and enthusiasm which made their campaign for us so successful, so that our interest may be an example for future campaigns soon to be held in the various sections of South Carolina and Georgia.

This is not simply a campaign in which our money will be held and through the years be spent for something which is invisible. First of all, it will show our spirit of giving for the improvement of the campus, for higher learning, and for every principle of advancement which has been in the minds of those progressive men who have passed through these halls with hope of a better Presbyterian College.

It will also present to those who are future students of PC more adequate facilities with which to achieve an education. We could list many more advantages of self-satisfcation and the pleasure of giving to a very immediate and worthy cause which has come to light this week.

Support our Student Campaign with your heart and with your gifts and feel the pride in future years to know that you gave to make Presbyterian "the college of choice" of the entire Southeast.

PC Mascot Dies; Given Last Rites

"Crutchie," campus mascot, ied Saturday morning as the re- ult of injuries sustained in a raffic accident. She was found y Messrs. Richard Oliver and rank Young in front of the li- rary in the middle of South Broad Street at 10:05 A. M.

She breathed her last before anything could be done. She apparently died of a broken neck and internal hemorrhages, caused by being struck by a moving vehicle.

"Crutch" was buried soon hereafter behind Laurens dormitory in the Presbyterian College mascot graveyard, with C. Drayton Cooper, III, officiating. The firm of Oliver, Cooper, Keller, and Young handled the funeral.

The driver of the car which struck her could not be identified.

Pi Kappa Alpha Selects 1956 Leaders

The brothers of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity met last Tuesday and elected officers for the coming semester and for the first semester of next year.

Tap Tobias, a junior from Sumter, took the president's gavel from retiring Lynwood Gaskin, a senior from Orangeburg. The vice-president's position was filled by Ray Lord, and Blair Baldwin was elected to be secretary. The new treasurer is Don Rickett. Bob Helm is the new sergeant-at-arms.

PC Student Body Gives $1,600 On Two Class Reports Thursday

By CHARLES DUKES

A total of over $1,600 has already been amassed from the Student Body, according to the first report meeting yesterday from the Student Participation Committee of the Presbyterian College Diamond Jubilee Development Program. The freshman and junior classes were the only classes making a report.

The remaining two classes that have not reported will do so Monday, and another total report from all classes will be taken next Wednesday night.

Tommy Turner, chairman of the Student Committee, regarded the report last Thursday night as excellent, considering the program has just begun, and praised the work of the majors of the two classes ready with a report.

The majors, who direct the entire campaign of their respective classes, are: freshman, Jim Shakespeare; sophomore, Guy Haddix; junior, Tommy Reeves; and senior, John McLean. Each major is assisted by captains, appointed by him from his class.

The captains are: freshman, Tony Benson, Al McKie, Roger Sumner, Joel Easterling, Don Segrest, and Ken Caswell; sophomore, Jimmy Newsome, Guice Potter, and Melvin Little; junior, Jim Hancock, A. C. Reed, and Charles Dukes; senior, Ed Walpole and Francis Mayes.

The Planning Committee, under the chairmanship of Turner and working with the Development office, consists of the following: Ramon Veal, secretary; John Knox, activities; Charles Joyner, publicity; Blair Baldwin, and A. C. Reed. This group coordinates the work of the various classes.

This year's campaign will terminate at the end of the first semester.

Ford Foundation Gives PC Grant

Presbyterian College will receive approximately $76,000 as a grant from the Ford Foundation in connection with a half-billion dollar gift to colleges and hospitals throughout the nation last month.

PC's gift amounts to a little more than one-tenth of one per cent of the total grant, and almost three per cent of the South Carolina grant.

This gift consisted of 210 million dollars to 615 regionally accredited, privately supported colleges and universities to help raise teachers salaries. The Foundation actually gave away half a billion dollars, but 290 million went to privately supported hospitals and medical schools.

The money will be given to the school in the form of an endowment. The only restriction is that the interest on the gift must be used for the first 10 years to raise teachers' salaries.

After this 10-year period, each school may use both the principal and interest without restriction.

Altogether, the Foundation gave $260,000,000 to the 615 private, regionally accredited four-year colleges and universities. Prseident Marshall W. Brown summed up his feelings in these words:

"Like every other college administrator in the United States, I am pleased indeed. Not only will the specified amount be of great assistance, but I feel these grants will stimulate interest among potential donors, especially industrialists looking for ways of making charitable eleemosynary contributions."

SFC Steven Gibert Is Military Assistant

SFC Steven Clarke Gibert, of the Adjutant General's Corps, is the new assistant in the military department's administrative office. He is slated to replace CWO James C. Marshall, Jr., who will leave this summer.

Sergeant Gibert came to PC from Third Army Headquarters at Ft. McPherson, Ga., where he was an administrative NCO. He has been in the army for twelve years, and says he's making it a career.

He is married and is the father of three children. He resides at 106 E. Walnut Street in Clinton.

Atlanta Region Seeks $300,000 Goal

A goal of $300,000 has been established for the Atlanta region toward Presbyterian College's Diamond Jubilee Development program.

The action came at a recent meeting of the campaign steering committee which was attended by 32 leaders from the 12 counties included in the Atlanta region. They represented areas covering 71 Presbyterian churches.

The Atlanta region, in aiming for $300,000, thus throws its full support behind the development program which seeks $750,000 for Presbyterian College from its two controlling Synods of Georgia and South Carolina during the first year.

Main addresses of the steering committee meeting were made by regional co-chairman L. H Parris, retired vice-president of the Citizens and Southern National Bank of Atlanta, and the Rev. Arthur Vann Gibson, pastor of Atlanta's Morningside Presbyterian church. Gibson set the tone of the meeting with these words:

"There is coming from Presbyterian College a stream of blessing for our state and nation, and I think Georgia ought to give it full support. I know of no investment of our time and energy that will bring more dividents to the Kingdom of God."

ROTC Pictures . . .

Pictures of the ROTC battalion will be taken the afternoon of Thursday, Jan. 19, at 2:00 P. M., according to Ray Lord, editor of the PaC-SaC. The battalion will fall out at that time. This will count as a regular drill, with demerits being given for absences.

Pi Kappa Phi Frat Elects New Officers

Samuel G. McGregor, of Greenville, was elected Archon of Beta Chapter of Pi Kappa Phi at a recent meeting. He replaces Mack N. Ballard, Jr., of Charlotte.

Lawrence E. Young assumed the position of treasurer, replacing Frank C. Young, Jr., both of Clinton. Thomas J. Holbrook, Jr., of Anderson, was elected secretary, succeeding John B. Compton, Jr., of Marion. Melvin H. Little, Jr., of Atlanta, was reelected warden.

S. Franklin Sapp, II, of Dawson, Ga., was reelected historian, and Compton succeeded C. Drayton Cooper, III, of Sumter, as chaplain.

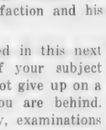
Study Above Mediocrity . . .

Many would think that this is a very poor time to begin harping on the values of scholarship. But, in keeping with the general attitude of the students, the editor would like to approach the subject in a student light this week before examinations.

Of course, during the semester study is necessary to keep passing averages in our respective courses of interest. Next week, these courses will be terminated with a sigh of relief for many, and we will begin to look back to the course and see exactly what profit we have gained from it.

This in turn will make us realize that we gained possibly little, because we failed to concentrate on our subjects with the definite end in view of acquiring knowledge. Rather, we have only tried to pass, or make a C, or even an A. But, have we strived for knowledge or the grade?



Many colleges and universities have tried the system of teaching with no grades given other than the examination at the end of the course, to see if the student has acquired the proper knowledge of the subject. There is no cramming. There is simply an acquired knowledge which will benefit the student's satisfaction and his professor's ego.

Much may be learned in this next week—real knowledge of your subject may be achieved. So, do not give up on a course, simply because you are behind. Try, and more than likely, examinations will be of great benefit.

This was primarily directed to the new students on campus because the "oldies" should know what we have to go through on exam week.

Y. O. Why Mourns

C. DRAYTON COOPER III

"Crutch" is dead, long live the mascot.

Presbyterian College's beloved little mascot, "Crutchie", passed away last Saturday morning. It was a black day for the Blue Hose as we gathered around her final resting place and payed our last respects to the lovable little hound who had made her home with us since last August.

At 10:05 Richard Oliver and Frank Young spotted her body sprawled in the broad expanse of Broad Street; thinking she was sick, they stopped their car to investigate. Just as they reached her, Crutchie gave up the ghost. The two outstanding journalists, with their noses for news and their flares for the sensational could not leave her in the street to become mutilated by the passing parade of motorists.

They picked up her little black and tan body, placed it in a shroud of a Sunshine Cleaners bag, and reverently brought her home. As the long black automobile bearing the remains drew up in front of the canteen, several loyal friends of the deceased joined in the cortege, and escorted the body to the burial grounds.

There the true-blue little mascot was laid to rest at the foot of her predecessor, "Psycho", the Canine King. It was a simple ceremony with only a few close friends present. At first it had been hoped that a large public funeral could be held, but it was later found that the rope to the bell had been severed so there was no way to call the friends, and there was also no way to toll the knell of "Crutchie."

But "Crutchie" wouldn't have wanted a pretentious funeral, anyway. She was the friendly, lovable type that never went in much for a show. Yes, we, the living, can always remember her as she playfully chewed up shoes when just a pup, or as she waited patiently for her turn in the chow line.

We will always be able to recall the light in her eyes as she watched the Blue Hose trot on to the football field; many times I wonder if she didn't believe herself just one of the boys. Yes, these, and many more, are the memories we have of "Crutchie", the campus mascot.

As soon as the news of her death hit the wires, telegrams of sympathy began flooding in from others around the country who knew what a dear little doggie she had been. We don't have the space to reprint them all, but here are just a few:

The Glutout Daily Times, Glutout, Ga.; "We have learned with regret of the demise of "Crutch". Extend our sympathies to all, especially to her close friends and family."

The Puppy Dog, Wooford College newspaper: "Another of us has gone to the Land of Big Bones, it is a sad occasion for all canines."

The Clinton Chronicle, Clinton, S. C.: "Sorry to hear about "Crutchie"; suggest a widespread campaign to find the one who committed the dastardly deed."

H. O. Myth, Atlanta Newspapers, Inc.: "Was heart-broken to read on AP that "Crutch" had croaked. I was Psycho's best friend, I remember the bitter shock it was to me when he left us; I know what you must be experiencing."

These are but a few of the many wires we received in the Blue Sock office. We reprint them here to emphasize the fact that she was a good doggie as doggies go.

The tears are clouding my eyes now, I must finish this last tribute to her, and then go about my daily tasks as if nothing had happened. No, we must not dwell upon the dead, but turn our thoughts to the living. Goodbye, "Crutchie", you shall be missed.

Notice . . .

The Blue Stocking special edition was printed last week simply as the name indicated—special. The paper is not normally published immediately before or after holidays or during examinations, according to a long established policy.

Brown College, West of

Dear Guzzle,

I hope you will pardon the lateness of my report, just recovered from a hangover received at the Colle istration and Faculty New Year's Eve Party. As a m here at Brown, in the middle of the rich agricultura South Slobbovia, I was extended a special invitation t Well, that's not exactly right, I just went along with m . . . MMMmmm, that's not quite true either, I crawled a window while the festivities were going on. I had h party (as all good reporters do) from conversations ov way of secret microphone) at a faculty meeting.

The party was held at the home of a retired navi —as might be expected—this was seen in the beautiful h house. Bottles were all about. Some had ships in them was somebody who got the thing all mixed up and c up as a pink elephant . . . stupid thing to do. But, he of the party, and mixed very well with all guests, h quite figure out how he walked on the ceiling or swam bowl.

As a very genial host, he had prepared two differe . . . one was, and the other one wasn't. And believe me, t was WAS. Guzzle, boy, you would have liked that h such good eggnog since you, Lou Kemia Dave Stone, and and I mixed up a batch (back in '03) in a bathtub at Mc For a free copy of names of the faculty who had eggnog one they had (with or without) write the words: "Under ty" on a two penny postcard, and send to: BURP, Dining h College, South Slobbovia.

Now for some details on the party . . . After my ro entrance, I was taken for one of the boys by everybo after a few refreshments, even the pink elephant came talked a while. Nice chap, that elephant. After a whi mingling with the intellects that were gathered at the first the Dean of Students Dr. Lord ,who while trying me that he had abstained from the eggnog, defeated h pose (I smelled his breath). He was a quite nice fellow th an interesting background. Did you know that back had started at Brown College as a typist, and finally c way up to Dean? Now Dean Lord goes around checking crackers, 'artistic' pictures . . . very interesting occupa shall try to persuade hi mto let me make the rounds with day.

Also present in a rather large amount was another ali had been voted as "Biggest All-around in '55." Professor now head of the English Department. I could tell he wa lect too, for, when fumbling around trying to open a bott he immediately pried it up with his Phi Beta Kappa ke Cooper was outsized only by that darn pink elephant wh ting bothersome by this time.

Adding much to the spirit of things was the college or something. He came all dressed up in a dress blue uni and all. Although he had not graduated from The Academ had graduated from a small denominational-military co South, and as such, (being a typical Army officer) absta all strong drinks.

A rather amusing incident happened when that dam phant grabbed the Colonel's saber and started whipping the air while giving out with some rebel yells. At about in the party I became rather tired, and somebody turne lights anyway, so I left.

Well, I didn't exactly leave either . . . I was carried laid out in a birdbath in the garden where I woke up th in time to write this report. Until next week, hang by yo and write if you get word.

Hose and Fleet Play Thrilling Basket Game

The Presbyterian Blue Hose lost a hard fought game to the Flying Fleet of Erskine College here Saturday in Leroy Springs Gymnasium. Led by high scoring Ralph Moore, the Fleet topped the Hosemen 100 to 95 in a nip and tuck game that belonged to either team until the last minutes of the contest when the Fleet pulled it out of the fire.

Hosemen Dave and Bruce Thompson collected 28 points each and also played an excellent floor game.

Arnold Stone continued his fine work and continues to lead the team in field goal accuracy. Bill Sullivan, who lead the Hose in free throw accuracy with 16 for 18, also turned in a good floor performance. Bill Lipp seemed to find himself Saturday night and turned in his best performance of the season up to this point.

Ace playmaker and Captain Bill Toole rendered his usual fine game while Freshman Ken Caswell, who broke into the starting line up recently played well, and is proving valuable to the team.

The Flying Fleet's Moore missed very few shots while his teammates were almost as accurate. The Blue Hose were not able to find the range even though they totaled 95 points. Five Hosemen fouled out before the contest ended.

Coach Russ Murphy seemed to think that the Blue Hose should have taken the Fleet, but because of a long holiday lay up, the Hose were somewhat out of shape.

Moore was high scorer of the contest with 41 points. Erskine hit on 41 of 54 free throw attempts.

Hose Win Two On Tour So Far

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose, on their Florida basketball trip at present, have thus far compiled a very impressive record.

The Socks defeated Rollins College, in Winter Park, Fla., Wednesday night by a 97-86 score. In this game, Bruce Thompson picked up 30 points for the Hose.

Last night, the PC'uns soundly trounced Florida Southern College, of Lakeland, 87-64. The Hose's high scorer for the evening was Dave Thompson.

Tonight will be an off-night for the team; tomorrow night they journey to DeLand to play the Hatters at Stetson University.

'51 Hose Began High Scores

By LAWRENCE YOUNG

The Presbyterian College high flying Blue Hose hoopsters of 1951 ushered in the high scoring game of basketball by defeating the Wofford Terriers 102-100 and winning both the Little Four and the State Championship in the Little Four tourney at Spartanburg.

The colorful Presbyterians wound up intercollegiate play in a blaze of glory by scoring over 100 points in two consecutive nights. Many records were set during the season, some of which have been broken since by the Blue Hose or by some other team. Although some of these records have been broken, many fans rate the 1950-51 Blue Hose aggregation as the Best All-Around basketball team to ever step out on any court in South Carolina.

The Blue Hose of 1951 complied 2,123 points, surpassing the old mark by 500 points, to set a new South Carolina scoring record. They also set a new high average of 81.7 points per game, greater than any major college team and third nationally among the small colleges. Forward Dwight Groninger fired 41 points in one night against North Georgia college to rate as the state's top scorer individually for one game.

Among other records the Blue Hose was South Carolina's only team to go over the century mark in three grames, hitting 103 points on two occassions and 102 on the third. They also gathered in the scoring honors for the Little Four Tournament for a single game, 103 points; and for total tourney play with 205 points in two games.

Capping the season, the Blue Hose won the highest scoring game in the state, one in which 202 points were scored. This was the finale of the season when PC topped Wofford 102-100 and won the Little Four Tournament.

Al Morris Upsets Moylan In Contest

Allen Morris, Presbyterian College tennis star, defeated defending champ, Eddie Moylan, in the Dixie Tennis Tournament last week.Morris won the semi-final match to gain the finals 6-1, 6-4, 517, 1-6, 6-3.

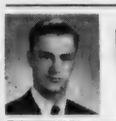
Al started off strong, taking the first two sets handily, but the clever veteran was not defeated and countered with an attack that won the next two sets. Moylan then gained a 3-1 advantage in the lastset before Morris caught fire and took five straight games and the match.

Morris said that his play in the final set was better than he had ever played before.

In the other semi-final match Armando Vieira, a Brazilian champion, upset second seeded Sidney Schwartz of New York 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Vieira defeated Al in a hard fought four-set match Sunday to become Dixie Tennis Tournament champion. Vieira downed the Hose star 6-3, 6-3, 6-8, 14-12.

Vieira started off fast but had to stave off a valiant rally by Morris. After the second set, Morris made it a close match, but Vieira's accuracy was the deciding factor.



Vieira and Morris were both bothered by chilly weather and a stiff breeze.

Charleston Team Loses to Blue Hose

Presbyterian's high flying Blue Hose basketeers dumped the College of Charleston Maroons last week by a thumping 89-52 score. Dave Thompson, riding high in national small college statistics, racked up 31 points to top all others for high scoring honors.

The game was a relatively slow one in comparison with others seen on the PC court. The Maroons were outclassed from the beginning, and afforded little competiton after the opening moments of the contest. The Hose also showed poorly in spots and, had their opponents been closer to the Sox's score, the Charlestonians would perhaps have proven a serious threat.

The tricky ball handling, and showmanship, of Bill Sullivan also sparked the game from a spectator's viewpoint. Bruce Thompson was hot on the backboards, and Bill Toole was hitting well from the outside.

MORRIS SHOWS STRENGTH

Presbyterian College tennis star and former Davis Cup team member, Allen Morris, made a strong bid for reappointment to the United States Cup team. Morris, playing in the Dixie Tennis tournament in Tampa, Fla., upset defending champion Eddie Moylan, one of the top five amateur stars in the United States, in a semi-finals match.

Morris, though down 3-1 in the final set, came back with a power game that Moylan could not seem to stop. In taking five straight games Morris played some of the finest tennis of his career. Coach Jim Leighton thinks this big win might be just what Morris needs to push him on to greater heights.

A popular sports writer in South Carolina seems to think that this might be the first big step in Morris's climb to the national championship. With one year remaining at Presbyterian College, Morris could catch fire and give some of the big stars a run for the coveted spot.

TEAM LOOKS STRONG

The Hose team seems to be getting set for what may go down in the record book as one of the best seasons ever. With Morris, Dick McAtee, Guice Potter, Scott Watson, and Gene Gee returning from last year's team the prospects look good. The return of John Brownlow and Harvey Jackson after a year ineligibility adds great strength to the Hose team. Freshman Him Shakespeare has been terrific in pre-season practice and has promise of great things to come.

TRACK TEAM ELECTS VASS

Bobby Vass, senior track star, was elected captain fo the cindermen for the 1956 season. Vass has been a fine competitor for the Blue Hose on the cinders for three seasons. Twice he has broken the state record for the broad jump and had his leap disqualified.

Once his jump was disqualified because of a technicality of the pit and the second time on a disputed scratch. Vass not only is a broad jumper, but he has also placed consistently in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes. He has also been a competent javelin thrower.

Congratulations to Vass on being elected captain of the team and let's hope htat he is successful in his final attempt at the record broad jump.

SHORT SHOTS

It seems that two former PC tennis stars have been facing some of the newer stars of the Hose in doubles matches lately. Good luck to English professor Bill Toole and Blue Hoseman of last year Jerry Hunt . . . Guice Potter is again at his natural stand on the tennis courts, after an absence because of an appendectomy . . . It won't be long before the Hose pitchers and catchers began their baseball workouts. Best of luck to this year's batteries . . . Bill Sullivan has become quite the crowd pleaser on the hardwood. This is not belittling his value to the team, for he is a fine playmaker and an excellent charity tosser. Sullivan is becoming quite a popular character in the Leroy Springs Gymnasium not only because of his antics but because of his fine competitive play.

Drayton Cooper Signs "30" to His PC Career

By JOHN KNOX

Our Senior of the Week is Drayton Cooper, who closes a long career at PC week after next. This past Sunday Cooper sang his last concert with the Glee Club, and before long he'll write "30" to his last Y.O. Why column.

Drayton is from Sumter, and "mighty proud of it." He was an honor graduate of Edmunds High School in that city, where, among other things, he received the first Activities Award ever given by the school. The award was based on a collection of honor points amassed by participation in school and extracurricular activities.

He was also associate editor of his high school newspaper, along with being sports editor, columnist, and sundry other positions. Here he gained the background that has helped him in his Blue Stocking work.

Speaking of newspapers, Cooper is associate editor of the Blue Stocking, and writes the humor column, "The Further Adventures of Y.O. Why." Prior to this year, he had served on the Sock staff as news writer.

One of Drayton's main interests while attending PC has been the Robed Choir. For four and a half years he has sung as a member of the second bass section.

Last year he served as vice-president; during his entire career with the choir he has been a reader, being Head Reader last year also. A member of the Double Quartet since 1952, Cooper joined the ranks of octets last year, and again this year.

While on the subject of music, which is very important in his life, Drayton chooses the music of Glenn Miller as his favorite in the popular field. He has collected Miller records for nearly ten years, and has a collection that is termed as "very valuable" by those who know. But his real choice of a musical favorite would go to the light, and semi-classics.

Cooper has majored in English here at Presbyterian, and minored in sociology. After graduation from Columbia Theological Seminary, where he will enroll in September, Cooper wants to go ahead with his graduate work in English, and hopes someday to teach English in a small college.

When questioned about hobbies, Drayton remarked "I have several lesser ones, but the main one is going to Decatur."

The reason for for the constant trips to the Atlanta suburb is one Hazel King, a student at Agnes Scott College. He says he's really got it bad, and he must, to have gone with the same girl for nearly four years. As for the future along these lines, Cooper commented, "Ask her."

As is clearly apparent, Drayton likes to eat. "Don't give me any of this fancy stuff, John: I'll take fried country ham,' black-eyed peas, stewed corn, and biscuits all cooked by my Mother." For dessert, he'd rather have coconut cake, but if that's not handy, then lemon ice box pie will do all right.

This is our senior personality of the week, Drayton Cooper. In closing, let us quote our subject once more; the topic, graduation; the reply, "It'll be good to get out, yes, but it will be hard to say goodbye to the greatest school in all the world. I'll never forget it."

Two Presbyterian Profs Produce Papers of Note

Two Presbyterian College professors recently produced papers of some note in their respective fields.

Dr. Newton B. Jones, professor of history, contributed an article entitled "A European Tours America in 1820" to the fall issue of The Georgia Review.

Dr. John W. Stevenson, associate professor of English, at the annual meeting of the Modern Language Association, read a paper on the subject, "The Shropshire Pastor: A Reading of Housman's Poetry."

International Relations Holds Debate at Meeti

• Campus Politics Discussed

The International Relations Club held its regular meeting Wednesday night at 7:00 p. m. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mack Ballard.

New committees were announced for second semester. The publicity committee consisted of Scott Pennington, John Summers, and Jim Tisdale. The Program Committee consists of Charles Joyner, Glenn Crofton, and George Hutchings. Charles Graham was appointed sergeant-at-arms.

The program consisted of a panel discussion upon the subject resolved: There Should Be No Political Activity Among Students At Presbyterian College. Speakers for the affirmative side were Dr. T. Layton Fraser, Scott Pennington, and John Summers. For the negative side, speakers were Dr. Neill G. Whitelaw, Charles Joyner, and Charles Graham.

These groups would carry back details of the discussion to their respective groups for discussion.

Then the idea was brought to a general vote of the body. If it were passed, further arrangements were made.

All four contestants are on the outgoing staff. Dukes, the newly elected edtior, was news editor and Richards was sports editor. Baldwin, the new business manager, has been a news reporter on the staff, and Young has been associate sports editor and columnist.

ROTC Military Ball Men Select Ted Weems to Play

The 1956 Military Ball, which will be held Friday, Mar. 9, beginning at 9:00 P.M., will feature Ted Weems and his versatile, nationally famous orchestra with all the trimmings.

Weems has become one of the nation's top name band attractions after more than two decades as a band-leader and all because of the unprecedented acclaim the American public gave his recording of "Heartaches."

The Weems record of "Heartaches" hit the all-time high sales of three million copies for both RCA-Victor and Decca and is responsible for Ted's having placed first in practically all of the major orchestra popularity polls for 1947. His music library of arrangements covering 800 tunes is valued at $40,000.

The 14-piece orchestra also will feature the Ted Weems trio, and Bonnie Shaw, a popular female vocalist.

Weems will again appear for the Inter - Fraternity Council Dance, which will be held on the following evening, Saturday, Mar. 10, from 8:00-12:00 P.M.

"Heartaches", which was originally recorded way back in 1931, actually caught the public's eye in 1947, when a Charlotte, N. C., dealer and disc-jockey wanted to unload 400 copies which had been

Weems is unusual in that he considers jive talk a foreign language, but he was forced to learn it so he could converse with his own musicians. One of his favorites is the famous conductor Stokowski, who once told Ted that the intonation of the orchestra was the best he had heard in a popular band.

PC Choir Reports Progress for Year

The Presbyterian College Robed Choir gave two performances last Sunday. The Gleesters sang in the First Presbyterian Church of Greenwood for the morning service, and in Spartanburg's Second Church in the evening.

The choir was served lunch at Lander College, and the Women of the Church of Spartanburg entertained the singers for supper.

Even though Dr. Paske lost the services of Drayton Cooper, Chandler McCaskill, Bill Lipp, and Tom Williams, three additions to the roster assure a well-balanced group for the remainder of the year. The three new men are Richard Boland, first tenor; Bill Moore, second tenor; and Noble Collins, first bass. The choir plans to make a recording of the choral numbers in the program of its 1955-56 season tonight at the First Presbyterian Church.

RCA-Victor will actually cut the record from a tape which will be sent to them by the choir. All the selections will be included on one 33 1-3 long-playing record. in stock since 1931. He began to plug the platter and it traveled throughout the South and through the nation at a tremendous rate.

The Moving Finger Writes, and Having Writ, Moves

The end has come. Another Sock is out and all is quiet. Another editor takes his place in the ranks of P College journalism. Another staff bites the dust from a year's experience. All is gained, nothing is lost.

Many editors have written their so-called "swan song" to the efforts, grievances, and experiences with The Blue Stocking, and have done so with a mighty cause. This purpose has been to promote a pause in which the campus may realize the time which the new editor and staff must devote to the paper, the service which the paper renders the Student Body, and the pressure to which any editor must become accustomed.

It is also a pause in which members of the Student Body may realize that this newspaper is theirs, and that the principle of freedom of the press has afforded them the opportunity of vesting in one person the responsibility of speaking for and against situations which arise during his tenure of office. For this investure, I am truly grateful.

The old saying, "Beware, lest the ink of the printer get into your blood", has certainly rung true with the experience gained from the creation of a new Sock each week. The grumbiing of the press, the smell of the ink and paper, and the feel of hot lead in the palm, will leave a deep impression in the lives of many of our association.

Reminisces fall back to our first issue when every phase of journalism was introduced to a new group . . . to the time when we spotted the first typographical error . . . when 4:00 A. M. arrived of that first Thursday morning, and the layout was just being completed . . . when an article had to be left out for space purposes, or when an article had to be cut or re-written for policy or journalistic reasons . . . or when the feeling of 500 boring eyes added to the primary discomfort. And then came the realization with experience that every person on campus was behind us and that everything would be all right.

Special thanks goes to those who offered constructive criticism and letters to the editor. Thanks to those who felt it necessary to express their pleasure or displeasure concerning a single article or the entire policy of the paper. From this criticism I feel that we were more able to make the correct moves concerning deliberate situations which normally occur in a year's passing.

There were a number of certain individuals who would give innumerable services at any time—Ben Hammet, advisor, and former All-American editor of the Sock; Mrs. W. W. Harris, publisher of The Clinton Chronicle; Mr. Harry C. Layton, managing editor of The Chronicle, and warm friend to The Blue Stocking for many years; Ray Starnes, top-notch make-up man; Kat Holland, pressman, whose warm grin serves as a relief point in times of decision; Lang Holland, linotoype operator and advisor; Dr. Marshall Brown and Mr. Ed Campbell, whose advice promoted confi

Yoric O. Why Sheds a Tear

C. DRAYTON COOPER III

As I walked into the Sock office Thursday night two weeks ago there was a strange air about the place. For one thing, it was quiet—an unusual state for this hustle-bustle room. Another thing it was my last trip up the stairs of the canteen, it was my last time to sit down behind my Underwood and pound out "The Further Advantages of Y. O. Why".

The room echoed as I pecked away at the keyboard, and with each peck I could hear another echo in the background. First I heard the voice of Ollie, the newly elected editor, as he asked me to write the humor column over a year ago when we went in as the editorial staff of The Blue Stocking.

Another was the voice of Dave Stone from out of the past; I could hear his laugh as he used to knock out Lou Kemia, The Blue Baby. I would sit with him down at Mrs. Henry's on Wednesday nights and read over his shoulder as he wrote about the little alcoholic gnome, Lou. That was 1951, almost five years ago. It was then I got the yen to write this column. I guess, and the desire became a reality last winter.

Other voices echoed in my ears as I pecked away; there were the jokes of Tommy Richards, the only thing that kept us going sometimes; there was the sparkling wisdom of Frank Young as we argued about some intellectual problem while writing the paper; there were the peeved, but always patient, remarks of Ollie when somebody goofed on an article Then there was the voice of Room-o when he asked what time it was when I'd come in at 3:30 Thursday mornings.

There were the voices of those who had stopped me on the campus on Friday nights to say, "I enjoyed your column this week" or to say, "That column of yours stunk this week." There were the voices of those who had asked me to write about this thing, or that profession . . . I wish I could have pleased them all.

Then I heard the familiar voices of Ray, Kat, Shelvie, and Mr. Layton of The Clinton Chronicle. I could remember them all so well, what we used to talk about on Friday afternoons while we were getting the paper out. I could recall the help, without which you could never have had a paper, they always gave us. I remembered, and chuckled, at a classic remark that Kat made when we printed the March 1 edition last year, "Ol' Feb's gone," he said. Why it was so funny then, or why I remember it so well, I can't tell you.

And then, as I wrote along on the last copy I'd see published, I looked back in my memory over some of the things I had written. There was the time we blasted off about the conditions in Spencer; there was the time the Rah Rah girls of Alpha Psi Delta got a column written about them; then there was the column we wrote when it was rumored that Bailey would be a freshman dormitory; and, of course, I couldn't forget Joyner's feature, "Life Can Be Miserable."

Then, do you remember the column aimed at the ROTC department And there were others. too, that never got written.

They had to be mighty patient to put up with me at times.

Yes, these are the things that have made Y. O. Why this year; these are the things we talked about every Wednesday night as he and I sat down to write our columns. Y. O. was, and is, PC; I have tried to make him express what all of the boys here feel. There'll be more after he is forgotten, but always remember all of you, that in each of us is a little bit of Yorick O. Why, the PC Spirit.

"Alas, poor Yorick, I knew him well."

Roger Flys the Coop

Dear Guzzle:

As you must know from the form letter you've received from Ted Gamble, registrar here at Brown College, I have not done too well this semester. My exams were the cause of my downfall . . . as usual, the exam week was set up to the advantage of the students . . . I have five free days to prepare myself, and six exams on the last day. This is not the excuse for my downfall, just one of the causes. The excuse is that, on my exam day, I was still feeling no pain from the previous night, and thus slept through four of the exams. So I have had it . . . I've kicked the bucket . . . I have been asked (in one of the only unanimous moves the faculty has ever made), to transfer to anywhere. So in closing my brilliant career here at BC, I should like to give you my idea of the four big headlines of the year as they appeared in Brown's student newspaper, the highly rated (All--South Slobbovian), Brown Sock.

DINING HALL RUNS OUT OF POTATOES—Immediate investigation called by Brown and Powil. Resignations may be in sight.

KRAGE DISBANDS ROTC BATTALION—Assistant PMS&T quoted as saying, "We just can't measure up to The Point."

BC RECEIVES HUGE GRANT FROM FOUNDATION—Nameless foundation gives over $5 million to Carolina institutions. Davison College gets $3 million, Wooford received $2 million, BC is granted $5 thousand.

Many other great happenings took place this year (not to mention the flag pole raising of the Dean's yellow Chrysler), but the above were the four really big ones.

And so this closes (permanently) our reports from the denominational-military college of South Slobbovia. Because of my outstanding record here, of 132 hours, and ½ a quality point (Glee Club), I have been asked by the Wooford faculty to join their sterling institution. So so long Guzzle, see you at the ball games . . .

As ever,

Roger Le Rover

HOSE MEET TERRIERS SATURDAY

The Blue Hose and Terriers will continue their rivalry of the past in the Leroy Springs Gymnasium tomorrow night. In the last game PC came out on top. The Hose are out for another win against one of their top rivals tomorrow night.

The Presbyterian College Athletic teams will always be remembered for their spirit, fight, and desire to win. This can also be said for the school student body. No one likes to lose and that holds especially for the men from PC.

A basketball team always plays better when the crowd is backing them. The students of Presbyterian have always backed their athletic teams. We want to back them again Saturday night.

The Hose have lost only one game in the state and stand a chance to win the South Carolina title and especially the Little Four title. Let's pack the gym for the game and cheer our Hose to victory.

BETTER BASKETBALL IN SOUTH CAROLINA

College basketball in South Carolina has been improving steadily for the past several years. PC, Erskine, and Wofford were the first South Carolina colleges to undergo rebuilding their basketball. For quite a few years these three teams dominated South Carolina basketball.

Then came Furman and the Selvy era. This was another big step in the advancement of basketball in this state. Selvy set quite a few records during his stay in Greenville. Now the Paladins have acquired a certain Mr. Floyd who is doing pretty well in the scoring game himself.

Finally Clemson and Carolina joined the Atlantic Coast Conference. This year, in the opinion of many, the ACC is one of the strongest basketball conferences in the nation. With three teams in the top twenty and two others rated very high, the ACC offers better basketball than this area has had the opportunity to see in years gone by.

In order to compete with the other teams Clemson and Carolina have been forced to step up their programs. Both schools have shown considerable improvement over last year. They both have big plans for the future. Basketball in South Carolina is on the up grade.

Most high school players in South Carolina are not of the calibre of those from the basketball minded states. The secret lies in the coaching. Mots high schools in South Carolina have been concentrating mainly on football.

Some of the larger schools in the state have begun to hire better and more talented basketball coaches. If this continues to be the case in South Carolina we may become one of the better basketball states in the country.

If this is the case, state colleges will no longer have to compete with other states for the supply of out-of-state players who have been the stars on most of the successful teams. When the colleges in this state are able to use home state talent and still compete with other basketball powers the current program will be considered a success.

This is the day South Carolinians are looking forward to. Basketball has become a bigger spectator sport in thi sstate in the past five years. If the better teams could sport a few home-state hotshots it would become a bigger crowd drawer. This is the goal of basketball in this state.

SHORT SHOTS

Clayton Adams has really been playing fine basketball since he broke into the starting lineup . . . We're glad to see that Dave Thompson and Bill Toole have recovered from their injuries and ready to hit Mercer and Wofford this weekend . . . Most of the basketball players have started their workouts. The outlook is for a good team this spring . . . The football boys are back on the gridiron again. Spring practice has begun!! . . . Let's all go out to the game Saturday night.

Ferocious Five Hold on To I-M Basketball Lead

The Ferocious Five is holding on to their I-M Basketball lead although the Spencer Cats are now threatening for the top position.

In this past week's play Alpha Sigma Phi picked up their second win by downing the Ministerial Club, 36-30. Wednesday night, Sigma Nu bested Kappa Alpha 58-45. Sonny Phillips led Sigma Nu with fifteen points but John Brownlow had 23 for the KA's to take scoring honors.

In the second game of the evening, the Spencer Cats took a hotly contested game from Pi Kappa Alpha, 56-45. Sonny Wells, 6'-7" transfer student from Furman, paced the Cats with seventeen points. The PiKA offense was led by Bob Hill and Bobby Jackson.

PC Leads Wofford in Loop Play; Ranked Ninth Among Small Schools

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose will encounter the Terriers from Wofford on the home court tomorrow night. In their last weeting PC downed the Terriers 82-74 in a very rough game.

The Hose now boast an 11-5 won-loss record for the season and a 5-1 record against state competition.

In the last game between these two teams two of PC's high scorers were injured. Forward Dave Thompson suffered a knee injury and guard Bill Toole received a head injury. Both have been hampered considerably because of these injuries.

While Thompson was injured he scored only 54 points in three games. However he still maintains a high scoring average at 26.9 points per game. However while Dave has been below average in performance, center Bruce Thompson has been the big gun. He has scored 88 points in his last three games to boost his average to 23.6 points per game.

As a team the Blue Hose have scored a total of 1,438 points for an average of 89.9 points per game. This ranks the Hose ninth among the small college scoring race.

The PC quintet has hit the 100 point mark on four occasions this season. PC's opponents have averaged 78 points per game.

Captain Toole has averaged 11.4 points per game and is the team leader in assists. Forward Clay- never been a Blue Hose team defeated for the state championship. ton Adams has boosted his average to 9.9 points since breaking into the starting lineup. He has taken the lead in field goal accuracy with a percentage of 56.1 and is free throw accuracy with a percentage of 82.5.

Bruce Thompson is way out front in the rebounds department with 17.1 per game. He boasts of a field goal accuracy of 51.6.

The PC team ranks sixth in the nation among the small colleges in both field goal and free throw accuracy.

The Terriers are led by forward Donnie Fowler, center Twitty Carpenter, and guard Dennis Mathis. The game should be a real battle and a match of two old rivals on the gridiron as well as the hardwood.

Blue Socks Trip Wofford, Newberry

The Blue Hose of PC defeated the Terriers of Wofford in a rough and tumble affair in Spartanburg last week by the tune of 82-74. The Hose stepped out front at the start of the game and were never caught as they ran up a 55-39 half time lead.

Two of PC's top stars received injuries in the game. Forward Dave Thompson injured his knee while Captain Bill Toole received a head injury.

Although Thompson was injured he still managed to take top scoring honors with 23 points. Center Bruce Thompson was a close second with a total of 22 points.

High point men for the Terriers were guard Joe McConnell with 21 and center Twitty Carpenter with 20 points.

The basketeers, after holding a nine point lead at the half, were pushed down to the wire in defeating the Newberry Indians 86-82 in an overtime battle last week. The Indians, though highly outclassed, never gave up and gave the defending Little Four champions a thrilling scare.

The Hose never held a good lead but managed to secure a 48-39 halftime advantage. Newberry came back strong in the second half and tied the score at the end of the regulation game.

Center Bruce Thompson led the Hose with 31 points and forward Dave Thompson totalled eighteen. Center Jim Wooldridge led the Indians with 21 points.

Athletic Memorials Abound on Campus

By LAWRENCE YOUNG

In the past, athletic fields or buildings at Presbyterian College have either been given as memorials or named for the person making possible the assets to the college.

Early in Coach Walter Johnson's career at PC, he was instrumental in securing a football field without seats for his high flying Blue Hose. Therefore the football field was named Johnson field. When the demand for seats came a little later, the late William J. Bailey, son-in-law of Dr. William P. Jacobs, donated the seats known as Bailey Stadium around Johnson Field in memory of his son William Cyrus Bailey.

When Coach C. E. (Chick) Galloway started coaching baseball at PC in the early thirties, there was a field to play on but the college could not charge admission because there was no fence around the field. Mr. N. Reese Young and Mr. John T. Young gave the lumber to build the grandstand and a fence. Because of their donations the baseball field was named Young Field.

Leroy Springs Gymnasium was donated by Leroy Springs, President of Springs Cotton Mills. Along with the donation of the gym, he gave to Presbyterian College the first indoor swimming pool in South Carolina.

During the administration of Dr. William P. Jacobs, II, Calloway Courts were secured for the tennis teams. Every year the state tennis tournament is held on Calloway Courts, where there has

Toole Shows Leadership In Sports, Student Council

By JOHN KNOX

The student Body demonstrated its confidence in Toole in naming him the highest representative of the student government. As president of the student body, he has initiated several projects that have bettered student conditions.

The basketball squad has chosen Bill to head them for the second year. His all-round dependability, his desire to win, and his invaluable service as captain make Bill the sparkplug to successful season. The merit of his athletic ability was shown when he was honored at PC as "the outstanding athlete of the year."

Heretofore Bill was selected president of his student body at Speedway High School in Indianapolis, Ind., his birthplace. Besides being a four-letter man in high school his basketball squad chose him as their captain his last two years. The necessary experience gained here helped Bill become the outstanding leader he is today.

Senior Toole is a member of Blue Key and Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. He was president of his sophomore class and vice president of his junior class.

Bill, a converted yankee, married his high school sweetheart, Nancy Forbes. Number one joy in Vetville is their cute daughter, Terry Lee, who is three.

He is majoring in economics and minoring in physical education.

Bill likes to chow down on steak and chocolate cake. In cinema he likes Kim Novak and Aldo Ray. Having lived all his life in Indianapolis it is not hard to pick his hobby as automobile racing.

He is vice-president of the Block P Club. Bill recalls last year's defeat of Furman 82-81 as his greatest thrill.

Alumnus McCutchen is a graduate of Union Theological Seminary. Having recently come from a pastorate in Virginia, he is now the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Laurens.

The theme of Dr. McSween's addresses will be "What Seekest Thou?" This idea comes from the favorite verse of PC's founder, William P. Jacobs, "Seekest thou great things for thyself, seek them not."

Scholarship

Presbyterian College will offer the eight Founder's Scholarships again next year. These awards are awarded to high school graduates entering PC at the beginning of the 1956-57 session. Each scholarship will pay up to $375 per year for four years.

These awards are competitive and are given to the students who qualify on the basis of intellect, leadership and character.

Preliminary tests will be administered at the local high school to all applicants, and from this group a total of 20 students will be selected to visit the PC campus for interviews and other tests.

The registrar's office is sending posters to all the high school principals in the area to announce the scholarships and the March 10 deadline for receiving applications.

Military Receives Praise of Inspector

Col. C. E. Singleton, of the South Carolina Military District, stated that he was pleased with the Military Department here at Presbyterian College, as a result of an inspection here last week. Col. Singleton was the inspecting officer at the military distirct inspection last Thursday.

This inspection was a pre-Federal inspection to get the department in good shape for the Federal inspection, which will be held sometime in March. Col. Singleton stated that the unit should be outstanding at the inspection.

As part of his inspection tour, Col. Singleton met with Dr. George C. Bellingrath, Academic Dean, in the absence of Dr. Marshall W. Brown, about the military curriculum at PC. He said that he was glad to see that Presbyterian College cadets were eager to follow the military program.

The only personal inspection Col. Singleton made was of the ROTC band. He heard them play several numbers and saw them execute several movements of drill while playing. He said that their playing was excellent.

Jones and McGuire Reassigned by Army

The Military Department announced last Wednesday that SFC P. F. Jones and M-Sgt. V. M. McGuire have been reassigned.

They will both report to the Eighth Infantry Division, Fort Carson, Col. SFC Jones will leave next Monday, and M-Sgt. McGuire will leave Wednesday.

Mrs. Taylor Returns to Brazil as A Missionary

Mrs. George Taylor, Bursar of Presbyterian College, will return to azil as a missionary next July. Her assignment came as the result a critical emergency which was caused by furloughs and necessary nsfers.

Mrs. Taylor says that it will be ad occasion when she has to ve and pull up the roots that ve grown so deep at PC. She ted further that these roots be- n with her father, who was a mber of the Board of Trustees Presbyterian College. They w deeper as her husband, four ildren, and two sons-in-law at- ded PC.

The late Dr. Taylor received an norary Doctor of Divinity de- e from PC in 1932, and Mrs. ylor attended Professor Baker's counting and bookkeeping sses.

She says she had planned to begin "slowing down" in order to have more time to enjoy some of the things she wanted to do, but that she felt God was calling her to a job that would bring far more satisfaction and happiness than "slowing down" could ever bring. When Mrs. Taylor sails for Brazil in July, she will leave a fine record of successful service to Presbyterian College.

Lest We Forget

"Fellow citizens, we cannot escape history. We of this Congress and this Administration will be remembered in spite of ourselves; no personal significance or insignificance can spare one or another of us. This fiery trial through which we pass will light us down in honor or dishonor to the last generation. We, even we here, hold the power and bear the responsibility."

Abraham Lincoln directed these words to the body through which the people of the United States govern themselves; vesting them with man's most vital garment; the armor of responsibility. The crude ore for this armor was mined from the ground on which America stands, its constitution, and smelted in the furnace of brotherhood by the fire of blood and gunpowder, whenever diplomacy failed. The men on whom those words fell could wear this armor in only one of two ways: to overcome the enemies in their way, or to fend off the nettles of service by sitting tight inside it. The allegories lead naturally to their alternate conclusions; the heroic warrior can exchange his damaged armor for the mail of higher office, but the static freeloader will have his protection stripped from around him until he himself is destroyed.

Why should we concern ourselves with this, you ask? This event is hardly tangible to us, but it is not primarily with the event that we should concern ourselves. What should bear on us is the realization of responsibility which prompted Lincoln's words, for "we, even we here," are exposed to responsibilities. As students, we are vested with duty in some form or other, whether to the ones who support us or to the goals which we have set for ourselves. The idea of the armor applies to us; we can use our opportunities for education to temper us into manhood or use the student status to shield us from the world of supply and demand.

Idealistic moralizing and glittering generalities are acceptable policy for the voting public, but as college students we should examine the essential, fundamental currents with which we should allay ourselves.

From Us . . .

Our way is clear. We, the new staff of The Blue Stocking, realize the task that has been given to us through your confidence.

It goes without saying that we are now the ones who are the voice of Presbyterian College, and we will do all within our capabilities to represent the picture of our campus life in accordance with this charge. We do not intend to be the advocate of any faction, and cannot rest assured until every represented organization has been heard.

Therefore, we invite your constructive criticism at all times, so that we may produce a service to you that will be worthy of its name.

The Distaff Side

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

I have just returned from an extensive tour to Daddy-O's Hideaway. The location of this rambling wreck is usually a carefully guarded secret of Daddy-O and his Rah Rah Girls. This prehistoric mansion is so well secluded in a dense and tropical growth of bamboo that Sherman overlooked it in the Civil War.

The occupants of this run-down rendezvous include several families of bats, rats, and various other rodents, who have established their residence on the third floor. Every night Robert's Rugby Room is open on the third floor, and the together for a long noisy night neighborhood rodents all join of rugby up one wall and down the other.

The competition really begins when about ten o'clock the corner of Calvert and Woodrow resounds with the beat-out bop of Joe Turner and Bill Haley and his Comets. The co-eds begin to live up to their theme of "Rock Around the Clock." This, of course, is in complete acceptance of the newly enforced quiet hour from seven P.M. to six A.M. Along about two o'clock, when the second floor has closed down its rock and roll jamboree, the bottle brigade begins downstairs. This brigade is led by the fighting and ferocious Lt. Kernel Campbell.

His platoon has recently been reinforced by the Terrible Twins, whose motto is, "Ye who yellest the loudest will receivest the quickest service." There is also without a doubt an author who lives downstairs, for why else would he be interested in where you go, why, when, and with whom, unless he is writing a book?

All in all, Old Calvert's not a bad place to live. The co-eds have named it "Wee Blew Inn" for not only do we blow in, but so does the wind. Hot O' Rudy Makes Appearance

By LYMAN HARRIS

It was a cold Saturday in February when I first met Hot O'Rudy, and looking at him gave me cold thoughts. He was a typical high school Harry when he came into my room in Bailey Hotel that day; he had ducktails, a streak of peroxide in his hair, pegged pants, a chain hanging almost to his knees, and buttoned shoes. He gave me a cocky smile with a mouth that looked bigger than Joe E. Brown's, smacked out a "Whatyasay, Ace!" with his chewing gum, tossed his bags on my bed and started unpacking. He pulled out a rogues gallery of girls' pictures and started hanging them on the wall.

That was the first time I saw Hot O., but it wasn't until after the Wofford basketball game that I really got to know him. He came in from the game with his tongue rocking, like maybe he had been vaccinated with a phonograph needle. I looked up and saw that he had a big shiner. I said, "Man, what hit you?" He croaked, "A guided muscle."

"There was some fellow sitting down below me with his hands in his pockets who was tearing PC apart coming and going. Finally that old PC spirit got the best of me and I jumped up and poked him one. Then he took his hands out of his pockets and, man, I've never seen such arms. He was arm from his legs up. He hit me once and I scurried away from there like a three-legged dog."

He paused for breath and then started again, "Say, they have a bunch of ice cubes over there at Wofford, don't they? You know, real cool squares." It was corny, but I have to admit that it described them perfectly. "That was some game, wasn't it? Who was that fellow on the court with the pointed head that kept trying to play football?"

I asked him if this was his first day at PC . He started his jaws churning again: "Naw, I came yesterday. I spent all day yesterday signing pledges and filling out cards. I was as busy as a bubble dancer with a slow leak. Warden Campbell fixed me a pallet in the Radio Forum Room to sleep on last night. He said that he thought it would be nice for me to spend my first night in the heart of the campus.

He walked to the window, flipped the imitation cheese cloth curtains aside, and gazed out over the campus. I asked, "Well, what do you think about the place?"

He blurted, "Man, it's the most to say the least. The chow here is great, isn't it?" I, realizing that he hadn't been here long enough to know better, just belched and rubbed my ulcer-infested stomach. (Just joking, Boss.)

He yawned widely and I backed away to avoid the spray. Sleepily he muttered, "Guess I'll hit the sack." He tossed his pants and shirt in the corner, tucked his T-shirt monogrammed "Keep Bama White" into his leopard-skin drawers, and jumped into bed. Within seconds he was asleep.

I realized then that he wasn't such a bad fellow after all, because we were all sort of highschoolish when we first came to PC. After suffering through a few weeks of foreign language and a few shafts, he will be "one of the boys."

Behind the Blues

HIGH SCHOOL IS IN SESSION

It's almost time for the annual upper-state basketball tournament. As most of you know the Class A and B tournament is held here on the "Ole P College" campus. Besides good basketball games there will be a spice of life on the campus that we boys very seldom see. WOMEN!!

All you cats put on your pegged pants and move out to that crazy LeRoy Springs gym where those cool girls toss that crazy b. ball at those fruit crates. It's snow time. The Blue Stocking will carry a full report on the Spring "snow" games next week. Our ace reporter, I. Ben Swetinit, will cover all of the "snow" games.

HOSE CONTINUE TO ROLL

The Blue Hose of PC have been rolling with a full head of steam in the last few weeks. At the time this paper went to press the Hose had accumulated a 14-5 record. Dave Thompson continues to lead the scoring with a 25.9 average. Bruce Thompson stands at 23.2, Clayton Adams, 11.8, and captain Bill Toole, 11.7.

Bruce is leading the team in rebounds at 17.6 per game. Dave also leads the Hose in free throw accuracy with 80.9. Adams follows with 79.2, Bruce Thompson, 76.5, and Arnold Stone, 75.6.

In field accuracy Adams is sporting a phenomenal accuracy of 61.3. Bruce is following closely with 50.9, and Stone is ripping the nets at an even 50 clip. Dave Thompson also sports a fine accuracy record at 44.7. Captain Toole still continues to lead the team in assists.

SPRING HAS SPRUNG

Spring is here and activity is visible on all parts of the campus. Basketball is at its peak, track is coming into the picture, the golfers have hit the links, the baseballs are being hammered, the tennis courts are full every afternoon, and spring football practice is in session.

The horseshoe pits have been set up in front of Smyth and intramural basketball is reaching its climax.

This is the time of year for sports and everyone seems to realize it. In your own activities and pleasure, don't forget to support your college athletic teams.

NATIONAL BASKETBALL

It is the opinion of this writer that if the high-flying Dons of San Francisco were to take a trip through the territory of the Big Four basketball powers of North Carolina they could not escape without suffering at least one and possibly two defeats. With two teams in the top ten, another in the top twenty, and a fourth among the top twenty-five in the nation, the South can boast of being a top basketball area. The Dons have not faced some of the tough foes that our Southern schools have faced; therefore, our Southern teams should receive more recognition when an AP poll is conducted next week.

Thompson Bags 'em Against Wofford; Adams and Thompson Grind Newberry

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose took a hard fought Little Four battle from Wofford last Saturday night by a 78 to 74 score. This brought PC's Little Four record to three wins and one loss, two of these wins coming over the Terriers.

The Terriers jumped off to an early lead behind the scoring of center Twitty Carpenter. The Hose bounced back to lead 41-39 at half time.

Wofford hit nine more field goals than did PC but the Hose gained the lead by making 34 free throws.

Center Bruce Thompson led PC with 24 points while forward Clayton Adams and guard Bill Toole hit for 17 and 14 respectively.

Carpenter was high man for the game with 28 points. Forward Donnie Fowler hit 16 and forward Craig Templeton scored 14.

Tennis Courts Abound With Season's Stars

By LARRY BROWN

The Presbyterian College tennis team, perennial favorite in national competition for a number of years, is hard at work preparing for the 1956 season in hopes of being the greatest Blue Hose net aggregation in the school's history.

Coach Jim Leighton, in a recent interview, pointed out that the schedule was tough and much polish must be acquired as yet; but the veteran mentor gave every indication that PC is indeed going to be hard to handle from the number one man through the number six man this season.

"From number two down, it is anybody's guess as to how the players will open in the first match," stated Coach Leighton.

Coach Leighton indicated that this would be the first season that the Hosemen are going to be strong all down the line. In past years the fifth and sixth positions have been a big problem.

This year the problem appears to be solved with such stars as Dick Macatee, John Brownlow, Harvey Jackson, Guice Potter, Gene Gee, and Scott Watson to back up Morris. Newcomer Jimmy Shakespeare, Florida junior star, is looking very promising and should play a lot of tennis for PC.

Morris, who has for the past five years been in the national tennis spotlight, is now at his greatest. Coach Leighton points out that Morris has taken a long time to put his game together, but now it is definitely a well-rounded game.

This year the PC netters will be facing the toughest schedule to date in foes such as Miami and Texas Universities. In these two matches Morris will face tough Kupferberger of Miami, eighth ranked in the United States, and Texas' Sam Giammalva, ranked number nine nationally.

Hose Down Mercer; Thompson Hits for 29

The Blue Hose of Presbyterian College held off a determined Mercer rally in the second half to gain a 90 to 82 decision over the Bears last week. In winning their second game over the Georgia team this season the Hose had a very high shooting accuracy.

Leading the way for the Blue Hose was star forward Dave Thompson with 29 points. Forward Clayton Adams, who has played exceptional ball lately, added 22.

Cary Moore with 26 and Bobby Graham with 20 led the Bears

College is Host for High School BB Tilt

Presbyterian College will play host to South Carolina's upper-state high school basketball tournament for Classes A and B on Feb. 21-25. This will be the ninth consecutive year that the tournament has been held in LeRoy Springs gymnasium.

The 28 top boys and girls teams from seven upper-state districts will battle it out for the chance to represent the upper-state in the state tournament in Columbia. Districts which will be represented by teams in the tourney are:

Districts 1, 2, 3, 4, 10, 11, and 13.

Teams in these districts are fighting in their own respective areas for a chance to enter the tournament.

Athletic Director Walter A. Johnson said, "We are happy to entertain this fine group of young athletes again this year. Presbyterian College believes in the physical development of the individual, as well as in his mental and spiritual growth, and we are always pleased to do anything we can to cooperate with the athletic programs of our high schools."

Campbell Says 475 Students Are Enrolled

A total of 475 students are registered at Presbyterian College for the second semester of the 1955-56 session, Registrar G. Edward Campbell, announced today.

This figure represents a decrease of 34 students from the peak enrollment of the first semester. It is accounted for by the students who completed work toward degrees during the first term and by eliminations caused by academic deficiencies.

Class work starting the second semester began recently, and the term will extend unbroken until Mar. 29-April 5, which marks the period of Spring Vacation.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR BUSINESS

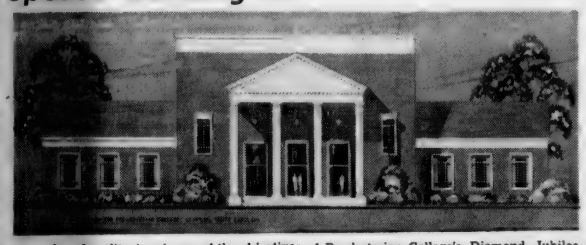
"Me letting my kids down?"

You give your children the best of everything — you advise them, protect them, and share their fun. Can a parent do more?

Yes, there is one other responsibility, easy to overlook. In these years of educational crisis, if you haven't taken an active part in school affairs . . . it's possible you are letting your children down.

Many communities today are faced with local variations of a single nationwide problem: How to cope with the rapid and continuing increase in school enrollments. In some places, the problem takes the form of overcrowded classrooms . . . in others, of a shortage of teachers, or of equipment.

One excellent way you can help insure good schools is by joining your neighbors in community educational conferences. Across the nation, such conferences have found solutions for a wide variety of local school problems — such as financing new equipment . . . adding qualified teachers . . . consolidating schools.



It can be done! Enlightening "case histories" of local school improvement campaigns that worked are yours for the asking. Please indicate the nature of your local school objectives so that we may send you the material that best fits your needs. Write: Better Schools, 2 West 45th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

Campus Poll is Taken To See Who Reads What

By NOBLE COLLINS

If by chance you should ever appear on THE $64,000 DOLLAR QUESTION, never choose as your category—magazines. "And why not?" you ask indignantly. Well, simply because magazines form perhaps the most versatile field of any single item in the world.

In short, you would be answering questions from every category listed, because that's just what magazines are—a printed composite of everything you or anyone else can think of.

Magazines are published for people of every age, creed, and income bracket, and meet the needs of every mood, intellect, temperament, and taste. Some are even published for no apparent reason at all.

In the United States and perhaps all over the world, magazines are undoubtedly the most popular literary and pictorial medium. Accordingly, they are found everywhere—on buses and trains, in homes, over heads in rainy weather, etc. They are especially found on college campuses.

On a campus such as that of Presbyterian College, magazines perform a vital function in the educational process—they keep students well informed about current events. The student uses his own discretion as to which current events are most pertinent to him, however.

For instance, one student may consider politics foremost in importance, while his own roommate is certain that theater happenings are more significant. Whatever it is they are looking for, though, it can be found in some magazine.

Just out of curiosity it was recently suggested that a campus poll be taken to determine trends in student reading. The suggestion materialized this week in the form of the question—"What are your three favorite magazines?" which was asked to a representative group of PC students. In our Galluping around the campus, here is what we found:

Richard Oliver: "I would say that LIFE, THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, and THE NEW YORKER are my three favorites."

Don Segrest: "Let's see, probably DELL, SPORTS MAGAZINE, THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, and COLLIER'S."

Ed Hay: "I believe that TIME, SPORTS ILLUSTRATED, and U. S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT are my favorites."

Jim Barksdale: "My choices would be SPORTS ILLUSTRATED, LOOK, and PLAYBOY."

Bob Matthews: "PLAYBOY, LOOK, and ESQUIRE are the three I read most."

And so these are the magazines that are satisfying literary appetites on the PC campus. There are others of course, some satisfying appetites not quite so literary, but all entertaining or informative in their own special way. They have all won a permanent niche in the thing we proudly call our American way of life—and we don't mean the magazine.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Editorials : Features : Humor

Prepare to Seek . . .

This morning in Chapel, we all should have taken advantage of a vital opportunity by accepting one of the devotional schedules, in order to prepare for the coming Religious Emphasis Week. These schedules are not intended to be just thrown away, but are the result of careful preparation by members of the Senior Cabinet of the Student Christian Association, for your spiritual benefit. Receive them in that spirit, and use them to condition yourself by prayer and Bible study so that this week may not just be the observation of an annual custom.

Lack of preparation has not been the only student failure in this week. There are some students to whom preparation would be useless, since they hardly ever attend the services in the first place, excepting the required morning services. True, an incentive is given to fraternity men in the form of an attendance trophy but is this in keeping with the true meaning of Religious Emphasis? And what about the non-fraternity men and women?

There is an incentive to all who should attend the services, and that is the goal which is to be attained through preparatory devotionals. The incentive should be the individual student's desire to gain the fullest from the week, so that its spirit might be carried into the succeeding weeks and add a little more weight to the claims in the college catalogue.

"Seekest thou great things for thyself? Seek them not." Seek instead the lasting enrichments of the man surrendered to Christ, through active participation in Religious Emphasis Week.

"What seekest thou?" We are all aware of our greatest shortcoming. Prepare to seek.

The Under Cover Story

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

Flash! This reporter has hit College. The following story is filled with startling and shocking discoveries of intrigue and mystery. Because of incriminating evidence it is impossible to print all the facts but the targets for this week's slash session will know the gory details.

Who is the lovable person who parades on this campus under an honorable name when his real name is "Wild Cat George?" Does his innocent grandchildren know about this? Maybe we will never know, but the poison pen continues to write.

I believe you will find a person on this campus who some people call Handy. I believe you'll find that's right. It has been called to my attention that there has been some question over his handiness. I don't believe we'll argue over this. Isn't that right? I hear that there may be some car trading going on pretty soon. What do you think about that? What's the matter, is yellow too bright for you? Hmmmmmmmmm?

When I tried to find out the latest scoop on Lawyer Ken and his "Oh Yea Boys," he greeted me with a sly chuckle, saying, "Oh Yea! That's how I won my case. What's mine is mine!"

It's been said that this lawyer is quite a man around the house, but when he cooks he has to be the lone wolf in the kitchen. Lawyer Ken, are you going to the Brawl? It's rumored that you are quite a cat on the dance floor and really dig that crazy jive to all hours.

I think it would be advisable for "King Nelson Lindsay" to take a course in music appreciation. I hear that his favorite song is "Send in your name and address and $1.98. How's that water heater from Cincinnati 1, Ohio?

It's been said, by way of the grapevine, that "Billy, the Ballentine Kid" has been making numerous trips to Columbia to see Thesis. (?) Ah! Come on, Kid! Give the boys a break and let them know who she really is.

I couldn't believe it! Daddy-O, is it true that your office is run by a woman?

Girls, did you see that good-looking boy in that beautiful blue plaid shirt the other day? Oh! You noticed him too!

Hot O' Rudy Goes to Chapel

By LYMAN HARRIS

Hot O'Rudy and I walked into Neville Hall on our way to chapel. The last bell rang and we were carried up the stairs and pushed into two chairs by the crowd.

I couldn't see the speaker because of the jungle of newspapers and letters that boys were reading in front of me, but I knew there was a speaker there because I could hear him hollering above the murmur of the crowd. He was fillerbustering. He went on and on until finally Dr. Brown and Dean Anderson went to sleep. The minute they went to sleep, the faculty went wild.

We wanted to see and hear what they were doing, so we craned our necks in that direction and Hot O. perked his ears up like a not overly-bright mule. When we saw them, Hot O. laid on the floor and roared. We saw Dr. Patte sneak out and head in the direction of his music room and in a few minutes we heard live music and the floor rocked. Hot O. said he heard Dr. Patte was taking shag lessons.

Prof. Ballentine, McIntyre, and Irwin were huddled together playing a game of Old Maid. They had the rules mixed up though. They used a live old maid. They were having a giggling good time.

Doc Stevenson was reading a book named "The Autobiography of An Alaskan Well Digger," by I. C. Tail, and shivering, while Prof. McCleod was reading "I, the Jury," and sweating.

Dr. Whitelaw was chuckling over a joke book by Albert Einstein. Prof. Baker was sitting next to him counting his money. Hot O. said that Prof. Baker is so tight that when he takes a nickle out of his pocket the buffalo blinks at the light and gasps for breath.

Father Fraser, High Priest of the Bible Department, was walking up and down the aisles selling indulgences. Hot O. told me that the T. in T. Layton Fraser stands for Tetzel.

"Groucho" Glover and Prof. Adams were grading test papers and every time one of them found a mistake punch the other and have a good laugh.

Commander Porte screwed the chapel of him and was whi a battleship.

Before we left, some among everyone and switchblades. They were going to play "Last One Out is Corpse." The only got out ahead of O'Rudy.

THE WOES OF TEXTILE HALL

There is no joy in Textile Hall, mighty Furman has struck out! Has the Textile Hall jinx been broken? It seems that the Blue Hose have broken the jinx of the "cracker box" in Greenville.

The Hose traveled to Greenville Monday night to take on the mighty Furman Paladins. All odds were against a win for the PC team. Bruce Thompson not only sparked the Blues to a win, but also outscored the Furman All-American candidate, Darrell Floyd.

Thompson also had a higher shooting accuracy than did the Furman star. Bruce hit on 13 of 21 attempts while Floyd was connecting on 17 of 33 shots. The high-scoring Blue Hose hit on a phenomenal 55 per cent of their shots and stayed above their team scoring average of 90 points per game.

FLOYD SHOWED LOVE OF FREE THROWS

Furman's Floyd definitely showed by his actions his love for free throws. Four times during the game he stepped up to the free throw line when it was not his turn. Evidently the Furman team has put into practice a rotation rule whereby Floyd gets to shoot every free throw. It is not for the reason that the other Paladins do not hit their charity tosses, because the team as a whole did very well from the foul line. It seems to this writer that Floyd is in favor of getting the points placed by his name in the box scores.

Many spectators noticed Floyd's habit of running to the free throw line whether it was his turn or not, and they expressed their opinions by sounding off. I am not taking anything away from Floyd's ability to pour the roundball through the hoop for in this phase of the game he excels most other players in the nation. He is one of the finest shot artists to ever don a basketball outfit, but he should not let his desires to win the national scoring championship come ahead of all rules of sportsmanship.

SHORT SHOTS

The PC student body showed that they were behind the basketball team when a large crowd journeyed to Greenville to cheer the Hose to an upset victory over Furman. The PC cheering section was responsible for just as much of the cheering as was the Furman section. As many of us as can should try to take in the Little Four tournament in Anderson and boost our team to their second straight Little Four championship . . . Dave Thompson's 49-foot field goal just before the end of the first half set a new record for college basketball in Textile Hall . . . Gridders and Spring Practice in Full Swing

By LARRY BROWN

The Presbyterian College football team is now in the midst of their annual spring practice, with a good deal of promise being shown.

Head Coach Bill Crutchfield stated in a recent interview that he was neither pessimistic nor optimistic over the prospects of the Blue Hose footballers for the 1956 season, but that much polish must be applied in every position before P. C. can definitely be considered a small school power.

Although some of this year's key men will not be around to bolster the Hose next season, many lettermen are returning to give the team more football prowess.

In a run down on the squad, we find freshmen Ted Leahy and John Firby showing much promise at the end position. Pushing these two front runners are Ken Gardner, who has been moved to end from guard, and Bob Matthews, a transfer student.

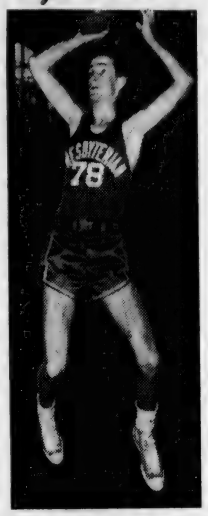
At the left tackle position, Joe Negley, James "Chico" Lee, and transfer student "Sonny" King are engaged in a battle royal for the starting role. Right tackle is being headed by veteran Wayne Shoemaker, but he is being hotly contested by Big Jack Coppley. Both should play considerably next season.

The guards are being headed by Richard Shrigley and Tommy Warren, with strong contention coming from Al Stephenson, Alvis Poe, and Bill Tsacrios. Bill Bowman has been switched to guard from fullback, and is playing the position like a veteran.

The center position has turned into a neck and neck battle with a greatly improved Marion Parrish vieing with tough Jim McLaughlin.

In the backfield we find the left half position wide open, with Tony Benson and Gene Butler having a slight edge over Ed Messer and Johnny Armstrong. All of these boys are faily speedy, and could be hard men to stop on an open field.

At right half, lack of experience is the main problem, but Coach Crutchfield may remedy this with two strong runners in John Lucas and Jerry Yoder, being backed up by veteran reserve Raymond Johnson. If these three fail to materialize, Mitch Mavromat could be switched from fullback to carry the mail.



Fullback is very strong, but

PC Will Meet Rivals In Tomorrow's L-F Tilt

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose take the floor Friday night in defense of their Little Four Championship with the highest scoring team in the school's history.

They will tangle with the tough Wofford Terriers in the opening round of the fast conference tournament held at Anderson.

This powerful PC team has accumulated 2,149 points in 23 games this season for a 93.4 average to rank among the nation's most productive teams. The 18-5 won-lost record is the best in the state.

Riding a seven game winning streak and fresh from a 117-115 upset victory over Furman, the Blue Hose put their Little Four trophy won last year on the line as they go into this sixth staging of the tournament.

Center Bruce Thompson's 50 points tallied against Furman moved the 6 foot 4 inch junior ahead of teammate Dave Thompson. Bruce now posts a 25.4 average while Dave stands at 25.1. These two brilliant pointmakers have been the core of the Blue Hose offensive unit all year.

Bruce also ranks among the top men in the nation in rebounds, with an average of 18.4 per game, and his field goal accuracy is a high 53.2 per cent. Dave holds the top free throw accuracy mark at 81.1 per cent.

Forward Clayton Adams is number three man in the scoring parade with an average of 12.5. Close behind him stands Captain Bill Toole averaging 12.2. Guard Bill Sullivan who has acquired the nickname of "Hot rod" because of his playmaking antics, rounds out the starting five with an average of 5.8.

The 18-5 won-lost record for regular season play matches the record set by last year's high scoring Blue Hose team.

The victories include: Centre of Kentucky (91-74); Southeastern of Oklahoma (72-70); College of Charleston(86-67); Citadel (117-67, 113-63); Pheiffer (82-76, 106-101); Rollins (97-86); Florida Southern (89-63); Mercer (108-84, 90-82); Wofford (82-74, 78-74); Newberry (86-82, 111-77); Erskine (96-84); and Furman (117-115).

PC Humbles Furman In Big Surprise, 117-115

Presbyterian College center Bruce Thompson played probably the best game of his college career in Textile Hall Monday night as the Blue Hose topped the talented Paladins and Darrell Floyd 117-115.

Thompson thrilled the crowd of 3,000 with his fine shooting ability, tremendous rebounding, and his all around sterling play.

Thompson stripped the nets for a total of 50 points and grabbed at least 18 valuable rebounds. He hit 13 of the 21 shots he attempted from the floor and 24 of his 29 free throw attempts. The Blue Hose as a team hit 55 per cent of their shots.

Furman's Darrell Floyd, national scoring champion, and Fred Fraley combined their talents to push the Paladins into a first half lead and also a fine comeback late in the game that was almost a success. Floyd raised his lead in the scoring race over Robin Freeman of Ohio State by scoring a total of 44 points while Fraley was adding 21 for the Furman cause.

adding 21 for the Furman cause.

Furman took the lead at 25-24 midway of the first half and they held on to this lead until the Hose caught up with about five minutes left in the first half. The Paladins led 54-49 at half-time.

Early in the second half, the Hose began to move. They missed very few shots as they recovered from the tremendous first half Furman spurt. The lead changed hands 13 times before the Hose moved in front to stay. Bruce Thompson pushed the Blue Hose ahead by scoring this important field goal.

PC pulled steadily away until the Paladins caught fire late in the second half. The Hose held a 107-99 lead but Floyd pumped in three quick goals to close the gap. Forward Arnold Stone then scored a field goal and two free throws to put the game on ice. With a 117-115 lead the Hose froze the ball for the remaining half minute.

Dave Thompson played an excellent game and added 22 points to the Hose total. He brought the crowd to its feet by sinking a 49-foot shot seconds before the first half ended. Thompson and guard Bill Sullivan both had perfect nights at the free throw line and both scored quite a few timely field goals that kept the Hose in front.

The win gave the Blue Hose a season mark of 18 wins and 5 losses. Furman wound up their regular season play with an 11-15 mark.

Bears Defeat Hose 21-6 on Wet Field

Mistakes proved costly as the Lenoir-Rhyne Bears took a 21-6 Spring practice football game from the Blue Hose. Twice, center snaps sailed over the head of the Hose kicker on the fourth down in a game played on a wet field.

The Bears took advantage of these mistakes to take a 21-0 lead at halftime. PC came back in the second to score their only touchdown and to dominate play for the remainder of the game. The The Hose moved the ball well on all occasions in the second half and their defense kept the Bears in check during the final two periods.

Tailback Bill Arkard passed 15 yards to wingback Ronnie Hoffman for Lenoir-Rhyne's first score A 35-yard pass to end Hume Collins added the second tally later in the first quarter. Fullback Harold Bullard added the third on a 10-yard plunge.

In the third quarter the Blue Hose tallied with halfback John Lucas carrying the mail the final 14 yards after fullback Ken Webb had sparked a 50-yard drive. Hose quarterback Felder Cook was in the infirmary and did not see action in the contest.

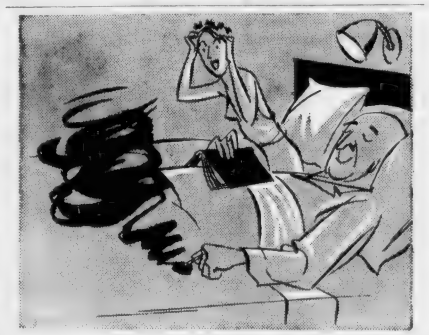
District 26 Playoffs To Be Held at PC



The Presbyterian College Blue Hose will entertain an undecided foe in LeRoy gymnasium Monday night in a District 26 playoff game. The Hose are seeking a spot in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament to be held in Knasas City.

The District 26 playoff games will decide who is to represent the two Carolinas in the tourney. PC and Erskine of the Little Four Conference and Elon of the North State Conference are definitely in contention. The fourth team has not yet been decided upon.

If PC or Erskine should win the Little Four tournament which will be held in Anderson this weekend, the fourth team would be East Carolina of the North State Conference. If this is the case, PC will meet East Carolina at Clinton and Erskine will meet Elon at Due West on Monday.

If Wofford should win the Little Four tourney then PC would play Elon and Erskine would play the Terriers. The winners of these two games would meet later in the week to decide who would represent District 26 in the national tournament.

Game time for Monday night's contest is 8:00 P. M. Admission will be $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students. These prices were set by the NAIA.

Hose Down Citadel For Sixth Straight

Presbyterian College swamped the Bulldogs from The Citadel 113-63 last Saturday afternoon. PC grabbed an 8-0 lead after two minutes had elapsed and the Cadets never threatened throughout the game.

Center Bruce Thompson paced the Blue Hose with 30 points and 21 rebounds. He was followed closely by forward Dave Thompson with 24 and Toole with 23. W. A. Spivey, B. B. Saville, and C. W. Hancock each had 10 for the Bulldogs.

The win was the sixth straight for the Hose and raised their season's record to 17-5 will lack depth if the Mavromat switch is necessary. Back to pace the Hose in this position is blockbuster Ken Webb. Webb, a first-team All-State choice last year, will receive able assistance at fullback, with the presence of hard-running Eddie Brockenbough. If injured Jimmy Nichols gets back into top shape, more depth should be obtained at this position.

Quarterback should be handled by Felder Cook, who has not yet made a spring practice appearance, due to a virus infection. He will be backed up by Bill Aycock. John Hunnicutt and Ron Isger. The latter three are showing much improvement, with Isger having the most experience behind him.

"Me letting my kids down?"

You give your children the best of everything — you advise them, protect them, and share their fun. Can a parent do more?

Yes, there is one other responsibility, easy to overlook. In these years of educational crisis, if you haven't taken an active part in school affairs . . . it's possible you are letting your children down.

Many communities today are faced with local variations of a single nationwide problem: How to cope with the rapid and continuing increase in school enrollments. In some places, the problem takes the form of overcrowded classrooms . . . in others, of a shortage of teachers, or of equipment.

One excellent way you can help insure good schools is by joining your neighbors in community educational conferences. Across the nation, such conferences have found solutions for a wide variety of local school problems — such as financing new equipment . . . adding qualified teachers . . . consolidating schools.

It can be done! Enlightening "case histories" of local school improvement campaigns that worked are yours for the asking. Please indicate the nature of your local school objectives so that we may send you the material that best fits your needs. Write: Better Schools, 2 West 45th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

Religious Emphasis Week Begins Tuesday

Dr John McSween Will Be Speaker for Week's Program

The annual Religious Emphasis Week begins Tuesday morning in chapel when the main speaker, Dr. John McSween, will deliver the first in a series of sermons centered around the theme of "What Seekest Thou?"

The Student Christian Association under the leadership of Bill Dantzler has taken the sponsorship of the week. A group of fifty men has been selected to help in the co-ordination of the religious programs.

Dr. McSween, of Clinton, retired Southern Presbyterian leader, is the featured speaker who will deliver two main addresses to the student body daily. These services will be held at 10:35 in the morning and 7:00 in the evening.

Directing classroom discussion and religious "bull" sessions within the dormitories will be the Rev. Henry P. Mobley, pastor of Rock Hill's Oakland Avenue Presbyterian Church and the Rev. Chalmers F. McCutchen, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Laurens.

Mobley has chosen as his topics for the occasions, "Personality Problems in the Light of Christian Teaching," "Preparation for Marriage," "Basic Christianity," "The A and Z of the Christian Faith," and "Ideal of Brotherhood".

McCutchen will develop his discussion groups around these subjects: "What is a Christian?" "Discovering the Will of God", "A Fumbled Prayer Life", "The Necessity of Confession", "Sin and Forgiveness", and "After Death, What?"

For the benefit of those who wish to come early to the evening worship services, a fifteen-minute song service will be held beginning at 6:45.

At the evening services all fraternity attendance will be checked and a plaque and trophy presented to the group with the highest over-all percentage in attendance.

SCA president Dantzler concluded, "I earnestly hope that every student and faculty member will work and pray that this will be a week of deep spiritual significance, and that we will all find during this experience that Christ is the real answer to all of our needs."

Fifty Men to Meet; Hold REW Banquet

The Kickoff Banquet for Religious Emphasis Week activities will be held at 7:30 P. M. Monday night in Judd Dining Hall. Attending will be the Religious Emphasis Week speakers and the members of the fifty man REW committee, which includes members of the SCA, fraternity presidents, and other key men.

The main speaker for the banquet will be Dr. John McSween, who will tell the fifty PC men how they can help make the week a success.

Scabbard and Blade Taps Twelve Cadets

Victor S. Vierra, Commander of the campus chapter of the Scabbard and Blade, led the tapping ceremonies during the Presbyterian College R.O.T.C. battalion parade held at Johnson Field late this afternoon.

The Scabbard and Blade, a national honorary Military fraternity, composed of distinguished military leaders in the battalion, picked twelve prominent members of the junior class as outstanding cadets.

The following were tapped: cadet MSgts Thomas Reeves, Eugene Butler, Charles Dukes, Perry Hogue, and Felder Cook. Also SFCs Noble Collins, James Hancock, William Hart, and Thomas Warren. In addition were Sgts. Luther Hinson, Don Rickett, and Bruce Thomson.

An honor banquet is to be held tonight at 7:30 P. M. for the newly-selected Scabbard and Blade members and dates. All previous members and R.O.T.C. detachment officers will also attend with their dates or wives.

Radio Forum Room Sets Scene for RE Watches

"Evening Watch" will be held each evening next week at 5:00 P. M. in the Rado Forum Room of Neville Hall. This is a student devotional program for the purpose of furthering the benefits received from Religious Emphasis Week. Each exercise will last approximately ten minutes and will have a student speaker.

"What Seekest Thou?"

T. S. Eliot wrote in "The Wastelands":
"What are the roots that clutch, what branches grow
Out of this stormy rubbish? Son of man,
You cannot say, or guess, for you know only
A heap of broken images, where the sun beats,
And the dead tree gives no shelter, the cricket no relief,
And the dry stone no sound of water."

Is this what this life has meant to you since you have been a member of this Christian college community? Do you have a faith to grasp from which beautiful branches may proceed or do you know only broken dreams, dead forms and the sounds of sadness and sorrow? Many of us are extremely frustrated and unhappy because these things prevail within our lives. When in this frame of mind our lives are nothing but organisms floating helplessly, with each evil force reacting positively upon our every action.

We ask the question, "Is it possible to find a life full of complete joy and beauty?" It is for this reason that the SCA prepares a Religious Emphasis Week each spring. We know that through Christ there is a way for everyone and we want to exemplify this Way and bring it to the surface for each member of the student body. For those of us who have found the Way we hope to be strengthened and for those of us who have not found the Way we hope to find it and enter into the pleasures that it may bring. We must remember that its discovery comes after a diligent search entwined with humble personal prayer, and when it is finally unfolded the joy that it brings passes all understanding. The search and discovery is similar to a child going to his toy box looking for his favorite ball. When he finds that the ball is not there he begins looking everywhere for it and immediatley his small life becomes dark and the predominant force is unhappiness. Soon he finds the ball and the small realm of life within him becomes illuminated with joy. Now that we are men it is possible that we have lost the primary purpose for our being and the search for the discovery of it is incessantly burning within our souls. The period of search is long and tedious with many things steadfastly working against us. After many hours of seeking, the Way is opened and the world becomes our possession. We now have a strong faith to live by, from which will spring beautiful branches of joy and love. The dreams of our life will become a reality, people will become human beings that we love with all our hearts and every sound will seem to be absolute and eloquent.

Religious Emphasis Week is for ev[ery] ber of the student body. There are ma[ny] student body who have found the Way, b[ut] are many who are still searching and [it] seems to be in vain. Will you enter int[o] right frame of mind, striving to make [it] completely for Christ on our campus? have found the Way strive to strengthe[n] Christian life and help someone else to [do] to the joy with you. If you have not fo[und] Way then seek industriously with all yo[ur] to find it during the week. Through [your] ciation with these wonderful men of G[od] ing to us and through your private pr[ayer] the Lord will open it unto you. You will a more forceful member of our student b[ody] make Presbyterian College an institution [of] Christ is preeminent.

This week can make our college str[onger] every aspect, and our student body one [in] every member has found his purpose in [life] a fellow student I would like to ask you [to] the Week your wholehearted support, [and] for a better college, a better student bo[dy] most of all, a better YOU.

Hot O' Rudy Heads for Home

By LYMAN HARRIS

Last weekend Hot O'Rudy asked me to go with him, so Saturday we took off after lunch. We hitch-hiked down the road about fifty miles, rode through the mountains about five miles more on pack mule, crawled two miles through a sewer pipe, and swung the rest of the way in by grape vine.

Hot O. lived on a hill in the middle of some thick woods in a log house with a long front porch.

I asked him, "Man, how in the world did you happen to come to PC? I don't see how you ever even heard of it." He said, "Well, my maw read about Erskine College in a Sears and Roebuck Catalog and she wanted me to go there. My grandmaw wanted me to go to Citadel. My grandpaw wanted me to go to PC. My paw just wanted me to go."

"I didn't know where I wanted to go. One night I heard they were having a movie down the creek not far from here. So I went. The name of it was "Our Presbyterian College" (spliced and ruined by Cecil B. DeHammit)... They showed the movie, then Dr. Brown made a tearful speech, and then they locked the doors and passed a pot around for money. That night I decided to come to PC."

It was Hot O'Rudy's grandpaw who had first told him about PC, so I told Hot O. I would like to meet him. We went into his house, and there, sitting in front of the fireplace was an old man who looked just like Hot O. except his face was more wrinkled, his hair was grayer, and his ducktails were thinner. He wore pegged overalls, a shirt made out of a Vigoro sack, and long handled drawers. Hot O'Rudy introduced him to me as Otey P. College, his maw's paw.

I asked him how he happened to know about PC. He leaned back, spit in the fire, and while it sizzled on the logs he began his story. "Well, boy, back when I wuz about your age, back in them days when a bull moose wuz a bull moose, I joined the U. S. Cavalry. They sent me to Smith's Raiders at Fort Woof-Woof in Clinton, S. C.

'Stonewall Smith was the head of the fort. You may have heard some tales about Smith always riding a jackass into battle."

Hot O. said, "Yeah, Smith and the jackass are both still at PC."

Grandpaw Oley said, "Don't interrupt me, boy. You're making an asp of yourself. If it's anything I can't stand, it's an impertinent freshman."

"Wall, ole Stonewall had as his aides a couple of fellows named Crisco and Gabby Hay.

"There was always plenty going on at Fort Woof-Woof. On weekends we used to go to Charley's Saloon for a round of rum until a prohibitionist sheriff named Anderson was elected in those parts. You could buy anything else you might want in the trading post owned by an old Indian named Wampum Baker."

"I remember some of the cavalry songs we sang. There was "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon", and "V-i-c-k-i-e M-o-u-s-e, Vickie Mouse? Donald Cris Duck? Who's the leader of our Club?"

I left on that one.

Well, it's here at last! The weekend that all the co-eds [are] living and breathing for. You have never seen so much prep[aration] For weeks every angle has been covered down to the slightest [detail]

After deciding on which dress, there are the shoes and jewelry to decide on. You would think it was a case of life and death. "Do these ear-bobs look all right or would the others do better." After much trying on and changing it is decided that it would be better to buy some new ones.

"I wonder if I will be able to wear these heels. What if I'm taller than he is? I suppose I'll have to wear flats, he's so short. Do you think I can dance in these shoes?" And now for the hair-do

'I would like something new and stylish, something that will cause people to look." (Don't kid yourself, they are just trying to recognize you.) You can try a new style that flops in your face or a new job that is piled high, but you would do better to wear your same old style and be yourself.

Every nail and hanger in the house is in use, holding some lovely ball gown or a cocktail dress. "Dazzling Dot" will be decked out in her beautiful lavender. I know Dot liked the spring of the year best, but I didn't know it was because the "Sapp" rises in the trees.

ome of the Presbyterian College students showed some of the t sportsmanship I have ever witnessed after the Blue Hose lost on last Wednesday night. The students were mighty riled up about the incident and many of us never forget it when the name Wofford is mentioned.

If we had been playing on the Elon home court we would very obably have taken the nets if we had won. We might have receiv- opposition from the Elon student body, but we would not expect r this is a custom as old as the game of basketball itself.

LITTLE FOUR TOURNEY

The Blue Hose of PC showed some of the spirit that they are fa- s for by sticking it out to the last in both of their games in the le Four Tournament in Anderson last weekend. The Hose, by sistent effort and never-say-die spirit, came from a 12-point defi- in the Wofford game to send the game into an overtime period ch proved victorious for PC.

The fine support given the team by members of the PC student y should by no means be underestimated. It was definitely a big or in both of the Blue Hose victories. The students of PC were y loyal to their team and they showed it by turning out in force the games.

THREE HOSE NAMED TO TOURNEY TEAM

Three of the members of the PC team were named to positions on All-Tourney team. They were center Bruce Thompson, forward e Thompson, and Captain and guard Bill Toole. Bruce Thomp- was definitely the most valuable player in the tournament and in st people's opinion best-all-around.

Bruce scored a total of 73 points for the two games and his re- nding was one of the most important aspects of his game. He ed only two of his 21 free throw attempts which is better than ellent.

Dave Thompson played an excellent brand of ball throughout the rnament. His hustle and team spirit were something to be ad- ed by anyone. Captain Bill Toole was the best floor man seen ing the two nights of action. He is a very capable team leader and a very valuable team man. All in all the best team won.

Elon Downs Hose To Take Kansas Bid

The Elon Christians of the North State Conference gained the right to represent District 26 of the NAIA in the national tournament in Kansas City next week by defeating the Presbyterian College Blue Hose 84-79 here last Wednesday night. The Elon win snapped a Hose winning streak of ten games.

The game was nip and tuck all during the first half with Elon taking a slim 40-39 lead at halftime. The Christians raised this lead to seven points early in the second half and the Hose never overtook them although they came within one point.

The Hose were way below their team shooting average hitting only 40.5 per cent of their shots, while Elon hit on 52 per cent of their shots. The Blue Hose outscored the Christians in field goals but the difference came at the foul line.

Four of the Hose hit in the double figures while five of the Elon players cracked the double figure mark. Center Bruce Thompson led the Hose with 27 points while forward Dave Thompson hit for 20. Forward Dee Atkinson led the Christians with 16.

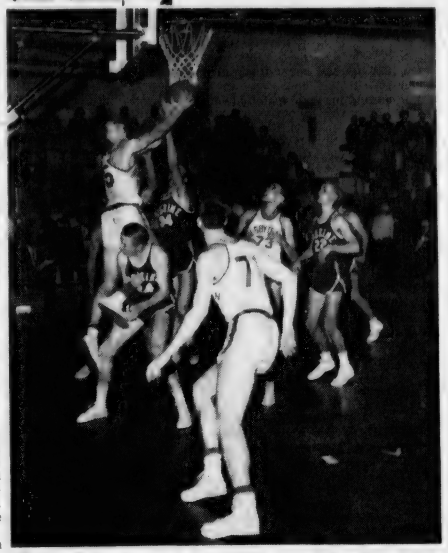
Hose Top EC In NAIA Playoff Game

Center Bruce Thompson paced the Presbyterian College Blue Hose to a 106-84 victory over East Carolina in a NAIA District 26 playoff game. Thompson took scoring honors with 36 points as the Hose gained their tenth straight victory and topped the century mark for the tenth time this season.



The victory advanced PC to the finals against Elon of the North State Conference who eliminated Erskine 81-69. The game is scheduled to be played at Clinton.

Presbyterian's Dave Thompson added 30 points to the Hose total and captain Bill Toole added another 19. The Blue Hose outscored EC 41-31 in field goals.

East Carolina jumped off to an early lead but the Hose came back to lead 57-48 at the half. EC never got closer than five points during the remainder of the game.

Scenes like this got to be a regular habit during PC's highly successful basketball season. Bruce Thompson, as usual, is shown doing the honors.

Hose Take Crown In L-F Tournament

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose defeated the Erskine Flying Fleet 91-90 to take the laurels in the Little Four tournament held in Anderson this past weekend. The game was tied up at 45-45 at the half after the two teams had played nip and tuck ball.

The second half was a nip and tuck affair with both teams gaining temporary leads throughout the period. The Blue Hose held leads twice in the late stages of the game only to see them vanish.

With approximately three minutes left to play the Hose grabbed an 88-80 lead and the game seemed to be sewed up. Erskine came storming from behind to catch PC and to take a three point advantage with 23 seconds remaining.

Fleet guard Eddie Rice missed a foul shot to give the Hose possession of the ball. PC scored and with less than five seconds remaining forward Ralph Moore was awarded a free throw. The Hose grabbed the rebound when Moore missed his shot.

Forward Arnold Stone fired a shot and center Bruce Thompson grabbed the rebound and fired in the winning basket. The final buzzer sounded before the ball had passed through the net. Stone had just previously kept the PC hopes alive by sinking two quick field goals.

Bruce Thompson led the Hose to victory with 35 points, 23 of them coming in the first half of play. Clayton Adams added 20. The flying Fleet was led by guard Darrell Storm and Moore with 29 and 25 points respectively.

Hose Edge Terriers; Thompson High Scorer

Presbyterian College overcame a 12-point deficit in the second half to defeat the Wofford Terriers and advance to the Little Four finals in a game that went into overtime. The regulation game ended at 89-89 but the Hose scored quick baskets in the overtime to lead all the way and wrap up the victory by a score of 103-102.

Wofford led for almost the entire first half and left the floor at halftime with a 52-44 lead. The Terriers scored two at the start of the second half to grab a 12 point lead. PC then began a spurt drive that put them ahead 67-64 with seven minutes remaining.

Wofford then tied it at 80-80, but the Hose pushed to another five point lead. Wofford then went ahead of the Hose but PC managed a tie in the regulation game.

The Hose dominated play in the overtime period to grab a quick lead, and they held on until time ran out although Wofford staged a terrific comeback.

Center Bruce and forward Dave Thompson sparked the win for the Blue Hose. Bruce scored 38 and Dave 20. PC's captain and playmaker Bill Toole added 17.

Twitty Carpenter and Donnie Fowler led the Terriers with 26 points each.

Hose Ready for Horsehide Season; Five Lettermen Returning to Squad

By LARRY BROWN

The 1956 baseball season is rapidly approaching, and the Blue Hose diamond aces are hard at work daily preparing for their opening game at Catawba Mar. 19. Only five lettermen are returning from last year's squad, and Coach Jerry Wampfler is searching diligently for replacements.

Richard Shrigley and Jimmy Newsome should divide chores behind the plate. Both are big and considerable hitting power should be supplied by these backstoppers.

Much hustle is being shown in the fight for infield positions and any of the candidates could move into a starting role. Tap Tobias and Ted Leahy are vieing for a starting position at the initial sack. Both are fielding their position well but need to sharpen their hitting.

Veteran Tommy Reeves seems to have the inside track for opening day duty at the second sack. Small, agile, and fast, Reeves is one of the better Blue Hose glovemen.

Bill Yearick and speedy Tony Benson are battling at the shortstop position. Benson hits the ball well while Yearick handles the defensive side of the picture like a veteran. Cecil Geddings is leading the way at third, but freshman Ray Hodge is offering plenty of opposition.

The outfielders are led by returnee Dee Parker. Freshman Danny Williams has impressed coach Wampfler and could very easily move into a starting position. Other men who are showing promise in the outer gardens are Don Segrest, Herb Entrekin, Mitch Mavromat, and Jerry Yoder.

Wampfler pointed out that pitching will be the team's strongest weapon when the opening game rolls around. Leland Brown and "Lefty" Johnson lead a nucleus of strong hurlers. Johnny Tennant has looked very sharp along with returnee Charlie Malpass and newcomer Blair Norris.

An attractive 26-game schedule has been arranged for the Hose which will take them to Florida to do battle with some of the country's finest teams such as Rollins, Stetson, and Florida Southern.

At present the team is very green, but with the hustle and talent being displayed daily the Blue Hose baseballers should round into a sharp unit and should show up well against all opponents.

He was elected chairman for another term recently by vote of the board.

Approximately 100 leaders are expected to attend the occasion. In addition to the regional and area chairmen, the pastors of each church and a key man from each of their congregations will be on hand to assist in the planning for this Diamond Jubilee Development program.

Five Ministers Selected to Receive Honorary DD Degrees This June

At the annual meeting of the Presbyterian College Board of Trustees, five ministers were selected to be awarded honorary Doctor of Divinity degrees by the college on June 3-4, President Marshall W. Brown announced.

The board also approved the recommendation that G. Edward Campbell, now serving as registrar, be appointed business manager to succeed Mrs. George W. Taylor, who has resigned after twelve years as bursar to return to the mission field. A resolution commending Mrs. Taylor for her outstanding service to PC was given a rising vote of approval.

The college board of trustees named these men to receive honorary degrees: The Reverends Isaac M. Bagnal, of Bennettsville; William J. Hazlewood, of Decatur, Ga.; Bonneau H. Dickson, of Atlanta, Ga.; James McDowell Dick, of Raleigh, N. C.; and Ted Jones, of Columbia. All are Presbyterian College alumni except Jones.

Four of the five men selected are Presbyterian ministers. Bagnal is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Bennettsville; Hazlewood, the Columbia Presbyterian Church of Decatur; Dickson, the Rock Springs Presbyterian Church of Atlanta; and Jones serves as director of religious education for the Synod of South Carolina. Dick, pastor of the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd of Raleigh for the past 20 years, was chosen because of his outstanding service as an alumnus in this work.

The Rev. Harry K. Holland, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Marietta, Ga., was re-elected chairman of the board of trustees to serve another year. Robert M. Vance and J. Ferdinand Jacobs, Sr., both of Clinton, also were re-elected to their offices as vice-chairman and secretary respectively.

At some future date, the trustees plan to look to an expansion of facilities for men and women when increased financial support makes such action feasible.

The proposed budget for the the coming year was tentatively adopted but the executive committee was instructed to give it further study toward seeking increased revenues with which to raise faculty salaries. Liberal tuition arrangements were made for the children of faculty members who attend PC.

Neville Elected New Secretary of Synod

Allen Johnson of Clinton, junior at the University of South Carolina, was elected Moderator of the Synod of South Carolina at the annual Westminster Fellowship Conference. Other officers elected were Grace Foster of Winthrop, Vice Moderator; Lee De Coste of Furman, Treasurer; Tenant Neville of Presbyterian College, Secretary; and Roy Williams of USC, Editor.

Over 100 collegiate Presbyterian leaders representing 13 colleges and universities throughout the state were present for the conference which was held at Columbia's First Presbyterian Church last weekend.

PC had the largest delegation at the Conference (twenty-one) besides Carolina who were the official local hosts. Edward Hay was Moderator for this year's conference.

Seniors, Take Notice

Students who expect to graduate in June, 1956, should complete a form in the registrar's office before Friday, Mar. 23, Registrar G. Edward Campbell announced last Wednesday.

Campbell stated that all men who expect to graduate at this time must complete this form or their names can not be included on the diploma order.

Funds Still Rising In Atlanta Jubilee Drive

The Presbyterian College Diamond Jubilee Development Program sailed over the $300,000 mark this week as the Atlanta region recorded a total of $100,000 at its fourth meeting last Tuseday night.

A final cleanup meeting for Atlanta is scheduled for Mar. 25, and in the meantime, preparations moved ahead for the campaign in four other areas.

Thus far, $319,654 has been reported in the first four months of the campaign which seeks $750,000 for Presbyterian College from its two controlling Synods of Georgia and South Carolina during the first year of a long-range $2,000,000 development program.

In addition to the $100,000 from 822 subscribers in Atlanta, an average of $122 per gift, a total of $218,000 has been solicited in the home area of Laurens and Newberry counties and in the form of several early special gifts elsewhere.

As the campaign continues, the Augusta-Aiken regions are well along in organizational efforts with the captain's dinner scheduled for 7:00 P. M. tonight. The total organization dinner is set for the following Friday night, and the Diamond Jubilee dinner for these two regions will be held on Mar. 28.

Two other regions, the important Greenville and Spartanburg areas, will also begin setting their leadership committees next week.

The Atlanta region, in its fourth report meeting added more than $25,000 to its previous mark to bring its total thus far to $100,100. The seven leading churches in total amount given are: Trinity, $12,825; Peachtree Road, $11,832; Central, $11,200; First Church of Atlanta, $7,973; First Church of Marietta, $7,062; First Church of Decatur, $6,540; and Memorial Drive Presbyterian Church, $5,268.

Federal Inspection of Military is Scheduled

The annual Federal Inspection of the college's military department will be held next Wednesday and Thursday, Mar. 21 and 22. The inspection will cover all phases of military training and administration here at PC, including drill, classes, a parade, and administration and supply.

The inspection team consists of three officers. They are Col. James E. Williams, president; Lt. Col. Luther O. Hinson; and Major Richard W. Kimball, all infantry officers.

The team will inspect the cadet corps in rank on Wednesday morning at drill period. At the Thursday drill they will observe squad, platoon, and company drill. The uniform for both mornings will be Class "A" with white webbing.

Classes of all four years of Military Science will be inspected by the officers. MS III and MS IV classes will be inspected Wednesday, and MS I and MS II classes Thursday. The last twenty minutes of each class will be turned over to the inspector, who will question the cadets on some phase of instruction already covered this year. Students in MS IV-b are reminded that the class will meet at 10:45 Wednesday instead of the usual time of 11:20 because of a special Chapel program that day.

Inspection of the military administration and supply will be made during the two days. All records and papers will be checked at that time.

To wind up the cadet's part in the inspection will be a ceremonial battalion parade on Johnson Field on Thursday afternoon. The cadets will fall in at 1:15 and the Adjutant's call on the parade grounds will be at 1:30.

Lt. Col. F. V. Smith, PMST, stated that Presbyterian's unit had shown up fine in all previous inspections this year, and that he wanted the cadets to demonstrate their fine degree of perfection in this final inspection of the year. He urged that all cadets have their uniforms pressed, brass and shoes shined, and haircuts gotten prior to Wednesday.

"Here am I, Send Me"

Chapel period today brought another Religious Emphasis Week to a close. Dr. McSween has laid a charge directly on the hearts of every man who heard him; Mr. Mobley and Mr. McCutchen have done a highly commendable job of extending the spirit of Religious Emphasis into the classrooms, dormitories, and into the fraternity rooms. Bill Dantzler and the Senior Cabinet of the Student Christian Association deserve a show of gratitude from everyone who took advantage of their excellent choice of speakers and for their high degree of effective organization. All in all, the aims of the Religious Emphasis Week can be said to have been met in most cases. Now that the week is over and the speakers have done their job and returned to their individual ministries, the real outcome of the week is left to us: the students, faculty, and visitors who took part in the services. If we do not do our parts, then the spirit of the week might just as well have been cut off with the lights in the chapel.

All preparations, all services, all prayers have been almost in vain if we do not seize upon the portion that we have gained from the week, and by nurturing each individual portion and applying it in our campus life, thereby sustain the inquisitive attitudes that are aroused in a great number of students in this week of spiritual emphasis.

If the strength of these awakened students were to be added to the weight of those to whom the spirit of Religious Emphasis Week is an every-day matter, then PC would become more of a Christian college instead of merely a Church-affiliated school. "What seekest thou?" A better life, a better man, a better Presbyterian College.

Hot O. Rudy Goes Dragnet

By LYMAN HARRIS

Monday night and it was quiet in my room for a change. Hot O'Rudy had become interested in writing crime stories and he was spending the evening with the Clinton Police to get ideas. I leaned back in my chair and thought about how good it was to feel a desk under my feet again.

But it must have been the quiet before the storm, because I just got good and comfortable when Hot O. came barreting through the door without bothering to open it. He stopped long enough to pick the splinters off his coat, then grabbed his typewriter and started pounding away at about seventy words a minute. When he stopped typing and brought his story over to read to me, smoke was pouring out of his typewriter.

He said, "How's this?" and began reading his story.

"The story you are about to read is true. Only the names have been changed to protect the innocent. (namely me)."

"This is the city, Clinton. It's a big city. My job is to protect it. My name is Brass; I'm a copper."

Monday, Mar. 13, 10:45 P.M. I was working night watch out of homicide when a call came in from the chief. He had a case for me. We drank the case and went back to work."

"It had been just another night. At 9:20 I had to go out and break up a mob that was gathering at Presbyterian College. They were planning to go behind the chow hall and tear down the rice paddy. It was a paddy raid."

"At 9:30 I had to go back out to Presbyterian College to check on an explosion. One of the water closets had been blown up. It was an inside job.

At 9:40 I had to break up another mob at Presbyterian College. A gang of boys were on the plaza burning blue handbooks and green handbooks. Other boys were trying to put them out by throwing gasoline on them."

10:45, I got a tip off that a Mr. X (the names have been changed to protect the innocent) had a basement that needed to be raided. I decided to handle the case myself.

At 11:50 I set out. I jumped into my car and started it. I knew I was in trouble. I can't drive."

At 11:58 I arrived at the home of Mr. X and looked into his basement. The floor was covered with pinball machines and the walls were covered with pin-ups."

I went to the front door and knocked and Mr. X answered. I said, "How do you do sir. My name is Brass—homicide. I'd like to ask you a few questions and see your basement if it's all right with you, sir."

Mr. X spoke, "Mmmm, I do not want to check my basement. There would be nothing there to hide. I believe that's all."

I spoke again, "That's fine. That's my job. Now, if you will show me to the door—"

Mr. X slammed the door in my face and made a dash for the back. He jumped into his car and for about a hundred yards I tried to jump a barbed wire fence but didn't make it. The car got away but I found his hide-out, went back, cuffed him and took him in to headquarters."

"Friday, February 13, Mr. X was tried by the state of Alabama, found guilty of arson and sentenced to ten years of hard labor."

Watch Out for Your Toes, Gals, It's True

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

I guess it takes all kinds to make a college campus, but I don't believe there ever was or ever will be quite a conglomeration as the one which makes up "dear ole P College." After an extensive survey of a few hundred co-eds on this gigantic campus, I have found the following types of boys to be the most outstanding.

First, there is your "Playboy Pal". He is your buddy—but as long as he is around or wants a ride home on the weekends, but when he's with someone else it's a different story. The little tune he sings is quite different when he's not in a tight spot or needs a helping hand.

Next on the popularity (?) poll is what the co-eds call a "Snow-King". He considers himself Mr. Big and expects all the fair damsels to bow in his tread. He doesn't understand when some strong hearted gal doesn't jump to his every wish and whim. He hasn't dated more than 150 girls in the last four months, leaving behind enough shafts to paper a room. Who cares about the other party as long as he gets what he wants.

Up steps little "Joe College" himself. "Joe" is not a bad sort of guy, except he thinks he is the campus hero. He plays football, baseball, basketball, golf, tennis, and water polo, to name a few. He is a big fraternity man and if he isn't a senior, he soon will be. "Joe" is the kind that has so many girls coming to the dance that he has to import boys to take care of the extras. The girls are usually freshmen in high school or somewhere in that vicinity.

The next type is a co-eds dream —"The Perfect Gentleman". He is not entirely extinct on this campus. In fact, there are quite a few. You don't have to be a sissy to be a gentleman. Every girl likes a boy who is considerate and thoughtful.

The boys aren't the only ones who make up the campus, though. There are different types of girls, too. To name a few, there are "Silent Sal", the campus glamour girl, and "Miss Popularity Plus". You would actually be surprised at "Silent Sal" if you could get to know her. She can talk! But, getting to know her is like carrying on a conversation with a Dragon.

There is no one like the campus glamour girl. She is a living doll (crocidole) in HER estimation. She doesn't hesitate to ask anyone if they don't think she resembles Miss Universe or some other dazzling beauty.

"Miss Popularity Plus" has so many boy friends that she hasn't even met some of them yet. There is one at the "Cow College", one at "Wooford", one at "Lina" and goodness knows how many here. She said she can't even count them. I just hope she isn't planning to add that boy in the blue plaid shirt to her list.

TENNIS SEASON OPENS

The Presbyterian College tennis team traveled to Florida this past ...ek to open their current campaign. The Hose will return to their ...me grounds Monday for a two-week home stand. This writer would like to predict that this year's team will com...le one of the best if not the best record in the history of this school ...d that the team will rank well up amnog the top collegiate tennis ...wers in the nation.

BASEBALL PROSPECTS LOOK GOOD

The outlook for the Blue Hose baseball team this year is the best ...the past few seasons. The schedule that has been arranged for the ...ose nine is tough, but the hustle and determination that has been ...own so far in practice indicates that the Blue Hose will be in the ...attle all the way in an attempt to ring up a successful record.

The Blue Hose open their schedule Monday when they travel to ...allsbury, N. C., to meet Catawba College. They will also meet Da...dson and Belmont Abbey before returning to Clinton for their first ...me game of the season on Friday when they entertain the diamond ...en from Furman.

This year's schedule consists of seven home games and four games ...thin easy traveling distance. The response to baseball in the past ...s not been very active. This year's schedule offers the students of ...C a good chance to see their team in action. With a little support ...om the student body this ball club could be one of the best of the ...ast few years.

King of the NEW frontier.

Even b'ar killers need protection, Master Crockett. Seven million youngsters got the first Salk polio vaccine in 1955. Your March of Dimes funds developed this vaccine, tested it, provided the first shots within days after it was proclaimed safe and effective. Now, March of Dimes research is making it even more effective. But we must still remember those, born too soon to be protected by the vaccine, who still need care and those tens of thousands who will be stricken in polio epidemics before the vaccine is made even more effective.

PC Racketeers Down Rollins 8-1

The Presbyterian College net team downed a strong Rollins team 8-1 last Tuesday. The Hose were led by No. 1 Allen Morris who walloped Memo Garcia 6-0, 6-1. The match was the second for PC on their current Florida trip.

Rollins, in their opening match of the season, were forced to play without the services of their No. 1 man. Ben Sobieraj does not become eligible for athletics until next week.

Guy Filosof became the only Rollins winner of the day by downing Dick Macatee 6-0, 6-3. The PC team moved on to Miami for matches on Thursday and Friday.

Clemson Drops Hose In Last Week's Rifle Tilt

PC's rifle team closed its regular intercollegiate season Friday, Mar. 9, when they dropped a match to the riflemen of Clemson College 1840-1821. Phil Cannela set a new school record for individual firing when he registered 380 points against the Tiger triggermen.

Presbyterian's rifle team won first place in a conference composed of teams from PC, Furman, and Wofford. PC ended conference play with a 3-1 record and was tied with Furman for first place. The Presbyterians were declared conference champions, however, by virtue of the high total points they scored in conference competition.

Time Trials for Cindermen Slated

The Presbyterian College track team will hold time trials tomorrow at 2:00 P. M. in preparation for the rapidly approaching dual meet with the University of South Carolina next Tuesday at Columbia. The Hose, hampered by inclement weather in the past month, have been rather slow rounding into shape this year.

Coach Lonnie MacMillian says that the weather thus far trackwise has been the worst in the long history of the team. The time trials will determine just how the Hosemen will line up in their encounter with the powerful Gamecock tracksters.

During the past week the team has begun to slowly round into shape, and in the dash events and hurdles PC should give USC a battle royal for the first positions. The question mark still remains in the distance, middle distance, and field events. If these positions can come through the team will be strengthened considerably.

The Gamecocks of the powerful Atlantic Coast Conference have full depth at every position and boast of a well rounded team for this year's campaign. If the good weather continues the Hose should be able to present a formidable team that will be able to make a strong showing against the mighty Gameroosters.

Tennis Team Begins Home Stand Monday

The Presbyterian College tennis team begins a seven-game home stand Monday when they return home from their invasion of Florida. The Hose have begun what looks to be their most successful season under the tutelage of coach Jim Leighton.

PC will entertain Kings College in a double-header here Monday and then take on Erskine Friday. March 26th the Terriers of Wofford will invade the home of the Blue Hose. The Hose will play host to Cornell University in a double-header the 27th and 28th before winding up their home stand against High Point College here March 29th.

The Blue Hose lineup consists of: No. 1, Allen Morris, ranked 16th nationally; No. 2, John Brownlow; No. 3, Dick Macatee; No. 4, Guice Potter; No. 5, Harvey Jackson; and No. 6, Jim Shakespeare. They are backed up by Gene Gee and Scott Watson.

PC Is Beaten By Miami, 6-3

University of Miami's tennis team ran its three-year win string to 50 today with a 6-3 triumph over Presbyterian College of Clinton, S. C.

Allen Morris of Presbyterian defeated Johann Kupferburger of Miami 6-4, 3-6, 7-5. Guice Potter of Presbyterian turned back David Harum, 614, 6-2.

Results of other matches:
Al Harum, Miami, defeated John Brownlow, 6-0, 6-1; Allen Quay, Miami, defeated Dic Macatee, 6-0, 6-3; Ed Rubinoff, Miami, won from Harvey Jackson, 9-7, 6-2; and Larry Shaffer, Miami, defeated Jim Shakespeare, 6-3, 6-2.

Linksmen Will Embark on Their Roughest Thirteen Game Schedule in Many Years

The 1956 Presbyterian College golf team is about to embark on a tough thirteen match schedule that is unmatched by any of the lineups of the past years. This season the golfers are teeing off with a spirit and exuberance that the sport has long lacked here at PC.

Pacing the Blue Hose this year are four veterans backed up by a nucleus of fine stroking newcomers. Robert Odum and Warren Mayes, both of whom have two year's of college competition behind them, will co-captain the golfers.

Odum, tall and lean, hits a long ball, that will be hard to equal in any match this spring, and can be counted on to come through when the chips are down. Mayes, on the other hand, is a good steady golfer, who will be a real toughy on the iron shots from off the green.

In recent practice matches the affable co-captains have both been playing par golf with great consistency, and should win their share of matches when the season begins. Other returnees from last year's squad include Gene Mabe and Waldo Dodson. Mabe is one of the squad's better putters and considerable strength down the line.

Freshman Albert Copelan from Mooresville, N. C., has shown promise of being a bright spot in the Hose lineup in pre-season matches. Copelan is a good, steady golfer, and recently shot a creditable 74.

Newcomers Ray Griffeth and John MacBride round out the squad and are going to be counted on heavily to help push the Hose into golfing prominence this season. The PC linksmen will dive head-on into their schedule on March 20, when they play the Furman University golfers a visit at Greenville.

Civil Service Offer

The Blue Stocking periodically receives from the United States Civil Service Commission in Washington, D. C., announcements of examinations for positions in the various fields of the civil service work.

These announcements along with a list of examination centers, are regularly posted on the bulletin board in the Blue Stocking office on the second floor of the SCA building and are available to the Student Body.

Early Application For PC Suggested

Presbyterian young people who plan to attend Presbyterian College next fall are urged to make application as soon as possible.

Registrar G. Edward Campbell announced that applications for admittance to the 1956-57 session are coming in well ahead of last year and that dormitory accommodations are being filled rapidly. He pointed out further that in the past few years the student capacity had been reached by early June.

A new dormitory, which opened last September, enabled PC to increase its capacity during the past year, with the result that the present session began with a record enrollment of 509 students. Even so, almost 30 per cent of the 1955-56 applicants failed to meet the academic requirements for admittance.

Dr. Gibson to Speak At Augusta Meeting

• Choir Will Offer Music

Dr. Arthur Vann Gibson, pastor of Atlanta's Morningside Presbyterian Church, is scheduled to deliver the main address to the total organization meeting of the Presbyterian College Diamond Jubilee Development Program in Augusta this Friday night.

Some 175 Presbyterian leaders of the Augusta and Aiken regions are expected to assemble for the occasion. The meeting will be held in the Forest Hill Grammar School at 7:00 P.M.

This meeting will culminate the work of building a campaign organization to raise $48,000 for Presbyterian College in the Augusta-Aiken area.

Volunteer workers are to select the pledge cards of the prospects they will contact, and general solicitations will get underway immediately after the Diamond Jubilee celebration next Wednesday night.

Several Administration representatives, as well as the PC Robed Choir, will travel to Augusta for this 75th Anniversary party.

Leadership for this campaign is being provided by four outstanding Presbyterians in the area. The Augusta region co-chairmen are: Earl C. Hollingsworth, Sr., head of Hollingsworth's Unusual Candies, and the Rev. Robert Strong, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Augusta. The Aiken co-chairmen are: Andrew J. Cothran, prominent Aiken businessman, and the Rev. J. Luke Goodwin, pastor of the Aiken Presbyterian Church.

Attending the Friday night meeting will be representatives of eighteen Presbyterian Churches in the Augusta region, which has set a goal of $36,000; and nine churches in the Aiken region, with a goal of $12,000.

These objectives are part of an over-all development program which seeks $750,000 for Presbyterian College from its controlling Synods of Georgia and South Carolina during 1956.

Immediate needs of the college to be provided for through this drive are a new chapel-auditorium, student center, and increased endowment.

Dr. Gibson, the main speaker for Friday night, has been pastor of the Morningside Presbyterian Church of Atlanta since 1943. Prior to that date, he served the Sanford, N. C. Presbyterian Church for ten years, and the Westminster Church of Whiteville, N. C., for six years.

The successful development program in Atlanta which is now drawing to a close was co-sponsored by Dr. Gibson, who was its co-chairman.

Presbyterians in 16 communities of Spartanburg, Union and Cherokee counties will be asked to contribute the $60,000.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Editorials : Features : Humor

"To Thine Own Self Be True"

A disturbing act has been brought to the attention of The Blue Stocking editor and staff: there have been no recent trials of dishonest and intemperate students by the Student Council. We have very good reasons to refute the belief that the council has been inattentive to their controlling powers; the main cause, and this is a more unsettling discovery, is the failure of the student body at large to support the Honor System of the college.

This failure is the greater because laxity of the Student Council could be laid to the ineffectiveness of a few men, while the apathy of the students means that the Honor System in its entirety is useless.

This is not just a spur-of-the-moment editorial designed to fill up space in this paper. There is a definite need for this issue to be brought before the student body as a whole, since the support of the Honor System rests solely in their hands.

One of the highest compliments that can be paid the student body of any school is that it supports an effective honor system. The reason is obvious, since such an accomplishment requires the individual attention of every student, and is therefore an outward sign of the pride taken in the school by the students and the character of the students themselves.

By the same token, a student body that professes to have an honor code, yet does not support it, throws a dishonorable and apathetic caste on the name of the entire school. All of the fund-raising campaigns, all of the new-student programs, every function carried on in the name of the school will be counted as ridiculous by the persons who are asked for help. This is logical, for if the character of the student body is not in accord with the claims in the institution's literature, then persons not acquainted with the school would naturally lay the responsibility for the failure to the Administration and Faculty, which charge we know to be erroneous.

So much for theory, since our problem must be dealt with as soon as possible with concrete action. Since the lack of action has been caused by the students themselves and not by the dis-interest of the Student Council or by a loophole in the Honor System, then there must be an awakening on their part, and "their part" must be taken to mean your part.

You, as a student of this school, bear the name and impression of PC wherever you go. Every smear on the name of Presbyterian College, even though it might have been caused by the immaturity of one or two students, will rest by association on your name.

This is not meant to be a challenge for an all-out Police Action, it is meant to serve as a reminder to the student body that we have no place for anyone who wishes to pose as a student merely to forestall the grim reality of having to find himself a job.

Hot O. Takes the Cake

By LYMAN HARRIS

I opened the door to my room and walked in. The curtains were pulled to and the room was dark. Hot O'Rudy popped his head out from under his bed and hollered, "Lyman, quick! Shut that door and lock it!" I locked the door and Hot O. crawled out from under the bed.

I asked, "What's the matter with you, Hot O.?" He answered, "Was anybody in the hall when you came in?" I said, "No, why? What's going on?" Hot O. grabbed me by the arm and whispered in my ear, "I got a package from home, and I think it's f-o-o-d. I don't want that bum down the hall, Freddy Freeloader, to know about it. That fat slob can inhale more food than I can eat."

Freddy Freeloader was a first class college bum. He was the kind who didn't have anything in his room but a desk and a bed, and who borrowed everything he needed. He could come in a room borrowing things and leave it as stripped as a field in India after a locust swarm.

He even asked Hot O. if he could borrow his tooth brush one day. Hot O. said, "You mean you would brush your teeth with my tooth brush?" Freddy explained that he wasn't going to brush his teeth with it, he was going to clean his rifle.

Freddy was the kind of fellow that Hot O. despised, because Hot O. was tight and came from a family that had been tight since way back. Hot O.'s paw was so tight that he had made Hot O.'s sister get married in their back yard, so the chickens could get the rice.

Hot O. limped over to a chair with his package. (Hot O. had a limp because of an accident a few weeks ago. He was standing in front of the bulletin board when Doc Frazer posted the notice that new materials were available for his "Christian Life" handbook, and his left foot was crushed in the stampede to Doc's office after the new materials.)

Hot O. unwrapped his package and whispered, "Hot dog! Cake!" The minute he said cake, we heard a chair scrape down the hall and the hoofbeats of Freddy Freeloader running to our room. Hot O. heard him too, so he slid the package back under his bed, opened his desk drawer and pulled out two toothpicks. He stuck one in my mouth and one in his. He whispered, "Act like we just finished it off."

Freddy dashed into the room with a hungry look in his eye, and shouted, "Where's that cake I heard you talking about?" Hot O. laughed fiendishly and said, "Too late, Doughbelly. We just finished it." Freddy tearfully turned and walked out slowly. Hot O. said, "He knows I can't stand to see a grown man cry. Come back, Freddy, and I'll give you some."

Freddy said, "I knew you had a soft place in your heart for me."

Freddy and his roomo, Ben Smirnoff, are quite a pair. His roomo is an alcoholic. We used to think he was just punchy and maybe a little sick, until one morning we caught him blowing the foam off his medicine and then we knew the truth.

Doctors warned him to quit drinking, if he wanted to live a long life but he argued that there are more old drunks around than old doctors. The doctors finally convinced him that he should cut down on his drinking so he switched from Four Roses to Three Feathers.

They were a pair of typical college students.

Till the End of Time

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

There are many things which set aside Presbyterian C any other college. Everyone has his gripes and complaints all it is a second home and some people wouldn't be happy
So here's that P C will last till the end of time.

It would have to be the end of time if you could see Dr. Brown walking down the plaza with his hands not behind his back or Miss Burts not giving a hand signal when she turned a corner. What if Dean Anderson stopped making his safaris into the jungles of iniquity (the dorms), or Dr. Thayer forgot how to guide.

If Dr. Fraser's Bible Notebook were 20 pages long and were written in common everyday language, and Dr. Patte's program consisted of such numbers as "Little Mama" and "Tutti Fruitti".

Till the end of time Dr. Stevenson's bow tie will be at a 45 degree angle, and it will take Dr. Stump at least two weeks to grade his test papers. Till the end of time Mr. Erwin won't give cuts and Commander Porter will continue to think he is still sailing on the high sea.

I hope they don't wait till the end of time to change the menu in the chow hall or to give the coeds a chance to use the gym.

It would certainly be the end of time if Mrs. Bob ran out of aspirin; if Connie Evans could be quiet for five minutes, or if Lynwood Gaskin could stand still for an equal amount of time. If Johnny McNeely stopped going to Converse and Duncan Shaw stops asking Sarah for dates; if Gene Carter stopped his teasing for a week. Let's face it, it would be the end of time. A change in the times would be at hand if Redbird Hart's hair turned black or Mary and Nancy lost all their buddies.

What if "Charlie's" started selling pepsi cola and disposed of the television set. It would be the end of time for quite a few around here.

If the tennis coruts were empty and there was no one washing cars, no one playing ball and everybody made the dean's list it would be the end of time.

There will be a Neville Hall, the victory bell, and the In by till the end of time there's time, let's hope be men like Dr. John and women like Mrs second mother. Till t time there will be to add to this list.

May there be boys in the blue plaid shirt of time.

lthough Presbyterian College lost their opening meet to the ersity of South Carolina, they showed up very well and the h was closer than it seemed. The defending state champion ecocks took 9 first places while the Hose were taking 6. Caroout-scored PC in second places with 7-6 but both teams captured irds. Carolina's point total for firsts came to 45 as compared to 30 points. Carolina led by 21-18 in seconds, and the teams were notted up in third place points at 6 apiece. Both teams got two ts for one tie for second place. The total score was USC 74; PC he Hose scored their firsts in the dashes, the hurdle events, the put, and the high jump. These are the Hose's strong points. The nces are the spots where the Blue Hose need depth. These provo be the weakest points in the PC loss to Carolina. With more ience and a little added strength the Blue Hose could very easbecome a definite threat to dethrone the Gamecocks. Carolina a strong team and they score heavily in the field and distance its. Only a wait until the State Track meet will decide the team upremacy in South Carolina track.

WILLIAMS HITTING WELL

ight fielder Danny Williams returned from the current road sporting a healthy .727 batting average. Williams, a freshman, collected 8 hits in 11 turns at the plate. Among these are two les and two doubles.

HOSE IMPRESSIVE AGAINST MIAMI

Although the Blue Hose dropped two tennis matches to the Unisity of Miami they showed that they are a powerful team and that y will be hard to beat during the remainder of the season. Miami, eating the Hose, won their 50th and 51st straight game without a They have been the best team in the nation for the past few rs. The Blue Hose lost no prestige on their Florida trip.

Allen Morris displayed some of the tennis that has gained him ranking of 16th in the nation. He defeated Johann Kupferberger first day and Al Harum the second. He also teamed with John ownlow to win the No. 1 doubles match on both occasions.

Guice Potter played outstanding tennis as he defeated Dave Ha-n, ranked 27th in the nation. All in all coach Jim Leighton was y well pleased both with the play of the team members and the rit that the team showed in general. It could be a very successful r for the Hose net team.

In closing I would like to quote a popular poem.

SPRING PRACTICE IS OVER

Spring practice is over and oh how I'm glad;
No practice for a while, now ain't that too bad.
No sweat and no work that made me so tired;
Maybe by next year Crutchfield will be fired.
But until that time with my hopes so high;
If he doesn't get fired, I'll surely die.

Hose to Meet Top Racketeers With Western Tour of Courts

The Presbyterian College net team enters the third week of play Monday when they meet Wofford on the home courts. The Hose then play host to the team from Cornell University on Tuesday and Wednesday before ending the current home stand against High Point College on Thursday.

The Hose now boast of a 4-2 won-loss record with both of the losses coming at the hands of a powerful Miami team. The Blue Hose played fine tennis during the entire Florida trip. Coach Jim Leighton pointed out that PC was probably the first team to take three points from Miami on the Miami University courts.

The Hose opened their Florida trip and their season with a 9-0 victory over the Jacksonville Naval Base team. They then moved to Winter Park where they defeated Rollins 8-1. The Hose then moved on to Miami where they dropped two matches by scores of 6-3 and 7-2.

Allen Morris's play on the trip was particularly outstanding. Morris reversed previous decisions over Kupferburger and Al Harum and teamed with John Brownlow to win the No. 1 doubles both days.

Guice Potter played exceptionally well and registered a fine win over Dave Harum who is currently ranked No. 27 in the nation.

Gene Gee and Scott Watson also played matches and gave creditable performances. Gee in particular played well in splitting sets in a practice match with Rollins's No. 1 Ben Soberia who was ineligible at the time.

Last Monday and Tuesday the Hose took two matches at the expense of Kings College on the home courts. The scores were 11-0 and 8-0. Members of the Jayvee team in the matches are Jack Byers, Bill Taylor and Wescott Wolfe.

On Tuesday the only members of the regular team that played were the No.'s 6, 7 and 8. Jim Shakespeare only played in a double match. The Hose did not lose a point in the two matches.

AL MORRIS

Coach Leighton was very pleased with the showing of the team in these matches. He is particularly pleased with the team spirit that is being shown and he feels that every man on the team is anxious to make an even better showing against Miami when they come to PC.

Friday the team will leave Clinton to begin their Western trip. The first stop will be at Anniston, Ala., where the team will hold a Clinic for the young people on Saturday morning and will meet the Anniston Country Club team in a match on Saturday afternoon.

The Hose will then move on to matches with Louisiana State, the University of Texas. All the Houston, Southern Methodist, and teams that the Blue Hose will meet on this trip are considered very good tennis teams. Morris will have to meet Sam Giammalva, a top ranked player in the nation, when the Hose meet Texas.

Morris is currently taking part in the Caribe Hilton Invitational Tournament in San Juan, Porto Rico. There he will meet such stars as Ham Richardson, No. 3 nationally, and Hal Burrows, No. 10.

At the finish of the Western trip, PC will return to this section of the country for matches with Duke and Virginia.

Bill Toole's Career at PC Story of Student Leadership

By LARRY BROWN

As the last semester of the senior year rolls around, the graduating athletes realize that they must pass through a door of which there is no return.

No more will the loud and inspiring cheer from the old college crowd on the sidelines give the same pulsating feeling to the hero who has for the last time scored the winning touchdown or broken up a tie ball game with a resounding home run.

The Blue Stocking staff feels that due tribute should be paid to the graduating senior athlete, and for our first farewell salute we have chosen versatile Billy Toole, of basketball renown.

Toole came to PC in the fall of 1952 a raw freshman with a knack for basketball. An Indiana Speedway product, Bill started right in his freshman year playing first string on the basketball squad, and never relinquished the starting berth in his entire four years of action. His steady head and cool manner on the court soon rewarded him, for he was elected captain of the team his junior year, and he also helped pace the Hose to a Little Four title that year.

This year Toole and his fellow Hosemen enjoyed one of the most successful basketball seasons in the team's history. The affable Toole, known to his compatriots as "Simp", had for a four-year varsity total a very creditable eleven-point average, and on numerous occasions was named to All-Star teams in South Carolina.

However, Bill is not all basketball. His leadership ability was attested to by the entire Student Body when they conferred on him the highest position in the school: president of the Student Body. Bill has served the student government in many other offices also, such as Student Council member and president of his sophomore class. He was inducted in the campus chapter of the Blue Key last May.

"Cap'n Billy", on and off the court, is a well-liked fellow. He and his family have made many friends in their stay at PC. Bill will receive his BA degree in Economics this June, and hopes to reside in South Carolina. He, his charming wife, Nancy, and their three-year-old daughter, Terry Lee, are now residing in Vetville.

Toole has made his mark in the annals of PC history, and will long be remembered for his contribution to sportsmanship and clean play on and off the court. I am sure the entire Student Body joins the Blue Stocking staff in crediting Bill Toole with a job well done.

The Spartanburg region is composed of 28 Presbyterian churches with a total membership of approximately 6,000 persons. A calendar for the campaign in this region was adopted by the steering committee.

Two of its highlights are Presbyterian College Sunday, set for Apr. 15, at which time each church will give emphasis to the school during morning services, and the Diamond Jubilee Dinner, set for Apr. 23, when all Presbyterians are invited to help celebrate the 75th anniversary of their college.

Two PC Professors Get Research Grants

Two Presbyterian College professors have received grants for summer research from the Southern Fellowships Fund, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

They are: Dr. Alexander B. Stump, professor of Biology, and Dr. Newton B. Jones, professor of history.

Dr. Stump, for his research project, will continue investigations into the possibility of nuclear changes during the vegetative stages of lesquerensia spirelis. This is essentially a cytological study.

Dr. Jones plans additional study into the need for and support of orphanages in South Carolina during the Civil War and Reconstruction period. He plans to spend several weeks in Charleston and Columbia in pursuing this subject.

The Southern Fellowships Fund, an agency of the Council of Southern Universities, Inc., restricts its grants for advanced study or research so that no institution may recommend more than two applicants. President Brown said that he was pleased to learn that both Presbyterian College applicants had been accepted.

Ballard Posts Schedule; IRW Starts April 16th

The International Relations Club announced plans for its annual International Relations Week today. IR Week is scheduled to begin next Monday, Apr. 16, and continue through Friday, Apr. 20. "Our Place in the World Today" has been chosen as this year's general theme.

Blue Sock Polls Men on Spring "Hobbies"

By AL McKIE

Spring! It inspires poets and Don Juans alike to greater achievements. Soon the great American public will turn to the beaches and mountains or even to the romantic metropolis of Paris and Rome. America will travel the highways and airways. The travel agents and the car salesmen will prosper. You know the signs of the season.

You, too, will notice particular evidences of spring on the PC campus. For example: bermudas with accompanying stares; a pair of water skis drying in the sun; students soaking up a tan to impress the female fatale on the beaches. Baseball, track, and tennis attract your attention as participant or spectator. The rest is left to your imagination.

Vacation is but a few weeks off yet the PC student plods along anxiously anticipating the coming release. However, with the exhilerating newness of spring comes a lethargy most commonly known as "spring fever".

A poll has just been taken to discover just how this unromantic side of spring affects the average PC'un. Several students were asked what their favorite spring "goof-off" activity was. The results may not be average but look at the following cross section:

H. F. Carriker: "Lowering the grades of those students who gripe to me about their marks in Dr. Fraser's Bible courses'.

Maurice Copeland: "Checking the dorms for good looking pinups.; that is, when I'm not playing horseshoes". Running a close second was: "Breaking a nine ball rack at Louie's".

Tommy Richards: "Watching Janie take tennis lessons from Coach Leighton."

Chas Joyner: "Mooning over Helen's picture.'

John Knox: "Balancing a heavy ring stand on my chin while Dr Carter is not in lab."

Charlie McElveen: "Keeping second floor Bailey awake, especially Doc Rea and Dave Thompson."

Earle Craven: "Looking forward to Choir trips. No sociology classes!"

Add your own "goof-off" activity to the list and make it complete. Many are SOP the year round yet are intensified by the season. Although the profs will never understand the importance of such activities, be assured that vacation will end all outside interference to your "goofing-off."

Two Popular Hobbies . . .

Here we see two favorite springtime pastimes of the P. College men in the order of their importance. Evidently this lad couldn't make up his mind, but in true Blue style he decided to put business before pleasure.

Smith Notes Field Day For Military Competition

The annual Field Day events will be held at drill period on Apr. 26, 27, and 30, Lt. Col. F. V. Smith, PMS&T, announced this week.

The events will be disassembly and assembly of the M1 rifle, light mcahine gun, automatic rifle, crew drill with the heavy machine gun, grenade throw for both distance and accuracy, a tug of war, and an oral message relay. Also selection of the best drilled freshman, individual, squad, and platoon will be held.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Editorials In General . . .

A Significant Revival

One of the most necessary of college publications, a literary journal, is about to come back into reality here at PC. Through the directorship of Dr. John Stevenson and his Advanced Composition class, a journal, yet unnamed, will be published before the end of this academic year. The journal will contain essays, critical reviews, short stories, poetry, and several other phases of literary exercises. Although active solicitation of material has not been carried out among the students outside the composition class, any student wishing to submit copy is urged to turn it in to Dr. Stevenson or a member of the composition class for approval.

A good literary journal is one of the most effective indicators of the aesthetic worth of an institution's entire program, and is therefore a vital part of campus life and of attitudes taken toward the entire school.

Lights for Tennis Courts?

How about some lights on the tennis courts? Because of the tremendous popularity of the college's excellent courts, all of the men who wish to play cannot do so because of the crowded condition of the courts during the afternoon hours. Lights would give everyone a chance to take advantage of the college's most notable athletic facilities.

Coming Elections . . .

"Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it" is becoming quite an old saw, yet its truth is far more timeless than the words themselves, and will continue to be. Its truth is evident in many ways on this campus, and one of the most notable examples crops up nearly every football season: the endless palaver and hoopla about school spirit in relation to the cheerleaders. This is an obvious fact, not a personal opinion.

Next week is your opportunity to do something about the weather, or at least the athletic atmosphere. Wednesday morning marks the election of next year's Cheerleaders, and all in the world you have to do is go by the ballot box in the rotunda and vote for the ones you want. Of course, there will still be grousing because somebody's man did not win, but by the nature of the election the majority of students will be satisfied. Just vote.

The other election next Wednesday should certainly command the attention and demand the mature votes of the student body. The positions of responsibility of the PaC-SaC are very demanding positions, and the choice is worthy of serious consideration.

Hot O. Returns From Home

By LYMAN HARRIS

I was watching the campus in Bailey Hotel one afternoon from the window of my penthouse when I saw Hot O'Rudy run out of the Administration building his and dig out around the plaza and hop into a big green and white Buick driven by a friend of like he was trying to qualify for the Indianapolis Speedway. They skidded to a stop in front of Bailey and Hot O. got out.

In a few seconds he came running into the room waving an envelope triumphantly. In the envelope was a letter that Hot O's mother had written to the administration. Hot O. said he got it through the underground services here at PC. I read it and this is the way it went:

"To the Abbot
Presbyterian Monastery
Dear Abbot,

What are you doing to my boy, Hot O'Rudy? He came home for his Spring Holidays and he ain't like he used to be.

He won't eat anything but potatoes, rice, and chinaberries. He pours catsup on everything he eats and he finished every meal with peanut butter.

While he was here he wouldn't go to sleep until everybody came into his room and had a gab session for about two hours. And some of the subjects he wanted to talk about! What are you teaching my boy?

Every night he couldn't sleep until his paw and I went out in the hall and rolled bottles up and down. Once while we were doing this for him, he threw a bucket of water on us. When we asked him why he did it, he said, "Don't sweat it, Ace."

Every morning after breakfast he grabbed my broom and marched around the back yard, stopped only to salute gophers when they crawled out of their holes.

Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, no matter what he was doing, he dropped everything and ran off to the old school house at 11:15 sharp. The principal says he acted like a little demoniac while he was there. He kept reading, talking, whistling, and playing mumbley-peg on the classroom floor. What are you teaching my boy?

I'm ashamed to go anywhere with him, because every time he sees a girl he lies on the ground and pants and slobbers and stares at her until he has red eye. His first day at home, he bit the maid.

Please be good to my boy.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Tutti Fruitti O'Rudy

P. S.—Another thing. Now my boy, Hot O'Rudy, won't wear anything but blue plaid shirts. What are you teaching my boy?

P. S. Jr.—I just got his grades in the mail. ARE you teaching my boy?

What You've Been Waiting For

This appeared in the Tennessee Tech Oracle, reprinted by Pageant Magazine. It's called "10 Ways to Get Through College Without Even Trying."

1. Bring the professor newspaper clippings dealing with his subject. If you don't find clippings dealing with his subect, bring in clippings at random. He thinks everything deals with his subject.

2. Look alert. Take notes eagerly. If you look at your watch, don't stare at it unbelievingly and shake it.

3. Nod frequently and murmur "How true." To you, this seems exaggerated. To him, it's quite objective.

4. Sit in front, near him. (Applies only if you intend to stay awake)

5. Laugh at his jokes. You can tell, if he looks up from his notes and smiles expectantly, he has told a joke.

6. Ask for outside reading. You don't have to read it. Just ask for it.

7. If you must sleep, arrange to be called at the end of the hour. It creates an unfavorable impression if the rest of the class has left and you sit there alone, dozing.

8. Be sure the book you read during the lecture looks like a book from the course. If you do math in psychology class and psychology in math class, match the books for size and color.

9. Ask any questions you think he can answer. Conversely, avoid announcing that you have found the answer to a question he couldn't answer, and in your younger brother's second reader at that.

10. Call attention to his writing. Produces an exquisitely pleasant experience connected with you. If you know he's written a book or an article, ask in class if he wrote it.

These suggestions, incidentally, were put down by a professor, Robert Tyson of Hunter College. —(ACP)

TENNIS TEAM SHOWS GREATNESS

Our boys of the tennis courts have been going great guns so far this season. They have compiled a 13-2 win-loss record and both of the losses were to Miami. Miami has been and probably still is the best college team in the United States. The Hose, though losing to Miami, made a very impressive showing in the land of sunshine and "yankee" accents during the winter months.

Hose co-captain and No. 1, Al Morris, won both of his matches and has gone on to be undefeated so far this season. He has played exceptional tennis and shows improvement every tme he takes the court. Morris was ranked 16th nationally at the start of this season. He will no doubt secure a higher position in the next classification. He recently defeated the No. 1 from Texas University, Sam Giammalva, who is currently ranked 9th nationally. Both Morris and Giammalva have been recently selected as members of this year's Davis Cup squad.

Morris teams with John Brownlow as the No. 1 doubles team. They are undefeated in collegiate competition so far this season. They have both played fine, co-ordinated tennis.

The rest of the team, Dick Macatee, Guice Potter, Harvey Jackson, Jim Shakespeare, Gene Gee, and Scott Watson have played well and deserve lots of credit for PC's success in the past matches. The team spirit is high and the team is probably the best ever to represent Presbyterian College.

Coach Jim Leighton is well satisfied with the showing of the team thus far. Much of the answer to the question of success lies with Leighton. He has done an excellent job of coaching during his stay here at PC. He has seen stars come and go and teams win and lose, but mostly win; but this is probably his greatest team. Coach Leighton deserves much praise for the success of tennis at Presbyterian College.

TRACK TEAM IMPROVES

The track team seems to improve in every meet. By the time of the State Meet, the Hose should be ready to give last year's champs, USC, a run for this year's championship.

The Hose can boast of three top dash men in the state in Delane Johnson, Bobby Vass, and Walter Marshall. Vass is also defending state champion in the broad jump. Richard Johnson has been clearing 12 ft. in the pole vault consistently this year.

The Hose have a high scoring man on the team in the person of Wyatt Aiken. He enters both hurdles, a leg of the mile relay, the high jump, the broad jump, and sometimes the javelin. Marvin Conner has been doing well in the high jump. Husky football star Robert Harrington holds down the discus and shot put in a fine manner. Jim Hancock can be counted on for his fine work in the hurdles and for a slot on the relay team. Freshman Ed Messer has looked excellent in the low hurdles and has proved worthy in the dashes.

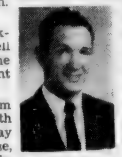
SHORT SHOTS

Intramural softball will be rolling around shortly . . . Johnny Tennant has been turning in fine pitching performances for the Blue Hose diamond men this season . . . Well, that's all until next time.



Dee Parker's Tenure at PC Records Fine Sportsmanship

By LARRY BROWN

For our second senior sports celebrity, we, the Blue Stocking staff, salute peppery Dee Parker, the Laurens flash who like so many of us, came to this campus four years ago, a timid freshman hoping to achieve success academically as well as athletically.

Parker, a versatile athlete at many abilities in high school, chose to play baseball for the Blue Hose, and in his four seasons, he has produced a very consistent record.

Dee, although not a powerful hitter, has always been a never-ceasing threat to the opposing teams as he would make a game-saving catch or daringly steal a base when the chips were down. His defensive ability has always been respected by his teammates as well as his opponents.

Dee Parker

Dee's leadership has won him great acclaim in other activties as well as athletics. His affable manner and friendly smile have brought to him many school honors and offices. The talented Mr. Parker has held just about every imaginable office on the campus.

Among his achievements, Dee is a member of the honored Blue Key in which he held the office of treasurer. He is also treasurer of the SCA, business manager of the Blue Stocking, and sports editor of the PaC-SaC. He is also a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Dee is majoring in English and upon graduation is planning to teach and coach. But before any of the coaching dreams come true, Dee must first serve a hitch in Uncle Sam's navy, for he is planning to enter naval OCS hoping to obtain a commission.

Dee Parker is nearing the end of his successful and happy college career, and as we stand with Dee looking back over the years here at PC together, we must remember that even greater things await in later life; so we say good luck Dee, and continued success in every way.

Hose Meet Mercer In Georgia Tilt

The Presbyterian College track team will try to bring their season's record up to the .500 mark as they prepare to do battle with the Mercer Bears tomorrow in Macon, Ga. The Hose having dropped two close decisions to USC and Amherst and handily disposing of Furman, will seek their second victory of the season against the Georgia tracksters.

Showing a slight weakness in the distance events and over-all depth problem, the Hose will try to compensate matters with such stalwarts as Delane Johnson, Bobby Vass, Richard Johnson, Wyatt Aiken, Jim Hancock, and Robert Harrington leading the way. Walt Marshall should also come through to add points to the Blue Hose cause.

Arthur Pue should be in trouble in the two-mile with Paul Arrington, Fred Stanley and Marion Dowdle giving aid in the middle distances. The Hose will be slightly favored over the Bears due to some of the times being turned in. Delane Johnson in the 100 has already run 9.6. Harrington is tossing the shot around 45 ft. Richard Johnson is pole vaulting 12 ft.; Hancock, Messer, and Aiken are hurdling with great speed and Vass is broad jumping around 22 ft.

All in all, the Bears should be in for a pretty rough afternoon when they meet the fighting Blue Hose.

Racketeers Return to PC With Clean Sweep of S' West

Presbyterian College's fine tennis team returned Sunday from a successful tour of the Southwest. On the tour the Hosemen won four matches and one was cancelled because of rain.

PC first defeated the Anniston Country Club team 8-1 after holding a clinic that morning. Next they traveled to Louisiana State University to down the Tigers 5-1. The Hose then tripped Houston by an identical score of 5-1. The match with Southern Methodist University was called off due to rain.

Next the Netters met a strong Texas University team and emerged victorious by a 6-3 score. Texas had previously downed Tulane 5-1. These comparative scores make PC far superior to any team in the Southwest.

While at Texas, Allen Morris, recently selected to the United States Davis Cup squad, defeated Sam Giammalva, also a member of the Davis Cup team. Morris soundly whipped Giammalva 6-2, 6-1. Morris is currently ranked 16th nationally while Giammalva holds down the 8th position.

The No. 1 doubles team of Morris and John Brownlow are currently undefeated in intercollegiate competition. The Blue Hose net stars have compiled a 13-2 over-all record with both losses coming at the hands of Miami University, the No. 1 team in the nation.

Coach Jim Leighton said, "Although Giammalva is No. 9 and Morris is No. 6, the difference in the two in their match was due to Morris' improvement in the past year. While Al has gone forward Sam has more or less stood still."

Terriers Dip Hose; Fumbles Prove Costly

The Presbyterian Blue Hose baseball team lost to the Wofford Terrier nine on the Wofford College field Tuesday by a margin of 4-2. Terrier Don Reeder held the Hosemen scoreless until the top of the ninth inning when singles by Tommy Reeves, Tony Benson, and Richard Shrigley, coupled with an error by the Wofford shortstop, provided two runs for the Blue Hose.

Charles Malpass pitched steady ball, but errors in the fourth inning allowed two runs and an infield hit and a home run in the seventh gave the Terriers four.

I-M Standings

The Ferocious Five laid claim to the I-M basketball title after completing their schedule with a clean slate. They breezed through ten games with ease and their lead was never seriously threatened, although Pi Kappa Alpha finished its season with a commendable 9 won, 2 lost mark. The Ferocious Five downed the Pi-KA's in the final game of the season 61-46 to sew up the championship.

Joyner Gets Scholarship; Will Attend USC for MA

Charles Joyner, graduating senior from Myrtle Beach, will attend the University of South Carolina next year on a $1200 scholarship provided by the university. University officials announced recently that Joyner was one of the high ranking recipients of the fellowships offered.

While he will be in pursuit of a master's degree, he will also serve in the capacity of graduate professor of freshman and intermediate history.

The awarding of this fellowship to Senior Joyner also brings recognition to the academic achievements of Presbyterian College, being one of eight winners in the 5-applicant field, he represents a fine example of what the well-developed PC history department produces.

Joyner's most recent achievement is that of having the best book review in state college papers. He has served in many capacities in campus activities. He is a member of the Alpha Psi chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi and is also a prominent member of the Inter-Fraternity Council as well as the International Relations Club. In the past he has served as art editor of the Knapsack, Blue Stocking feature editor and a member of the Glee Club. Charles is also a member of the Dean's List.

Joyner intends to go into the teaching profession.

Miss Laurens County Is Hammet's Helper

The very attractive, young face with hazel eyes and uaburn hair been busily working on the second floor of the Administration Building belongs to the new secretary of the Director of Public Relations and Alumni Affairs. She is Gerry Galloway, of Clinton, who assumed office Mar. 28.

Gerry grew up in Anderson where she was selected to Who's Who in the Anderson High Schools.

She is very interested in drama and participated in a number of plays while in high school. She continued her dramatic work in college by performing with the Lander Players.

Perhaps Gerry's most accomplished talent, besides her natural beauty which won her the "Mad of Cotton" crown for Laurens County, is her singing ability. She has been the vocalist for several well-known orchestras. Lately, her vocal performances have been confined to Church and civic affairs.

In keeping with her vocation as secretary to Ben Hammet, Gerry's avocation is photography. Some of her trick photographs give ample proof to her skill as a photographer.

Miss Galloway's new job which requires a tremendous amount of work on the Development Drive keeps her busy most of the time; but she says that her fifteen minute coffee break in the morning gives her opportunity to answer, according to appointment, all personal questions, such as "What are you doing tonight?"

Gerry has been quoted as stating that she honestly loves her work in the Public Relations and Alumni Affairs office, and especially the coffee breaks.

Jones to Speak for Historical Association

Dr. Newton Jones, professor of history at Presbyterian College, will appear on the program at the annual meeting of the South Carolina Historical association in Columbia this Saturday.

He will discuss a paper entitled "United States History With a South Carolina Accent, Problem or Challenge," written by Professor Albert Sanders, of Furman.

The University of South Carolina is playing host to this meeting of the association.

Retiring officers are Toppy Mayes, president; Tennant Neville, vice-president; Anne Kirkpatrick, secretary; and Bob Smith, treasurer.

Also appointed to head commissions were Joe Easter, program chairman; Audrey McCroskey, worship; Frank Sapp, Sunday School representative; Al McKee, publicity chairman; Grady McCroskey, music chairman; Anne Kirkpatrick, attendance chairman; Hugh Burns, deputation chairman; Ed Galloway, song leader; and Billy McElveen, social chairman.

Dean Anderson will install the new officers on Sunday, Apr. 22.

Daughtry New Head In Campus BS Union

The members fo the Baptist Student Union have elected Ken Daughtry to lead them as president the coming year. Ken, a junior from Macon, Ga., succeeds Tap Tobias at this high post. Ken has been active in Baptist affairs serving previously as treasurer.

Other major officers chosen by the Baptists were First Vice-President, Dick Hamby; Second Vice-President, Jim Elliott; Third Vice-President, Guy Haddix; Secretary, June Adair; and Treasurer, Barbara Smith

On the state level the local group is very fortunate to be represented on the state council for the second straight year. John Compton served this past year as state treasurer, and Tap Tobias, retiring local president, was elected at the recent Spring Retreat held at Orangeburg, to the position of state vice-president.

A number of retreats are being planned by the group for the remainder of this year. On Thursday night of this week a deputation of PC Baptists journeyed to Anderson where they attended a banquet and program with Anderson Junior College. A deputation to Winthrop is being planned for later this month and plans for a spring social to be held in the near future are near completion.

Charlotte-PC Reelects Carriker as President

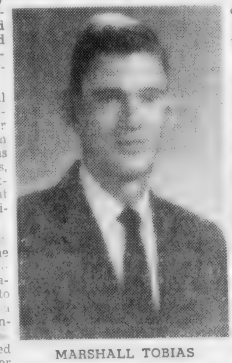
The elections for the Charlotte PC Club were held Tuesday, Apr 17, for the coming year.

Two members were re-elected to their old positions; H. F. Carriker to his office of president, and Jackson Hudspeth to secretary.

Harry Booker was chosen vice-president to take the place of Stan Ligon, and Kenny Foard took over the duties of Doug Dellinger as treasurer.

The club has planned a party in Charlotte for the weekend of Apr. 28. This social will end the club's activities for the year.

Tobias to Edit '56-'57 Yearbook; Rickett Takes Business Manager



Marshall "Tap" Tobias, of Sumter, was named by student body vote to the post of PaC-SaC editor for the coming year. He outnumbered Perry Hogue, of York, by a very narrow margin for this important campus post.

Don Rickett, of Hapeville, Ga., was elected in the same balloting as annual publication.

Tobias, who succeeds Ray Lord, of Dublin, Ga., as editor, was elected secretary of his junior class last spring. He has also been named to serve as Christian Faith and Heritage chairman on this year's Student Christian Association cabinet. A member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, Tobias serves as president for this spring semester.

He is a former president of the Baptist Student Union and an outstanding member of the Presbyterian College baseball team. He is also a pre-ministerial student.

Rickett, a member of Pi Kappa Alpha and serving presently as treasurer, succeeds John McLean as Business Manager of the PaC-SaC. He is majoring in Business Administration. Rickett was recently selected for membership in Scabbard and Blade Military fraternity and is a member of the Color Guard of the Presbyterian College ROTC unit.

MARSHALL TOBIAS

Cheerleaders for the coming year were also named in the vote in addition to the PaC-SaC elections. They are as follows:

Roddey Miller, of Rock Hill; Walter McConnell, of Clover; Ned Marshall, of Rock Hill; and Business Manager of the campus Charlie McElveen, of Kingstree.

These men and the PaC-SaC leaders were elected by the largest number of ballots cast by the student body thus far this year.

Methodist Students Elect Kurtz as Leader

Frank Kurtz, a rising senior from Mt. Airy, N. C., was elected president of the Methodist Student Movement at their regular meeting last 'Monday. He replaces John Wahl, of Aiken, who was chosen to fill the vice-president position vacated by John Knox, of Atlanta, Ga.

Tom Gee, of Clinton, turned over the position of secretary-treasurer to Gayle Robertson of Woodruff.

The Methodist students created their program for the coming two new offices to help carry out year. Penn Ballenger, from Camden, and Knox were elected as scoial chairman and membership chairman respectively.

Mrs. Johnston presented PC with a check for $3.000 and plans to add to this amount in the future.

Dr. Brown, in announcing the scholarship, said that first preference will be given to aiding ministerial students.

Greenville - Spartanburg Area To Hear Frampton April 24

Miss Laurens County Is Hammet's Helper

The very attractive, young face with hazel eyes and uaburn hair been busily working on the second floor of the Administration Building belongs to the new secretary of the Director of Public Relations and Alumni Affairs. She is Gerry Galloway, of Clinton, who assumed office Mar. 28.

Gerry grew up in Anderson where she was selected to Who's Who in the Anderson High Schools.

She is very interested in drama and participated in a number of plays while in high school. She continued her dramatic work in college by performing with the Thunder Players.

Perhaps Gerry's most accomplished talent, besides her natural beauty which won her the "Mad of Cotton" crown for Laurens County, is her singing ability. She has been the vocalist for several well-known orchestras. Lately, her vocal performances have been confined to Church and civic affairs.

In keeping with her vocation as secretary to Ben Hammet, Gerry's avocation is photography. Some of her trick photographs give ample proof to her skill as a photographer.

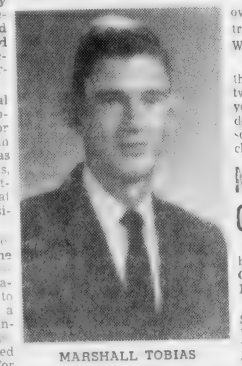
Miss Galloway's new job which requires a tremendous amount of work on the Development Drive keeps her busy most of the time; but she says that her fifteen minute coffee break in the morning gives her opportunity to answer, according to appointment, all personal questions, such as "What are you doing tonight?"

Gerry has been quoted as stating that she honestly loves her work in the Public Relations and Alumni Affairs office, and especially the coffee breaks.

Tobias to Edit '56-'57 Yearbook; Rickett Takes Business Manager

Marshall "Tap" Tobias, of Sumter, was named by student body vote to the post of PaC-SaC editor for the coming year. He outnumbered Perry Hogue, of York, by a very narrow margin for this important campus post.

Don Rickett, of Hapeville, Ga., was elected in the same balloting as Business Manager of the campus annual publication.



Tobias, who succeeds Ray Lord, of Dublin, Ga., as editor, was elected secretary of his junior class last spring. He has also been named to serve as Christian Faith and Heritage chairman on this year's Student Christian Association cabinet. A member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, Tobias serves as president for this spring semester.

He is a former president of the Baptist Student Union and an outstanding member of the Presbyterian College baseball team. He is also a pre-ministerial student.

Rickett, a member of Pi Kappa Alpha and serving presently as treasurer, succeeds John McLean as Business Manager of the PaC-SaC. He is majoring in Business Administration. Rickett was recently selected for membership in Scabbard and Blade Military fraternity and is a member of the Color Guard of the Presbyterian College ROTC unit.

Charlie McElveen, of Kingstree.

These men and the PaC-SaC leaders were elected by the largest number of ballots cast by the student body thus far this year.

MARSHALL TOBIAS

Cheerleaders for the coming year were also named in the vote in addition to the PaC-SaC elections. They are as follows:

Roddey Miller, of Rock Hill; Walter McConnell, of Clover; Ned Marshall, of Rock Hill; and

Daughtry New Head In Campus BS Union

The members fo the Baptist Student Union have elected Ken Daughtry to lead them as president the coming year. Ken, a junior from Macon, Ga., succeeds Tap Tobias at this high post. Ken has been active in Baptist affairs serving previously as treasurer.

Other major officers chosen by the Baptists were First Vice-President, Dick Hamby; Second Vice-President, Jim Elliott; Third Vice-President, Guy Haddix; Secretary, June Adair; and Treasurer, Barbara Smith.

On the state level the local group is very fortunate to be represented on the state council for the second straight year. John Compton served this past year as state treasurer, and Tap Tobias, retiring local president, was elected at the recent Spring Retreat held at Orangeburg, to the position of state vice-president.

A number of activities are being planned by the group for the remainder of this year. On Thursday night of this week a deputation of PC Baptists journeyed to Anderson where they attended a banquet and program with Anderson Junior College. A deputation to Winthrop is being planned for later this month and plans for a spring social to be held in the near future are near completion.

The elections for the Charlotte PC Club were held Tuesday, Apr. 17, for the coming year.

Two members were re-elected to their old positions; H. F. Carriker to his office of president, and Jackson Hudspeth to secretary.

Harry Booker was chosen vice-president to take the place of Stan Ligon, and Kenny Foard took over the duties of Doug Dellinger as treasurer.

The club has planned a party in Charlotte for the weekend of Apr. 28. This social will end the club's activities for the year.

Methodist Students Elect Kurtz as Leader

Frank Kurtz, a rising senior from Mt. Airy, N. C., was elected president of the Methodist Student Movement at their regular meeting last 'Monday. He replaces John Wahl, of Aiken, who was chosen to fill the vice-president position vacated by John Knox, of Atlanta, Ga.

Tom Gee, of Clinton, turned over the position of secretary-treasurer to Gayle Robertson of Woodruff.

The Methodist students created their program for the coming two new offices to help carry out year. Penn Ballenger, from Camden, and Knox were elected as social chairman and membership chairman respectively.

Ministerial Students Get Scholarship Fund

A new scholarship fund has been established at Presbyterian College, President Marshall W Brown announced recently.

It is the Mildred Johnston Hay Scholarship Fund, given by Mrs. Willis P. Johnston, of Asheville, N. C., and named for her daughter, Mrs. Fred Jay Hay, of Dillon.

Mrs. Johnston presented PC with a check for $3.000 and plans to add to this amount in the future.

Dr. Brown, in announcing the scholarship, said that first preference will be given to aiding ministerial students.

Greenville - Spartanburg Area To Hear Frampton April 24

A Diamond Jubilee dinner, launching the Presbyterian College Development Program in Greenville County, will be held in Greenville Tuesday night, Apr. 24.

Campaign Chairman H. Grice Hunt, of Greenville, said today an estimated 300 Presbyterians from this region are expected to attend the occasion to be held at the Greenville Country Club at 7 P.M.

They will hear the Rev. W. McLeod Frampton, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church of Anderson and former minister to Greenville's Third Church, deliver the main address as the highlight of a program which includes several features.

In addition to setting the spark to the Greenville County campaign to raise $100,000 for Presbyterian College, the dinner will serve as an occasion for celebrating the college's 75th anniversary.

Prominent parts on the program will be taken by Hunt and his regional co-chairman, the Rev. J. Phillips Noble, also fo Greenville.

Active solicitations to reach the $100,000 goal will begin the day after the dinner and continue for three weeks thereafter.

Dr. Frampton, the main speaker for the Diamond Jubilee dinner, has served as pastor of Anderson's Central Presbyterian Church since 1950. Prior to that, he served the Purity Presbyterian Church of Chester for seven years and the Third Presbyterian Church of Greenville from 1939 to 1943. He is a graduate of Presbyterian College and Columbia Theological Seminary.

Among those welcoming the Presbyterian College Robed Choir to Waycross, Ga., were Miss Hannah Fesperman and Dale Odum. Those seated are Gene Ransdale, Denmark; Frank Harrington, New Zion; standing are Wayne Cousar, Sardinia; Rutledge DuRrant, Manning; and Bobby Hafner, Chester.—Photo courtesy Waycross Journal-Herald.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Editorials : Features : Humor

A Good Sign . . .

Last Wednesday's PaC-SaC and Cheerleader elections showed a very heartening trend: the largest number of ballots so far this year was cast by the unusually apathetic voters. Evidently the responsibility of making their voice heard was realized and carried out.

Whether the large ballot was caused by good weather or the fact that everybody just happened to feel patriotic is hard to tell, but it is hoped that the real motivation lay in a genuine desire on the part of the voter to make his opinion felt on the issue of decision at hand.

If this last reason is correct, then it is heartening because it exemplifies a more vital interest to become identified with and to participate in the affairs of the institution that has every right to claim our allegiance: Presbyterian College.

"We paid our money, what has voting got to do with it?" This: by virtue of our tuition and fees, we make it possible for the college to provide us with mechanical facilities and academic opportunities; voting is one of the ways in which we make the mechanical facilities come alive. It is axiomatic that these material things are wasted unless there are interested persons to take advantage of them. Voting is one of the ways in which you show your interest.

The situation can still stand improvement. Although 294 votes were cast, that still leaves 179 students who need to exercise their allegiance. The election of Student Body officers will be held soon, and the ones who have realized their responsibility should take it upon themselves to wake the others who seem to be suffering from political laryngitis.

Glee Club Wins Tourney

By NOBLE COLLINS

Last Sunday night a huge two-tiered bus rolled out of the darkness and came to rest beside Neville Hall. Then as its door swung open, a motley crew of twenty-eight young men emerged and released a great sigh that had been building up for over a week—the Presbyterian College singing team had returned.

Barely eight days before, this same group had scrambled aboard the big "hotel on wheels," eager to begin the spring road trip—climax of several months hard spring training. The choir had been undefeated and untied in Palmetto League play but expected stiff competition from the Ga.-Fla. League. It was to be an exciting experience, and the spirit was high.

The group traveled to Waycross, Ga., Saturday night and was treated to a terrific party with real live girls. Sunday, they got off to a roaring start with a double-header, Waycross in the morning and Gainesville, Fla. that night. Both were won handily.

On Monday, after a brief stop at Silver Springs, the choir traveled to Tampa for a concert under the lights that night. Here the group was nearly upset but managed to pull it out in the second period.

Rain began falling Tuesday morning, and as the team drove on to Sarasota, everyone realized that the scheduled afternoon break on the beach would be rained out. The rain failed to dampen their spirits, however, and they scored an impressive victory that night. The next day was too windy to attempt the beach, so instead a water show at Sunshine Springs was enjoyed before driving on to Bradenton and another concert.

With an easy win over Bradenton, the choir left early Thursday morning for what was to be the toughest concert on the schedule—Miami. Arriving in Miami late that afternoon, they enjoyed a short swim at Miami Beach before checking in at Miami Shores. Here, the group made a valiant effort but was tied for the first time this year. The excitement of Miami was evidently too much for several members.

After a much too brief stay in the "gold dust city", the group traveled to Orlando for its last night game. By now, several casualties had left the choir shallow in critical positions, but after a stirring pep talk by coach Patte, they performed admirably.

Brunswick, Ga. was the next stop and here several rookies in the clup made Little All-America rating at the party Saturday night. A picnic was held on St. Simons Island that night and quite a few girls came along. Purple hearts were awarded several "new boys" that night for their outstanding achievement on the beach.

A Sunday doubleheader with Brunswick and Augusta put the finishing touches to a highly successful trip, and late Sunday night the team returned—weary but with heads still unbowed.

Hot O' Can't Get Over

By LYMAN HARRIS

Hot O'Rudy and I were sitting in the room shooting the breeze one afternoon. Hot O. said, "What do you feel like doing tonight?" I answered, "I don't know. What do you feel like doing?" Hot O. said, "I don't know. What do you feel like doing?" I said, "I don't know. What do you feel like doing?" Hot O. said, "Why don't we—aw, skip it." I asked, "Why don't we what?"

Hot O. said, "Let's face it. I want a date. Spring is here and the smell of women is in the air. I gotta have a date!" So Hot O. took off down the hall to see Ivan Shafted, a friend of his who has connections at one of the neighboring colleges.

He started getting ready right away. He put a spit-shine on his brogans, trimmed his sideburns, and put on his tailor-made knit suit. Then he was gone.

I wandered around and wasted the night in the usual way and and in a few hours came back to the room. I showered and was just about ready to sack out when Hot O. came back from his date. I asked him how she was.

He shook his head and said, "I can't get over it. It was Flattop's girl. I just can't get over it." I asked, "Was she good looking?" He gave me a kind of a castor oil smile and said, "Good looking! Man, what a monster. Ivan said he would dig up a date somewhere and she looked like she really had been dug up.

She was a combination of Grendal's Dam and Frankenstein's Bride. I think she was left tackle on the football team at her school. She was broad everywhere a broad ought not to be broad. Man, I'll never go back, even if I have to die single."

I asked, "Where did you-all take them?" Hot O. said, "Well, we went to the flick first, and after it was over, Ivan suggested that we go to a weiner roast that was going to be held on Jacobs' Hill. They liked the suggestion, so we went. When we got there, there wasn't anybody there but us.

"Ivan just smiled wickedly like Adams does on test days, and said that he guessed the others would be along soon, so we had better wait there in the car. I didn't like the idea much. I thought it would be better to get out and walk around, but the 'monster' had a judo hold on me, so I decided to stay.

"Things were alright for a while, until I saw a passionate look in the 'monster's' eyes. She wrapped her arms around me in a sort of Half-Nelso up close. Man, tha That was an octopu

The Poetry Corner?

The sun goes up and the sun goes down,
The PC spirit keeps going around.
Basketball's over and baseball's here
And old spring fever has arrived for the year.

Class after class, test after test,
How can you study when there ain't no rest?
Finals are coming, why worry now—
If you ain't studied, you had it—and how!

Soon you'll see Carter on his bike,
And Stevie with his bow-ties crooked and bright.
There goes Stump with his books and net,
But only for butterflies, no need to fret.
The sun is shining, oh happy day,

But Bible notebooks are here to stay.
Colonel, I've thought about it so,
Morning drill has got to go.

Spencer's windows still have their screens,
But the water will soon be pouring out of them in s
A trash can full for nearby foe,
Drench the unfortunates from tip to toe.

Picnics, parties, and dances, too.
Every fraternity is having a few.
The Rah Rah girls are setting the pace,
With all their parties at Peck's Place.

Every night there's a battle between studies and th
And to pass these tests is a PC trick.
Cram a little the night before,
And the immortal PC spirit will glow all the more

There's a different color in every scene.
The trees have their own shade of green.
But the color that casts the gayest hue,
Is that plaid shirt of brightest blue.

Thinclads Embarrass Bears By Decisive 90 - 41 Count

The Presbyterian College track team paid Mercer College a visit Saturday and handily trounced the Bears by the score of 90-41. Paced by strong Wyatt Aiken, speedy Delane Johnson, and Bobby Vass, the rampaging Hose swept first places in all but four events.

Aiken again produced his sterling performance as he amassed a total of 21 ponits. Delane Johnson came through in fine fashion as he won the 100 and 220. A blistering 9:5 100, just two tenths off the world's record, was his crowning achievement for the afternoon. Walt Marshall ran a terrific 9:7 to place second.

Vass was unbeatable in the broad jump again as he outdistanced everything the Bears could muster. Richard Johnson, tuning up for the rapidly approaching state meet, pole vaulted 13 ft. three feet higher than his nearest opponent. Freshman Marvin Conner showed true form as he captured the high jump with a soaring 6 ft. 1 in. jump. Aiken was second with Bruce Thompson coming in third.

In the shot put Robert "Hose" Harrington remained undefeated as he tossed the shot 44 feet 6 inches. Freshman stalwart Marion Dowdle was first in the mile, closely pursued by Arthur Pue. Pue in turn outran all of the Mercer two milers for a first place. The Blue Hose two-miler ran the course in 10:57.

In the 880 and 440 Fred Stanley and Paul Arrington piled up points for the Hosemen as they finished second and third respectively in both events. Aiken won the javelin, being trailed by newcomer Eddie Brockenbrough. Newcomer John Lucas looked very sharp in the 440 and should be reckoned with as soon as he rounds into shape.

Frat Softball Teams Vie To Decide I-M Champs

Competition for the Intramural softball crown started last Wednesday with two games. Both the Pi Kappa Alpha's and Kappa Alpha's gained victories in the opening day of play.

In the first game of the afternoon the KA's defeated the ASP's in a thriller 12-11. The Alpha Sigs drew first blood and jumped out to a 5-0 lead. In the bottom of the seventh Ted Howie drove out a grand slam home run with one out to sew up the game. Ramond Gardner was the winning pitcher and Wyatt Aiken the loser.

The Pikers ground out a decisive 12-5 victory over Theta Chi. Bob Mathews went all the way for the winners and pitched a one-hitter. Johnny Woods was the loser. John Knox homered for the Pikers.

TRACK STARS HAVE GOOD DAY

Two of PC's track stars had a very successful day in Macon, Ga., last Saturday in a meet against the Mercer Bears. The team itself had a successful day in winning the meet, but dashman Delane Johnson and pole vaulter Richard Johnson had especially good days.

Delane Johnson ran the 100-yard dash in 9.5 seconds which is .2 second better than the state record of 9.7 seconds which is held by Tommy Woodlee, formerly of the University of South Carolina. He also ran a 21.65 220-yard dash which is .05 second off the state record of 21.6.

Richard Johnson had no trouble clearing the 13-foot mark in the pole vault. The state record is 13 feet, 4 inches. This record is held by Fennell of Clemson. These two stars should be definite threats to the records in this year's State Track Meet. Both are juniors in school.

TENNIS TEAM HAS COMPILED IMPRESSIVE RECORD

The powerful Presbyterian College tennis team of this year has compiled one of the most impressive records ever at this school. So far this season the team has a 16-2 won-loss record with three matches remaining. The Hose can boast of one of the nation's top stars in No. I Al Morris. Morris has now won 18 straight collegiate matches and he has a very good chance to go undefeated this year. He has also shown up well in the various tournaments he has entered during the year.

His most impressive wins have been over Sam Giammalva, of Texas, Johann Kupferberger and Al Harum, of Miami, and Bobby Green, of Duke. He is a strong favorite to cop this year's state championship, a feat he accomplished last year by defeating his teammate, Guice Potter. Morris has recently been chosen as a member of this year's Davis Cup squad.

ROUND BALLERS SHOW PROGRESS

The Presbyterian College baseball team was very impressive in their 14-inning victory over Mercer last Wednesday afternoon. They played excellent ball defensively and showed promise of being a hard-hitting club. Pitchers "Lefty" Johnson and Johhny Tennant combined talents to hold the Bears scoreless during the latter stages of the game. Tennant entered the game with two on and no outs. He walked the first batter to face him to load the sacks. He then promptly struck out the next three men to face him to get the Blue Hose out of the hole.

Johnson came on in the tenth after Tennant had retired in favor of a pinch hitter. He pitched five innings of hitless ball and only allowed one ball to be hit out of the infield. His slow curve had the Mercer stickmen guessing throughout the last five innings.

Second baseman Tommy Reeves laid down a perfect squeeze bunt n the bottom of the ninth to score Don Segrest from third and send the game into extra innings. The biggest thrill of the afternoon came in the last of the 14th inning when Segrest led off for the Hosemen. He wasted no time in belting the horsehide over the hedge in right field to wrap up the game for PC. The Hose played their best game fo the season in taking the extra inning thriller.

STATE TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Tuesday marks the first day of the annual South Carolina Tennis Championships. These matches offer the students of Presbyterian College an opportunity to see the stars which have brought fame to PC in action. Although the Hose have been the big guns in all the tourneys for the past 15 years, the matches will very probably develop into hard-fought contests. These matches also offer the students a chance to show the members of the team that we are behind them. All it takes is for us to turn out in large numbers to cheer our team to their 16th consecutive victory in the championships.

SHORT SHOTS

Felder Cook made a fine grab of Segrest's homerun ball Wednesday afternoon. From his station on the other side of the hedge Cook circled under the line drive and took it in like a big leaguer. SIGN HIM UP!!! John Brownlow is leading Jimmy Hentz by two games in their "World Series of Ping Pong."

The Courts of Praise . . .

Racketmen Enter State Tourney Seeking Their 16th Title Win

• Morris is State Singles Champ

Presbyterian College will play host to the South Carolina Tennis Championships and the South Carolina Invitational Championships next Tuesday through Thursday. The Hose are a strong favorite to capture their 16th straight title in a row.

PC's Allen Morris is defending state singles champion and he is a definite favorite to retain his title. The winners in doubles last year were Morris and Guice Potter. Coach Jim Leighton has not only led a team that has dominated play in South Carolina but also a team that has gained a berth among the top tennis powers in the nation.

The Blue Hose of this year have compiled a 16-2 won-loss record against all foes. Their only losses came at the hands of a powerful University of Miami team early in the season. Co-captain Morris has won 18 straight collegiate matches.

Coach Leighton has been very pleased with the team's play so far this year. He is particularly with the teamspirit. The Hose have played an excellent brand of tennis at all times during the season.

Because of PC's dominance in tournament play in the last years, interest in the event was on a decline. Coach Leighton advanced the idea of an invitational tournament from which Presbyterian College players would be banned. This was the birth of the South Carolina Invitational Championships. This is the third year for the new tourney and the past two years have been considered rousing successes.

The team from the College of Charleston was the winner of the trophy last year and the University of South Carolina was second. Jack Fischer of the College of Charleston was last year's singles champion and he and Bilton were doubles champions.

The tournament has always been one of the big events of the school year for students at PC. This year's tourney should exhibit the finest tennis to be witnessed in this area for quite some time.

Hose and Clemson Tilt On Tiger Home Territory

The PC track team will seek their dual meet victory tomorrow as they travel to Clemson to do battle with the strong Tigers. Partcuilar interest will be focused to the hurdles and shot put. Here the Tigermen are very strong and victories in either events could prove very costly, possibly a victory.

This meet will tell much in that what can be expected in the coming state meet, two weeks hence. Should the Hosemen defeat Clemson handily their vastly improving state championship chances should soon soar even higher.

The spirit is high in the PC camp, as Coach Lonnie MacMillen predicts victory for the Hose. Leading the way again will be the usual stalwarts: Vass, the Johnsons, Aiken, Harrington, Jim Hancock, and Pue. All in all the squad is rounding into fairly good shape, and good results also should be coming from such men as Arrington, Stanley, Messer, Conner, and Marshall.

Clubmen Lose Four Straight Golf Matches

During matches during the past week the Presbyterian College golf team lost to Mercer, The Citadel, Furman and South Carolina. The Hose dropped a close 14-13 match to the Citadel. Robert Odum was medalist with a 74. The match was played at the Forest Lake Country Club in Laurens.

Last Saturday the Hose traveled to Macon, Ga., where they dropped a 10½-7½ match to the Bears. Robert Odum, playing n the No. 1 position, handed John Binns his first defeat of the year.

Hose Glovemen Take Two; Furman Counts Only Loss

Don Segrest homered in the fourteenth inning to give the Blue Hose a hard-earned win over the Mercer Bears.

Mercer led up until the ninth inning with one out gone when Jerry Wampfler called on his bench standouts, Danny Williams singled to right field. Pinch runner Ray Hodges one of the team's fastest runners, took over the base path job.

Segrest, hitting for Tennant, walked and Bill Yearick, batting for Cecil Geddings, singled to left field. Hodge scored from second base on a show of daring base running. Tommy Reeves squeezed Segrest in from third to tie up the ball game.

Lefty Johnson pitched hitless ball from the ninth through the fourteenth innings, after relieving Johnny Tennant who had pitched equally well, allowing only two hits in any inning.

"Chief" Segrest then stepped in and promptly hit Don Culbreth's first pitch high over the right field hedge, clinching the hard-fought contest for the Hose.

PC 5—Citadel 2

The Hose then took their fourth win out of the last five games from The Citadel Bulldogs.

Pitcher Charles Malpass of PC allowed only three hits in his top pitching performance of the year, while the Hosemen collected seven from the Bulldog pitcher, Bob Miller.

The most outstanding offensive play was shown by catcher Richard Shrigley who smashed home runs in the fifth inning, driving in one run, and again in the eighth when he belted one 410 feet over the centerfield scoreboard.

Besides Shrigley's two hits, Tap Tobias, Dee Parker, and Cecil Geddings contributed one each while Tony Benson added two more.

Citadel	100	000 001	—2 3 2

PC 9—Furman 10

The Hose suffered their defeat at the hands of the Furman Hornets on their new field in an error-filled game which ended in high scores for both teams.

Furman's big stick was Joe Cooper, who hit two home runs and drove in five more. Watson, Kiber, and Moore combined formed the pitching strength for the game.

Morris Wins 17th; Netmen Drub Furman

The powerful Presbyterian College Blue Hose tennis team returned from a trip into North Carolina, Virginia, and West Virginia with two wins and no defeats. The Hose defeated Duke 8-1, Virginia 7-2,and were rained out of a match with the Charleston, W. Va., Country Club team.

In the match with Duke Allen Morris, member of this year's Davis Cup team, defeated Captain Bonny Green 6-2, 6-3. This was the 17th straight win for Morris. John Kopf took the only win for the Blue Devils by defeating Dick Macatee 3-, 7-5, 6-3.

In a match played in Greenville Monday the Hose defeated Furman 7-2. Guice Potter, playing No. 1, defeated Price 8-1, 6-1.

The summary:

Potter (P) defeated Price 6-1, 6-1; Jackson (P) defeated Height 6-0, 6-3; Shakespeare (P) defeated Sawyer 6-1, 6-1; Watson (P) defeated Cothran 6-0, 6-0; Clevenger (F) defeated Taylor 6-4, 4-6, 9-7; Neal (F) defeated Byers 6-4, 6-8, 6-2; Potter-Jackson (P) defeated Price-Haight 6-0, 6-1; Byers-Shakespeare (P) defeated Sawyer-Cothran 6-2, 6-0; Taylor-Watson (F) defeated Neal-Hancock 6-2, 6-2.

Chuck Sloan Leaves Record Of Fine Dependability at PC

For our next senior sports celebrity we choose "Chuck" Sloan, another Indiana boy, who somehow found his way South and wound up at P. College. Chuck, the brother of former basketball coach Norman Sloan, played ball his entire four years here at PC, lettering every season.

The rangy six-footer, although never the outstanding point maker, was probably one of the team's most dependable and best defensive players. Many nights, while Thompson, Toole and Co. were racking up the points, Chuck was busy holding the high-scoring opponent to very few points.

During the interview with Chuck, he related some of his most thrilling experiences in his basketball career. He cites two of his most exciting nights as games with Furman. In one of them, last year, "Mr. Defensive" held down All-American Darrell Floyd to only 16 points as the Hose emerged victorious by a one-point margin.

This year's 115-117 victory over Furman was another great experience for Chuck. Other such incidents included holding down Mercer's high point man to only 5 points in the second half, and playing in Charlotte's new Coliseum.

While scoring 14 points in the last five minutes was another thrill that Chuck cherishes, the modest Indianan stated that his greatest thrill ever was seeing his teammate, Bruce Thompson, sink the last-second, Little Four-winning goal against Erskine this year.

Other than being a basketball stalwart for four years, Chuck has been a leader in Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity by virtue of his being voted the Most Outstanding Pledge in 1953. He also is a Military Company Commander, and upon graduation will serve two years in the Infantry.

Chuck is majoring in history and when duty to Uncle Sam has been fulfilled, he plans to coach and teach in his adopted state of South Carolina.

Chuck and his charming wife, Jeanette, his high school sweetheart, reside in Vetville.

In about one month Chuck will join the exodus from PC to seek his fortune elsewhere, and we again extend our hands for a job well done and continued success in the future.

Augusta-Aiken Jubilee Area Still Showing Large Increase

Latest report figures on the Presbyterian College Diamond Jubilee Development Program show the Aiken region soaring past its goal and the over-all program moving across the $350,000 mark.

A total of $15,789 was recorded in the Aiken campaign organization at the second report meeting of the Augusta and Aiken regions in Augusta on Friday night. This amount, subscribed by 62 donors, already has surpassed the Aiken goal of $13,000 with one more report meeting yet scheduled.

The Augusta region, with an objective of $36,000, has brought in $17,318.36 from 121 subscriptions to date.

Together, these two regions have solicited $33,107.36 in the last two weeks. A final report meeting is scheduled at the First Presbyterian Church of Augusta next Friday night.

The latest figures from these areas increased to $351,055.22 the amount which has been raised thus far in Presbyterian College's program to secure $750,000 from the two controlling Synods of South Carolina and Georgia this year.

In the Aiken region thus far, the small Trenton Presbyterian church leads the field, with $10,000 reported. This congregation is followed by the First Presbyterian Church of Aiken, with $4,774.

Torre, Merline Will Play For Last Dances of Year

President Jim Hancock of the Inter-Fraternity Council announced today that plans for the dances to be held State Track Meet weekend, May 4-5, have been completed.

On Friday night David Merline and his Band from Columbia will play at the Armory. This is the first time in several years the Merline group has played here but students who have heard the band recommend them highly. The Friday dance will last from nine until one and the dress will be formal. A highlight of the evening will be the leadout honoring the sweetheart of each of the six fraternities.

The band chosen for the Masquerade Ball on Saturday night is Tony Torre, also of Columbia. Torre has played here twice previously this year and is well known to all PC'uns.

Torre's enjoyable music will begin at eight and continue until twelve. All students are urged to attend and asked to come in costume because a prize will be given to the couple judged to have the most original costume.

The assessment for fraternity men will be $3.00 for the weekend. Non-fraternity tickets will be on sale at the door at $2.00 per night. President Hancock urges all students to be sure and attend these two dances as they will be the last for the year.

Rifle Team Captures Two Trophies for PC

The Presbyterian College ROTC Rifle Team was recently awarded two trophies for gaining top honors in a conference made up of teams from PC, Furman, and Wofford. The rifle men ended the season with a record of three wins and one loss.

One of the trophies will become a permanent possession of Presbyterian College. The other is held for one year and can be retired by winning the conference two years in a row.

Team captain Phil Cannella presented the trophies to President Marshall W. Brown in a chapel service last Wednesday.

Robed Choir Selects Collins, Veal as Heads

The Presbyterian College Robed Choir elected Noble Collins and Ramon Veal co-presidents for the 1956-57 season. Wayne Cousar, of Sardinia, was selected treasurer to succeed Bill Cashwell, of Fayetteville, N. C.; and Roger Godwin, of Atlanta, Ga., was chosen custodian in the place of Veal.

Collins, an English major, hails from Atlanta, Ga., and is serving his fourth semester with the choir. He was a member of the double quartet for two of these terms, and is one of the soloists on the current program. Collins serves on the newspaper staff as feature editor, and is a member of the Kappa Alpha Order.

Co-President Veal is also from Atlanta, and is studying for the ministry. This is his fourth semester with the Glee Club. Previously, he held the position of custodian, and is presently serving as one of the readers on their program. He is news editor of the Blue Stocking, and is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha.

The remaining officers, appointed by the director, Dr. Edouard Patte, are: Bill Moore, chaplain; and section leaders—Harold Gallimore, first tenor; Charlie Henderson, second tenor; John Childers, first bass; and Bill Cashwell, second bass.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Duck!

The Blue Stocking did not need to resort to Emily Post to notice certain uncouth, uncivilized, and childish activities in the dining hall which have become very noticeable lately. We realize that spring is here with all of its usual collegiate consequences, but surely a more constructive activity can be found other than throwing food.

Of course, we also realize that this activity may be an expression of a negative opinion on the quality of the food, but much more can be done by mature suggestions to the dining hall manager than by draping food upon one another's persons or by making "mud pies" on the table to ruin the appetite of the next occupants.

Usually, the culinary missiles are aimed at one of the thrower's buddies, but the unreliable trajectory of a wad of green peas or wet roll sometimes winds up cutting a swath through a fresh plate on the next table. Human nature being what it is in such cases, the wounded party usually retaliates by throwing something in the general direction from which he believes the glob to have come. This usually lands on an innocent table, and so on, ad infinitum.

The whole game winds up with the guilty parties sometimes leaving their trays on the table. It is true that we are fortunate enough to have a clean-up staff, but their job is to wash the tables and keep the dining hall in sanitary condition, not to perform the courtesy of carrying trays back back to the washers. This is the student's obligation.

The problem would not be so acute but for the fact that we have guests frequently in the dinnig hall, and the spectacle of food on the floor and messy trays on the tables casts an unkempt reflection on the entire student body and on the management. Fortunately, this problem has an easy solution. The exercise of a little consideration on the parts of the students responsible will eliminate it entirely.

The Male Call

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

Since everybody is writing letters, I guess I'll write too. Every day the mail truck pulls in front of the S and unloads its precious variety of numerous letters.

Every male within a mile radius perks up his ears and stares eagerly at the clock, waiting for second period to be over. As soon as the bell rings, there is a wild scramble to the door with any bystander being crushed in the stampede.

Boys flow from every room and doorway, dashing frantically for the S. C. A. building. The door swings open and they fling themselves in the narrow passage way, jammed together closer than sardines in a can.

The ones who are lucky enough to be able to reach their boxes mutter threats of violence as they are pushed to and fro in front of their boxes.

They also mutter threats of—well, you know, when their combinations don't work. At last, the moment they have lived and fought for has arrived. A greedy hand reaches in and savagely clutches the home town newspaper or a week-old Sunday bulletin.

More threats! Another frantically thrusts his arm up to the shoulder, in the yawning chasm of emptiness, and ends up with one dirty sleeve. More threats! Some open their box to find a letter on pink or blue stationary.

Grasping it in their clammy little fist, they can only mutter when they see that familiar handwriting of a loving mother and then a sigh of contentment is heard. And still there are the fortunate few who open their box and out flows the sweetest and the strongest aroma in the world.

Some lead you to believe, by scent that is, that they have been dunked in a dishpan of perfume, others have just enough to conjure up the picture of that favorite girl.

These letters are received with wild (I guess) and other plete silence. I derstand why some fact and others their pockets and some secluded spot.

All in all, I forward to mail those letters that as the clockwork ing to the boy in shirt.

SO LET'S GET WI

Hot O' Rudy Starts A Day

By LYMAN HARRIS

The alarm clock went off and I crawled out of bed. I staggered over to Hot O'Rudy's bed, shook him, and hollered, "Get up." He grunted and turned over, rolling up in his covers. I hollered again, "Get up, or I'll give you the wet rag treatment."

He didn't budge, so I rolled him out of his bed and onto the floor. He crawled under his bed and went back to sleep. I pulled his leg and tried to get him to come out from under the bed, but he wouldn't.

I said, "Come on, Hot O., or you'll miss breakfast."

He stuck his head out and said, "If that's a promise that I'll miss breakfast, I know I won't get up." Hot O. wasn't much of a breakfast fan.

One morning before breakfast he gargled with Listerine. When he got to the chow hall he discovered he couldn't taste his breakfast because of the Listerine; so now he gargles with it every morning before breakfast.

I argued, "Come on, Hot O. You've got to get up some time. It might as well be now." He grumbled, "I'm sick. I think I have sleeping sickness. I believe I'll go to sick call."

I said "Come on, Hot O. You remember what happened the other times you went to sick call." (One of the nights that we had cube steaks for supper, Hot O. had gone over afterwards to the infirmary to have his stomach pumped out. Mrs. Bob took his temperature, gave him a bottle of blue aspirins and sent him away.)

Another time he sprained his ankle and went to the infirmary. Mrs. Bob took his temperature, gave him a bottle of green aspirins and sent him away. I said, "You know, Mrs. Bob must get aspirins wholesale," Hot O. said, "Yeah, I think her maiden name was St. Joseph."

By the time we finished our conversation Hot O. was pretty well awake, so we dressed and went to the chow hall. We got at the end of the sleepy, zombie looking line. Hot O. whispered to me, "You better watch that guy serving grits. He's a southpaw and has a good curve." By staying on my toes and watching him I managed to get by with only about a half a pound splattered on my clothes, and we took a seat in the far corner.

Powell marched by our table as he patrolled his morning beat. Hot O. said, "I think I'll ask Powell for a job. Man, all that food! That's like having a job at the mint with toting privileges." "Or like having sterling engraved on your bottom if you were a teapot," I added.

He thought about it for a while and we talked it over, but since it came under the category of work, he decided to let it slide, and we went to the dorm to get ready for another day of it.

Snow Caps

By I. BEN SWETINET

Well, another weekend is here and lots of trash has hit the fan.

When Tommy Warren told his roommates how cute his date from USC was, little did he expect one of them to bird dog on him for the coming dance. Looks like Bob Martin is a step ahead of you, Tom.

Bob said that Lyman Harris wrote a girl down Columbia way and told her if she liked him to write him back and more or less ask him for a date. Did you learn that technique from Hot O. Rudy, Lyman?

Gene Butler has a new way of getting out of things. Betsy now writes excuses for him, mainly. Excuses from fraternity socials that she can't attend, anyway. She tried it on Tap Tobias this past week 'cause the fraternity wouldn't let Gene go home on his birthday. Well, it's leap year, isn't it?

The world will no doubt come to an end sometime in the very near future, because the Lover of all Lovers, Tommy Richards, hasn't got a date for the dance! Men, if your date is a known late-dater, beware of the Heath Springs Phantom!

It was said that the other night Robert "Yo-Yo" Harrington has fallen in love again. She even had him shagging like Fred Astaire. Never can tell what love will make you do next, can you?

What happened to the "Cadillac Baby," ken D.? Did she say that she was going steady or something like that? We will all have to keep an eye out for another gold mine for you and Maurice.

ALLEN MORRIS

Morris Will Visit England For Wimbledon Tournament

Presbyterian College Tennis Coach Jim Leighton announced recently that PC's No. 1, Allen Morris, will travel to England this summer to play in the famous Wimbledon Tournament, which is considered the World Championship of tennis.

Morris will fly to England around Jun. 6, and will not return until the end of the month.

Since grass is the standard surface in England, Morris will be awarded three weeks of valuable experience on these courts. This fact alone will make the trip worthwhile.

Morris will also enter tournaments at Beckingham and Queens, which are to be held before Wimbledon. If he should get one good win at Wimbledon it would add much to his momentum as he moves up to the Nationals in September. Wimbledon is considered more important than the Nationals because of the number of internationally famous stars. The first round there can be compared with the third round in the Nationals.

In playing at Wimbledon, Morris will be in the fight for the final Davis Cup Squad. He will be working with the members of the preliminary squad who have also gone over. His play in England should make him a better player by the time he is ready for the grass tournaments in the United States. His trip is being financed by friends and fans in Clinton and Atlanta and, also, by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Morris came to Presbyterian College after playing football for one year at Georgia Tech. It was here at PC that he began his work under Coach Jim Leighton. Morris was No. 1 on the team that year and went undefeated against collegiate competition. He also won the state singles championship and was a member of the championship doubles team.

During the summer, Morris played the tough Eastern Circuit. He was recognized as one of the "tennis finds of the year". On this tour Morris upset Sidney Schwartz, and almost scored a victory over Mervyn Rose, Australia's No. 1 Davis Cup player. Rose defeated Morris in five long sets. Morris also defeated such notables as Sydney Wood, Larry Shippey, and Larry Huebner, nationally ranked twenty-third.

During his second year at PC Morris lost only three matches. He was again winner of the state singles and doubles championship. Morris was at this time ranked twenty-sixth in the na-

Hose Netmen Take 17th Straight; Final Round Saw All-PC Slate

• Morris Retains Crown

Presbyterian's powerful tennis team sewed up the South Carolina State Championships Wednesday when the Hose racketeers eliminated all other contestants from the tourney.

PC players will be both the singles and doubles champions after Thursday's play as all the finalists are Blue Hose squad members.

The final scores after the closing day of play will be PC 70, the University of South Carolina 6, College of Charleston 4, and Furman 2. Davis Cup squad member Allen Morris is slated to meet Harvey Jackson for the singles als by defeating teammate Guice title. Morris advanced to the fin Potter in three sets 6-4, 6-8, 6-2.

The Morris-Potter match was easily the best match ever seen at PC in state competition. Potter played brilliantly at times during the match. Through tiredness he could not get into the third set after taking the second set 8-6.

Jackson, in upsetting John Brownlow, also of PC, 6-4, 6-2 probably played his best tennis to date. Coach Jim Leighton said that he was particularly pleased with Jackson's improvement over the season and that this should show up well in the matches against Rollins and Miami.

The seedings for the South Carolina State Singles Championships were as follows: No. 1, Allen Morris PC; No. 2, John Brownlow, PC; No 3, Guice Potter, PC; No. 4, Harvey Jackson, PC; No. 5, Jack Fischer, College of Charleston; No. 6, Jim Shakespeare, PC; No. 7, Gene Gee, PC; No. 8, Sonny Gantt, University of South Carolina.

In doubles matches the top-seeded team of Morris and Brownlow are slated to meet Gene Gee and Scott Watson in a semi-finals match. Also in the semi-finals Potter and Jackson will meet Jim Shakespeare and Dick Macatee. Morris and Brownlow advanced to the semi-finals by defeating Gantt and Whitworth of South Carolina 6-2, 6-0. Gee and Watson advanced to their spot ov turning back Fischer and Godfrey of Charleston in three sets 6-0, 4-6, 6-1.

Netmen Finish Season Against Rollins, Miami

The Presbyterian College tennis team will close out the current season with home matches against Rollins tomorrow and Miami Monday. The Hose previously defeated Rollins on their Florida trip and were handed their only two losses of the season when they traveled to Miami to meet the No. 1 team in the nation.

The PC team, one of the best in the history of the school, has compiled a 17-2 won-loss record. No. 1 Allen Morris has gone undefeated against collegiate competition and also the No. 1 doubles team of Morris and John Brownlow is also undefeated.

The team from Rollins is probably now a better team than they were at the first of the season. Their No. 1 Ben Soberiaj was ineligible when the Hose encountered them earlier in the season.

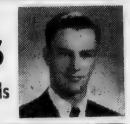
The Miami squad will be paced by such standouts as Johann Kupferberger and Al Harum.

USC Takes SC Invitational; Defeat Charleston, Furman

The University of South Carolina has clinched the team honors in the South Carolina Invitational Championships. The Carolina netters have totaled 34 points while the nearest competitor is the College of Charleston with 18. Furman is running a close third with 14 points.

The tournament, in its third year of running has definitely been a success this year. It is becoming to mean more to the other colleges in the state and they are attaching more attention to it.

Sonny Gantt is scheduled to meet top-seeded Jack Fischer of Charleston in the singles finals. Gantt is from Carolina. Gantt reached the finals by defeating Whitworth, also of Carolina, 7-5, 6-0. Fischer gained his spot in the championship match on the strength of a 6-0, 6-1 victory over Frank Haight of Furman. Haight has previously upset the No. 3 seeded player Marshall Parker of Erskine 6-4, 6-4.



In the finals in doubles competition it will be Fischer and Godfrey of Charleston against Gantt and Whitworth of Carolina. Fischer and Godfrey had previously beaten Clavenger and Cothran of Furman. Gantt and Whitworth reached the finals by defeating their own teammates, Heath and Blackwell.

Behind the Blues

NEW RECORD SEEN. With the South Carolina State Track Meet only one week away track fans begin eyeing the record books for possibilities of new records being set. The most likely of the records to be shattered are the 100 yard dash, the 220 yard dash, the broad jump, javelin, and the 220 yard low hurdles. Other possibilities are the pole vault and shot put.

PC's star dash man, Delane Johnson is a definite threat to the records in both the 100 yard and 200 yard dashs. The record in the 100 yard dash is 9.7 seconds. It was set in 1934 by Hutt of Carolina and equaled in 1950 by Woodlee also of Carolina. Johnson in a recent meet at Mercer ran the dash in 9.55 seconds.

Johnson may also be counted on for a shot at the 220 yard record. The best time in this event is 21.6 seconds which was run by Rucks of Carolina in 1948. Johnson bettered this time at Clemson last Saturday. He will have another year of eligibility.

Carolina's Dick Bartulski set a new record for the javelin throw in last year's state meet with a throw 189 ft. 7¼ inches. He has thrown 215 ft. on one occasion this season and, therefore, probably stands a very good chance of breaking his own record.

Clemson's strong hurdler, Joe Bowen, has once this year equaled the record of 23.9 seconds in the 220 yard low hurdles and will be expected to make a good showing in the state meet. The record is currently held by McFadden of Clemson, who set it in 1940.

Another of McFadden's records stands a good chance of being cracked. Bobby Vass of PC has twice bettered in a state meet the broad jump record only to have been disqualified because of technicalities of the pit and also a scratch. Although Vass has not reached the record distance of 23 ft. 3 7-8 inches in a meet this year his leaps have been consistantly near that mark.

The two records that are not seriously threatened but stand a fair chance of being topped are 13 ft. 4 in. in the pole vault and 48 ft. 1 5-8 in. in the shot put. Presbyterian's Richard Johnson has cleared the barrier at 13 feet on one occasion this season. Bob Spooner of Clemson has consistently put the shot 48 feet during the current campaign.

In all probability some of these records will stand for seasons to come, but the thin clads of the cinders will make a valient effort to register their names in the South Carolina record book.

MORRIS TO MAKE ENGLAND TRIP. Presbyterian College tennis star, Allen Morris will fly to England shortly after his graduation to play on the famous grass courts at Wimbledon. The tournament at Wimbledon is considered the world championships, and is even more important than our own Nationals. The tournament is famous because of its tremendous international flavor. Stars from all over the world will meet on the famous tennis battlegrounds.

Grass is the standard playing surface in England, and Morris should gain valuable experience for his eastern tour by playing on these courts. Prior to the Wimbledon tourney, he will play in tournaments at Beckingham and Queens. His trip will offer him three solid weeks of grass court play. This experience alone will be well worth the expense of the trip, which is being supported by fans in Atlanta and Clinton and, also, by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Man of the Week Harrington Mixes Athlete and Scholar

By TOMMY RICHARDS

This week's sports celebrity is Robert Harrington, or "Hoss," as he is widely known to the general campusites.

Harrington entered Presbyterian College in February of 1953 after serving as an MP in the United States Army for sixteen months. Bob graduated from high school in his home town of Darlington where he was an All-State football player during his senior year. He then entered South Carolina for one semester before he was drafted and sent to Japan.

Robert entered PC when he was discharged and became a top athlete on the campus. He has played football for three years and has been a member of the track team for four years.

Harrington made the first team Little All Four, second team All-State, and honorable mention Little All-American this past football season. His biggest thrill was this year's victory over Davidson.

Bob has put the shot and thrown the discus for four years as a member of the Blue Hose thinclad team. He has been defeated only once in the shot put this year and his best throw has been around 46 feet.

Robert thinks that PC and Clemson will give Carolina a real race for first place in the State Track Meet. He feels sure that the first, second, and third positions will be very close.

Bob is majoring in economics and minoring in physical education. He will get his teacher's certificate and will receive his degree in June. He has made the Dean's List twice while at PC and at present is doing his required practice teaching at Bush River high school. Bob plans to coach and teach when he graduates from PC. He is a mmeber of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Bob's favorite movie actress and actor are Grace Kelly and Alan Ladd, and his favorite male and female vocalists are Nat King Cole and Joni James. He loves to sit down to a meal and see a big T-bone steak. He is a hunting enthusiast, which may or may not have anything to do with another of his favorite pastimes: dating.

Good luck, Bob, and may your future be as successful and as rewarding as your present.

In 1955, Morris was selected as a member of the United States Davis Cup Squad. He again played the Eastern Grass Circuit and gained valuable experience against some of the top stars in the nation. He has been called by some of the top men in tennis today, one of the best prospects in years.

During the current season, Morris has gone undefeated in both singles and doubles play. He has been chosen to the preliminary Davis Cup Squad for htis year. He is currently ranked sixteenth in the nation and second in the South. One of the bright spots in this year's play was his win over the ninth ranked player in the nation, Sam Giammalva of Texas.

Coach Leighton recently said that he and Morris were not expecting too much at Wimbledon, but that Morris would be out to gain all the prestige and experience that he possibly could.

Choir Closes Year With Annual Dinner

The Presbyterian College Robed Choir held its annual banquet at Judd Dining Hall last night. Chris Patte, who served as co-president of the choir during the past school year, acted as master of ceremonies for the evening.

The program was opened by Chris introducing Dr. Brown who, on behalf of the administration and faculty, thanked the choir for the job of representing the college they have done this year. Dr. Patte, director of the choir, then gave a brief summary of the year's activities and a report on the financial standing of the choir.

Following Dr. Patte's report Drayton Cooper, of Sumter, talked to the group. Drayton, an alumnus of the college and a four-year member of the choir, spoke on what the choir has meant to him as a student here at PC.

Tom Turner, on behalf of the members of the choir, presented to Mrs. Patte a gift as a token of appreciation for what she has meant to them and for the many kindnesses she has displayed toward them. Each member was then given a souvenir portrait of the choir.

Next . . . The Party System?

In this year of the "Dawning Renaissaince" of Presbyterian College's material facilities, there has been a clamorous birth of a political spirit among the students that is wholesome, clean, honest, and totally in keeping with the ideals upon which the college was founded.

Gone is the day of pledged block votes behind closed doors; in its place are posters, sandwich boards, banners, and sound cars proclaiming the qualifications of the various candidates and openly soliciting the student's vote. Everywhere the spirit of friendly competition prevails; only rain prevented a student-inspired rally from objectively considering the respective candidates by their performance on the speaker's platform.

We, the students of Presbyterian College, can accept with pride the fact that the campaign spirit has been born; let us not allow it to dwindle or degenerate back into the old factionary pledges.

Where do we go from here? The wholesome and contagious atmosphere of the new spirit sets its own course. The next step is the further organization of the spontaneous campaigning shown this week, and eventually the establishment of political parties, with the active, participating campaigning of the candidates themselves by speeches and presentations of platforms before the entire student body.

This is the happy dream. However, we realize that such a major innovation will not and cannot be brought into workable reality overnight. Under the present Constitution of the college, there are a few technical obstacles which need to be modified in order to yield a more valid indication of student choice. Excepting the next practical step of more organized campaigning under the present system, we present for your consideration and discussion a proposed plan for political parties.

From the list of the seniors nominated for office, make the two top men opposing candidates for the presidency, each representing a political party with a platform to be chosen by their party. The third and fourth men in the vote will oppose each other for the presidency, and the fifth and sixth men will oppose each other for the position of senior representative. To provide a fair balance of appeal to the voters, the lowest man in each category would be placed in the party of the highest man in the category above his position, and vice versa.

This system will also have its drawback. A system would have to be devised whereby there would be a fair representation of fraternities; in other words, each man in a party should be a member of a different fraternity. However, the good in such a system would seemingly outweigh the bad, for under it there would be a campaign between the total parties rather than a contest between the different fraternities.

The worth of this suggestion is left up to you. Whatever you decide about the suggestion, at least join with this staff and the new Student Council in preserving the ideal campaign spirit shown this year on our campus.

Welcome, fellow females to the campus of the fi school in the South. This weekend you are being entert best bunch of guys you'll find.

In your eyes, we may not have much to offer, but what we do have we highly recommend. You are attending the biggest and best brawl of the year. Hot O' Says: "I Go Margo"

By LYMAN HARRIS

It was the night before student council elections and the primaries were being held in Neville Hall. Hot O'Rudy was elected as the delegate from Bailey to the Democratic Primary.

Hot O. came out of the shower into the room, poofed on some Stopette, and started dressing. He put on his Kentucky colonel tie, flashed a toothy smile, shook my hand and gave me a cigar. He was ready to go!

I tagged along with him to Neville Hall. When we got there the confetti was flying. We looked around to see which room we were supposed to go to. Over the door to the Radio Forum room was a sign that said, "Republican Primary."

There was an arrow pointing upstairs to the Democratic Primary, and a sign over the door to the men's room that said, "Fraserist's Primary." We went upstairs.

The Primary was held ni the chapel and there were representatives from the whole school. Hot O'Rudy was the representative from Bailey Hall, Les Guzlafu from Smyth dorm, Don Sweddit from Laurens, Ima Shaftshooter from the girls' dorm, M. T. Stein from Spencer, and Dean Andy representng the faculty.

The chairman called the meeting to order with three raps on the rostrum with his gavel, after which the rostrum fell to pieces. "The 1956 Democractic Primary for student council members is now in session." The opening speech was made and the action began.

The delegation from Spencer cheered and waved an "I like Ike" sign. Hot O. held up an "I Go Margo" sign, and Dean Anderson held up a sign that said, "I'll not say who."

The room was full of smoke. Hot O. and Les had pipes, Don and M. T. had cigars. Ima had cigarettes, and Dean was chewing on his favorite pencil. Nominations were made and the voting began.

Bailey hall voted first.

Smyth stood. He shouted, "The represntative from Smyth casts one vote for Reno." The other delegates showed their disapproval by showering them with rotten tomatoes and eggs. The delegation from Smyth fought back with a volley of ping pong balls.

The voting and quarreling went on until daybreak. The representative of the faculty delegation stood and said, ""I'll not say why, and you'll not know why, but I call for a recount." Hot O.Rudy hollered, "Recess! Recess!" The recess was granted.

Some of the delegations rushed out to see if Margo was still running. While I staggered sleepily to my room. Hot O. made the usual morning rounds turning off all the ROTC officer's clocks so they would sleep through drill.

MORRIS ENDS UNDEFEATED SEASON

Presbyterian College tennis star Allen Morris ended his college reer for PC Monday with his third straight win over Miami's Jo ann Kupferberger and remained victorious over a string of 18 col giate matches. Morris is definitely one of the top collegiate stars the nation today if not the greatest.

He has met and defeated all challengers this year including the owerful No. 1 Texas University Sam Giammalva. He has recently een named to the preliminary United States Davis Cup squad and e plans to travel to England where he will play at Wimbledon. A ood showing as Wimbledon could very possibly land him a spot on he final Davis Cup squad.

Morris is currently ranked 16th in the nation but he should move p in the ratings in the very near future. He has brought much ame and publicity to the college as well as himself during his stay ere at Presbyterian College.

The doubles team of Morris and John Brownlow also deserves onsiderable praise as they also went undefeated during the recently nded season and probably rank as No. 1 doubles team in the nation. They showed their greatness in last Saturday's match with Rollins when they defeated Soberaij and Garcia 5-7, 7-5, 6-3. Morris and Brownlow lost the first set and were down 4-1 in the second set before they began their almost miraculous comeback. They went on to win the second set while displaying some of the best all around ennis ever seen on the PC courts and swamped the Rollins team 3-3 in the third and deciding set.

Senior Dick Macatee who also played his last match against Mi ami deserves a great deal of credit for the fine tennis he has played

29th Intercollegiate Meet Opens; USC Strong Favorite for Repeat

USC and Clemson Vie for Lead; PC to Show Strength in Dashes

Today and tomorrow the "Little Olympics" of South Carolina, the State Intercollegiate Track and Field meet, will provide another weekend of colorful spectacle and pageantry at Presbyterian College.

From the start of the freshman meet today until the final awarding of the varsity laurels tomorrow afternoon, a full schedule of the state's top cinder specialists will vie for the spot as they make their bid for glory in the 29th annual state meet.

Teams from the University of of South Carolina, Clemson, Furman, The Citadel, and homestanding Presbyterian College will compete with the highly-touted Gamecocks of South Carolina expected to walk off with the team championship.

Clemson and PC should follow close on their heels and will feature some of the best men in the state in several events. Furman and The Citadel will very probably be out of the running for top honors, but should provide a few surprises which could swing the team total to other schools.

Pacing the strong Gamecocks will be such standouts as Dick Bartulski, who has already shattered his own record in the javelin throw by some 20 feet, Freddie Roberts, the speedy 880-yard dash man who holds the state mark at 1:57.1, and Sonny Wilcher, the 440 whiz who breezes at a near record speed.

Leading the way for the Battlin' Blue Hose of PC will be Delane Johnson, 100-yard speedster who has already bettered the state record by 2-10 of a second, and Bobby Vass, the broad jumping ace who will be for the last time seeking to grab off the record that he has barely missed three years in succession. Delane will also be hoping to shatter the 220-yard dash record.

Wyatt Aiken, the versatile jack-of-all-trades for the Hosemen, will be running and jumping in his usual fashion, and PC's victory chances are somewhat hinged on just how well he can come through for a big scoring spree. Jim Hancock will be called upon to provide a threat in the hurdles for the Hose.

Robert Harrington will toss the shot and with the exception of Clemson's Bob Spooner, a 49-foot thrower, should add up points for the Hose. Richard Johnson, the Hose pole vault sensation, will be out to bring home a victory for the Hose in this event. Johnson has come within four inches of the 13 foot, 4 inch record.

Walt Marshall will provide help for the Hose in the 100- and 220-yard dashes. High jumping chores will be handled by the talented freshman star, Marvin Conner, who has on occasion jumped over the six foot mark and must achieve that feat tomorrow to enhance his chances for a victory.

Arthur Pue will be counted on in the two-mile run. Pue, beaten twice, will be out to gain revenge in the most gruelling of all runs. Fred Stanley and Marion Dowdle will lead the way for PC in the 440 and 880. Coach Lonnie McMillian's small squad will be in the thick of the battle and with a turn of events in a few of the questionable positions, state championship laurels could fall in the hands of the Blue Hose.

PC Tops Newberry, Take Little Four Golf

The Presbyterian College golf team swamped Newberry 23½-3½ last Tuesday afternoon. Warren Mays of PC was medalist with a 76 while Mayer was low for Newberry with a 79.

Presbyterian College registered a team score of 623 to defeat Newberry and Wofford for the Little Four golf championship held at Hampton last weekend. The Hose team had little trouble in taking the tournament which was held jointly with the State tourney. Robert Odum took individual Little Four honors with a two round total of 150.

Glovers Top Wofford; Malpass Goes Route

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose baseball team encountered the Wofford Terriers here on Young Field last Saturday and suffered a 6-1 setback. Lefthander Tom McIntyre baffled the Blue Hose all afternoon, allowing only six scattered hits while fanning twelve batters.

McIntyre, who has passed the century mark in strikeouts in eight games so far this season, gave up three of his hits to Hose leftfielder Danny Williams. In collecting half of his team's hits, Williams blasted out two long doubles and drove in the lone Blue Hose tally.

Charles Malpass, after a shaky start in which the Terriers pushed across five runs on five hits and four errors in the first two innings, settled down to pitch topnotch ball for the remainder of the game.

He allowed only one run on three hits in the last seven innings of the contest. Malpass, Tommy Reeves, and Richard Shrigley collected the teams' nings of the contest. Malpass,

Wofford	320	000	100—6 8 2

McIntyre and Sessoms; Malpass and Shrigley.

Clemson and Carolina have been big winners of team trophies in past years at the State Track Meet. The Tiger men have taken eleven firsts and one tie, while the Gamecocks have ten firsts and one tie. PC follows with five championships and Furman with one.

All in all the meet should supply thrills galore and the outcome is usually not decided until the curtain is pulled in the final event.

during his career at PC. In his matches against Rollins and Miami he displayed some of the finest tennis he has played during his college career.

ODUM WINS LITTLE FOUR GOLF TITLE

Robert Odum recently won the Little Four golf tournament held jointly with the State tournament at Hampton. Odum finished ahead of all comers in Little Four competition. The PC team also won the Little Four team score. Odum also finished third in a driving contest open to all collegiate players in South Carolina.

DELANE, STATE'S FASTEST HUMAN?

Delane Johnson has not yet officially broken the state records in the 100 yard dash and 220 yard dash but he has unofficially broken both of the records in meets this year. If he should come through with record breaking performances he can lay claim to being the fastest human in the state.

Johnson is undefeated in the dashes so far this season but he already has two strikes against him as far as breaking the records are concerned. The PC track is not in the best record breaking condition and the 220 on this track is around a curve and not on a continuous straightaway. However, Johnson is only a junior and will have another crack at the records if he is not successful this year.

STATE MEET OFFERS LOOK AT STATE'S BEST ATHLETES

Besdes Delane Johinson others who are considered tops in their field and who will be entered in the State meet are Richard Johnson and Bobby Vass of PC, Joe Bowen and Bob Spooner, of Clemson, and Dick Bartulski, Freddie Roberts, and Sonny Wilcher, of South Carolina. These performers also will be out to smash records and all have either exceeded or nearly equalled records during the season. The 29th State Track Meet shapes up as another splendid "Little Olympics."

Guice Potter will be returning to play before his home town crowd when he travels to Anniston this weekend to play in the Anniston Invitational Tournament. Another home town boy makes good. Save the newspaper clippings, Pot . . . That's all for this week . . . The state meet will offer some fine entertainment for your dates this weekend, so let's not make any other plans.

Latest Development Roundup Looks Good in All Regions

The Aiken region soared well over its goal and the over-all total of Presbyterian College's Diamond Jubilee Development program moved to more than $365,000 in the latest campaign reports this week.

Presbyterians of the Aiken region, although few in number, brought in $20,808 to exceed their objective of $13,000.

The Augusta region, in throwing its support behind the college, brought its drive to a close at the same time and reported subscriptions amounting to $22,100.

And wth the final reports of these two areas, the campaign total to date rose to $365,000 with subscriptions from 1,907 individuals. This amount has been brought in from four regions in the controlling Synods of South Carolina and Georgia and from some advance gifts from other sections. The program seeks $750,000 for PC in 1956.

In addition to the recent reports from Augusta and Aiken, the small local area of Laurens and Newberry counties subscribed $157,000 at the start of the program, and the Atlanta region followed with $110,000.

Meanwhile, seven other regions are now in various stages of campaigns which are expected to add substantially to the funds already solicited for Presbyterian College.

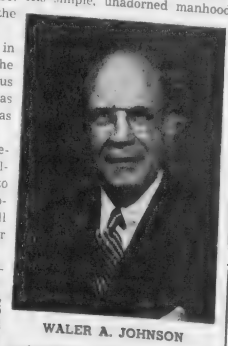
The Greenville County region kicked off its drive for $100,000 with a sparkling Diamond Jubilee Birthday Party on April 24, and active solicitations are now underway there. Spartanburg, an area which includes three counties, has scheduled its birthday party for May 1, with the job of raising $60,000 to start immediately thereafter.

Presbyterians of the Rome and LaGrange regions have just begun to form their campaign organizations, but they have progressed far enough to set goals of $50,000 for Rome and $25,000 for LaGrange.

Preliminary planning also is underway in three regions encompassing seven South Carolina counties, but goals have not as yet been established for the Florence, Darlington, and Marion areas.

Greenville and Spartanburg will complete their work in May. The other five regions now getting underway are scheduled to run until mid-June.

W. A. Johnson Directs 29th "Little Olympics"



As Presbyterian College plays host to the track notables of South Carolina in the 29th annual state intercollegiate track and field meet on Johnson Field, it will be the 29th year that Dr. Walter Johnson has been at the helm of the Palmetto Classic.

Born of Swedish parents in Milwaukee before the turn of the century, the clean, courageous blood of his Viking ancestry has shown nobly in all that he has done.

Under his direction Presbyterian College sports have developed from practically nothing to the high standard they have today. Johnson has coached in all of these sports at one period or another of their development.

In 1915 Johnson came to Clinton to take charge of athletic activities at Presbyterian College, an institution of then about 185 students. Fourteen men reported for the first football practice, and yet out of that fourteen he moulded a team that won five of seven contests and had two all-state men on its roll.

Thus has continued the story of the dean of Southern coaches His simple, unadorned manhood and friendly smile exemplify the spirit of Presbyterian College.

Netmen Close Season; Best Marks In History

The Presbyterian College tennis team wound up their best season in the history of the college last Monday when they went down in defeat to the No. 1 college team in the nation, Miami University. The Hose ended the season with an 18-3 loss record with all three losses coming at the hands of the strong Miami team.

Allen Morris wound up his college career with a three set win over 17th ranked nationally Johann Kupferberger and strengthened his bid as No. 1 college player in the nation. Morris was undefeated in college competition and posted an important victory over Sam Giammalva, ranked ninth nationally.

The doubles team of Morris and John Brownlow went undefeated during the year and also strengthened their bid as the No. 1 collegiate doubles team in the nation. Dick Macatee also played his last match for PC. He displayed some of the fine tennis that has been expected of him all season as he was defeated by Allen Juay in a close match.

Lat Saturday the Hose defeated a strong Rollins team 8-1 as Morris swamped Ben Soberaij 6-1, 6-2. Morris and Brownlow had to come from behind to defeat Soberaij 5-7, 7-5, 6-3.

Coach Jim Leighton has definitely advanced his claim as one of the top collegiate coaches in the nation with the fine record he has amassed during his reign here at Presbyterian college. He has also pushed PC into the national spotlight. Coach Leighton seems to think that next year's team will be another strong one for the Blue Hose.

The All-American rating, posted by the nationwide P Critical Service, which is recognized as the best ge of collegiate journalism in America today, marks eleventh such award the paper has received in its rear history.

In addition to these two top awards, Tommy Rich- s, sports editor of The Blue Stocking, and Charles ner, former feature editor, won the South Carolina legiate Press Association awards for the Best Sports ry and the Best Book Review respectively in the ll college class.

The Blue Stocking was entered in the ACP judging th a new classification in the 750-501 (student enroll- nt) after having been entered in the 500- class for past 15 years. This change placed the paper in a mpletely new competitive field.

In making the All-American rating The Blue Stock- is one of four weekly newspapers from colleges in the entire nation with an enrollment of 750-501 to receive this honor. A total of 473 college newspapers were entered in the ACP Critical Service, and The Blue Stocking was one of the 73 rated All-American.

The papers are placed under the critical eyes of the judges for a period of several months. They are rated on coverage, content, and physical properties in the ACP judging.

Arthur M. Sanderson, ACP assistant director and newspaper supervisory judge, evaluated and compared all Guidebooks after scores had been checked by adding machine, according to Fred L. Kildow, director of the ACP's Critical Service at the University of Minnesota.

The judges for the SCCPA awards were members of the ACP judging staff also.

The Sock received a superior rating for its "well-planned interesting page one," according to G. D. Hiebert, columnist and former assistant city editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press Dispatch, judge for The Blue Stocking. Concerning sports coverage Judge Hiebert stated further: "Your coverage is good because it has more than statistics; it includes personality!"

Twelve excellent ratings were also noted in the Guidebook, for news services, news stories, editorials, sports coverage, and physical properties such as make-up and headlines.

Since the beginning of The Blue Stocking in January 1920, it has received eleven All-American citations, and received the SCCPA Index-Journal cup once before in 1942. Macatee Receives Grant; Goal is Physics Doctorate

Dick Macatee, athletic scholar from Front Royal, Va., has recently won a graduate fellowship to the University of Virginia in the field of physics.

University officials announced that Macatee, having met the competitive requirements, will receive the benefits of $1500 fellowship in early September. The University of Virginia which boasts of an advanced school in physics, will also install Macatee as laboratory instructor of two freshman engineering classes in a completely new and modern facilitated building.

As well as doing scientific research, the University also undertakes projects for the United States Army in which Macatee will participate.

Dick, at present, is the number three man on the famed PC tennis team as well as a member of the Block P Club. He is also a member of the Kappa Alpha Order. Last year, Dick was presented with the Achievement Award in General Physics because of his outstanding work in the classroom.

Dick, whose immediate goal is a doctor's degree in physics, plans to do research work in this field after completing a two-year period in the service as a commissioned officer.

Block P Plans Banquet; Hobbs to Make Address

Plans have been completed for the Block P banquet to be held on May 18 at 7:45 .M. The banquet is an annual affair to honor those boys who have lettered in sports at Presbyterian College.

Homer Hobbs, head football coach at Furman University, will be the guest speaker. Letters and special awards will be presented at this time.

The annual Blue Key egg race, shown in full swing, always provides thrills and chills for the sadistic bystanders. The plaza resounds to cheers of students egging (ahem) their favorites on to defeat. Don Daniels lost and collected the other eggs on his head. Needless to say, he lost by a nose.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Editorials : Features : Humor

Leaves for the Tree . . .

Editorials should be judged from their timeliness, but it is good at times to present an issue that perhaps is not pressing, but suggestive and provocative. Such an issue is the need for a more cultural atmosphere on our campus.

According to our catalog, we have a debating honor fraternity, the Pi Kappa Delta Forensic Fraternity. This no doubt presents an impressive appearance in the catalog, but as a matter of fact we have no debating society from which to choose members for the fraternity.

We need a debating club on this campus.

Why? Because this is a liberal arts college, and such an organization should be an integral part of the extra-curricular program. We have very good athletic teams to represent the physical development of the college, but we have no intra-mural organization to present the cultural and academic program.

Whatever the fate of the proposed debating team, and it is hoped that it does not meet the same fate as did the literary journal, which was denied funds by the college, we definitely need a more cultural atmosphere. The recent action of the college of discounting a respectable journal, which will now have to be mimeographed if brought out at all, makes it obvious from which body the initiative will have to come if we are to establish this cultural atmosphere, which is the life's blood to any liberal arts institution. The students themselves are going to have to take the initiative.

Of course it is too late to do anything but consider the move since the semester is almost over, but ordered thought and inquiry over the summer would yield a practical program to submit next fall.

William Holden, Kim Novak Make "Picnic" a Real Treat

By NOBLE COLLINS

"Picnic," starring William Holden and Kim Novak, is truly one of the most unforgettable movies to come out in recent years.

Based on the Pulitzer Prize play by William Inge, "Picnci" is a work of art magnificently brought to life by brilliant acting and directing.

Seeing this movie is much like witnessing the onslaught of a tornado—at first it looks so innocent spiraling closer and closer, then without warning it is suddenly and violently all around, uncontrollable, awful and beautiful, and then it is gone, leaving only tears and sighs to clear the debris.

The story takes place in a quiet little Kansas town which is preparing itself for its annual Labor Day Picnic. Hal Carter (William Holden) arrives in town in his own private car (a boxcar) with only a clean pair of boots and a dirty change of clothes to his name.

He is a former football hero who is all muscle including his head, and who apparently hasn't had a steady job since his graduation several years previously.

He has picked this town because he hopes to make a contact with a rich friend who was his fraternity brother in college.

His friend is in love with the prettiest girl in town Madge Owens (Kim Novak). Madge, her tomboyish little sister, Millie (Susan Strasberg), and their mother, all share their home with a middle-aged unmarried school teacher,Rosemary Sydney (Rosalind Russell).

Their life is dull and uneventful which is typical of everyone in the town. Their only excitement is an occasional civic affair, or the anticipation of Madge's marriage to Alan Seymore, or the illogical Prince Charming dream of Miss Sydney.

Hal Carter hits this scene like a bomb! Within a metter of hours, every woman in town becomes vitally aware of her gender, and veery man is suddenly doubtful of his own manhood.

Hot O' Remembers to W

By LYMAN HARRIS

Hot O'Rudy sat on his bed with a puzzled look on his fame. "Lyman," he said, "There's something I'm supposed to be doing, but I can't remember what it is for the life of me. Can you think of anything?"

I said, 'Naw, I would remember that."

I asked, 'Studying?"

He answered, "Horrors, Ace, not that!" and turned pale at the thought of it. He rolled back on his bed and pounded his head. "I know it was something.—Oh yeah, I remember. I'm supposed to write my folks"

I remembered then. It was time for one of his semi-annual letters to his folks. He sat at his desk with pencil and paper and wrote away. When he finished, he picked up the letter and read it. This is the way it went:

"Mrs. Tutti Frutti O'Rudy
U. S. A.
Dear Mom:

Do you remember me? I am your boy, Hot O'Rudy, that went away to school last fall. Do you still live in the same place?

Maw, if you could see me you would be very proud of me, I think. I have been bestowed with several honors. Just recently I made the Dean's list. (He didn't tell her that it was Dean Anderson's list). I also have been selected the Most Drilled Cadet of the Year. On parade days I got to chase dogs off the field. As this is a very important job, it is done only by a chosen few.

Maw, I am practicing the things you told me to remember, especially I am being thrifty. Why only last week at the State Track Meet I saved seventy-five cents. I disguised my girl as a lump in my coat and got her in free.

Also every day I spent one hour practicing backing in the exit of the drive-in, so that I will become a perfectionist (that's one of the big words I learned at college. I know a few more too—elephant, hippopotamus). Anyhow, I save seads of money this way.

I wish you could visit me here. I think you would like it. It is very modern. Right across the hall from me is a room with several fancy springs and waterfalls on it. When you want them to flow, all you have to do is turn a handle.

I remember you used to ask me what I was going to be when I grow up. I have decided to be either a hermit or ably a monk after

Since it's nearly I got you a gift ny-book (mind funny book—only kind for us colle could send fifty a duck farm in ing it to you. The duck egg, a pre nest, and a book Squat Days on with it and happy Campbell said right for me to in rice again, so that.

After the ball is over some are happy, others sad. But, just about everybody looks like they are going on a long, long trip for they have really packed their bags. well It doesn't look like such a gay week-end could be followed by all these tired and woe-be-gone looks:

While everyone was dragging around in a half daze, a few comments were overheard, such as: "I had the best doggone week-end in my life. My date was a real pearl." But on the other hand, 'If that girl can't use her own feet to dance on, it will be a cold day in August before I'll drag her around on a dance floor again."

Now, we are looking forward to a still brighter spot in our future. Just two more weeks! Only a few days are left that haven't been scratched off the calendar of the school year 1956.

Everyone seems to be counting the days till school is out. Some are glad it's almost over, others wish it were just starting, but everyone is getting rac last weeks. The pr having a race to see w the most tests before the time exams get bi be to tired to study

By I. BEN SWETINET

Well, it was a mighty fine weekend so I have been told. Some people said it could have been better, though. I think Joe T would have liked it a lot better if Ted McCullough had stayed home.

I have heard that everybody played right along wth Earl Wooten this dance weekend, too. He doesn't want his little girl from Graniteville to know about Winthrop. So he and everybody else told her that Earl couldn't make it home because he's the baseball manager. I bet the coach would put you to work if he knew that, Earl.

Rod has started buying stock in the phone company. He has invested fourteen times in the last week or so. It's kind of hard to get a date with somebody who has dated you before, isn't it, Rod?

George Duke, Conway's gift to the ladies, received a minor setback last weekend when one of the Conway high school chicks handed him a 12 gauge shaft. Oh well—it won't be long before George has another one. Such swashbuckling charm can't go to waste for long.

Don Rickett, Sweetheart of Alpha Psi, has been untrue to his fan club. It seems that his blind date for the dance turned out so well that she has him going 'round meeting the kinfolks.

Well, Dukes cut most of my really hot news, but maybe it will keep me healthy longer, 'cause I. Ben Swetinet.

KEEPS ON RUNNING

In last Friday's freshman State Track Meet a member of South Carolina's mile relay team showed some of the drive and effort that is a great part of any person that becomes a really great athlete. In passing the baton the No. 2 m... stepped on the foot of the No. 3 man. A very bad spike cut was the result. However, the fearless athlete did not let his personal pains interfere with the outcome of his team in the event. He ran his lap of the relay before he would stop and seek medical aid. When his shoe was removed it was full of blood and there was a very deep cut on the top of his foot. This was certainly a display of the spirit which an athlete learns and develops during his career.

RECORDS BROKEN

There were three records broken during the State Track Meet held here last week and all three were broken by members of the University of South Carolina track delegation. All three athletes who shattered records broke records that they themselves had set. These men were Dick Bartulski, Joe Silas, and Freddie Roberts.

Bartulski brought the crowd to their feet when he threw the javelin 213 feet, 8½ inches. This bettered the mark he had set last year by 24 feet, 1 inch. He did all of this with his left arm in a cast that ran from his wrist to well above his elbow.

Silas set a new record in the discus throw in the trials on Friday with a toss of 142 feet, 10 inches. He promptly broke his own record Saturday with a toss that traveled 150 feet, 1½ inches.

Roberts cracked a record in the 880-yard run that he had set two years ago. He registered a time of 1:57.0 to shave one-tenth of a second from his old mark.

SNIPES HIGH SCORER

Conway Snipes of South Carolina was the meet's high scorer with a total of 12 points. He took firsts in the pole vault and the broad jump and a third in the 100-yard dash. He almost set a new record in the pole vault but he upset the bar on his third attempt at 13 feet, 5 inches.

Delane Johnson, Presbyterian College speedster, registered a total of 10 points with firsts in the 100- and 220-yard dashes. Johnson ran a 9.8 100 and a 22.0 220. Allen Inabinet of South Carolina also scored 10 points in the meet.

BASKIN MISSES MEET

South Carolina's veteran track coach Weems Baskin missed this year's meet due to a back injury. This was his first absence since he has been coach at Carolina. Baskin is being treated in a Columbia hospital.

WELL CONDUCTED MEET

The track meet last Saturday was one of the best conducted ever. All of the events started no time, the officials were the best that they could be found, and the starter was especially efficient. There were only two false starts in the whole meet, those being in the 120 yard high hurdles and the 100 yard dash.

Glovemen Bow to Newberry; Drop Two Straight Contests

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose baseball team suffered their twelfth defeat Tuesday night at the hands of the Newberry Indians on the Newberry field.

The Hose jumped off to a 4-0 lead in the second inning but Newberry retaliated with six runs in the bottom half of the second inning to forge ahead. The Hose never gained the lead throughout the contest but managed to tie the game at 8-8 in the seventh. In the eighth the Indians broke loose for four runs to clinch the contest.

Leland Brown started on the hill for the Hose and hurled for three and one-third innings. Brown left the game with PC trailing 7-6 and one man on base. Johnny Tennant assumed mound duties for the Hose from this point and pitched steady ball until the eighth when Newberry added their margin of victory.

Tony Benson collected two hits and drove in three runs. One of Benson's hits was a long double. Brown drove in the first two runs of the contest with a line drive single to left field. The longest hit of the night was a triple by rightfielder Don Segrest to straight-away center field. Ray Hodge scored two of PC's runs after drawing two walks.

The Hose baseball team took their second successive loss from the Newberry Indians Wednesday afternoon on Young Field 13-2.

Russ Stoudemire of Newberry retired the first nine Hose batters to face him in order while his teammates scored nine runs off Blue Hose hurler Charles Malpass in the first three innings. Stoudemire's only shaky inning was the fourth when he allowed Reeves and Hodge to walk and gave up a two-run double to shortstop Tony Benson for the only Hose tallies of the day. Reeves, Hodges and Don Segrest collected the rest of PC's hits for the afternoon.

Charles Malpass started on the mound and was bothered by wildness. Errors by his teammates added to his troubles and he was relieved in the fifth by Leland Brown. Brown, pitching superb ball for five innings, allowed only two hits and one earned run. The Hose defense failed to click throughout the whole contest.

Leighton Summer Pro At West Virginia Club

Presbyterian College tennis coach Jim Leighton left recently for his summer job. He will be acting tennis professional at the Charleston, West Virginia Tennis Club during the summer months. This is a job which has great potentials for Leighton.

Four of PC's tennis team members will play in summer tournaments. Allen Morris will travel to England where he wil play at Wimbledon. He will then return to the United States to take in the Eastern Circuit tournaments. John Brownlow will play the first four southern tourneys and then he will move into the Eastern Circuit where he plans to play doubles with Morris. Harvey Jackson and Jim Shakespeare will play the Southern Circuit.

Man of the Week Jackson Winds Up Football Career

By LARRY BROWN

For our next senior sports celebrity we choose likeable Bobby Jackson, a Charlotte product of much high school football who entered PC as a freshman and immediately began to be recognized as a college player of some prowess and of great expectations.

Jackson did not let his coaches down in any of these counts. He played hard rockem sockem football in his entire four years at PC, and earned the respect of his fellow teammates as well as his opponents ranging from mighty Clemson to tiny Newberry.

Never weighing over 170 lbs. the agile Mr Jackson used his lightning fast movements to make up for the deficit in weight. For three years Jackson held down a first string berth, in his freshman year sharing first string honors with the great Little All-American Joe Kirven.

This year Bobby served as co-captain of the squad which had a very successful season.

When asked to relate exciting incidents which occurred during his star-studded career as a footballer, Jackson thought for a while and came up with these two occasions that will more or less linger in his mind in years to come. One was the Davidson game in his junior year. Davidson, experiencing one of its better years was heavily favored in the contest, but that day Jackson had different ideas for the Wildcats, as he almost single-handedly tore Davidson up defensively. All in all, that day Jackson accounted for two safeties giving PC the deciding margin of victory 10-6. For this effort Bobby earned lineman of the week honors in North and South Carolina.

Another big thrill for Bobby was in his first game of his college career against Clemson—he scored a touchdown. This was quite a feat for the big powerful Tigers were a hard team to score on.

Other than playing football, Bobby is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, Charlotte-PC Club, and Block P Club. Upon graduation, he plans to work for Southern Bell with an economics major.

Good luck, Bobby, and thanks for the good name that you have left here at PC on and off the ball field.

Hal brings elemental forces to the surface which had just been waiting for someone to come along and release them. To some, he is the incarnation of their wildest dreams, and to others he is the biggest threat to their security they have ever encountered. It takes the slightly intoxicated Miss Sydney to call him what he really is, however—a self-centered bum with too much pride and very little industry, a beautiful house with nothing inside.

The chain of events which is started by Hal's appearance is climaxed at the picnic when, with the suddenness of a tornado, everything is thrown violently into chaos. The town returns to dull normaley the next morning, however, even though the lives of several people are never again to be the same.

"Picnic" slashes life right down the middle and reveals brutally yet lyrically the truth about life —that it is never quite what we want it to be, but it is always thinking up new ways to try.

Pi Kappa Phi Names Holbrook New Archon

Tommy Holbrook, of Anderson, was elected Archon of Beta Chapter of Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity at their meeting this week. He will take office next week and hold it for the first half of next year. He succeeds Sam McGregor, of Greenville.

Lawrence Young, of Clinton, was reelected treasurer. Dick Hamby, of Simpsonville, was elected secretary, succeeding Holbrook. Melvin Little, of Atlanta, Ga., and Frank Sapp, of Dawson, Ga., were reelected warden and historian respectively. Hamby was also elected to the post of chaplain, vacated by John Compton, of Marion.

Thackston New Dean; Retires From Service

Col. Albert S. Thackston, of Orangeburg, a retired army officer and former dean of Clemson College, is the new dean of students at Presbyterian College.

President Marshall W. Brown announced the appointment of the new dean to replace the Rev. George A. Anderson in this position. Anderson is now vice-president and professor of Bible at Montreat College.

Col. Thackston, who was dean of men and commandant of cadets at Clemson, 1945-48, has completed 30 years of outstanding army service and retired at the age of 52 on September 6. He joined the Presbyterian staff shortly thereafter.

He is the son of the late A. J. Thackston, Sr., prominent Orangeburg educator and a former member of the Presbyterian College board of trustees.

Col. Thackston has served the past four years as secretary of the Joint Strategic Survey Committee, Joint Chiefs of Staff organization. His other principal staff assignments were: War Department General Staff, Washington, 1944-45; U. S. Army Pacific and Commander in Chief Pacific Staff, 1949-51. He commanded the 47th Infantry, 1951-52.

The new PC dean accepted his commission immediately after graduating from Clemosn with a degree in electrical engineering in 1926. Since that time, he has graduated from these military schools: Tank School, 1929; Infantry School, 1930; Signal School, 1931; Command and General Staff School, 1944; and the Navy War College, 1949.

Col. Thackston served overseas in Panama, 1931-34; Philippines, 1938-40; Iceland, 1941-43; Austalia and New Guinea, 1944; Hawaii, 1949-51. He has been awarded the Legion of Merit for outstanding service in shipping troops to Iceland; Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit for outstanding service in organizing the tactical defense and administrative procedures for his unit in Iceland; and the Army Commendation Ribbon for outstanding procedures while a member of the War Department General Staff.

He is married to the former Miss Julia Dukes, of Orangeburg, and they have four daughters.

Vic McIntyre Named Blue Stocking Coach

A new assistant football coach has been signed by Presbyterian College, athletic director Walter A. Johnson announced today.

He is Vic McIntire, a young Ohio gridman, who replaces Jerry Wampfler as line coach and head baseball mentor.

McIntire, age 27, will come to PC from Wooster (Ohio) High where he has coached for the past five years. A native of Wellsville, Ohio, he starred as an athlete at Kent State University, playing as defensive linebacker in football, and received his BS degree in education from that institution. He also has done work toward a Master's degree.

Dr. Johnson said that McIntire comes to Presbyterian College highly recommendded by football authorities.

Spencer Gets Facelift; Paint Dolls Up Dorms

Extensive renovations have been made in two buildings on the PC campus during the summer months.

Spencer dormitory bathrooms and shower stalls are being refinished in tile, and new furniture is being added to the living quarters. The tile baths in Spencer will not be finished for several days. The Administration expresses gratitude for the student's patience and asks that they bear with the inconvenience which is caused by a shortage of tile layers. It will be finished as soon as possible.

Work also is being done on two laboratories in the Jacobs Science Hall. This activity includes refinishing and enlarging the freshman biology lab, and remodeling the advanced biology lab.

Total cost of the renovations is expected to reach approximately $20,000.

College Military Staff Adds Major Lowman

Major Harry F. Lowman, Jr., has joined the military staff at Presbyterian college as assistant professor of military science and tactics.

Major Lowman, a native of Washington, D. C., reported to his new post from Bad Keuznach, Germany.

He is a veteran of 15 years army service. He has served in Europe and at various posts in the United States. He is married to the former Harriette Caperton Gordon, also of Washington.

The Lowmans will reside at 110 Hickory street. Their four children, Katherine, 12; Blake, 10; Lawrence, 8; and Harriette, 2; accompanied them to Clinton.

Synod Appoints Trustees; Plans New Woman's Dorm

Preliminary action toward placing a girls' dormitory on the PC campus and election of four trustees were included in the program of the South Carolina Synod's 1956 session in Columbia in July.

The synod gave approval to an overture from Pee Dee Presbytery asking the board of trustees of Presbyterian College to study the advisability of making the next project in the college's development program a dormitory for girls.

Presbyterian College is now in the midst of a campaign which has raised $600,000 of a $750,000 objective for four specific purposes. The newly endorsed proposal would place the dormitory for girls next on the list.

The PC trustees will report back to the synod the results of their study, along with recommendations.

Author of the overture was the Rev. J. Witherspoon Dunlap, pastor of the Darlington Presbyterian church and an alumnus of PC in the class of 1929.

The synod also named these church leaders to the PC board of rtustees: Dr. William T. Barron, of Columbia; P. S. Bailey, of Clinton; and the Rev. Marc Weersing, of Spartanburg; all new members; and Don H. McEachern, of Florence, reelected.

Record Enrollment Begins Year; New Additions To Faculty Seen

By RAMON VEAL

Between 150 and 160 freshmen have enrolled at Presterian College for the 76th session, according to an unofficial report from the registrar's office.

The freshmen have spent the past week in an orientation period prior to their registration last Thursday.

The opening of the session brings new faces to the faculty, as well as it inaugurates a few changes in operational policy. Besides the new personnel in the Administration, five faculty vacancies have been filled. George W. Clarke has joined the faculty as a member of the history department. He comes as an assistant professor of history to succeed Robert M. Burts.

Clarke has been an instructor in history at the University of North Carolina during the past year while he worked on his doctorate there. He expects to complete all requirements for his Ph.D. while he is a member of the college faculty.

A native of Memphis, Tenn., the new PC professor received his BA degree from Baylor University and his MA from North Carolina. He served as an officer in the U. S. Air Force during World War II and the Korean War, a total of more than five and one-half years. He is married and has a young daughter.

The math department also enlisted a new instructor, William P. Jones. He comes to Presbyterian College from Pageland, where he taught last year.

Jones is a graduate of Erskine College. After graduation, he served two years in the Army. His home is in Mountville, and he is not married.

A former president of Davis Elkins College is the new professor of chemistry at Presbyterian College. He is Dr. Raymond B. Purdum, who served as president of that institution for ten years after heading its chemistry department for 18 years.

Dr. Purdum, a native of Providence Forge, Va., was educated at the University of Virginia, where he received his BS, MS, and Ph.D. degrees.

President Brown also announces the addition of Dr. Karl A. Scheele as assistant professor of economics.

A native of Germany and the son of a Lutheran minister, Dr. Scheele comes to Presbyterian College with a broad background of experience in the field of economics. He was a refugee student at Northwestern in 1939, having left Germany because of lack of sympathy with the Nazi party. Prior to receiving his MA degree from Northwestern, he had earned a diploma of political science and economy from the University of Hamburg and his Ph.D. from the University of Berlin.

He spent four years as economist and statistician in the public administration of Germany and in private industry. He has been associated with the farm administration, institute for business research, cigarette detail trade and the I. G. Farben chemical industry.

Dr. Joseph M. Gettys joins the Bible department this year; however, his appointment was announced and publicized last spring.

With 160 freshmen enrolling, and 40 new transfer students, the Admissions Office announces an all-time high in enrollment. The three hundred and twenty-five old students who returned make the unofficial total, 525.

Thirty-five per cent of the applicants to the freshman class were rejected because of insufficient academic requirements.

Miss Blakely New Supervisor; To Head New Dorm Service

Presbyterian College is creating the new staff position of supervisor of dormitories to be filled by Miss Iona Blakely, of Clinton, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

Miss Blakely, former manager of the Clinton Chamber of Commerce, and a lifelong resident of this city, began her duties last Monday, marking the arrival of the freshmen for a three-day orientation period in preparation for the 76th session at the college.

President Brown said that Miss Blakely will be situated in an office on the first floor of Bailey hall dormitory. She made room assignments to all students at the start of school, and will supervise the care of the dormitories throughout the year. Dr. Brown explained further:

"The dormitory supervisor will have freedom of the entire campus during the morning hours from 9 A. M. to 12 noon. During this time she will inspect dormitory rooms with the assistance of the janitor in each building. When it is determined that students are not keeping their quarters in an orderly fashion, Miss Blakely will make written reports to the students who show a need for her services.

Periodic reports from the supervisor's office will be sent to the dean of students and to the chairman of the faculty discipline committee.

Ecce Homo, Freshmen

The two most needed traits in the world today are maturity and order. Their widespread absence is attested to by the plethoric wash of psychiatrists, psychologists, welfare workers, and marriage counselors, whose existence is justified by the stark signboard of statistics.

Freshman, you are here at Presbyterian College to attain this maturity and order. Do not be satisfied with mere intelligence and education, for you must have maturity to channel your intelligence in the proper way, and you must have an ordered character in order to take full advantage of your educational opportunities.

You may say that this "rat" activity is childish. Freshman, one of the first and principle foundations of maturity is humility. Rat service is not wholly a sadistic pastime for upperclassmen; it is to destroy your rose-colored view of yourself which you have from high school. Be able to laugh at yourself, freshman, and remember that this ratting is carrying you away from the boy you were in high school and is annealing you into the man you must become to take advantage of your college education.

Ecce homo, freshman—"Behold the man!"

A Day at Presbyterian College

By CHARLIE DUKES

In Colonial times, we have ample information concerning the incidents in the daily life of John Q. Settler. No less important to us, and certainly no less important to posterity, we must add to the plethora of such material the chronicle of the P College lad.

Almost every settler in these times of our forefathers was motivated to come to America by the dream of fulfilling certain ideals and to escape certain suppressions. Everybody had a pretty pitiful time of it while the realization of the price demanded by the New Wilderness was gained, but the result of his labor speaks for itself.

Having gotten that out of the way, let us now be consumed by the inspection of how the average P College, Wayward Boys, makes use of his predecessor's handiwork.

The dawn breaks. By the first shafts of light, we behold the room of a night before. On the desks, book lists are lost among piles of classic comics. Levis lie entangled on whatever they happen to strike. An air of abandon permeates the room, and just as we are becoming accustomed to it, the alarm clock bursts forth with its morpheus - dispelling chatter.

Timely information on (blush) After arraying himself in sword and shield for the morning's drill period, he bounds over to the Club Judd for hardy fare: usually coffee, toast and a cigarette.

From 0755 until 0845 (you figure it out) he conducts himself stoically throughout the campaign. At the intermission of this period, he dashes back and accountres himself in class uniform, i. e., levis, T-shirt, and moccasins. Socks are optional, depending on the weather. Fatigued from so nobly rising to meet the challenge of the period before, he rests from time to time in whatever room that his schedule card so dictates. His afternoon is spent in riotous (I beg pardon) righteous endeavor, punctuated with another meal, and the rest of the evening is usually spent writing his girl at Winthrop, broadening his cultural horizons at the Broadway, preserving himself at Charley's, having a light round of Ombre with his compatriots, or just in quiet meditation. Beddie - bye time finds him in a highly receptive frame of mind for that pasture and in a short while our hero's room has settled again in calm repose.

Why Says, "Gin, Freshmen!"

By C. Drayton Cooper, III

(ed. note—C. Drayton recently joined the ranks of the graduates, but in the absence of our slar columnist, Lyman Harris, we are reviving Why O's words to the freshmen. The column is a year old, but who cares? Freshmen are the same from year to year, anyway.)

GIN FRESHMAN! If I catch any of you New Boys reading this and not ginning, Wow!

Yorick O. Why, great exponent of the PC spirit has a gripe . . . what's with this freshman class? They are about the goof-offest crew his old eyes have seen. If you New Boys think you have troubles, just read on. In trying to think up an idea for a column this week, Y. O. and his colleague and comrade-in-arms, Dashan Rammit, conducted some pertinent research.

There was a time in the memories of a few old-timers on this campus when freshmen were freshmen, and they knew it. Those were the days of Rat Races, and 'Prayer Meetings" after chow at night. Those were the days when New Boys really respected upperclassmen. But not now.

If an upperclassman should ask a fresh to perform a polite task for him today, he is beseiged by a long succession of gripes and groans about how much work the New Boy has to do, or how much he has to study, or how much he hates upperclassmen. And you know what the upperclassmen can do about it? Nothing, I say again, nothing.

Should the fresh be turned into the Control Board, he will either be turned Scot free, or made to carry bricks and wear an oversize sign. What humiliation. What shame.

But that was not once the case. Oh, no.

In glancing through old copies of the Blue Sock, Dashan uncovered a list of rules that freshmen of 1938 had to follow. When he showed these rules to Y. O., they agreed, 'This is more like it."

So, to let the 1956 fresh know how easy they have it around here, let's take a look at some of those rules:

"1. All freshmen must wear rat hats at all times except Sundays.

"2. Freshmen must square all corners always and will not be allowed to cut campus without the premission of an upperclassman, or when specially detailed by such.

"3. Freshmen must not enter the dining hall until after all upperclassmen have entered, but must wait at a respectful distance in the rear. They may not seat themselves until all upperclassmen have done so.

"4. Freshmen must very politely tip their caps when they come into the presence of an upperclassman and must speak to everyone in a pleasant manner, also tipping their caps.

"5. Before each athletic contest held on the campus every freshman must gather and check in 5 pounds of wood which will be used in bonfires for pep meetings.

"6. All Freshmen must wear their rat caps to all athletic contests held on the campus, must sit in one group and yell like the mischief. All Freshmen must attend athletic games on the campus.

"7. Freshmen, unless in the company of upperclassmen, must walk to town by way of the Plaza. Rats are forbidden to take the short cut alone.

"8. All Freshmen must wear the right leg of their trousers rolled to the knee, through Wednesday, Sept. 21. (This is optional for one-legged rats).

"9. Freshmen must remember that upperclassmen are their superiors. Never argue with an upperclassman, but obey all commands cheerfully and there will be no trouble, otherwise the viglance committee will take action.

"10. New boys must address the upperclassmen as "Mister," but must not say 'Sir.'

"11. These are the official rules and regulations for the conduct of all freshmen, and they must be memorized by number in order that they may be repeated that way upon request."

(Signed)

Vigilance Committee—1938

Well, Rats, that's what your counterparts 17 years ago had to go through with. Now aren't you glad this is 1956 instead of 1938"

There is a definite lack of freshman respect this year. Y. O. thinks the Board of Control should really get to work and instill some spirit into these rats.

I guess that's about all that ol' Yorick can dig up this week, so til next week, hang real loose. Oh yes, it's real tough about the senior military students having to break their Homecoming dates. That's the way things are run at the Point, fellows, you might as well get used to it.

Bye.

Welcome, Ned Newboy

By NOBLE COLLINS

Consider the plight of Ned Newboy, collegian extraordinaire, who this week began his four year sacrifice to the gods of higher education.

Ned has been Heaven's gift to the High school set at old Harry High, being a star in three sports, member of several clubs, and a genuine scholar (a "C" average). What was even more impressive was Ned's championship ability to date girls. He had set a modern record for going steady with the most girls in one year (fifteen) and tied the all-time record for most dates in one year (365). Few people stepped on this boy's blue suedes.

It had never been Ned's intention to go to college, since he decided he could do enough for the educational system in high school, but with his parents' encouragement he decided to give it a try.

And so it happened that Ned, boy world tamer, found himself unpacking the things he had so carefully packed for his "home away from home." The array of things he brought with him would have filled a small warehouse.

There was a photo album with pictures of his girl friends, twelve pairs of Levis, six T-shirts, several football jerseys, two letter sweaters, a Gene Autry guitar, and a genuine five-dollar briar pipe, which he had managed to smuggle in.

Ned had been on the campus just long enough to decide that it was going to be a pushover when WHAM! Out of nowhere came the returning upperclassmen like a plague of locusts. He had been minding his own business, walking across the campus whistling a few bars of "You'll Never Walk Alone", when he heard a Banshee shriek which sounded a lot like "GET OFF THE GRASS, FRESH."

It was such an absurd statement that he ignored it completely and continued on his way, but he went no farther than about ten steps before a sadistic mob descended upon him shouting in some strange language, "Gin Freshman, Button Freshman, Spin the broom Freshman." It was rather difficult to understand just what they were talking about at first, but they were very patient and took several hours just to tutor him in the fundamentals of being a plebe.

When at last the long day came to an end, Fred, without buying a single book, had learned some of college's most important lessons — the hard (and only) way.

IT didn't take him too many sunsets, however, to find out that college boys are the most unpredictable people on earth, because before long the very ones that had relished in tormenting him those first few days were the ones to whom he was going for help on math problems or girl problems or just any problems that happened to be current.

AND so we welcome Ned Newboy or Freddie Frosh or whatever name you might know him by.

Crutchfield Juggles PC Lineup; Predicts Strong Line, Fast Backs

• Clemson First Target

Team spriit soars high as the 57 Presbyterian college football candidates start putting muscle into their football attack at their Ridgecrest, N. C., practice site.

Coach Bill Crutchfield and his two assistants, Russ Murphy and Vic McIntire, are running both varsity and freshman candidates together in an effort to mold the most effective traveling unit possible for the Clemson trip on September 22.

Crutchfield has been shifting some of his key personnel around and making important position changes. This move is paying off, and he's also enthusiastic over the training site.

Junior Ken Webb, of Decatur, Ga., All-State selection who topped all other South Carolina ballcarriers in rushing yardage last year, has been moved from fullback to left halfback. He ran in this position as a freshman two years ago and is considered an even more dangerous mean at halfback, where he would find himself running to the outside more often. Once in the opponent's secondary, Webb's sure-footed speed and drive make him difficult to stop.

And with Webb's change, Eddie Brockenbrough, of Charlotte, has returned from halfback to his old fullback slot. It was from this position that he paced the PC running attack in 1954.

Up front in the line, Coach Crutchfield has shifted Richard Shrigley, of West Elizabeth, Pa., from his first-string guard post to the number one center position. Bill Bowman, of Monongehela, Pa., a freshman fullback last year, and center Guy Haddix, of Philippi, W. Va., have both been shifted to left guard. These changes and the presence of rugged right guard Tommy Warren, of Allendale, make the central portion stronger. And in an effort to reinforce tackle, giant 250-pound center Marion Parrish, of Chester, has been moved to this position on the left.

Crutchfield waxes enthuiastic, meanwhile, over Camp Ridgecrest:

"We accomplished more in the first two days here than I have in a week anywhere else. The climate has been fine, and this and our general comradeship have contributed to one of the best team spirits I have ever experienced."

Of the 57 player roster, 34 are squad members from last year and 23 are newcomers.

The candidates now training for the 1956 season are:

Ends—Ken Daughtry, of Macon, Ga.; Ted Leahy, of Atlanta, Ga.; Richard Alexander, of Lyons, Ga.; Bob Mathews, of Decatur, Ga.; James Walker, of Anderson; Ronnie Lee Evans, of Oak Hill, O.; and Wilson Vastnie, of Danville, Pa.

Tackles—Wayne Shoemaker, of Charlotte, N. C.; James Lee, of Myrtle Beach; Jack Coppley, of Lexington, N. C.; Joe Negley, of East Pittsburgh, Pa.; Ronnie Barnett, of Greenwood; Marion Parrish, of Chester; Ken Gardner, of Greenville; Norman "Sonny" King, of Kinston, N. C.; and Fred Showers, of White Deer, Pa.

Guards — Tommy Warren, of Allendale; Bill Tsacrios, of Clearwater, Fla.; Guy Haddix, of Philippi, W. Va.; Bill Bowman, of Monongehela, Pa.; John Firby, of Belvedere; Dewitt Briggs, of Lexington; Robert Gerber, of Tamaqua, Pa.; Medford Rockstroh, of Spartanburg; Boyd Outz, of Elberton, Ga.; Howard Lucas, of Clinton; and James Woodward, of Graniteville.

Centers — Richard Shrigley, of West Elizabeth Pa.; Jim McLauchlin, of Charlotte, N. C.; Robert Biggerstaff, of Charleston; Jackie Powers, of Andrews; and Roger Copeland, of Athens, Ga.

Quarterbacks—Felder Cook, of Charleston; Ron Isger, of Clairton, Pa.; Bill Aycock, of Fayetteville, N. C.; Johnny Hunnicutt, of Greenville; Danny Bridges, of Valdese, N. C.; Larry Wood, of Moss Point, Mass.; and Gordon Stanley, of Rock Hill.

Halfbacks—Ken Webb, of Decatur, Ga.; Gene Butler, of Conway; Tony Benson, of Chester; John Lucas, of Donora, Pa.; Ed Messer, of West Palm Beach, Fla.; John Drew, of Georgetown; Fred Stanley, of Rock Hill; Dave Wenrich, of Danville, Pa.; Jerry Crawford, of Clover; and Ken Mershon, of Clinton.

Fullbacks — Eddie Brockenbrough, of Charlotte, N. C.; Mitchell Mavromat, of Brunswick, Ga.; Jimmy Nichols, of Decatur, Ga.; Robert Nalley, of Central; Gus Bell, of South Orange, N. J.; Don Smedley, of Danville, Pa.; and Jimmy Brevard, of Jackson.

Behind the Blues

-:- -:- -:- By Tommy Richards

HOSE LOOK IMPRESSIVE

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose, now in the midst of pre-season practice, have shown signs of greatness. There is more spirit on and off the field than there has been here in two or three years. The backfield looks particularly good with the line improving with each practice.

The Hose, after a not too impressive 3-5-1 season last year, are anxious to get started on what could very probably be one of their better seasons. Although the guards are probably the weakest positions on the team the ends and centers look exceptionally good. At end, experience and size are combined to give strength and depth. Coach Bill Crutchfield recently said that Ted Leahy could become the best end he has ever had here at PC. James Walker has been a pleasant surprise at the right end position. He is a veteran with previous experience and the all-round ability to go with it.

Other top candidates at end are Ken Daughtry, a senior who earned his letter as a freshman, Ken Gardner, a sophomore, who has shown vast improvement, and Bob Mathews, who combines size and speed with good spirit.

Center is manned by Jim McLauchlin and Richard Shrigley. McLauchlin, a regular from last year, is a topflight defensive star and a good blocker. Shrigley, a starter at guard last year, is a terrific blocker who is very quick.

The tackles lack experience but are held down by men with some of the greatest potential on the whole squad. Senior Wayne Shoemaker is a steady performer with good strength. Junior James Lee has shown up well in pre-season practice and should round into a good performer with some game experience. Jack Coppley, Joe Negley, and Marion Parrish are all sophomores with plenty of size and good ability.

At guard there are only two standout performers but some who could play creditable ball with a little work. Tommy Warren is a letterman with plenty of experience and a desire to play. Bill Bowman is a converted fullback with great spirit and willingness. Other candidates are Bill Tsacrios, Guy Haddix, and John Firby.

The backfield seems to be set with Felder Cook at quarterback, Ken Webb at left half, Billy Nalley at fullback, and John Lucas and Tony Benson fighting it out for the right half post. Cook is a senior who is a slick ball-handler and a smart field general. Webb led the state in rushing last year and was picked on the South Carolina All-State team. Nalley is a newcomer with service experience. He is a powerful runner and is also very quick. Benson and Lucas are both sophomores who have improved greatly. Benson is a hard tackler and good pass defender. Lucas is a power runner with good size.

Others leading the push for starting positions are quarterback Ron Isger, halfbacks Gene Butler, Raymond Johnson, and Ed Messer, and fullbacks Eddie Brockenbrough and Mitchell Mavromat.

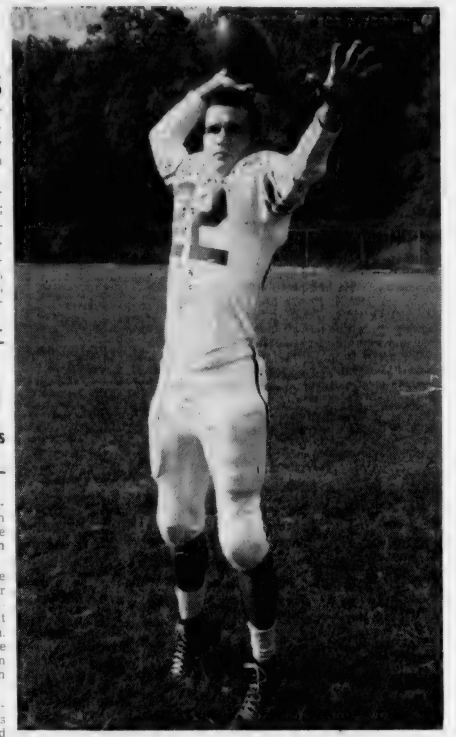
With the size, speed, and experience and a few promising freshmen the Hose could come up with a fine season. The backfield seems to have little edge on the one that averaged 250 yards-per-game last year and the line at this point at least equals the forward wall of last year and also has more potential.

PROMISING NEWCOMERS

The Hose team of 1956 has a crew of promising freshmen and transfers. These are: Ends—James Walker, Paul Chastain, Bob Mathews, and Wilson Vatine; tackle—Mac Copeland; guards—Medford Rockstroh and Robert Gerber; center—Jackie Powers; quarterback—Danny Bridges; and fullback—Billy Nalley.

A WORD TO FRESHMEN

Presbyterian College athletic teams and also the students have gained a reputation for the spirit which they display. PC athletic teams play hard, clean ball with an intense desire to win. We do not want or expect the spirit on this campus to die. You are the future upperclassmen and the habits you form during your freshman year will stick with you throughout your college career. It is your choice; whether the spirit will live or fade away on this campus. Freshman, let's start now to get that "PC spirit."

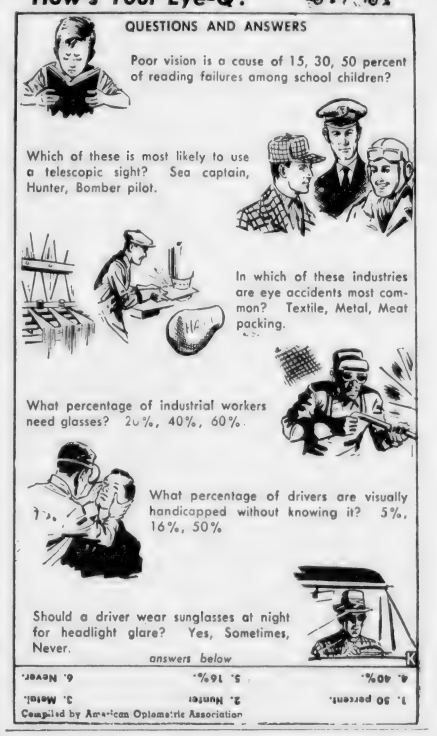


Morris Stars at Wimbledon

PC's Allen Morris stole the spotlight in the famous Wimbledon Tournament, the world's championship of tennis, as he advanced to the quarter-finals before finally being eliminated by Vic Seixas.

A pulled leg muscle may have made the difference. Morris carried the former U. S. and Wimbledon champion to a 13-11 first set and then after injury lost the remaining two sets, 6-0 6-3.

Despite his defeat, however, the Atlanta red-head who had just finished Presbyterian on June 3 captured the interest and enthusiasm of the great English gallery by his smashing play leading up to the quarter-finals. He scored impressive triumphs over two Australian players, whipping Brian Gulley, 6-2, 6-3, and 6-3, and then defeating Ashley Cooper, 1-6, 12-10, 8-6, 3-6, 6-3.



The victory over Cooper was described as sensational, because this player is rated Australia's number three performer and the world's best "under 21" net star. The crowd of 8,000 watching the matches during this match turned into a rooting section for Morris as he brought his powerful service under control to score the comeback of the tournament in wrenching victory from Cooper. He received an ovation at the finish of the match.

The good right arm of quarterback Felder Cook will serve as the kick-off point for PC's powerful air and ground attack. He may be held out of the Clemson game for a stomach disorder; however, it is believed he will be ready to go against Wofford.

Last Son of PC Founder Jacobs Passes; Ends Long Age of Academic Leadership

Thornwell Jacobs was three and one-half years old when his father, the Rev. William Plumer Jacobs, founded Presbyterian College in 1880.

He went on to receive his eductaion here, collecting three degrees from PC, and to record a brilliant career as educator and author.

This direct link back to the roots of the institution was snapped on August 4 when the only surviving child of Founder Jacobs died in his Atlanta apartment.

Death came at 79 for the former president-founder of Oglethorpe University and author of such popular books as "Red Lanterns on St. Michael's," "When for the Truth," and "Drums of Doomsday." He had been ill for two months.

Dr. Thornwell Jacobs had been in semi-retirement since 1943, when he left the presidency of Oglethorpe which he had built from obscurity into one that became known nationally and internationally. He founded the famed Crypt of Civilization at that school, a sealed storehouse of momentoes of recent civilization laid away for the discovery by later generations.

He was born on the campus of Thornwell Orphanage on Feb. 15, 1877, just two years after his father established that institution. One of the earlier students to attend Presbyterian College, he finished with first honors and a BA degree in 1894 and added his MA from here in 1895. Later, in 1923, PC bestowed upon him an honorary Litt.D.

After receiving his Bachelor of Divinity from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1899, Thornwell Jacobs served three years as a minister in Morganton, N. C., and then became vice-president of Thornwell College for Orphans. He established Westminster Magazine in 1911 and in the first issue suggested the plan for a Presbyterian Jubilee which later met in Atlanta in May, 1913. The magazine continues today as one of the oldest and best known poetry journals.

According to Dr. Jacobs, 'Without invitation from within and without authorization save from above, on Sept. 13, 1909, we came to Atlanta to refound Oglethorpe University." His grandfather, Prof. Ferdinand Jacobs, had taught at Old Oglethorpe in Milledgeville, Ga., before that institution died during the Civil War.

Starting with his own contribution of $1,000, he built Oglethorpe University to the point that when he retired from the presidency in 1943 he left a $2,000,000 layout of granite buildings patterned after Oxford University in England.

After leaving the field of education, he devoted himself more completely to writing books and novels, editing his Westminster Magazine and to travel. His other books include: "For Heretics Only," the latest, published in 1954; "Step Down, Dr. Jacobs," an autobiography; "New Science and Old Religion"; "The Life of William Plumer Jacobs"; and "Islands of the Blest," a book of poems.

Among his immediate survivors are two daughters and three sons.

Seven PC Graduates At Medical Colleges

Seven Presbyterian College graduates of the past session plan to enter medical school this fall.

This number represents approximately 8 per cent of the 1956 graduating class and continues the PC tradition of producing a large group of talented men of medicine.

Five of these students plan to enter the Medical College of South Carolina. They are Kenneth Baker, Jr., Charles W. Johnson and Frank Young, Jr., all of Clinton; Edward L. Hay, of Wadmalaw Island; and Samuel N. Workman, of Laurens.

Robert N. Reynolds, of Clinton, will attend the University of Tennessee College of Medicine; and Joe C. Frye, of Charlotte, the University of North Carolina School of Medicine.

Robed Choir Selects Eighteen New Singers

Approximately thirty candidates attended the first rehearsal of the Presbyterian College Robed Choir which was held in the Chapel last Monday. Twelve men in this group will be chosen to fill the vacancies caused by last year's graduation and singers not returning this year.

The choir, under the leadership of Dr. Edouard Patte, plans to take a number of weekend trips throughout South Carolina and Georgia, and then on an eight or nine day tour of North Carolina and Virginia in the spring. The gleesters will conduct worship services in approximately twenty-five churches during the 1956-57 season.

The theme for this year's concerts will be "The Great Design." The program and schedule have been arranged by Dr. Patte and the choir's student committee composed of co-presidents Noble Collins and Ramon Veal, and treasurer Bill Cashwell.

After the first two rehearsals, Dr. Patte stated that he was very well pleased with the quality of the musical ability displayed by the candidates and the large number which participated in the tryouts.

PC Development Drive Forwarded in Six Regions

Presbyterian College is making preparations this week to resume campaigning on its Diamond Jubilee Development program which produced more than $600,000 in cash and pledges during the first nine months.

President Marshall W. Brown announced today that drives in six regions in South Carolina and Georgia will be conducted simultaneously during September and October.

Presbyterians of these two states, who own and control Presbyterian College, are seeking to riase at least $750,000 for the institution during 1956. The first nine months of the campaign found just over one-half of the two-state area covered before activity was suspended during the vacation months of July and August.

Preparations are now underway for campaigns in these four South Carolina regions: Columbia, including most of Congaree Presbytery; Rock Hill, encompassing all of Bethel Presbytery: Sumter, one-half of Harmony Presbytery; and Kingstree, the other half of Harmony Presbytery.

At the same time, the program will get underway in the Athens Presbytery region and in the Macon region, including approximately one-half of Augusta-Macon Presbytery.

Official records show that a total of $604,716.33 has been subscribed by 3,925 contributors during the first nine months, an average of $154 per subscription.

Presbyterian College, through its development program, will add a new chapel-auditorium and new student center to its campus facilities and increase its endowment.

I.R.C. Plots Yearly Slate of Activities

The Executive Committee of the IRC met Wednesday, Sept. 19, and made plans for the forthcoming year. First meeting of all old members will be a business meeting held Sept. 26, at which time the new committees and committee chairmen will be announced.

Plans for the formal presentation of the F. H. Mendenhall Memorial Plaque, which will be presented to Presbyterian College Sept. 27 in the library, were also discussed.

Bill Hart Leads As I. F. C. President

Bill Hart, who represented Kappa Alpha on the Inter-Fraternity Council, has been chosen president of the IFC by his colleagues. The election took place at the end of last school year; however, the IFC began functioning only at the beginning of this semester.

Tommy Holbrook, of Pi Kappa Phi, was selected to fill the position of vice-president. The secretary-treasurer is Bob Hill, who represents Pi Kappa Alpha.

Those who serve on the Inter-Fraternity Council with these officers are: Johnny Woods, Theta Chi; Bob Smith, Alpha Sigma Phi; and Stan Johnson, Sigma Nu.

The IFC has selected dates for the Homecoming and Christmas dances. And they are now working on plans for the open socials which will be held during October and November.

Band Undergoes Alterations; Windoff Named New Director

Harold Windoff, of Greenville, has been hired to direct the Presbyterian College ROTC Band this year. Windoff, a native of Iowa, attended Indiana University and a music school in Chicago.

After completing his training he enlisted in the navy and was for eight years a member of the official United States Navy Band stationed at Washington, D. C. Windoff was then given command of the Donaldson Air Force Base Band at Greenville in which capacity he served two years. At present he holds an Air Force Special Service Reserve Commission as a Warrant Officer.

Under the supervision of the Furman College music department Windoff is practice teaching at Parker High in Greenville. Upon the completion of this training he will receive his state band teaching license. He is also presently directing the Laurens High School Band and the Greenville American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps. Mr. Campbell, business manager of PC, has stated that the college feels that it is very fortunate to secure the services of this talented and experienced director.

Serving as commanding officer of the band is Cadet Lt. Frank Sapp. Executive Officer is Cadet 2nd Lt. Philip Canella, and First Sergeant is John Summers.

For the first time this year the college band, which practices two nights a week, is being opened to non-military students. Any musically inclined student who is interested in being a part of the band and playing at ball games this year should leave his name with the military department and he will be notified of the next practice session.

Torre, the popular band leader from Columbia, will again perform for the PC student body. The dance, being held at the Clinton Armory, will begin at 9 P.M. and last until one o'clock. Bill Hart, president of the Inter-Fraternity Council, announced that tickets will be (2.00) two dollars at the door. Hart also said that the theme of the dance will be announced later. Toore, in the past, has pleased the PC dancing crowds numerously with his entertaining music.

Saturday at 11:00 A.M. a parade into downtown Clinton will be staged. The parade is composed of the ROTC detachment, marching band, class, fraternity, and student body sponsors as well as the traditionally famous clowns.

Sautrday night at 8:00 P.M. the Presbyterian College Blue Hose will encounter the Davidson Wildcats on Johnson Field. The halftime activities will consist of the marching band and the crowning of the queen and her royal court. At this time there will also be the announcement of the winning homecoming decorations which gaily decorate the campus.

Praises Due to Council

This year celebrates the third anniversary of the re-establishment of an Honor System at PC, an Honor System which was started by a group of men who believed that each student at Presbyterian would be able to support and uphold the principles on which the system was based.

Through the active work of the Student Council of the school year 1953-54, the system was inaugurated. Again, the Student Council of Presbyterian is at work, and has declared the first Monday of each month during the school year as a meeting day for student participation in the council work. These sessions will be essentially for the students who have good reason to present grievances, not of a persnoal nature, to the Student Council. Many activities of the Student Body can be consumated by this action, and The Blue Stocking takes pride in the council for making this valuable move.

In glancing over one of a brother colleges' newspapers, we find that much inducement and persuasion had to be provoked by the weekly tabliod in order to secure the same privilege. In fact, we consider ourselves lucky to have an open meeting in which to discuss politics and underlying grievances of government with the council.

This action will undoubtedly provoke a new light in student government, and will cause a greater interest in the inside nature of a student council which has been quite shaded in the past. We have seen results, but have not understood fully the provocation for these actions.

The Blue Stocking congratulates the council for this exceptional move, and sincerely hopes that the meetings will be met with huge success.

Hot O. Rudy Comes Home

By LYMAN HARRIS

I was up in my room in my usual prone position when I heard hoofbeats in the hall. It sounded like there was more than the usual mob out there, so I took a look to see if they were lynching a professor or something, because I didn't want to miss out on any fun.

Coming up the hall was Hot O'Rudy with a safari of freshmen. Two were toting his trunk, one his water cooler, another was carefully carrying his Jayne Mansfield calendar. (He explained to me later that he had gotten it on a trade-in for a Marilyn Monroe one when she got married.) Four more freshmen were carrying Hot O. He hollered, "Easy with that calendar, new boy! She's got to last. She's my house mother for this year."

They came on in the room.

Hot O. making sure they squared the corners. I figured Hot O. would be rough on freshmen, that hibernated in his room that hibernate din his room until Thanksgiving his freshman year.

Hot O. said, "O. K., rats, set my stuff over there and me on the bed. Be careful with that leg, new boy. The girls would never forgive you if you messed up my physique. You can go when you finish unpacking my clothes. 'Just be on call when I need you."

After the freshmen left, Hot O. noticed for the first time that I was in the room. We shook hands and went through the usual greetings. I asked, "Well, Hot O, did you have a good summer?"

He said, "Yeah, man, the greatest."

I said, "What did you do?"

He said, "Nothing. That's why it was so great. I slept and ate and gave the girls a thrill every once in a while. I laid in bed so much this summer, I have a plateau on my back."

I asked him if he had a good many dates. He said, "Yeah, I dated lots at first, but finally I gave it up. Girls are too hard to understand. They confuse me."

I said, "They confuse me, too. The best philosophy I've heard on women is from that famed old philosopher, Christine Jorgenson. She says, 'If you can't beat them, join them'."

Hot O. Said, "I did take a little vacation, though. My folks kind of slyly hinted that I take one. Maw kept wrapping my lunches in road maps. Paw acted like he might be tired of me hanging around the house, too. He tried to teach me to smoke in bed, and every time I left the house, he said, "Remember, son, jaywalk."

I agreed that it did sound like they were hinting for him to go.

Hot O. kept on talking, "Seeing as how the fartherest west I had ever been was to the Laurens County Fair, I decided I'd take a little trip west."

I asked how far west he went. He answered, "Georgia. By the time I got there I was homesick, so I headed on back. Say, did everyone come back to school this year?"

I said, "Yes, just about everybody came back. There may be a few missing or a few stragglers. Your pal, Freddy Freeloader, is back, so you had better eat your food as fast as you get it."

Hot O. didn't too much like Freddy, so when he found out Freddy was back, he said, "Man, that bum is a talking tapeworm. He's the laziest loafer on the campus. He must have bribed the administration, so he could come back."

I said, "Now, Hot O. Remember, you should have brotherly love. Father Fraser might hear you and have you excommunicated."

He looked down at his watch and said, "Hey, man, it's 5:30. Ptomaine time. We'd better head on over to the chow hole."

We did.

Welcome, Fresh

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

Welcome, fellow delegates (old and new and all blue plaid shirts) to the convention at Presbyterian College. Although I am not running for any office I would like to bring to your attention some of the highlights of our party. First our platfrom is built on PC spirit.

Most of the old delegates know how essential it is but we want to impress upon you new ones the importance of spirit. To begin with, what is it? PC spirit is that feeling you have when you return to the campus and see old friends; that feeling that makes you boast a little when you explain the ropes to the rats; when you watch the football team run across the field; and most of all that united and undivided feeling.

Where do you get it would be a good question. It is very contagious and you are most likely to come in contact with it, at the pep rally and rat court; before a ball game; in chapel; and especially after a ball game when the victory bell neals its well known message.

The problem is, not only to have spirit at these times, but to have it all the time. Freshmen, this is where you come in. We old PC'uns can have "barrels of spirit but you are the ones who are responsible with keeping it alive.

Some of you are going to walk around with ruined egos and chips on your shoulders. Just because you are a rat, that's no need to pout. I'll clue you in fellows, if you show a little of that PC spirit you won't have it half as hard. Presbyterian College has been called the "Friendliest Little College in the South."

This is a great honor, but this name will quickly die unless we do something about keeping it alive. It doesn't hurt to speak and be friendly. Don't wait for others to speak to you, either. Beat them to the draw, speak first and always have them pearly white bicuspids showing.

Not only be friendly with your classmates and profs but let that spirit shine right through and let ousiders know what a great little school we have. Be courteous to visitors and above all make them welcome.

Well, that's enough preaching to last for quite a spell. I don't want these new guys thinking we're preaching parsons. There are quite a few who are very far from being parsons.

In traveling around during the summer, you pick up some very choice bits of gossip. I would hate to be sued for slander, but being a woman I have a nose for the stuff. Some interesting tales have been told by some Winthrop women and certain Lander lassies. I wonder if any of you gents would be willing to see your names in headlines. Bye now!

Big Hose Eleven Offers Combation Speed and Power Against Tigers

The Presbyterian Blue Hose will match Clemson pound for pound in starting lineups Saturday night at Clemson's Memorial Stadium.

But Coach Bill Crutchfield figures the comparison stops right there. His Blue Stockings, the PC coach believes, are too inexperienced in the forward wall.

"We have the potential to be as good as last year," Crutchfield said today as the Hose began to taper off for the traditional opener at Tigertown. "How good we are will depend on inexperienced linemen. We don't feel they are quite as agile as they will have to be for a first class ball team."

Crutchfield says his backfield might be better than last year.

The Hose moved the ball over 270 yards against Clemson last year. Will they do it again? "We certainly would be tickled to move as we did last year," Bill replied. "There again it depends on our over-all strength. The linemen up front must do their job."

The backfield includes 1955's All-State fullback moved to left half, a promising newcomer at fullback, a sophomore moved up to the first team at right half, and last year's quarterback.

Ken Webb, who wears No. 66, will be the Big Six to watch against Clemson.

False rumors flew this summer that Webb was transferring to Auburn. He had been approached by an Auburn alumnus, but it was nothing more than that.

Webb was All-State fullback last year because he rushed for 828 yards in 155 tries for an average of 5.4 yards. He was a 200-pound bulldozing sophomore—fastest man on the team.

Ken had been shifted to left half where Crutchfield says he is "primarily more dangerous." Bill adds, "Webb is looking good as ever. Given time to adjust to halfback, he will be more effective than at fullback."

One of the pleasant surprises they had at Clinton as time came to open the 1956 football season was the arrival of Robert Nalley, of Central. Just as Webb showed up two years ago and said he wanted to play football for PC, so did Nalley arrive.

Five weeks ago the 195-pounder from Central was in Germany. Two weeks before football practice started he received his military discharge. So it was almost a direct path from Germany to Clinton.

Nalley was a high school star sought by several schools when he played at Central. He went to the University of Georgia, but was there only one quarter before going into military service.

Crutchfield says of his promising fullback, "He isn't as familiar with our system as we would like for him to be. But he is doing all right."

The boy who has joined the trio of quarterback Felder Cook, and Webb and Nalley in the starting backfield is sophomore Tony Benson, from Chester. Benson played good defensive ball in the prep All-Star game at Columbia two years ago, but was overlooked by most college recruiters. The Blue Hose brought him in, and Tony has shown improvement. He is probably the best defensive man on the team.

Cook is the senior quarterback who is the smallest man on the squad, but has a spirit which keeps driving him despite a recurring stomach ailment which has hampered him for two years. He plans to coach when he graduates.

Brockenbrough, who led the team in rushing two years ago, is hampered by a bad ankle and may not play Saturday. If not, Mavromat will relieve Nalley.

Now for the line. The starting team is:

Ends—Ted Leahy, 190, of Atlanta, and James (Hands) Walker, 215, of Anderson.

Tackles — Wayne Shoemaker, 210, of Charlotte, and Joe Negley, 235, of East Pittsburgh, Pa.

Guards—Tommy Warren, 185, of Allendale, and possibly Richard Shrigley, 210, of West Elizabeth, Pa.

Center—Jim McLauchlin, 210, of Charlotte.

The guard position is uncertain because of the shoulder separation of first-stringer Bill Bowman. The injury means Shrigley, who has been moved to No. 2 center, will be back at guard. Subbing will be either Bowman and John Kirby, or Bill Tsacrios and Medford Rochstroh.

Rochstroh, from Spartanburg, played fullback in high school. He had a year of junior college before coming to PC this year.

Jackie Powers, a 190-pound freshman from Andrews, may move up to No. 2 center with Shrigley back at guard. Soph Marion Parrish, 250, can also be moved from tackle to center.

Second team ends are Ken Gardner, former Parker High star of Greenville, and freshman Bob Mathews, of Decatur, Ga. The No. 2 tackles are James Lee, 220, and Jack Coppley, 250.

The Blue Hose are big enough. "Our test is yet to come with young, inexperienced players," Crutchfield says.

Warren and Cook Hose Co-Captains

Seniors Tommy Warren and Felder Cook have been elected co-captains of the Blue Hose football team for the 1956 season. Warren, a guard, hails from Allendale, and Cook, a quarterback, is from Charleston.

Warren stands at five feet, ten inches and weighs 185 pounds. He is a hard-charging blocker and tackler and stands with the best linemen in South Carolina. He is expected to carry a big load at his guard post this season.

Cook weighs 160 pounds and is five feet, nine inches tall. He has terrific team spirit and is an excellent ball-handler. He will be counted on for plenty of duty at the quarterback slot.

The Hose open their season at Clemson tomorrow night when they meet the Tigers.

Changes In Lineup Shift Due to Injuries

Injuries and shifting personnel have brought a revision in the lineups Presbyterian College will throw against Clemson in their tradtional football opener this Saturday night.

One first-quarter and two unit performers have been hit by injury. Bill Bowman, the Monongehela, Pa., sophomore who was slated to start at left guard, suffered a shoulder separation in last Saturday's practice game and may not even play against the Tigers. In addition, fullback Eddie Brockenbrough, of Charlotte, and halfback Gene Butler, of Conway, two ace ballcarriers of the second unit, are slowed down with sprained ankles.

In an effort to bolster his left guard situation, Coach Bill Crutchfield has shifted Richard Shrigley, of West Elizabeth, Pa., back to this post from center. Shrigley starred as a freshman guard on the varsity last year and is well acquainted with the play here, but he had been moved to the pivot at the start of practice to help strengthen this position.

In other first unit adjustments, veteran tackle Wayne Shoemaker, of Charlotte, has fired up to recapture his starting position and been moved over to the left side ahead of James Lee, of Myrtle Beach, and Joe Negley, of E. Pittsburgh, Pa., goes over to the right tackle position and into a starting role there. Negley is the place-kicking ace of the team and the PC hope of correcting the need which brought two losses by extra-point margins last year.

Veterans Return For Cage Season

The Presbyterian College basketball team has begun workouts with six lettermen returning and six new men. So far the situation looks good as the Hose prepare ot defend their Little Four title.

The lettermen are: Bruce Thompson, Dave Thompson, Bill Sullivan, Clayton Adams, Ken Caswell, and Wyatt Aiken. Bruce, a senior center, is from Michigan City, Ind. Dave, a senior forward, is from Franklin, Ind. Sullivan, a sophmoore guard, is from Frankfort, Ind. Adams, a sophomore forward, is from Philadelphia, Pa. Caswell, a sophomore guard, is from Paris, Ky. Aiken, a junior center, is from Greenville.

The new men are: junior Bob Stone, of Maxton, N. C.; sophomore Sonny Wells, of Summer-

WARREN AND COOK CO-CAPTAINS

Congratulations are in order for Tommy Warren and Felder Cook. Warren and Cook have just been elected by their teammates as co-captains of the Hose football team for the 1956 season.

WEBB VERSUS WELLS

The game between the Hose and the Tigers tomorrow night will feature the running of the two best running backs in South Carolina and two of the best in the nation. PC's Ken Webb and Clemson's Joe Wells will lock horns in a duel to the finish when the two teams take the field at 8:00 o'clock.

Webb was the leading runner in the state last year and was picked on the All-South Carolina team. He was also on the Clemson All-Opponent team. He is a pre-season choice to regain his position on the All-State team and is also a likely candidate for Little All-American honors.

Wells was the leading runner in the Atlantic Coast Conference last year and was also a member of the All-South Carolina team. He was picked on the All-Atlantic Conference team and was mentioned for All-American honors. In a pre-season poll he was picked as the outstanding back in the ACC and also in South Carolina. He was named on the third team of one of the leading pre-season All-American picks and is a candidate for first team honors.

HOSE AVERAGES

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose will start a team against the Clemson Tigers that averages 199 pounds-per-man. It will be one of the heaviest teams that the Hose have fielded. The line averages 208 pounds-per-man and the backfield 183 pounds-per-man. It would be possible for PC to start a line averaging 219, a backfield at 195, and a team averaging 210 pounds-per-man.

The Hose offense of 1956 will be basically the same as the one last year that averaged 250 yards-per-game. Both Cook and Webb were starters on last year's team and Gene Butler and Eddie Brockenbrough, the two other members of the combination, are also back for another season.

The men on the Blue Hose squad for this year total 54. This number consists of 26 from South Carolina, 9 from Georgia, 8 from Pennsylvania, 7 from North Carolina, 2 from Florida, and one each from New Jersey and Mississippi.

The team is made up of nine ends, ten tackles, twelve guards, three centers, six quarterbacks, ten halfbacks, and four fullbacks. There are ten seniors, six juniors, twenty-three sophomores, and fifteen freshmen on the squad. Of these, thirty-two are returnees from last year's squad and twenty-two are new men, either freshmen or transfers.

SHORT SHOTS

The basketball team has already begun daily workouts and along with the lettermen returning there are some promising freshmen. It looks like another winning season for the Hose basketeers . . . Also, the tennis team has started practice and there are also high hopes of another fine season like the one of last year's team . . . Let's everyone get up to Tiger Town for the opening game of the season tomorrow night. A team cannot win without support from the student body . . . You freshmen bring back some Tiger rat caps.

Netters Open '56-'57 Season Team Shows Great Potential

The Presbyterian College tennis team has begun Fall workouts and the outlook this early in the season seems to be very promising. There are four returnees from the first six of last year's team.

The main job of Coach Jim Leighton will be to replace his No. 1 of last year, Allen Morris. Morris was considered the top collegiate player in the country last year and led the Hose to the No. 2 spot on the national collegiate scene.

Returning lettermen are: John Brownlow, Guice Potter, Harvey Jackson, Jim Shaksepeare, Bill Roberts, and Jack Byers. Brownlow, a junior from South Euclid, Ohio, was No. 2 last year. He and Morris combined to go undefeated in doubles and were the top collegiate doubles team in the Unued States.

Potter, a junior from Anniston, Ala., played in the No. 4 spot last season. Jackson, a junior from Washington, Ga., was No. 5; and Shakespeare, a sophomore from Hollywood, Fla., was No. 6. Roberts, a junior from Danville, Va., was No. 9; and Byers, a senior from Greenville, was No. 11.

Three promising new men have enrolled at PC and have been working out with the team. They are: freshman Harry Hoffman, of Philadelphia, Pa.; freshman Jack Lowe, of Charlotte, N. C.; and junior Jim Peck, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., a transfer student.

"It's Time That Counts"

The Collegiate Answer...

By Billy McElveen

WHAT CAN THE COLLEGE STUDENT DO TO HELP DETERMINE THE "RACIAL ISSUE."

JERRY FINLEY, President SCA, Seneca—"I think that we as students of a Christian institution should intelligently discuss and analyze the problem before we form any kind of an opinion. We should keep our minds open and be ready to hear both sides of the question. We have representatives in the state and national government that are there to serve us and we have every right to call upon them, and if we should call upon statesmen, they would listen more to an organized movement of sound-thinking college men than to some unmanageable mob recklessly voicing their opinions without second thoughts."

JIM HANCOCK, President Student Council, Rock Hill—"The most important thing we can do is to learn the facts about the situation, and try to spread them so that more people will act on sound judgment, rather than on unfounded myths and heresy. Furthermore, it is high time that everyone realizes the basic equality of all men in the sight of God, and act accordingly."

JOHN THAMES, CECIL GEDDINGS, RAY HODGE, Clarendon county—"With the Governor's power to declare Marshall Law, resistance against mixing seems futile, as was, and is being, shown in other states. We, who are living right in the midst of the actual situation, feel that the original issue, which was "equal facilities" for both races, is, and has been, taken care of. Our feelings are that the situation requires living in, and actually studying the situation to the utmost, and if this is done it seems as though a possible, peaceful compromise can be developed."

DR. STEVENSON, English Dept.—"We should not let any extremist persuade us in our thinking. We all have our own free thoughts. However, we must not let ours believe that this issue can be settled by force. It must be realized that this situation will work itself out, but only in time.

PROFESSOR HAY, Bible Dept.—"To say that one should show love for his fellowman seems trite. We really don't know what love really is. I am speaking of the true meaning of the word. The opposite of love in the New Testament is selfishness, and not hate."

BILL BOWMAN, RON ISGER, Pennsylvania—"We don't think there is a great deal the college student can do right now in this present situation."

JOE NEGLEY, Pennsylvania—"I think we should cooperate to the fullest with those who know the situation best."

DR. BROWN, President of PC—"Fortunately, we have had very little problems in this immediate area as to the relationship between the Negro and the white, and it has been this way for some time. The question between the relationship of the white and Negro is an important national problem, and is likely to become increasingly difficult. Violence is most likely to develop where careful study has not been given to the problem. As for my personal opinion, I feel the college student can most contribute to the issue by avoiding intense partisanship, and by giving careful, considerate study to the factial elements which are causing present tension."

KEN CASWELL, Kentucky—"Desegregation of school systems is something that will become a uniform reality everywhere in future years. Our main trouble has come from the fact that we are trying to push it too fast. We have tried to do in two or three years what has not been done in a hundred years . Integration is something that will require many years to be worked out satisfactorily. I can see no direct action that we as college students can take toward the enrollment of the Negro students in our schools for we, as mere students, do not have the power to submit or reject colored students. However, we can voice our opinions to the administration and let them know how we will react to the admission of colored students in case any action of accepting a negro student is tried."

TOMMY REEVES, Battalion Commander, Denmark—"First of all it is a necessity that all of the prejudice which many of us have inherited from our Southern ancestry be eliminated and replace it with diligent study and consideration of the matter. Always attempting to follow the Christian principles, but yet, being practical enough to avoid any hasty decision which could possibly set back the education of both races many years.

Question next week: Do fraternities help or hinder colleges and universities.

Proposed New Student Center . . .

The ground-breaking ceremonies next Friday for the new Presbyterian College Student Center marks the first visible results toward the college's long-range $2,000,000 development campaign. Above is the architect's conception of how the building will appear when completed.

Gala Homecoming Next Week; Ceremonies Start Student Center

Ground breaking ceremonies for Presbyterian College's new Memorial Student Center will be held as part of the Homecoming program on Oct. 6. The ceremony will commence at 3 o'clock P. M.

This proposed building, to be erected as a memorial to the 65 who lost their lives in World War II and the five who made the supreme sacrifice in the Korean War, is a major objective of the Diamond Jubilee program now in progress.

President Marshall Brown, in making the announcement, said the ground breaking ceremonies had been moved forward several months so that alumni returning for Homecoming might share the occasion. Construction will begin early in 1957. The proposed site of the new and elaborate building will be directly across the Plaza from Spencer Dormitory.

The new Student center is vitaly needed to continue to promote a wholesome extra curricular program. The present old frame house originally built as a residence for the president serves the function of student center in only a partial way and is now past the end of its useful life.

Several hundred alumni are expected to return to Presbyterian College for the 1956 Homecoming.

Besides the ground breaking, they will return for special class reunions, an alumni luncheon, the alumni association meeting, a president's reception, and the annual renewal of the football rivalry between PC and Davidson.

Jim Hancock Announces Class Head Nominations

Jim Hancock, president of the student body, announced that class officers for the freshman, sopohmore, junior, and senior classes will be nominated Wed., Oct. 3.

Also at this time two freshman representatives for the Student Council will be nominated.

These nominations will be made by the student body. Elections will be held one week later, on Wed., Oct. 10.

Announcement . . .

Miss Iona Blakely, supervisor of dormitories, is ready to receive requests for changes in rooms or room partners.

Miss Blakely's office is situated on the first floor of Bailey Hall.

IFC Posts Schedule For Fall Open Socials

The Inter-Fraternity Council announced the dates for the Fall Open Socials at a meeting held by each of the six fraternities on last Tuesday night.

The socials will be sponsored consecutive Wednesday nights beginning Oct. 10.

Each fraternity extends an invitation to all freshmen, non-fraternity members, and faculty. Refreshments will be served. Girls will attend from the Women's Colleges in the surrounding area.

The weekly socials will follow a schedule as follows: Theta Chi, Oct. 10; Pi Kappa Phi, Oct. 17; Pi Kappa Alpha, Oct. 24; Kappa Alpha Nov. 7; Sigma Nu, Nov. 17.

Blue Key Posts Solution; Aims For Better Relations

Don Rickett, president of the Presbyterian College chapter of Blue Key National Honorary Fraternity, announced today in Chapel a tentative plan to improve relations between Presbyterian and Wofford.

The plan as drawn up by the Blue Key Chapters of the two schools calls for the giving of one point for each athletic victory in a sport where there is only one game played or the giving of one point to the winner of a series in sports where more than one game is played.

If the series is equally divided, then each school would receive one-half of a point. There will be a penalty of one point being subtracted from the total for any unsportsmanlike conduct by the students.

This would include any painting of campuses or starting of fights between students of the two schools. A committee made up of an equal number of representatives from both chapters would settle on disputes concerning who is at fault.

At the halftime of the PC-Wofford football game each year the chapter from the school which acquired the least points during the past year would present the winning chapter with a trophy which they would place with their own.

In the spring the trophy would be returned to its owner to be kept until the following fall. Each school would have its own trophy; for PC a bronze Blue Hose, and for Wofford a bronze terrier, and the winner would keep both during the year. The loser would dsiplay an empty trophy case with a sign telling where the trophy is.

Rickett has stated that he hopes this plan will increase the desire of the teams to win and of the students to conduct themselves as good sports.

The Wofford Blue Key Chapters invited representatives of PC's chpater to meet with them at this luncheon meeting that this plan was first discussed. On Wednesday the Wofford chapter journeyed to PC where they put on a chapel program consisting of a devotional and music as performed by their jazz combo. After this program the two chapters met and completed the plan as announced today.

PC's chapter returned the visit to Wofford yesterday at which time their program before the student body there consisted of a devotional, followed by musical sleections as rendered by Brock's Band.

Sock to Announce Next Chapel Speakers

Mr. Lewis Hay, Associate Professor of Bible and Greek and chairman of Faculty's Religious Activities Committee, will be responsible for securing the speakers for the Monday and Wednesday religious chapel programs. The Friday chapel services will be conducted by the Student Christian Association, except during the month of October when the SCA has invited guest ministers for the Wednesday programs.

The schedule for the week of October first is as follows: Monday—Mr. Richard Adams, Assistant Professor of Spanish; Wednesday—Rev. McLeod Frampton, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Anderson; and Friday—Rev. C. B. Betts, pastor of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church of Clinton.

Mr. Hay plans to announce the chapel speakers in advance, when they are scheduled. The programs for the week following the publishing of the "Blue Stocking," will be printed in the paper in order that those students who are not assigned chapel seats, might attend a program which is of special interest to them.

Poll Determines College Answers to Quest

WHAT KIND OF INFLUENCE DO FRATERNITIES HAVE ON THE COLLEGE CAMPUS?

DR. GETTYS—"I think fraternities can be very good. They can establish a closer fellowship, and in so doing, develop higher ideals among the students. I have even known fraternities to help students attain a higher scholastic standing. Fraternities can do a lot of harm when they become snobbish. This can make a student feel left out, and unwanted."

BILL HART, president of IFC, Kappa Alpha—"Here on our small campus fraternity life is the social function of the students. These social functions are geared through the IFC which is sponsored by the fraternities. In doing this the fraternities promote a better relationship between upperclassmen and freshmen, in that all freshmen are potential rushees, thus, the upperclassmen get to know the freshmen and new students a lot quicker."

Julian Butler, Theta Chi—"On a small campus there are a number of advantages for fraternities. Not only do they provide a social median for the student body, but they also provide a threefold program for the students. The program being: (1) the intellectual advancement, (2) the personal advancement, and (3) the cultural advancement. The only hindrance that I can see that fraternities might be is that some people put fraternities on a higher level than their academic achievements."

Lyman Harris, Alpha Sigma Phi—"Fraternities instill a sense of responsibility in the members of each fraternity. This teaches the members to work with others in a close relationship, thus producing the potential leaders of the college campus. I think that a closer bond of friendship can be created among the brothers of the fraternities by working with those that they are happy working with. The only drawback I can see that fraternities might have is through non-cooperation and not adhering to the standards set up by the administration."

LT. COL. SMITH: "Fraternities exert a good influence, and have exerted a better influence since all the hazing has been cut out. They give the top men on campus a chance to show leadership abilities and it also gives the average run of college students a chance to enter further into campus affairs."

TOMMY HOLBROOK, Pi Kappa Phi: "Fraternities are the strongest bonds of frinedship on a college campus that can be found. Especially here at PC, I believe, we have a very definite closeness. The fraternities are good for a college campus because they are the "work horses" for the social life and also promoting better relations among the student body. If the fraternities don't realize their obligations to the school, and the school doesn't realize its obligation to the fraternities, it only works to the detriment of the school as well as to the fraternities."

PROFESSOR TOOLE: "Fraternities working together can exert a very beneficial influence and play an important part in college life. The only danger that a fraternity could do to the college is to isolate itself completely from other groups."

WILLIAM TURNER, Sigma Nu: "Fraternities promote a rivalry between themselves that tends to keep the members more interested in their fraternities and thus driving them to still yet higher goals. This keeps the standards of the fraternities on a higher level as well as helping promote higher standards in the school."

BOB HILL, Pi Kappa Alpha: "On a small campus there can be definite advantages for fraternities. The fraternities give the students a social outlet by sponsoring wholesome activities for its members as well as the members of the student body to participate in. Fraternities that lose their initiative and tend to be lax in their program not only hinder its members but they tend to depreciate the fraternity and the college it represents. Fraternities are a real beneficial attribute to our college as well as to those all over the nation."

Question next week: WHAT IS THE PLACE OF FOOTBALL IN SMALL COLLEGES?

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Editorials : Features : Humor

Congratulations . . .

The Blue Stocking staff wishes to join with Col. Thackston in extending congratulations to the student body for their cooperation and good judgment in staying in their rooms during Monday night's "invasion." Circumstances which could have been very unfortunate for both sides were avoided in a mature way.

The leadership displayed by Jim Hancock and Tommy Reeves must not go unmentioned. It was through their efforts that the mob from Clemson was appeased, although a locally-made picture sent to a state newspaper made them appear in a servile light. It did not show the selflessness and determination that motivated the two to be willing to face an unpredictable mob.

A movement is now underway to halt the childish activities between PC and certain ones of our athletic rivals. The types of cooperation shown Monday night will assure its success.

Bully for You

By NOBLE COLLINS

Everyone has a different idea of just exactly what "college" is. It may be: quizzes, dances, football games, quizzes, fraternity socials, quizzes, or any other equally representative functions. One thing definitely is on the campus—the bull session, which can, and often does, range in subject matter from an estimate of the specific weight of Stone Mountain to a discussion on the effect of the Kinsey Report on the Hawaiian Indians.

I know, because I was hopelessly engaged in one only last week, and I haven't fully recovered yet.

There I was one rainy afternoon, sitting in my room calmly typing some history notes. Suddenly, as I came to the end of a paragraph, I noticed that there was a deafening silence in the dormitory that afternoon. It was as quiet as a turkey farm on a Thankskiving afternoon, and I greatly suspected something was astray. Since I was beginning to tire from typing, (I type Columbus style—find it and land on it) I decided to take a break and find out where everybody was. I checked every room on the hall and found them all empty. Then I remembered that on rainy afternoons "the boys" always met together in a back room at Lonnies Canteen for lively discussions.

I put on my raincoat, Australian crawled my way over to Lonnie's, and went straight to the back room where I walked in and took a seat without causing the slightest slack in the conversation.

At the moment they were engaged in a minor debate over the possibility of growing frozen vegetables in the Arctic. I sat tha tone out.

Then a little guy, who looked like he could have gotten lost in a crowd of two, started talking about girls, dating, etc. Someone asked him if he had to get his date in by 3 p. m. so she could take her afternoon nap, and a mild chuckle drifted around the room.

The litle guy mumbled something about people who let their minds go blank, but forget to turn off the sound, and he continued to talk about girls. Everybody then joined in, contributing little known facts about the fair gender.

They talked about the co-ed in particular who was aptly dubbed "live wire" because she usually wore so little insulation. It seemed she was once an artist's model, but was unsuited for the job. The little guy was saying something about a girl whose kiss "just spoke volumes" to him. "Probably not a first edition," ventured a blue-jeaned genius from over in the corner. Then, some rare wit, with a coupling loose in his train of thought, began to expound profoundly on something he had read in philosophy. He crammed all he knew into three minutes (it was easy) and sat back content.

There was that silence for a few moments, and then someone broke it by suggesting that indeed our philosophical friend was in a perfect position to judge the human race—being a completely impartial observer on the outside and all.

In retaliation, the philosopher ventured that his friend would with his IQ, go thundering down through history like an extra quart of water over Niagara Falls. This brought on a session of squelching, and I decided it was as good a place as any to make my exit.

I left the room just as one contender was accusing another of being lazy. "When opportunity knocks, you complain of the noise," I heard as I closed the door behind me and walked out onto the porch.

It was still raining, and I began to be depressed as I observed that the country was really going to be lacking in leadership if it had to depend on goons like these to guide it some day. Then, I was reminded that these were just college students after all—supplementing their classroom knowledge with a measure of common sense—adding ingredients from all the shelves to complete the fermentation until one day they evolve as something stimulating, mellow and mature.

Through the rain, the prodigal sun slid out from behind a cloud for a moment, winked, and then took shelter again. I had to smile myself.

You Are There

By LYMAN HARRIS

"Time: Tuesday, September 25, 1956. Place: Presbyterian College, where there has recently been a threat from Clemson invaders. YOU ARE THERE."

"This is Alvin Winestein, your CBS commentator. I am on the Presbyterian College campus, ready to give a blow by blow description if Clemson comes again."

"At this moment I am walking up the Plaza passing a howitzer which has been set up by General Solie and is being manned by the General and several freshmen.

However, I will not be able to go any farther because of a barbed-wire directly in front of me. I do not know the password and will not be able to enter, so we will now switch to our announcer inside Fort Neville. Come in, Guzzle A Fou, in Fort Neville.

"This is Guzzle A. Fou in Fort Neville. I am standing in the rotunda, while students swarm past me, all wearing field helmets. When the freshmen wearing these helmets gin, they sound like they are in echo chambers. I understand that Dr. Patte, director of the croakers, has noticed this echo effect also, and has made plans to cash in on it. His choir will wear these helmets for the echo effect, while they make a recording of 'Hound Dog.'

"Directly in front of me is the Radio Forum Room, which has been converted into a temporary Frist Aid headquarters by a Mrs. Bob.

This is necessary because some of the Clemson boys will probably be injured. On my left there is a sign pointing downstairs where a raid shelter has been set up in the cellar for the coeds.

"Students are rushing past me, all of them wearing field helmets. Wait; here comes a gentleman wearing goggles and a racing cap. Uh, pardon me, sir."

The gentleman: "Yeah, man, What can I do for you?"

Announcer: "Would you mind telling the listening audience your name?"

The gentleman: "Hot O'Rudy."

Announcer: "Well, sir, why are you wearing goggles and a racing cap?"

Hot O.: "I'm headed for the Speedway."

Announcer: "Speedway?"

Hot O.: "Yeah, Jones' history class. Last time I went in there I got to taking notes so fast that my pencil got hot and sawdust flew in my eyes, so I'm prepared this time. I've got asbestos paper and paper weights, too."

Announcer: "Why the paper weights?"

Hot O.: "Well, last time Jones got to flipping through his notes so fast it created a breeze and blew all the papers off my desk. He talks so fast that when he finishes, his tonsils are smoking.

Announcer: "Thank you, sir. We're not very familiar with your campus; would you mind telling us what the building is behind Fort Neville that we see through the gun slit?"

Hot O.: "That's Leo's Lunch House. If you go there, just be careful. The cook is very religious and offers burnt sacrifices three times a day."

Announcer: "Thank you for your help, sir. We will now switch you back to the Plaza to Alvin Winestein. YOU ARE THERE. Are you there, Alvin?"

"This is Alvin Winestein on the Plaza. I am about to interview a goof-off freshman. These goof-offs have been posted as sentries on the immediate firing line. Large bullseyes have been painted on their signs. Tell me, boy, what do you think about this goof-off stuff?"

CENSORED.

YOU WERE THERE.
THERE YOU ARE.

Rain, Rain

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

Rain, nothing but rain! The weather is fine for ducks, right Sarah. But, the rain hasn't dampened the spirit of rivalry although it has dampened everything else.

The postage for mailing banners is the same and the white letters, shining through the mist, on Neville Hall are a bright reminder of the fact that the rivalry is still on.

These dark gloomy days are brightened by the dots of color here and there on the campus. There goes a red and black umbrella whose owner is none other than "Moose" Martin.

(Say, can anyone tell me which one of the co-eds is going to make that trip to Atlanta for the Georia Tech-Tulane game?)

Right behind "Moose" is a blue striped job carried by a very happy young lady, but I wonder who she has been singing "Don't Be Cruel" to lately.

We will miss our beauty queen this week. It seems she has been crowned, in more ways than one, and has to play princess this week.

My gosh, Dot, what a color ! I guess even purple will do when you're left out in the cold. I know several people who will be interested in hearing that you don't mind the cold after all.

"That tan job of yours is real snazzy, Gayle. However, shouldn't you have gotten a larger one for some of these cold, rainy nights? We don't want John to catch cold, you know."

"Barbara, you and Shirley seem to be getting along just fine without an umbrella. Welcome to the ranks of the "crow-heads."

There seems to be a run on red parasols. What would the "Twins" do without theirs, they've been walking so much lately.

Our Campus Queen, Norma Jean, doesn't need an umbrella, for she is above the clouds on her throne.

Now stand by for the gossip of the week. We regret to inform you that Harvey Jackson's name has been submitted to the Royal Order of the Shafted.

Flash! According to a recent election, Don Rickett has again been voted "The Sweetheart of the Rah Rah Girls."

Hear ye! Hear ye! The girls of Calvert House have been commended for their behavior, but —"Wait Til The Sun Shines, Nellie." Bye now!

Hose Meet Terriers Tomorrow; Marks Beginning of Little Three

When toe meets leather Saturday night in Spartanburg PC and Wofford, Titans of small college football, will do battle. The Hosemen will converge upon Wofford with hopes of gaining revenge in the eyes of last year's thrilling 20-12 homecoming setback at the hands of the Terriers.

Pacing the Blue Hose again will be number 66, Ken Webb, and a whole covey of galloping runners that will keep Coach Conley Snidow's Terriers on the go throughout the contest. Presbyterian College Coach Bill Crutchfield revealed that possibly the same lineup that opened against Clemson will again get the call; however, such key stalwarts as Captain Tommy Warren, Tony Benson, and Ted Leahy are flu-ridden and can see little if any action Saturday night.

Leading the hard - charging Blue Hose line will be towering Jim McLauchlin, Wayne Shoemaker, James Lee, Jim Walker, and Joe Negley, among others.

Coach Crutchfield said that Wofford will definitely be up for the game, and that the Hose must throw everything they have at Wofford in order to defeat their arch rivals.

The Terriers own a deadly passing attack that has in their past two games been very effective against opponents. The best passer in the state, pecentage-wise, Charlie Bradshaw, will be just one of the men PC must stop.

Presbyterian's offense went into high gear against mighty Clemson as they amassed a total of 360 yards. Quarterback Felder Cook, a real wizard at ball handling, should uncork an effective passing attack that should balance the already feared ground offense and make the Battlin' Blue Hose real threats.

This contest is a Little Three skirmish and past records are completely forgotten as these two ancient rivals again attempt to prove superiority on the gridiron.

PC's Men of The Week Ken Webb, Jim McLaughlin

(Editor's Note: This is the first on in a series of articles in which the sports staff with the cooperation of the Hose coaching staff will pick a lineman and back of the week on such merits as blocking, tackling, running, and team spirit.)

Junior Webb has been selected as our first back of the week. The Decatur, Ga., "Mule Train," a big number 66, literally riddled holes through the supposedly impenetrable Clemson line last week. Altogether Webb amassed a total of 113 yards in twelve carries for a remarkable 9.4 average. Often the 200-pounder would carry would-be Tiger tacklers with him as he picked up extra yardage.

Webb, strictly a runner in the past, uncorked an aerial to end Ted Leahy early in the game that almost put the Hose ahead. The pass covered 49 yards from the Hose 39 to the Tiger 12.

Webb, showing the form that gained him a position on last year's All-State team, strengthened his bid for Little All-American honors.

Leading the way up front was a big fellow from Charlotte, N. C., Jim McLauchlin, our lineman of the week. The powerful center was the demon on blocking and tackling all night.

McLauchlin had a 76% blocking efficiency score which is very high for such an early season game. When the Hose backs gained their valuable yardage, we must tip our hats to the unsung heroes of the line who are always leading the way goalward.

For our first selection we feel that we have chosen the two fellows most worthy of this honor for both always give their all every minute they are in the lineup.

Such men as Cook, Shoemaker, Leahy, Negley, Lee, Walker, and Brockenbrough, among many others, played superb ball and must receive mentioning.

Blue Hose Bow to Tigers; Webb Leads Wells in Yards

The Clemson Tigers unleashed a ground attack late in the first quarter that broke up a scoreless duel and paved the way to a Tiger victory in the season opener for both Clemson and Presbyterian.

The Tigers, after halting an early PC scoring threat, mustered together a drive that carried them to their first 1956 score on the second play of the second quarter. The Blue Hose made their lone score of the contest in the third quarter and scored on the strong Clemson team for the first time since 1953.

Junior Ken Webb led the way for PC with 113 yards in twelve carries. Top men for Clemson were Hayes with 62 yards, Lawrence with 61 yards, and Wells with 59 yards.

PC struck early with a scoring attempt by taking the opening kickoff and immediately picking up two first downs to their own 39. From here Webb passes to Ted Leahy on a play that almost resulted in a Hose score. Clemson's Wells caught Leahy from behind after he had covered 49 yards to the Tiger twelve. Jim Coleman intercepted a PC pass to quell the rally.

Late in the first period the Tigers began a 77-yard march that resulted in the game's initial score. Coleman carried over from the two seconds after the second quarter had begun. Quarterback Charlie Bussey added the extra point from placement.

In two minutes and forty-five seconds the Tigers had again struck paydirt An intercepted pass on the Hose 39 set up the second Clemson tally. Spooner received credit for six points from six yards out and Bussey's kick was wide. Clemson 13-PC O at halftime.

Displaying power and clockwork Clemson took the opening kickoff of the second half and drove 66 yards for their third score. Wells made the tally from 1 yard out and Bussey on a freak play passed to Dalton Rivers for the PAT. Clemson 20, PC 0.

After a short PC kick, Clemson fumbled and the Blue Hose took over to drive 63 yards and spoil the shutout. With brute power and a couple of beautiful passes by Cook, PC, made the score 20-7. On fourth down Webb went off of his right tackle for one yard and the score. On a bad snap from center Cook passed 34 yards to Leahy alone in the end zone for the extra point.

The Tigers added their final score on a 59-yard drive with Lawrence carrying the final eleven. Turbeville converted to make the score 27-7.

Presbyterian showed that they would be hard to reckon with in Little Three competition by their showing against the powerful Tigers. The Hose displayed a terrific ground attack and also some fine passing. The line played adequately and was able to stack up very well in comparison with the big Tiger forward wall.

Behind the Blues

WEBB STRENGTHENS BID FOR LITTLE ALL-AMERICAN

PC's Little All-American candidate, Ken Webb, added to his rushing total and strengthened his bid for AA honors with his brilliant showing at Clemson last Saturday night. Webb accounted for 113 yards rushing, almost half of the Blue Hose total, in twelve attempts for an average of 9.4 yards-per-carry.

In the third quarter Webb added the lone Hose score with a short one-yard plunge on fourth down. It was the first PC tally against a Tiger team since 1953. The junior halfback from Decatur, Ga., was definitely the best back on the field as he hit the line with lightning like thrusts and aided the Hose defense with sharp crushing tackles.

HOSE SHOW POWER AND DEPTH

The Hose of 1956 showed some of the power and depth Saturday night that should make them a definite threat to unseat Wofford as the Little Three champions. The Hose drove well against a Tiger team that can boast of one of the finest defensive teams in the powerful Atlantic Coast Conference. PC gained 249 yards rushing and ran the Tiger secondary ragged by completing seven passes in fourteen attempts for 111 yards. The passing was a pleasant surprise as this was considered one of the weak points in the Hose offense in pre-season evaluations.

PC showed its power early when the Hose took the opening kickoff and marched to the Clemson 12-yard line before the drive was halted by a Jim Coleman interception on the goal line. This effort by the Blue Hose, had it been successful, could have changed the whole final outcome of the game.

The Blue Hose showed depth in the fact that they were able to substitute the second unit without causing any drastic weaknesses. This could be an important factor as the season progresses due to the fact that this offers the first unit valuable breathing time to enable them to go at full speed at all times. All in all the Hose fielded a team that showed considerable improvement in team spirit, an experienced backfield with speed and power, and a stalwart line with ample substitutes.

CRAZY EXTRA POINTS

On the try for the extra point after Clemson had driven sixty-six yards with the opening kickoff of the second half a bad snap from center resulted in a fumble. Kicker Charlie Bussey quickly grabbed up the pigskin and attempted to run for the PAT. When he was trapped behind the line of scrimmage he spotted end Dalton Rivers in the open and hit him with a short pass to add the extra point.

Later in the third period PC tallied for their lone TD of the game. Again on the extra point attempt a bad pass from center got away from the holder, Felder Cook. The ball bounced back to approximately the 35-yard line where Cook scooped it up. With no chance to run, Cook tossed a high lob to end Ted Leahy who was standing all alone in the end zone. Leahy took it to bring PC's total for the night to seven. It all goes to show you that strange things can happen in this game of football.

$41,000 CONTEST

Open to All College Students (Faculty, too!)

Nothing to buy...nothing to write

...and you may find you know more about people than you think!

How well do you know human nature? Can you tell what subjects interest people most? Here is a chance to test your judgment—show how good an editor you are—and you may win $5,000 for yourself, plus $5,000 in scholarship funds for your college.

It's fun to try. Maybe you can top other students in colleges across the country . . . and you can match wits with the editors of Reader's Digest.

Why do far more college graduates read Reader's Digest than any other magazine? What is it that makes the Digest the most widely read magazine in the world—with 11 million copies bought each month in the United States, plus 9 million abroad? Why is it read each month by at least 60 million people, in 12 languages—Arabic, Danish, English, Finnish, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Norwegian, Portuguese, Spanish and Swedish?

Can you spot in a typical issue of Reader's Digest the universal human values that link scholars, statesmen, scientists, writers, businessmen, housewives? Can you pick out the articles that will be most popular with the average Digest reader?

You may find . . . you know more about people than you think!

Here's all you do. Study the descriptions (at right) of the articles in the October Reader's Digest—or, better still, read the complete articles in the issue itself. (But you are not required to buy The Reader's Digest to enter the contest.) Then simply list the six articles—in order of preference—that you think readers of the magazine will like best. This will be compared with a nationwide survey conducted among a cross section of Digest subscribers.

Follow the directions given below. Fill in the entry blank, paste it on a post card, and get it into the mail before the deadline. Additional blanks are obtainable at your college bookstore.

All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, October 25, 1956. Don't delay. In case of ties, the entry with the earliest postmark will win.

YOU CAN WIN:

$5000 cash 1st prize
plus $5000 for the scholarship fund of your college or . . .

$1000 cash 2nd prize
plus $1000 for the scholarship fund of your college or . . .

Any of TEN $500 cash prizes
plus $500 for the scholarship fund of your college or . . .

Any of 100 $10 prizes
in book credit from your local college bookstore

And if your entry is the best from your college you will receive an extra award—an additional $10 in book credit at your college bookstore.

Re-orient Yourself...

It would seem that a very valuable institution to have on a college campus would be an "orientation application" period, where we can take the "catalog generalities" that we heard during orientation week and evaluate them in the light of the actual situations that we have found on this campus.

When we came here .we were all loaded up with handbooks, handshakes, and patriotic cliches about "the friendliest little college in the South." We were awash in exhortations to "get that ol' PC spirit that fights clean and never gives up!"

Familiarity with the campus and the students did away with the necessity for the handbooks; upperclassmen did away with the handshakes and cliches, and painting parties tarnished that ol' PC spirit. There you are, just like we were three years ago, with all the propaganda stripped off, naked in the realization that your real identity as a student and as a man must come from within your own self.

This is the real difference, socially, between high school and college. When you go away to college, you lose your home identification. You are inspected and evaluated for the person that you yourself are, not for what your father does or who you ran around with at ol' "Harry High." So it is for the best that you become disillusioned about some of your first impressions, and realize that you are, above all, an indivdiual, responsible to yourself and to those who depend on you to utilize your opportunities and talents; your benefactors and your fellow students.

This done, we come to the crying need of any campus claiming to propagate Christian education, and that is, Christians who will take advantage of and practice the education offered them.

The Secret

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

Boys beware; The Rah Rah Girls are on the rampage this week. With homecoming just around the corner, the girls have been burning the midnight oil. Behind each door there are mysterious sighs and sounds of some highly sceret things going on. If you were to tip-toe quietly into a small blue bedroom you would hear some idle chatter that would make your hair stand on end.

This usually sweet and quiet co-ed is boiling over. "How many times must I tell them. I'm not going to dance and that's final." Outside the adjoining room, joyous songs filter (rather bombard) their way under the door. Some of the words were greatly imprinted into my eardrums, such as never trusting someone and something about a Sigma Nu. Across the hall there is the sound of rustling net, as someone tries on her evening dress. There were also some comments about the hoop being too full, and she just knew a certain party wasn't going to like it because when you add his size and her hoop—well!

The next room as usual is empty, but the front room is jampacked. There the nightly meeting of the Old Maid's club is in order. The president has announced the expulsion of one of the members, since she has persisted in dating such creatures as males.

The third floor is rocking and rolling and is threatening to fall in at any minute. I am fortunate that the co-ed who has acquired the habit of stomping her foot with her every neigh doesn't room above me. Although the plastering is so cracked it provides natural air conditioning, it hasn't fallen in yet, as it has under her room.

Some of the remarks from Mermaids'Lagoon are quite the topic of conversation these days. "Boys have it made!" They don't have to think twice to decide what to wear, while a girl has to debate for hours over the good and bad points of a dress. She primps for hours, fixing her nails, hair, and trying to make her face up into something that would make Marilyn Monroe look like Miss Innocence, and ends up looking like Dracula's daughter.

I may be booted out of the ranks for making known the age old secrets of females, but here goes. First, she washes her face, leaving it shiny and red. Then, she covers the tell-tale scars and marks with an inch layer of cake-like base, adding a nice rosy blob of rouge, she douses her face with layers of powder

A startling slab of mascara is then added to this sea of whiteness, leaving the eyes with an unusual look of surprise all the time. A teaspoon full of perfume is a vital ingredient to the recipe for loveliness. It is guaranteed to rush results whether they be "grin and bear it" or "run for your life."

Now for a slight change of subject, I have heard of girls giving boys cuff links, but I never heard of boys giving girls cuff links—Right, Norma? Shucks, it doesn't look like the sun is going to shine this week either, Nellie!

Hot' O Rambles

By LYMAN HARRIS

Hot O'Rudy and I were walkng down the hall toward our room. Hot O. said, "Man, I need some excitement. This place is dead. The only thing that ever happens around here is mornnig, afternoon, and night."

But when we went into the room, the excitement began. There was a note from the dean that went like this:

"Dear Hot O Rudy,

"This is just a friendly little note to remind you that Sgt. Blakely upon inspecting the barracks discovered that you haven't made up your bed for three consecutive weeks. You will also recall that you were tried and found guilty, thus campused for three months.

"We have checked on you by means of the G. A. Anderson Detective Agency and found that the night before last you came home yesterday, and last night you came home today; if you come home this afternoon tomorrow, you will be released from the academy.

Love,
The Colonel

P. S.—Justice must prevail."

This left Hot O. slightly shook, so he laid on his sack to collect himself. He was just becoming interested in his mystery book, "Antlers in The Trees," by Horn E. Forest, and was just beginnng to breathe easy, when Slob Jones came in Slob, who was named after both his father and his mother. (His mother was named Sally and his father Bob, so they called him Slob.) is a pretty famous fellow in these parts

He was the founder of Slob Jones University and also founder of the AA-AAA. (This is an association for drinkers who drive)

Slob had a weakness, though. He wasn't exactly an alcoholic, but he was what some people call a drunkard. He told me that he gauged his drinking by his watch. When the hands wave at him, he knows he's had enough. Anyhow, that's enough of the personal life of Slob Jones.

Meanwhile back at the dorm, Slob announced to Hot O. that he would accompany Hot O. to the parade again this year. This didn't make Hot O. too happy, because he was just getting over Slob's accompanying him to last year's parade.

Last year he wore Hot O. out wandering around and getting into trouble. Hot O. stopped to rest and when he got up again, Slob was gone. He looked for him all over the place and couldn't find him. Finally he came upon a huge crowd gathered on the edge of the street. He thought he might find Slob there, so he pushed his way through.

He found Slob lying in the gutter with one arm over the curb. He was worried about him, thinking maybe he had been hit by a Mack truck or something, until he heard Slob mumble, "I'm going to get over this blasted wall if it takes me all night."

Meanwhile back at the dorm, Hot O. was wearing himself out, just thinking about it, so Slob left and we hit it over to the chow hole.

As usual on dance weekends, there was a long line of boys and their dates outside the chow hole. Everything went well until we got to the bulletin board. Hot O. read an announcement he didn't like and hollered, "Phoee."

A stampede followed as girls left their dates and gathered around Hot O. to see what he wanted. They thought he said, "Suee."

Another odd thing happened that same weekend. Hot O. dressed himself up in a suit of armor to go to the football game. I asked him what the idea was. He said, "Well, this is just in case I get into a fight. You can't hit back now, you know; you might get three months."

Considering this and everything else that happened, I decided that Hot O. was in pretty bad condition, and it would be good for him to take a course that would help him understand himself better. So he registered in Adolescent Psychology under Bellingrath. He was told that the dean particularly liked this course, because he traced his family tree all the way back to the time when his ancestors lived in it.

Hosemen Bow to Wofford; Sickness Makes Its Mark

The Wofford Terriers scored early in the game and then went on to take a 27-12 victory from the Presbyterian College Blue Hose last Saturday night. The Terriers showed a fierce ground attack and also an effective passing attack. PC's powerful offense did not get into high gear until the second half and then it was too late for the Hose to be a threat.

Quarterback Charlie Bradshaw led the Wofford team on offense and was a key factor in the Terrier win. Bradshaw rolled up 82 yards in 20 carries and tossed one scoring aerial while halfback Kent Hall, subbing for the injured ace, Frank Deprete, scored twice and gained 63 yards in 14 rushing attempts.

Ken Webb, Presbyterian's Little All-American candidate, did not begin clicking until the second half and managed only 38 yards in 12 carries. The Hose leading ball carriers were John Lucas, with 48 yards, Eddie Brockenbrough, with 42 yards, and Ed Messer, with 35 yards.

Defensive stars for the Terriers were tackle Roger Hagy, end Weyland Burns, and guard Evans Holland. For the Hose, tackle Joe Negley, tackle Wayne Shoemaker, and guard Tommy Warren were defensive standouts.

In the first quarter, Wofford received the kickoff and moved 64 yards for the first score of the game. Hall tallied on a plunge from the three-yard line. Burns kicked the extra point. Wofford led 7-0 after four minutes and ten seconds. Wofford returned PC's kick to their 49. In five plays the Terriers moved to the Hose 8.

On the second play of the second quarter Hall moved from his five to score. The point attempt was not good and Wofford led 13-0 after 55 seconds. The Blue Hose second unit took over and moved to the Terrier fifteen before Wofford recovered a Messer fumble to stymie the rally.

After a Hose punt the Terriers started moving from their own 45. Bradshaw passed to Jerry Richardson for 37 yeards to the PC six. From here halfback Reddick Still took a handoff and passed to end Twitty Carpenter for six points. Richardson added the PAT and Wofford led 20-0 after fourteen minutes and thirty seconds

The Hose began moving after they took the Terrier kickoff. Cook hit Webb with a flat pass and the shifty halfback carried 52 yards to the Wofford 28. A Cook to Walker pass carried to the ten but time ran out. The talftime score was, Wofford 20, PC 0.

In the third quarter, after an exchange of kicks the Terriers moved 51 yards for their final tally, with Bradshaw passing to Burns for ten yards and the score. Bradshaw added the point and Wofford led 27-0 after four minutes and thirty-seven seconds.

Later in the period the Hose began to move from their own 35. Cook to Paul Chastain to Wofford 35 Cook to Walker to the 17 Webb on a run to the five. A Cook to Webb TD pass was called back by a penalty and two attempts fell incomplete. Wofford took over and fumbled on the first play, wth Nalley recovering.

In the final quarter Webb, on third down moved eight yards for the tally. Negley's attempt was wide and it was Wofford 27, PC 6 after 32 seconds

After a Wofford kick the Hose began to roll. Cook passed to Messer on a beautiful play that covered 65 yards to the Terrier two. Messer carried the final two to culminate a 72-yard drive. The point was wide. Wofford led 27-12 after 11 minutes and 54 seconds. The remainder of the game saw one scoring threat by the Terriers stymied by the PC defense

Hosemen Take on Davidson'Cats In Annual Battle of Presbyterians

As this weekend rapidly approaches, the Presbyterian football aggregation is hard at work preparing to do battle with the Davidson Wildcats. This is the Blue Hose homecoming and the home club will be shooting for their fourth straight victory over their North Carolina cousins. In the over-all series the record is all tied up at seven wins, seven losses, and one tie between the two Presbyterian rivals.

The Hosemen will be seeking their first victory of the young season, having dropped two to Clemson and Wofford. The Wildcats have a 1-1 record, winnnig from Catawba and being upset by The Citadel last weekend.

Coach Bill Crutchfield is hoping to climb on the winning side of the ledger and will send once again the crushing offense into action led by Ken Webb. Along with Webb will go such touted backs as: Cook, Messer, Brockenbrough, Lucas, and Nalley. The Hose, stymied somewhat by an inspired Wofford team, have been busily ironing out kinks and should produce a more potent attack against Davidson. Up front on the line with Warren and Leahy at top strength again much needed help will be had. Along with these two stalwarts will bee Shrigley, Lee, and Shoemaker among others.

The Wildcats will display one of the flashiest passing teams in the South with twin threats at the quarterback slot. Both Ryke Little and Dick Belton are top passers in the Southern Conference and they have many able receivers to back them up.

Last year the Hose went to Davidson two touchdowns underdogs and emerged with a 18-1 victroy. Four years ago a highly favored Presbyterian team had their homecomng game spoiled by the pesky Wildcats. Who wins a Davidson fracas? Take your pick. And don't count on previous records. It doesn't pay off.

When the Blue Hose meet Davidson Saturday night, they will renew an old rivalry between these Presbyterian schools which began as far back as 1919.

In that initial meeting, the Hose fought to a scoreless deadlock.

These two small colleges both produce big time football and always seem to be evenly matched. The largest score ever compiled was in 1949 when PC overwhelmed the Wildcats 27-0. The following year Davidson ran up its biggest total in a 24-0 victory.

During the years 1927 through 1948 PC and Davidson did not play. In all games played PC holds a slight edge with eight wins, seven losses, and one tie.

An example of the average of the two teams is shown by the fact that of the 16 games played seven have been decided by margins of less than five points. The Blue Hose are now working on a three-game winning streak. Back in 1953 the Hose took a hard-fought 19-18 victory at Davidson with Quarterback Harry Hamilton starring by completing fourteen of nineteen passes in leading his team to victory.

The following year end Bobby Jackson was the hero by accounting for two safeties as the Hose won 10-7 on Johnon Field.

Last year the Blue Hose set a school record by holding the Wildcats to only twelve yards rushing as they took a 16-7 decision.

The game tomorrow night will definitely be of the same variety, and should definitely be a thrilling spectacle.

This meeting of the two teams will be the highlight of the PC Homecomnig weekend.

Men of the Week Warren and Messer

Out of every dark storm a little light must shine through. Although the Blue Hose went down 27-12 defeat at the hands of Wofford last weekend, there emerged from the PC team two players who played typical heads-up ball. This week our best lineman and backfield award goes to guard Tommy Warren and back Ed Messer.

Warren, captain of the squad, got up from his bed after being ill with flu and stepped onto the field like he had never even been ill.

He played 70% of the game and had the best blocking average for causethe night. He hustled from beginning to end and gave his all to a losing cause.

Ed Messer, our back of the week, who two days prior to the game, was holding down a third string halfback slot, came onto the field to do a man-sized job.

Subbing for Webb, Messer made repeatedly long gains and quite a fellow for the Terriers to bring down. Ed scored the second Hose touchdown, and set it up with a beautiful 40-yard catch on the Terrier three-yard line. Messer also played an excellent game on defense. Ed's play is an example to us all. When given an opportunity to perform, we should always take advantage.

A job well done Tommy and Ed .and may the next job be on a victorious note.

Behind the Blues

INDIVIDUALS SPARK HOSE OVER WILDCATS

The past three Davidson-PC games have gone to the Blue Hose but only after individual stars have been established in each of the victories. Although the victory string over the Wildcats has definitely been the result of a team effort and teamwork the games have produced definite individual stars.

In 1953 it was Harry Hamilton who sparked a late game splurge that saw the Hose emerge victorious by a score of 19-18. Hamilton's aerials began finding their mark late in the game and then there was no stopping the Hose as they rolled on to victory. So the star of the '53 game was established in the person of Harry Hamilton.

End Bobby Jackson emerger as the star in the 1954 contest. The star pass-catcher turned his talents in other directions to personally account for two safeties that proved to be PC's margin of victory on their 10-7 win

The 1955 game saw two Hosemen establish themselves as game stars. They were Gene Carter and Bob Stevens. Carter, playing with an injured shoulder, brought attention to his play when he kicked a field goal to add three big points to the Hose scoring total. Stevens made six individual tackles and grabbed a fumble in mid-air to score a touchdown in PC's 16-7 victory.

The Blue Hose will be after their fourth straight win from the Wildcats and their first of the young '56 season when they take the field tomorrow night. Whether there will be an outstanding star and whether the Hose will continue their dominance over Davidson remains to be seen, but if all past indications hold true the Hose will emerge victorious by a close score and another player will have established himself as a star.

INTRAMURALS OFF TO A GOOD START

Intramural football got off to a good start Monday after a week's layoff due to bad weather. Two games were played Monday, two Wednesday, and two yesterday. There seems to be high intrest in the program this year and all of the contests have been played with a good spirit of sportsmanship and a desire to win.

The Intramural program is sponsored by the Student Christian Association and it offers the PC student an opportunity to take part in active sports. We, the Blue Stocking sports staff, strongly advise every student to take an active part in the program.

LEIGHTON RETURNS TO CAMPUS

Presbyterian College's excellent tennis coach, Jim Leighton, has returned to the campus to take the helm of the '56-'57 tennis team. Leighton's charges lost only three matches last year and claimed the No. 2 position among national collegiate tennis teams. The three losses came at the hands of the No. 1 college team in the hands of the in the nation, the University of Miami.

Coach Leighton's main task this year will be replacing his graduated No. 1 star of last year, Allen Morris. He has on hand four of his first six players from last year and a highly regarded freshman to form the nucleus of his team. Returning are lettermen John Brownlow, No. 2; Guice Potter, No 3; Harvey Jackson, No. 4; and Jim Shakespeare, No. 6. The freshman is Harry Hoffman.

The Collegiate Answer...

By BILLY McELVEEN

WHAT IS THE PLACE OF FOOTBALL IN A SMALL COLLEGE - Billy McElveen.

Question next week: What is one thing you dislike the most about upperclassmen? (asked of freshmen)

Jake Penland, Sports Editor of The State—"Football, as it fits into the scheme of things at Presbyterian, Wofford, and Newberry Colleges, is a good and wholesome thing It takes away nothing from other sprots—as evidenced by the PC succes in basketball and tennis It takes away nothing from the cultural side of the institution—as evidenced by the tremendous academic growth at Presvbyterian."

"There is a place, and an honored place, for football in the small college if the small college can afford it. They almost lost the sport at Newberry because the administration did not feel that a continuation of intrecollegiate football could be afforded. They did lose football at Erskine, and with it they might have lost some alumni interest. The old campus ain't what she used to be in the fall of the year.

"Football has its place in the small college, and with an athletic director like Walter Johnson, a head coach like Bill Crutchfield, and a running fool like Ken Webb, it is there to stay."

Harvey Kirklin, head coach at Newberry—"In every institution of endeavor, there must be a focal point of interest. In order to most adequately meet this need, and to give to the students and supporters a moral booster, common to all, I feel that football in the small college meets this very necessary requirement."

Conley T. Snidow, head football coach at Wofford—"I may be a bit prejudiced, but I feel that football is the finest, most thorough teaching medium that we have in developing many of those characteristics we most admire in the individual. A boy learns that the price of success involves hard work, intelligent preparation, and application of those things learned in practice with all of his heart and soul at game time. Self-discipline, both mentally and physically, are certainly prerequisites for the successful athlete."

Coach Bill Crutchfield, head coach—"I meaure the importance of any activity in college experience primarily on the basis of that activity contributing in preparing the student to take his place in society. On this basis, football in particular, and an athletic program in general serves a vital function. A successful athletic program, of which football is a major part, helps in providing a well rounded education for the students concerned—a phase of education which is increasingly important in this age of "soft living," "soft eating," "big cars," and television. It develops a feeling of oneness, of common effort, in a Student Body. In doing this, it provides a very essential outlet for "pent up" feelings . It establishes a focus of interest for the alumni and friends of the college, while doing some advertising that would cost the college a small fortune otherwise. Football develops qualities of manhood, among which are courage, discipline, and self-sacrifice. We very dfinitely should make every effort to improve the calibre of our already well-rounded athletic program, so that we may compete on even grounds with our traditional rival as well as with the other colleges in the state. By doing this we will reap incressed benefits."

Prof. Martin, Math Dept.—"I think football, or any other sport, is an integral part of the program at a small college. The athletic program should have as its main purpose the advancement of Christian Education as well as producing winning teams."

Professor Carter, Chemistry Dept.—"I feel that football has been generally over-emphasized to the detriment of the participant. The demands on the time of the participating student are frequently excessive, leaving him insufficient time for study or relaxation. In fact, students sometimes have to go to summer school to take laboratory courses because they cannot take the labs at the regular time and play football. I feel that no extra-curricular activity should preclude any regular course of study that the student wishes to take. Due to this over-emphasis much of the fun is taken out of the sport. I think this may account for some of the lack of school spirit so frequently commented on in these times."

Dr. Fraser, Bible Dept.—"When football is at its best and develops sportsmanship, physical manhood, mental alertness, and a strong sense of unity and loyalty to the college, withuot hindering one's intellectual and spiritual development, it holds a place of great value."

Dr. Whitelaw, Physics Dept.—"I feel that football and all other sports should be played as games for fun and exercise by those students who desire to participate. I favor a planned physical education program for all students and am of the opinion that such a program directed by trained men as a valuable part of a liberal arts education. It is my conviction that no sports program should be emphasized to the extent that the student puts practice or participation ahead of his academic program, or that any scholarship that he might hold should require him to do so."

Tommy Richards, Sports Editor of the Blue Stocking—"Football definitely has a place in any college whether large or small. It is in my opinion the greatest team sport played in America today. If the game is handled in the proper manner it will biuld men better suited for life in our country; however, there should be definite action is taken to see that the sport is not over-emphasized on any college campus. The main objective of attending college is to receive an education and nothing should stand in the way of this objective. The game should not be allowed to dominate the time of those participating. Football is a game and it should be played and enjoyed as a game. When the game reaches the stage where it is no longer fun, it has no place on any college campus that I know of."

Vol. XXXV Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., October 12, 1956 No. 5

Alumni Name Means Head; Barnett Represents Alumni

J. Edward Means, Jr., of Greenville, is the new president of the Presbyterian College alumni association.

He was elected at the recent Homecoming meeting of the association for a two-year term succeeding J. Marion Kirven, of Columbia.

Joseph L. Barnett, of Gastonia, N. C., was named as one of three alumni representatives to the Presbyterian College board of trustees. He succeeds Hugh F. Dick, of Charlotte, who retired after serving the limit of two three-year terms.

Chosen to serve as secretary-treasurer of the PC alumni association was A. Bynum Poe, of Rock Hill, who replaces Harry Hicklin, also of Rock Hill.

The positions of vice-president, directors from Georgia and from South Carolina were not up for consideration this year. Francis Hart, of Anderson, has another year to serve as vice-president; Dr. William Peter Beckman, of Columbia, another year as director from South Carolina; and George Ewing, of Augusta, two more years as director from Georgia.

One alumni representative to the board of trustees is named each year. Barnett joins J. Ferdinand Jacobs, Sr., of Clinton, and Jospeh Graham Miller, of New York on the board in this capacity.

Means, who starts a two-year term as president of the alumni association, is a 1930 graduate of Presbyterian College and has been in the lumber business in Greenville since 1933. Barnett, a member of the class of 1919, is a Gastonia textile executive. And Poe ,a member of the class of 1927, owns A. B. Poe and Company in Rock Hill.

Finley Announces Camp Long Retreat

Several members of the Presbyterian College Student Christian Association will attend the semi-annual State SCA Conference at Camp Long near Aiken. Those who attend will have a chance to meet members of other SCA cabinets in the state and learn how they function.

There will be outstanding speakers ,as well as small discussion groups. In these groups problems will be discussed and those present will gain insight into meeting and overcoming their problems. It begins Fri., Oct. 10, and closes Sun., Oct. 12.

Also, at a meeting Wednesday night, the SCA chose Ramon Veal to fill the unexpired term of Guy Hancock, who is now attending Clemson. Veal will take over the position of "World Relations" chairman.

PC Blue Key Chapter To Sponsor Polio Drive

The Laurens County Health Departmnet, in cooperation with the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, has offered to provide and administer Salk Vaccine to the eighteen and nineteen year old students at Presbyterian College.

The Blue Key chapter is sponsoring this project which is free and voluntary. The date for these shots has been tentatively set for the latter part of the month. A detailed announcement will be made next week.

Chapel Speakers

The Rev. Henry Pope Mobley, pastor of the Oakland Avenue Presbyterian Church, of Rock Hill, will be the guest chapel speaker for Wed., Oct. 17.

Rev. Mobley, was one of the Religious Emphasis Week ministers on our campus last spring. He is currently serving as co-chairman of the Rock Hill Diamond Jubilee Development drive.

Mr. James Gray, Associate Professor of Philosophy, will be the initial speaker of the week on Monday.

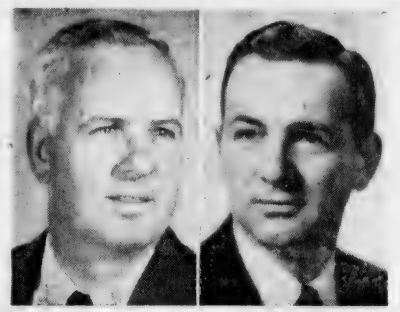
The new pastor of the Broad Street Methodist Church, Rev. George Hodges, will deliver the Friday chapel message.

PC Jubilee Program Opens Up Six Regions

With more than $600,000 already subscribed, Presbyterian College's Diamond Jubilee Development program now has launched campaigns in six regions simultaneously. The total goal of these regions: $301,000.

The areas now organizing for drives include: Rock Hill (all of Bethel Presbytery), with a goal of $92,000; Columbia (most of Congaree Presbytery), seeking $70,000; Macon (more than half of Augusta-Macon Presbytery), $40,000; Athens Presbytery, $39,000; Sumter (one-half of Harmony Presbytery), $35,000; and Kingstree(the other one-half of Harmony), $25,000.

Thus, if success is achieved in these six regions during the next few weeks, the College will move past its minimum objective of $750,000 in 1956 and head toward its long-range appeal for $2,000,000.



"Every penny we are given will meet a great need," President Marshall W. Brown emphasized. "It is imperative that Presbyterian College add several new buildings, expand and improve present facilities and increase its endowment for scholarships if we are to continue to serve effectively our constituency within the Synods of Georgia and South Carolnia."

Dr. Brown said the trustees and offcials of Presbyterian College are heartened by the generous support given this program by Presbyterians in the eleven regions in which campaigns already have been conducted.

He pointed out that $604,000 has been paid or pledged by 3,920 subscribers, for an average of $154.

Dean Thackston Notes College Day Program

Mr. Albert J. Thackston, Dean of Students, has announced that Presbyterian College is now embarking on its annual College Day program. The program commenced on Oct. 1, and will continue until the 8th of Mar., 1957, termination date at Rock Hill.

PC is one of the eighteen universities and colleges of South Carolina, North Carolina, and Georgia which are being represented in the program. The program is designed to stimulate interest and acquaint the 1957 graduating high school student with the higher institutions of learning in the three states. In South Carolina, the program is being chairmaned by Mr. Howard Maddox, of Limestone College.

During the five and one-half month period all community and consolidated high schools in South Carolina will be exposed to the complete curriculum and activities of Presbyterian College by Dean Thackston. A usual presentation includes a welcome by Mr. Maddox with time specifically allotted for all students to visit the three representatives of his choice.

Individual interviews are then conducted explaining to the prospective graduate the values, requirements, social and civic opportunities, as well as the financial obligations of Presbyterian College. Interviews are concluded with open discussion of any points in question.

Notice and Support . . .

What we need on this campus, among other things, is a more cultural atmosphere. It is not meant by this that we should don black gowns and pensive looks, but that we should at least not hinder the progress of cultural organizations.

In a similar editorial last year it was urged that the literary journal become a reality through the funds of the college, which ultimately came about. The result of this work and co-operation is a journal which holds its own in subject matter, style, and illustration with any similar publication in the Southeast. It achieved this in its first issue; now we can go on from there and surpass our own mark. The good results from this journal have been felt far beyond the college bounds, presenting a very adequate criterion for judgment of the work in a particular department of the college.

This was a significant step in the cultural progress of the college, allowing a good many students to enjoy and identify themselves with a very good example of Presbyterian College; a magazine distinctly their own.

Now, we have another vestige of the college's cultural atmosphere searching for a foothold on the student's interest: the Blue Masque drama club. This is entertainment that, even if not actively participated in as an actor, can afford many people enjoyment.

Of course, the club will have to overcome certain obstacles such as a suitable place to present their productions, but with the facilities around Clinton and the proposed Chapel-Auditorium, this is no great obstacle. There is a greater one—the movement must receive the interest and support of the students.

Realize the need for these two former institutions—they are an essential part of any liberal arts program.

One of Those Days

By LYMAN HARRIS

Dear Diary,

Luck has stuck with me through thick and thin, but it's thinning out on me now, diary. Things didn't go so good today. I think I'm just a hangnail on the fickle finger of fate.

The bad stuff started with drill. You remember I worked as a clerk in an office this summer. Well, at drill every time they gave us 'At Ease,' I keep forgetting and try to put my rifle behind my car. They fuss something awful about it.

And they can't understand why I don't wear a uniform. I keep telling them I'm training to be a guerilla and guerillas don't wear uniforms. I think they just don't try to understand.

Things were just as bad in my classes. I was sitting in the Holy of Holies (Friar Gettys' Bible class), reading my latest Playboy, when the Friar caused a terrible stink over practically nothing. He hollered, "Mr. O'Rudy, what are you doing with that magazine full of crude nudes?"

And Dr. Campbell keeps getting on my back because I won't change my major in Military and minor in P. E . .. I don't care if he is president of the college; he ought not to do me like that.

Then this afternoon I went to my room in Bailey Hotel and tried to take a nap. The boys on the third floor have a bowling alley and a roller coaster up there, so that didn't work either.

After that I went to the infirmary to get some cough syrup for my cold. I read the label and saw it was forty-two per cent alcohol, so I sent a freshman up town to get some olives to go with it. I felt better after that. You know, I kinda hated to see that cough leave. I think I'll see if I can catch another one tomorrow.

A little later I took a walk over to Neville. It was one of these quiet peaceful afternoons we have here. Dr. Brown was out filling up the hole that had been dug at the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new building. I said, "Hiya, Doc." Then he threw a rock at me. Woe is me.

I hit it on up to Neville and went inside. I followed a bunch of boys into the Radio Forum Room where a meeting was going on. I found out then that it was the Ministerial Club, and they didn't like me coming in there much. But how was I to know.

When I had seen who was going into it, I thought it was a meeting of the White Citizens' Council or Alcoholics Anonymous or something.

They were looking at me sorta suspiciously, so I decided to sing a solo, just to show them that my heart was in the right place.

They made an announcement that Daddy Grace would be the speaker for the next meeting, and then we adjourned. I headed for my room.

Well, diary, you can see that things didn't go so hot. Oh, well, maybe it'll be better tomorrow. One never knows, does one?

You've Had It!

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

You've had it! You're probably wondering who I'm talking to. Well, from the looks of things, after this weekend I could be talking about anybody. It seems that the school is going to be evacuated since everybody has stocked up on road map eyes and "packed their bags."

I wouldn't be surprised at all if we didn't have some evacuaters. Although some people had a ball, I know that a lot of fellows were very dispappointed, especially freshmen. Guys, how do you expect for anyone to have spirit or a good morale if you don't. Something's lacking and the spirit has reached an all-time low. As far as football goes, our team played its best when we were cheering them on. But, one small group can't do the cheering for a student body group of 500. We can't win all the time, but we can do our part to help win by letting the team know that we're behind them all the way. Let's all pep up and show a little school spirit, "not the kind in a bottle." I understand that a few freshmen were just waiting for the order to "Gin" this weekend.

Doug, I didn't know your girl's name was "Bess." I've been wondering all weekend, Dave, was your girl in any better condition the second time you saw her?

It was great seeing all the former PC'uns back this weekend. Hey, Cooder, the chimps said to tell you that they were so glad to see Speedo again.

Meanwhile back in Calvert—there is one certain co-ed who can't make up her mind whether she likes preachers or football players best, but as far as the evidence goes, it must be football players.

Flash! Don Rickett was about to receive his dishonorable discharge from his posiiton as Sweetheart by the Rah Rah Girls, but he was rescued this weekend by "Sweet Sue."

I feel sorry for those boys who have only one suit and leave it in the cleaners on a dance weekend. It just tears you up!

Too bad Red Stone couldn't get his Pebbles to come to PC. I'm still trying to find out who Chief Chimp Pony Tail is.

I guess I can put up my shovel, now, and stop slinging dirt for another week.

The Great Exit

This is, indeed, the year of the great exit. Droves of our American populace from a wide variety of stations in life are pouring into far away places with strange sounding names, much to the economic benefit of those places.

The glowing accounts were too much, the mystic song has wound its kelp-like strands around the captive heart, the lure-key of the New World (i.e., that which we've never seen) has cast asunder the shackles of mundane endeavor, and the author has succumbed to the call of travel. Fear not, we shall lose ourselves forthwith in the engaging relation, not skipping a step.

The author's domicile companions (roomos for short) knew immediately when he contracted wanderlust. Upon entering the room after class one day, they found him devouring huge quantities of material from a pile of travel folders that all but emboscomed his desk.

His eyes chewed each word twenty-three times; and by the time they reachd the gastric portion of his brain each individual enzyme was explosively ready to race to excite every gland conducive to travel rerceation.

With just the barest acknowledgement of their chorused greeting, he assumed a Prince Valiant stance before the open window, braced as if against a wind that confronts all travelers in the realm of the cinema house (flicks).

His gaze toured the broad expanse of Jacobs Hill, envisioning such extraneous continental flavors as water venders, rich walls, cafes, the Appian Way, moonlight on Fujiyama, and MG's grinding up the wrong side of the road.

His roommate shares in the hospitality (again, roomos for short) inspected the mound of lithography while he was detached in this projection. Foremost in the deluge was a provocatively colored folder extolling the virtues of 'lovely "Rockhill-on-the-Catawba, Home of the Celanese Plant." Being a frustrated horticulturist at heart, the author naturally divined that the "Celanese Plant" was a rare oriental flower. This was too much for the author to resist; he was now compelled to commit to history his exhuastive perusla of Rockhill-on-the-Catawba.

He must go, ere the flame of the wild goose waste to the darkness of those manacled to the routine.. He rushed downtown and purchased a complete array of Brooks Brothers attire and all necessary accessories, packing it all into bags that bulged with the desire to acquire the impressive adornment of a coating of travel stickers.

At the completion of the preliminaries which must needs arise from such a magnanimous undertaking as the one new unfolding, our author rode forth amid shouts of "Bon Voyage!" and trailing garlands of rosettes from all parts of his car which afforded an attachment.

His chamber-fellows noticed that the lure of the continent had now raised to fever height, for he drove from the right-hand side of his car, a feat of no mean dexterity in a domestic auto.

It was, indeed, a lucrative excursion. Though sadly misled about the Celanese Plant, our hero managed to have himself linked romantically with the countess Suzanne of Dilworth-on-the-Moorehead, a true plume for the chapeau of any mere tourist.

HOSE BREAKS ALL BAD

There has always been a saying that a good team makes its own breaks, but it doesn't look to me like any team is good enough to make the breaks that Davidson got Saturday night. Others say that it is a very poor excuse when a team says that it lost because of bad breaks.

I'm not trying to make any excuse for PC's loss because from the looks of it from the stands they were outplayed but not outplayed enough to result in a 26-6 score. After the Wildcats had driven deep into Blue Hose territory the PC defensive rose up to take the ball on their own five yard line. From there they started a drive that carried them to the sixteen and seemingly out of trouble, but a penalty set them back to the one. A bad kick gave Davidson the ball on PC's ten from where they scored their first touchdown.

Later in the second period PC started a drive that carried them to the Davidson 34, the deepest PC penetration of the first half. At this point Fagg grabbed a PC pitchout and returned it to his 49. This broke the spirit of the Hose and also stopped a drive that could have resulted in a Presbyterian score. Davidson went on to score their second touchdown and take a 13-0 lead.

At another point in the game PC had the Wildcats backed up deep in their own territory. On fourth down Davidson kicked out. When the kick struck the ground it took a reverse turn and hit a Hose player who had thrown a block at the charging Davidson end. Davidson recovered and PC lost another golden scoring opportunity.

The game is over, PC lost, and it's all water over the dam. Let's all look forward to the Elon game at Rock Hill tomorrow and see if we can't get our Battlin' Blue Hose in the win column.

WILDCATS BREAK HOSE STREAK

By taking the 26-6 victory Saturday night, Davidson broke a PC three-game winning streak in the annual battle of the two Presbyterian schools. PC had won three straight and was out to make it four in a row. The game also saw the widest margin of victory in quite a few years. In the last four years the total margin of victory between the two teams had been only 8 points. Davidson won in '52 by one point, PC in '53 by one, the Hose again in '54 and '55 by three points. Davidson's margin this year—20 points—is 2½ times as much as for the four-year total.

TWO UNDEFEATED INTRAMURAL TEAMS

As the Intramural season enters the halfway point there are still two undefeated teams in the league. These are Kappa Alpha, 3-0, and Sigma Nu, 2-0. The strong Pi Kappa Alpha team is still in the running for the championship with a 2-1 record. The Sigs boosted their chances for the title by defeating the PiKA's in a Montana playoff game Monday after the regulation game had ended in a scoreless tie. The high-scoring KA team extended their unbeaten record by taking a 20-0 victory over the Stones.

SHORT SHOTS

Five members of the PC team will be returning to the area where they played most of their high school ball when the Blue Hose travel to Rock Hill to play Elon tomorrow night. They are: Fred and Gordon Stanley, Rock Hill; Tony Benson and "Bull" Parrish, Chester; and David Crawford, Clover .

PC Tackles Elon Tomorrow at Rock Hill; Searches for First Victory of '56 Season

It will be more than just another football game when Elon and Presbyterian College tangle at Rock Hill this Saturday night.

This is the one battle Elon Coach Sid Varney would rather win than any other since he went to that North Carolina institution in 1954. For the "Toy Bulldog" of the University of North Carolina's bowl-glory days served as an assistant coach at Presbyterian for four years before taking up the head reins at Elon. He aims to show his old school a few tricks.

And on the other side of the field, PC coach Bill Crutchfield knows that this game at hand could be a "make or break proposition for his squad now plagued with a three-game losing streak. All of the defeats have been to rugged foes, to be sure, but the route ahead is equally challenging. If the tide is to be turned, Saturday night will present as good an opportunity as any.

The 200-pound runners will supply the spark for the PC-Elon game when they match prowess at Rock Hill. Against Ken Webb, the powerful Blue Hose ball-carrier from Decatur, the Christians will send Bob Stauffenberg, a pile-driving rusher from the Pennsylvania hard coal country.

Webb earned All-State acclaim last year as South Carolina's most productive runner, and Stauffenberg was a unanimous choice for All-North State Conference his freshman year at Elon. He sat out most of his sophomore season last year with a broken arm, but is now roaring back with a vengeance in 1956.

Lost Clemson Banner Return to Trophy Case

The long sought after Clemson banner which was taken by a Presbyterian college freshman at halftime of the Clemson-PC football game has been recovered.

The missing flag touched off an invasion of the PC campus Sept. 24 by Clemson students, mostly freshmen. Upon arrival at Clinton they discovered that the flag had been mailed to an address in Virginia.

A PC letter sweater belonging to student body vice-president Tommy Reeves was accepted as hostage. The sweater remained in a trophy case at Clemson until it was replaced by the flag Saturday. Reeves' sweater was returned to him as promised.

Two fabulous firsts happen as Raymond Johnson sails through to paydirt. The touchdown marks his first score of his college career, and provided the only score PC could wangle from the inspired Wildcats. —Photo by Miles

Wildcats Embarrass Hose; Cut Four Year Jinx, 26-6

After a scoreless first quarter the Davidson Wildcats turned on the steam to take a 26-6 victory at the hands of the Presbyterian College Blue Hose before a Homecoming crowd of 3,000. The game was played on a wet, foggy field and it was the Wildcats' first win over the Hose in four years. The loss was the third straight for PC this season.

Fullback Ken Conger led the way for Davidson with two touchdowns, both on one-yard plunges. Conger scored the first Wildcat tally early in the first period and closed out the scoring for both teams in the final period.

The Cats took advantage of two breaks in the second quarter to roll up a 13-0 halftime lead. Davidson drove to the Hose five-yard line where a stout defense held them in check to stop the drive. PC took over and drove out to the sixteen where a fifteen-yard penalty set them back to their own one. Nalley's kick was downed on the PC ten and there was no stopping Davidson. On the third play it was Conger over center for one yard and the initial score of the contest. Fagg added the extra point and it was Davidson 7-0.

Taking the kickoff the Hose made their deepest penetration of the first half into Davidson territory. Eddie Brockenbrough led the way as Presbyterian moved to the Wildcat 34 before Fagg intercepted a Cook pitchout and was hauled down from behind by Webb on the Davidson 49-yard line.

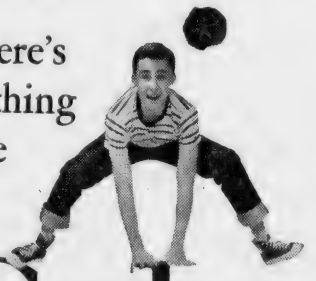
Davidson struck like lightning when Belton hit Barbee at the Hose 30 with a scoring aerial. Barbee waltzed the final 30 yards untouched to put the Wildcats ahead 13.0. Fagg's conversion was wide.

Shortly following the start of the third period, McRee, Barbee, and Little sparked a 63-yard drive that culminated in Davidson's third tally. Fagg converted and it was Davidson 20-0.

The Hose second unit took a short kick and drove 54 yards for their lone score of the game. Halfbacks Raymond Johnson and Gene Butler, and fullback Bobby Nalley led the drive and Johnson scored on a one-yard plunge. Nalley's kick was blocked. Davidson 20-6.

Conger drove over from the one to score after a Davidson drive that covered 60 yards midway of the final quarter. The conversion was not good and the final score read Davidson 26, PC 6.

Davidson	0	13	7	6	—26
PC	0	0	0	6	— 6



Scoring:

Davidson: Touchdowns —Conger 2 (1 plunge; 1 plunge); Barbee (51, pass-run from Belton); Little (13, run). Conversions—Fagg 2.

Presbyterian: Touchdown — Johnson (1, plunge).

Campus Starts Polio Drive; Blue Key Asks Student Aid

The Blue Key Chapter of Presbyterian College, in cooperation with the Military Department, has drafted the final plans for the administration of the polio vaccine to all eighteen and nineteen year old students who desire it.

The Laurens County Health Department, in cooperation with the National Foundaton of Infantile Paralysis, will provide and administer the Salk Polio Vaccine.

Two shots provide a person with the best possible protection for one polio season. These are given within a month's intervals.

The dates for the first two shots to be given on the PC campus have been set for Oct. 21 and Nov. 21. However, full vaccination requires three shots and this third shot will be administered here in May, 1957.

The Military Department has relinquished the drill period, 8:00-8:50 A.M., Oct. 21, for the administration of the first dose. Men and women students are eligible for the shots.

The vaccination will be administered only by permission of the parents of these students.

This permission is granted when the parents return a permission card which was enclosed in the letter of information.

By all present day standards the vaccine is safe and effective insofar as the limited period of observation thus far has allowed evaluation.

Chapel Speakers

The Rev. Thomas Haggai, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Rock Hill, will deliver the chapel message next Wednesday. Rev. Haggai's church has shown the largest percentage of growth of any church in the area during the short period of his pastorship. He is returning to PC to fulfill his second engagement as chapel speaker.

The pastor of the local Episcopal Church, Rev. Clyde Ireland, will be the first speaker of the week on Monday. Rev. Ireland is now in his second year as pastor of the Clinton parish.

Dr. John W. Stevenson, associate professor of English, will give the final address of the week on Friday. Along with teaching English in the classroom, Dr. Stevenson regularly teaches a class of young people in a local church school.

Senior Class Meets; Suggest Senior Stars

The senior class met Thursday during chapel period for the purpose of nominating Senior Superlatives. The results were released today by Vice-President Monty Cook.

The election will be staged at another class meeting which is to be held next Tuesday during the chapel period. Gene Butler, president of the senior class, urges all seniors to attend the Tuesday meeting so that the selections will be made by a majority vote.

Montreat-PC Weekend Attracts Fifty PC Men

Jerry Finley, president of the Student Christian Association, announced Wednesday the final plans for the Montreat-PC weekend which is to be held this weekend.

Fifty PC men will leave Saturday for an all-expense paid weekend which includes a square dance at the college, and a dawn watch on Point Lookout, overlooking the campus, on Sunday morning. Dates will be arranged by the college.

The leaders of the Athens Presbytery region in its campaign toward the Presbyterian College Diamond Jubilee Development program are, left to right: Russell Daniel and the Rev. Harmon B. Ramsey, both of Athens. This region already has started general solicitations in an effort to raise $39,000 for PC in the next few weeks as part of an over-all program which seeks $750.000 for the institution from its two controlling Synods of Georgia and South Carolina during 1956.

Columbia Opens Region; McSween Makes Address

A Diamond Jubilee dinner, launching the Presbyterian College Development Program in the Columbia region, was held in Columbia on Monday night. Several hundred Presbyterian friends and alumni attended the occasion held in the Empire Room of the Columbia Hotel at 6:30 p.m.

They heard Dr. John McSween, dynamic Southern Presbyterian minister and former president of Presbyterian College, deliver the main address as the highlight of a program which includes several colorful features.

In addition to setting the spark to the Columbia campaign (including most of Congaree Presbytery) to raise $70,000 for Presbytreian College, the dinner served as an occasion for celebrating the college's 75th anniversary.

Prominent parts on the program were taken by regional co-chairmen John C. B. Smith and the Rev. Francis B. Mayes, both of Columbia.

The PC double quartet presented several musical selections, and a technicolor motion picture of the college entitled, "It's Your Presbyterian College," was shown. In addition, a giant birthday cake bearing 75 candles was cut as part of the occasion.

Dr. Marshall W. Brown, president of Presbyterian College, introduced the main speaker of the evening.

Active solicitations to reach the $70,000 goal began the day after the dinner and continue for three weeks thereafter. Altogether, Presbyterian College seeks $750,000 from its two controlling Synods of South Caroilan and Georgia during 1956 as part of a long - range $2,000,000 development program. More than $600,000 already has been subscribed this year.

Dr. McSween, who delivered the principal address for the Diamond Jubilee dinner, ranks as one of the outstanding ministers of the Presbyterian Church US.

He served as president of Presbyterian College from 1928 to 1935 and as president of Tusculum College, 1942-45. His pastorates have nicluded the Central Presbyterian Church of Anderrian Church, of Chester, 1935-42; son, 1925-28; the Purity Presbyteand the Greenville Fuorth Presbyterian Church, 1945-51.

Development Office Staff Add Charm and Efficiency

By BILL YEARICK

Nestled into almost obscurity on the second floor of the Administration Building on the Presbyterian College campus, a clatter of typewriters can be heard as three very amiable and efficient ladies rustle diligently about completing their day's work. These are the people who form the nucleus of the office staff of the Development Office of the Presbyterian College Diamond Jubilee fund raising $2,000,000 campaign.

Mr. Ben Hay Hammet, coordinator between outside regions and the development office, has under him three capable and competent workers in Mrs. Otto W. Ferrene, Mrs. Philip F. Canella, and Mrs. Charles Kinsey. Upon their shoulders fall the responsibility of having the correct material supplied for the designated area at the precise time. They alone tend to the many intricate matters of sending out material, compiling the prospective donor list and preparation of pledge cards.

Among their other activities which keep PC alumni and Presbyterian communicants up to date are the various mailings which contain bulletin notices and announcements of every region of the campaign. Considering that there are over twenty thousand donors and each receiving an acknowledgement of their gift, a vast amount of work is created.

Mrs. Ferrene is the wife of Mr. Otto W. Ferrene, vice-president of the college and who is devoting a lot of time and effort in securing donors and communicants in the outlying areas.

Mrs. Cannella, whose husband is attending PC, is a native of Portsmouth, Va., and has been working for the college for over a year. Called Janice by her friends personnel workers in the office.

Mrs. Kinsey, whose husband is also attending PC, is a graduate of the college. Her competency in her work may be reflected in the fact that as a student she was a consistent member of the Dean's List. She is from Atlanta, Ga.

Besides their numerous jobs, these women are also responsible for keeping the elaborate records of region churches, alumni and pledges in an up to date manner. Although their job is unheralded, it is a position of vital importance in the functioning of the development program.

Gold P Winner

Alumnus H. Grice Hunt, of Greenville, is shown receiving the annual Gold P Award of the alumni association from President Brown. The award is given for "outstanding progress and achievement" by an alumnus of the college.

Parking Problem...

What this campus needs is more places for students to park their cars. Although the county has been good enough to blacktop the area next to the tennis courts, there's still not enough room. The students in Spencer Dorm have no place except the street in front of the dorm and South Adair Street.

Now that one side of South Adair has been made off limits, this makes the problem more acute. To solve this problem we advocate the making of a parking lot behind Spencer or next to the Science Hall.

Bailey Hall is also without adequate parking space. It has only the narrow street in front to supply it, although the hardtop lot is available, but not too close. To amend this condition, a suitable parking place could be made on the west side of the dorm, which would be easily accessible to all its occupants.

Day students who drive cars to school have an additional problem. With no place to park near the Science Hall save the street, the students form a line all the way to the library. At Neville Hall the parking spaces are jammed with professors' and students' cars. They park in such a haphazard fashion that it's not infrequent to find one blocked in by other cars.

Now that the administration is giving out parking tickets to students who park illegally, it seems a good move if they would provide for a more efficient parking system.

Hot O. Reflects

By LYMAN HARRIS

It was raining when Hot O. and I finished our classes, so we headed for the room. There were still a few stickers on the car bumpers that Ivan Shafted had put there dance weekend. Ivan got a shaft at the last minute, so he decided to try to make a little money. He leased Jacob's Hill for the weekend and charged admission, half price for pigs.

He remembered all the advertising he had seen for Lookout Mountain, "See Lookout Mountain, Show Place of the South," so he fixed some advertisements, too. He made bumper stickers that said, "Visit Jacob's Hill, Snow Place of the South." I guess it worked, too, becase he had a full house, so I heard.

Hot O. had Adolescent Psychology that morning which put his mind on kinfolks and ancestors, so he started gabbing about them. When we got to the room he pulled out some books and pictures to show me.

He handed me a picture. "This is my great-great-grandfather, J. Alden O'Rudy. He hit America about the same time as the Mayflower did. He was planning to come over on the Mayflower, but it looked a little crowded, so he brought his yacht. Dig those pearl buttons on his suede shoes."

I said, "He looks like he was kinda fat."

Hot O. said, "Yes, he was the original Fat Man."

I asked, "Who is that standing by him?"

Hot O answered, "That's still him. I told you he was fat."

"He was fat, but he still was a big war hero in the War of the Four Roses. As a matter of fact, he won the French Congressional Medal of Honor, but he never did get it. He was so ugly they couldn't find a French general that would kiss him in the presentation."

While Hot O. gabbed, I picked a book up off the pile. The name was 'Milestones of American History. The first man to own an ABC store in America—J. Alden O'Rudy, Autobiography.'

On the first page was the dedication, "Dedicated to my beloved and betrothed, my chaste and chased, Priscilla O'Rudy ,and to our childe, Tutti Frutti O'Rudy."

Chapter I: "My voyage to America wast nae a pleasant one. I wast attacteth at sea by ye pirate, Long John Glover, an exile from Englande. Another menace wast the food prepared by my swabbi cook, Leo. Continual serving of monkey ribs and rice peevest one. Save that they werst only crippled and warmed, I dost believe. At supper last night I stucketh my knife in it and it bitteth me. Also it crawliest off plate twiceth.

"I was continually tired because I couldn't sleep at night, being disturbed by the loud singing and talking of my firsteth mate, Pegleg Pitty Patte. He needeth not talk loudeth, for he whispereth like ye howitzer. (yonder to be invented)

"We hadeth one scare on the wayeth. One day my cabin boy, Johnny Stephenson, was cleaning my cabin. I toldest him a joke and slappeth him on his back. He madeth me such a laugh that I thoughtest I hadest knockest his backbone into hist throat."

I noticed that Hot O. had quit talking, so I made a motion that we adjourn. Hot O. seconded it and we sacked out.

Katie's Day

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

It was a crisp, cold morning as Katie-Co-ed rushed down the stairs of Calvert House and ventured into a fresh new day of classes and labs.

The alarm clock would have to be fixed again, for just an hour before when she had sleepily asked her roomo to cut it off, an arm emerged from the mound of covers to knock the alarm clock clear off its hands.

The sound of shattering glass brought them both to their feet.

After an half hour of painstaking dressing and fifteen minutes of looking for books which had not been touched since the last time class met, they hurried off through a shower of bright red and gold leaves.

The campus was already dotted with busy figures dressed in khaki running here and there like swarms of ants. Most of them ascend upon the chow hall with fifteen minutes to spare, devour their breakfast, and its off to play war, with Fighting Col. Smith watching the maneuvers; every bit a soldier from the toes to the top of his stiffly starched cap.

Katie has to run at 8 o'clock, too, because she is now a full-fledged member of Pitty Patte's Peepsters. After squealing for an hour she makes the 50-yard dash down the Plaza for her first class.

She hardly has time to speak to "Bobby Long" Copeland before the last bell rings and she certainly doesn't want to be late for this class. It is to be called Child Psychology, but it has been changed to "The Biography of Smiling George and His Ancestors."

The text is to be revised by the outstanding managing editor of the Blue Sock, Bill Cashwell. The bell makes only a slight impression on the sleepy students who slowly shuffle from the room, followed quickly by those who awake to find themselves left in an empty room.

Katie doesn't exactly relish the idea of descending into the depths of Daddy Whitelaw's astronomical domain. Some interesting facts can be brought out in an astronomy class, however, Miss Go-Getum Young vows and declares she saw a falling star the other night, but everyone knows that it was only "Sparks."

Great Expectations

By NOBLE COLLINS

The alarm clock clanged me out of bed, and semi-conscious I stumbled across the room to turn it off. Six thirty! I didn't know it ever got that early. It was still dark outside, but I had to get up early and get ready for inspection. I got out a clean starched uniform and began dressing. For some reason I was having a terrible time getting into my shirt. The sleeves were much too long, and the body of the shirt seemed to have shrunk terribly. Then I noticed that I was trying to put on my pants. This woke me up completely.

I wanted to dress very carefully for the inspection, so I put a neat military tuck in my shirt. (To put a neat tuck in a shirt is simple. First you grasp each side of the shirt and tighten the slack. Then you fold the slack on each side and —oops! one side slipped. Well, you just tighten her up and fold — rats! slipped again. You simply tighten the slack and— Hmmph! You just — Arrghh! There now, finally got it. It makes an extremely neat looking uniform if you can hold your breath for the duration of drill.)

Next, I experimented with several knots for my tie and decided that a tight half-windsor would be the neatest. (In order to get a neat knot you really have to pull the tie up ti . . . . . gasp! Well, maybe not quite so tight.)

Finally, I was completely dressed except for my collar-stay, which I removed from its scabbard and deftly placed under my collar. I had just had it sharpened and had to be extremely careful.

It was almost time for drill by now, so I picked up my hat and hurried out of the dormitory. I placed my hat two fingers over my right eye and one finger over my left, then I thought for a minute and put it one finger over my right eye and two fingers over the left. I kept trying various combinations unitl I was so confused I finally put both hands over my eyes and fell flat on my face.

The bugler was blowing first call when I grabbed the cleanest rifle I could find and ran out to fall in. And that's exactly what I did—right in a tremendous hole that had been dug during Homecoming. Needless to say, my uniform now looked like I had been working in a sewer, but I bravely went out to face the inspecting officers.

I stood in my squad and became more and more tense as the inspector drew closer and closer. In my mind, I practiced the procedure I had been meticulously taught. "When the inspecting officer steps in front of you, come to inspection arms, and as soon as he makes a move for your rifle, you release it. Be sure to release it." It was concentrating very hard on releasing that rifle.

Finally, the officer was standing in front of me, and I did a sloppy inspection arms. "Your rifle is a bit too high, cadet," he said. "Drop it down." And so I did—right on his foot. This caused no small amount of alarm, but after a panicky few minutes, he had gone — mumbling something about it being hard to work off fifty demerits. He had a funny little grin on his face.

After a while the inspection was over, but there was enough

Seen talking over last week's last-ditch win over Elon, PC's coaching staff of Crutchfield, McIntire, and Murphy, discuss strategy to baffle Tampa.

Tampa Threatens Blues; Webb Sidelined With Knee

By LARRY BROWN

Powerful Tampa looms ahead on Saturday night for an injury-riddled Presbyterian College squad seeking its second victory in five starts this season.

It will be the Blue Hose's first invasion of this alien soil since 1942, the only previous clash between the two schools and one which PC won by an impressive 41-7 count.

Since that time, however, University of Tampa fans have seen their forces grow into one of the nation's strongest small college gridiron machines. And the Spartans are considered equally potent this year.

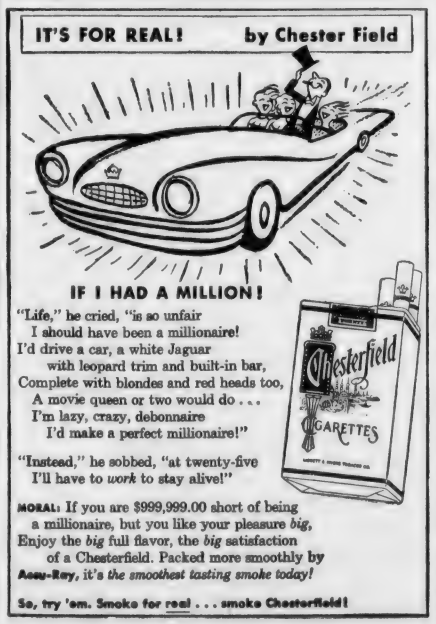
Presbyterian coach Bll Crutchfield reports that his team will be handicapped against Tampa by its worst physical condition of the season. Foremost among those absent will be star halfback, Ken Webb, of Decatur, Ga., the squad's leading ball carrier who suffered a twisted knee against Elon last weekend. He is expected to be out of action for at least another week.

The center position may be hardest hit of all, however, as the result of injury to three pivot men. Regular center, Jim McLauchlin, of Charlotte, has been sidelined since the Wofford game with a bad leg, but he may see some action against Tampa. Two substitutes, meanwhile, have been added to the ailing list during the past week—Robert Biggrestaff, of North Charleston, and Mac Copeland, of Athens, Ga. All of this means that Richard Shrigley of Clinton, must shift back from his guard post to center to aid the situation.

Another first unit performer, co-captain quarterback Felder Cook, of Charleston, will probably be confined to limited service again Saturday night as a result of his injured hand. And second unit fullback Robert Nalley, of Central, is not expected to be up to peak performance after suffering a jammed neck' last weekend.

This wave of injuries followed immediately on the heels of a mild virus epidemic of two weeks ago to keep the Hosemen off their top pace.

Ted Leahy, Ron Isger PC's Men of the Week



By LARRY BROWN

This week's top lineman and backfield awards go to two deserving sophomores who led an inspiring second half rally to overcome a 0-14 Elon lead, to a devastating 20-14 Blue Hose triumph.

Lineman honors are presented to Atlanta's Ted Leahy, the towering end who was on the receiving end of a pass-catch combination that spelled PC's first win of the season. Leahy, a stalwart all season, really came through when the chips were down in snagged two important passes for Rock Hill last Saturday, as he a total of 79 yards. One of the catches was good for a touchdown covering 68 yards. Big Ted's total now for the year stands at five catches for 144—a 28.5-yard average. Ted also played a creditable game on defense, and could be called a real thorn in the side of the Christians all night long.

The Back of the Week is a fellow who had thrown but two passes prior to the Elon game. Ron Isger, a Clairton, Pa., product, started off for ailing Felder Cook and took command of the situation at hand like a real veteran. Ron, who had a 0-2 pass record, completed 8-21 passes for 124 yards and two touchdowns, and called an over-all smart game, as he sent his halfbacks, Webb, Butler, and Johnston, through the line for sizeable gains at important times.

There were other big men for the Hose at Rock Hill as Nalley, Webb, and Butler, but the nod went to the combo that couldn't be stopped. Ron and Ted made a certain coaching staff very happy and let us hope that they continue to do so.

Hose Basketeers Post Year's Slate

Twenty-three games and the annual Little Four tournament will keep Presbyterian College basketeers hustling along their 1956-57 schedule route.

Athletic Director Walter A. Johnson today announced the slate which brings Washington and Lee and Virginia Military Institute to the Blue Hose slate for the first time and revives rivalries with past foes.

Other standout dates on the basketball calendar will find Furman's high-scoring cagers visiting the PC court and an exchange of games with Belmont Abbey.

The 1957 Little Four Tournament will be held in Anderson again this year, on March 1-2.

Here is the schedule Coach Russ Murphy and his Presbyterian cagers will face during the coming season.

Nov. 30—Parris Island; Dec. 4—at Atlantic Christian; Dec. 10—the Citadel.

Jan. 7—At Piedmont; Jan. 9—at Mercer; Jan. 12—Wofford; Jan. 14—at VMI; Jan. 15—at Washington and Lee; Jan. 16—Mercer; Jan. 19—at Newberry; Jan. 26—at Georgia Teachers; Jan. 29—Erskine; Jan. 31—Georgia Teachers.

Feb. 1—at The Citadel; Feb. 2—at College of Charleston; Feb. 5—Piedmont; Feb. 9—at Wofford; Feb. 12—College of Charleston; Feb. 14—Belmont Abbey; Feb. 16—Newberry; Feb. 19—at Erskine; Feb. 23—at Belmont Abbey; Fe.b 25—Furman.

March 1st and 2nd—Little Four Tournament at Anderson.

Hose Tennis Team Jousts for Positions

Coach Jim Leighton has started a series of weekly tennis tourneys for the Prsebyterian tennis team. A tournament wil] be held each week and these will continue through the winter

According to coach Leighton "this should build up a more competitive spirit among the team members and also increase student interest." Leighton also stated, "the team should be strong this year and the over-all team strength could be stronger."

With the loss of last year's No. 1, Allen Morris, several key players are looking toward that vacant spot. Right now it looks like John Brownlow and Guice Potter have the inside track.

A promising freshman, Harry Hoffman, has been living up to expectations and shows signs of greatness. Hoffman's quick reactions and ability to learn fast indicate a brighter future.

The team has been practicing five days a week, stopping only for rainy weather. This schedule will continue through the winter until scheduled matches begin in March.

Behind the Blues

HOSE TAKE ON NEW SPIRIT

When the Presbyterian College Blue Hose invade Tampa to take on Tampa University in the fifth game of the season, they will be out for their second win in a row after a poor start this season. The Hose played excellent ball in dropping the opener to Celmson, but then displayed poor spirit in losing to Wofford and Davidson. However, PC was its old self in the second half of the Elon contest at Rock Hill Saturday night.

After appearing listless during the first half the Hose regained some of the spirit which has been so characteristic of PC teams in the past to take a well-earned 20-14 win. The Hose may take the field in Tampa a "new" team. Their showing in Florida may have a direct bearing on the outcome of the remainder of the season. The team has the potential to be one of the best in the history of the college. Let's hope that the spirit will not die and the Hose will go on to have a successful season in spite of the record as it now stands.

WEBB OUT

Presbyterian's Little All-American candidate, Ken Webb, may be out for the remainder of the season, but it is not as yet definite. Hopes are high that he will be ready to play again before the close of the year. Webb injured his knee at Rock Hill Saturday night when he was clipped from behind in a play that could have been avoided. The play seemed to be over and Webb was not even in the vicinity of the ball carrier. A charging Elon player stormed down the field and hit the PC star from the rear. The accident was possibly the result of a fired-up player, but it could have been avoided by heads-up playing. Halfbacks Gene Butler, possibly the best running back on the team, and Ed Messer, a junior with plenty of speed, will share the load at the left halfback slot in the absence of Webb.

STUDENTS DISPLAY GOOD SPIRIT

During the second half of the Elon game Saturday night the PC student body took on new life just as the team did. There was not a silent moment in the student section after the Hose began to move on the field. The students displayed spirit that had not been seen all year. The Hose win has brought new life to the campus and the freshmen have been a large factor in the new spirit. Although it is impossible for the student body to turn out in mass for the Tampa game, all of us will be backing the team and pulling for them to bring home the win.

SHORT SHOTS

Quarterback Felder Cook is currently ranked third among passers in the state . . . Center Jim McLauchlin is still recuperating from an injury . . . Jackie Powers has been doing an excellent job at center and has played almost 60 minutes of ball during the last two games.

Blue Hose Topple Elon 20-14 Break Into Victory Column

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose, displaying a deadly passing attack spotted Elon two first half touchdowns and then stormed back for three tallies and their first win of the season before 2,500 fans in Rock Hill Saturday night.

It was the first win of the season for the Hose as they staged an uphill comeback for the victory. Trailing 14-0 in the middle of the third quarter, PC began a drive that carried to the Elon five-yard line. From here quarterback Ron Isger, subbing for the injured Felder Cook, threw a pass intended for end Paul Chastain.

The pigskin was batted from the hands of the sure-fingered receiver, but an alert Billy Nalley picked the ball out of the air and sped the final five yards for PC's first of three second half scores. Nalley converted and it was Elon 14-7.

Late in the same period the Hose gained possession of the ball on their own 32. On the first play from scrimmage Isger heaved a long 48-yard aerial that end Ted Leahy made a beautiful catch of on the Elon 20. From this point Leahy outran the defensive secondary for the tally. The Blue Hose missed a chance to tie the game when the conversion was not good. Elon 14-13.

The PC team was not to be denied after their terrific surge. In the final minutes of the contest halfback Gene Butler plunged one-half yard to cap a 70-yard drive by the Hose. The drive had been sparked by the passing of Isger and the running of Raymond Johnson. Mavromat added the point. PC 20-14.

Elon did all of their scoring in the first half and then were held tight by a tough PC defense for the remainder of the game. Their first score came in the first quarter when tackle J. B. Vaughn blocked a Ken Webb kick in the PC end zone and guard Glenn Varney recovered. Kinsley converted.

The second Elon tally came in the second period after a poor PC kick went out of bounds on the Hose 32. Halfback Whitney Bradham passed the final sixteen to halfback Kerry Richards who took it in the end zone. Kinsley again added the point from placement.

It appeared as if Elon had the game on ice when the teams retired from the field at the end of the first half, but the Hose put on a beautiful second half rally to take the win.

ELON	7	7	0	0	—14
PC	0	0	13	7	—20

Scoring:

Elon: Touchdowns — Varney (blocked punt in end zone); Richrads (16, pass from Bradham). Conversions—Kinsley 2.

Presbyterian: Touchdowns — Nalley (5, pass-run from Isger); Leahy (62, pass-run from Isger); Butler (½, plunge). Conversions —Nalley, Mavromat.

Question: Should PC have co-eds?

Anne Kirkpatrick—"Since Presbyterian College has been co-educational for approximately 50 years, I definitely believe it should have co-eds. However, if PC is going to have co-eds it should expand in such a way as to give the girls equal opportunities with the boys. With a dormitory the number of co-eds would increase and so would the opportunities for both boys and girls. I do not believe that girls hinder the boys in any way on this campus. Although they are not necessary and seem to do very little for the campus, it has been pointed out by a faculty member that they do contribute to the competitive spirit in classes and they cause the boys to do better in the scholastic fields. I think it should also be pointed out that the girl students were the ones to hold the school together during the war. Although I may be prejudiced, I am for a full-time co-educational school."

Sue Phillips and June Harris—"Yes, we definitely believe PC should have co-eds. More and more activities are opening up for the girls now, which they have never had before. We have always felt that all schools should be co-ed. Some day we think that there will be as many co-eds as there are men students. Then maybe the guys will perk up more and dress neater (wear socks). All joking aside—when the co-eds get a dormitory more girls will enroll and campus honors will even out."

Chandler McCaskill—"Yes. But if we're going to have them, let's get plenty more, so that we will have the cream of the crop, instead of just a crop."

Rutledge DuRant—"The only way co-eds are a disadvantage to our campus is that the professors can't be as free with their lectures in bringing in little jokes at times."

James McGirt—"Every normal American college should have girls to keep things balanced.

Julian Westen—"I think we should because it gives all the boys an "eye rest."

Gene Wilson—"If we have them there should be a dormitory for them and make PC co-ed all the way."

Tom Quick—"Yes, if they could encourage more girls to come."

Bill Yearick—"We should have more than we do."

time left for company drill, so we marched over to the plaza and began marching up and down. At one point, the CO shouted, "Eyes Right"; He noticed that one cadet wasn't paying attention, so he repeated, "Eyes Right"!

Still getting no response from the cadet, he halted the company and walked over to the cadet—a lean youth from the low country—and asked, "Hey, didn't you hear me say 'Eyes Right'"? "Yes sir," answered the trembling cadet, "and I know you is, too if you says so."

Luckily, the whistle blew about that time and we had to form up again. On the way back some of the boys started up an endearing little marching song — "You'll wonder where the colonel went when we set fire to his tent." They weren't singing loudly, though.

Finally after an eternity, drill was over and I fought the stampede back to the armory and put my rifle up. One of these days I'm going to use it on myself, I think.

Now is the time for Katie to take a trans-atlantic voyage. She subconsciously reminds herself to use every German expression she knows. Maybe this way she will make a big enough impression on Herr Scheele to pass Economics, or is it the History of Germany! No one seems quite sure!

At last it's time for chow. Katie dashes over to Powell's Drive-In. She drives in but the food soon drives her out.

Chef Leo is prancing around from table to table red from rage. The news is out that somebody cut his cake.

Katie sleepily walks home, while all around her a blanket of quiet falls slowly over the campus. Everyone is occupied in the customary afternoon pastime. Catch up on that sack-time so you can live it up at night .

I doubt if Katie would like it if I revealed what she did at night. But, if anyone is interested, just ask Red Stone or "Bambi." They seem to know the whole story!

Seniors Pick Superlatives; Choose Eight Standouts

By BOB HELM

The Seniors of Presbyterian met in chapel Tuesday to select their "Superlatives" for the '56-'57 school year.

Eight outstanding seniors were chosen from a list of candidates who were nominated last week.

The following men were honored by their classmates.

Jim Hancock, of Rock Hill, "Most Popular." Jim is President of the Student Body and Executive Officer of the ROTC Battalion. He is Vice-President of SCA and was recently selected to the Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Tommy Reeves, of Denmark, "Best All-Around." Tommy is Battalion Commander of the ROTC unit and Vice-President of the Student Council. He is also President of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity and was one of the six students selected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Don Rickett, of Hapeville, Ga., "Handsomest". Rickett is President of the Blue Key National Honorary Fraternity, and treasurer of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. He also serves as Business Manager of the PaC-SaC, and Secretary of the Senior Class.

Noble Collins, of Atlanta, Ga., "Best Dressed". Collins is Captain of the Scabbard and Blade Honorary Fraternity, and treasurer of the Senior Class. He is also a member of the Blue Key and writes a column for the Blue Stocking.

Bruce Thompson, of Michigan City, Ind., "Most Athletic". Thompson is the high scoring center of the basketball team on which he lettered three years. He is aso a high jumper for the track team.

John Thames, of Manning, "Wittiest". Thames is Company Commander of B Company of the ROTC Battalion.

John Hall, of Atlanta, Ga., "Most Intellectual". Hall, a pre-medical student, is a member of the Dean's List, and through attending summer school, he is graduating in three years.

Jerry Finley, of Seneca, "Friendliest". Finley is President of the Student Christian Association and was recently selected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. He is now serving his third year as assistant in Doyle Infirmary.

Chapel Speakers

Two Clinton ministers will deliver Chapel messages next week. Rev. Darr, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will talk Monday, and Dr. Redd Turner, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will lead the Friday service.

The International Relations Club will conduct the Wednesday program in the interest of the forthcoming national election. (See article elsewhere on this page).

Dr. Turner and Rev. Darr are closely related to the activities of the college due to the fact that they serve in the denominations which have the largest student representation on the PC campus.

Announcement

The Southern Bell Telephone Company announces that the renovation plans for phone booths in Smythe and Laurens Dormitories have been completed. It is their desire that the booths be maintained in an orderly manner. The new booths are designed and constructed for a greater degree of silence while talking on the phone.

The Macon Region is in the process of raising $40,000 for the Presbyterian College Diamond Jubilee Development Program. The campaign is being led by co-chairmen, who are: Rev. John E. Richards, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Macon, Ga.; and Henry K. Burns, prominent Macon businessman.

Sumter and Kingstree Region Add Weight to Jubilee Drive

Presbyterian College Diamond Jubilee dinners are schdeuled to be held in the Sumter and Kingstree regions on Monday and Tuesday nights, Oct. 22-23. These two occasions will serve to launch the college's development program throughout all of Harmony Presbytery.

Presbyterians of Upper Harmony will assemble in the American Legion Home at Sumter at 7:30 p. m., Monday, and the dinner for Lower Harmony is set for the dining room of the Kingstree Grammar School at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Harry K. Holland, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Marietta, Ga., and chairman of the board of trustees of Presbyterian College, will deliver the main address on both evenings.

In addition to setting the spark to campaigns aimed at raising $35,000 in Upper Harmony and $25,000 in Lower Harmony, the dinner will serve as an occasion for celebrating PC's 75th anniversary.

Prominent parts on the program will be taken at Sumter by regional co-chairmen Gifford Shaw, of Sumter, and Judge Taylor Stukes, of Manning, and at Kingstree by co-chairmen J. Hugh McCutchn and the Rev. Donald Bailey, both of Kingstree.

Active solicitations to reach the goals of $35,000 and $25,000 will begin the day after the dinner and continue for three weeks thereafter. Altogether, Presbyterian Collge seeks $750,000 from its two controlling Synods of South Carolina and Gerogia during 1956 as part of a long-range $2,000,000 development program. More than $600,000 already has been subscribed this year.

Selective Service Offers Dodge Test

College students interested in taking the Selective Service College Qualification Test have until midnight, Tuesday, October 30, 1956, to submit application, it was announced today by Lyle M. Spencer, president of Science Research Associates, authors and administrators of the test.

The purpose of the testing program is to provide evidence for local Selective Service boards so they may consider student deferment for military service registrants.

To be eligible to apply for the test, scheduled to be given November 15 to college students in 900 test centers throughout the United States, Alaska, the Canal Zone, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico, a student must intend to request deferment as a student, be satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction, and must not have previously taken the test.

Students interested in taking this test to qualify for possible draft deferment, in order to continue their college education, are urged to have their completed application postmarked no later than midnight, October 30. Applications dated after October 30 will not be accepted.

Quarter Grades Trip Half; Selectivity Begins to Show

by RAMON VEAL

Over half of the Presbyterian College academic student body received an unfavorable report at the end of the first quarter. Three hundred and nine students out of a total enrollment of 541, or 57% had at least one 'D' or 'E' grade when reports were sent out last week.

These statistics lead to interesting conclusions when they are compared to last year's and when the report is divided into classes.

At the end of the first semester of the 1955-56 session, 66% of the student body received at least one 'D' or 'E' grade, which is 9% higher than this year's percentage.

As is expected, the freshmen class had the highest percentage of poor grades. Sixty-four per cent of the freshmen received one 'D' or 'E'. However, the junior class ran a close second to the freshmen as sixty-three per cent of them managed to obtain 'D's or 'E's.

The sophomores, living up to their high estimations of themselves received only 58%. And the seniors, who are necessarily concerned with quality points, had the lowest percentage of all, 35%.

Of the 309 who received poor reports, only 177 got an 'E' grade, which means that 364 out of 541, or 67% are passing all their work.

This improvement over last year, and the discrepancy between the junior and sophomore class, is largely due to the high selectivity which prevailed in the last two freshman classes.

The report, when broken down according to grades reveals the fact that only a few students are at the lower end of the academic scale. The grade results are as follows:

165 received one 'D' or 'E'; or 30%
84 received two D's or E's; or 16%.
40 received three D's or E's; or 7%;
12 received four D's or E's; or 2%;

The above statistics reveal academic progress in the life of Presbyterian College, and indicate a trend which testifies to the value of greater selectivity in students, and stiffer requirements in the classroom .

Craig Family Adds New Addition to Campus

A daughter, Mellissa Gay, was born into the family of Capt. and Mrs. Richard Craig Tuesday, October 16, at 3:21 P.M. It is the third child for the Craigs, who now have two girls and a boy. Mellissa Gay, who weighed 7.8 lbs., was born at Fort Jackson.

Charlotte-PC Club Holds First Social

The Charlotte PC Club had its first social of the year Wednesday, October 24th, at the Panorama Lodge.

Between the eating of catfish and fried chicken, plans were discussed for the Charlotte PC Club's Christmas Dance to be held in Charlotte over the Christmas holidays.

The place for the dance will be the fabulous Fireman's Hall, and the band will be Johnny Brooks, an outstanding Negro band in Carolina.

H. F. Carriker, president of the club, appointed Doug Dellinger and Wayne Shoemaker co-chairmen of the dance committee.

Campus IRC Club Offers Panel Program

"Modern Defense and Protection Through Guided Missiles", will be the topic for a panel discussion program during the forthcoming International Relations Club meeting.

Faculty members will compose the panel. Four fields of instruction will be represented by: Dr. Purdom, Chemistry; Dr. Scheele, economics; Dr. Whitelaw, physics; and Major Lowman, Military Science.

This discussion will be held in the Radio Forum Room of Neville Hall at 7:30 P.M. Monday. All members, faculty, and interested presons are invited to attend.

The competitive examination for membership into the International Relations Club will be given Monday afternoon between 2 and 5 P.M. in the Radio Forum Room. All those who satisfactorily pass the test will be sworn in before the discussion that same evening.

The examination is not for freshmen alone, but any student who desires to become a member of the I. R. C. is invited and encouraged to take the test.

What, No Elephant . . .

With the national election only two weeks distant, there seems to be a noticeable lack of enthusiasm among the students as to which way the worm should turn.

One heartening development is the formation of a Young Democrat club on the campus, pledged to instigate and further the cause of Stevenson and Kefauver. The movment is gaining members and momentum as time to go to the polls draws near.

Where are the representatives for Eisenhower and Nixon? To be sure there are students who favor that cause. It would be a good thing, in our opinion, for representatives of this group to organize and provide a more competitive atmosphere. Perhaps the groups could even designate chapel speakers to argue the pro and con of the Republican and Democratic platforms from the viewpoint of a college student. It seems that there is a great need for enlightenment within this eligible yet apathetic group.

Please . . .

The Southern Bell Telephone Company did us a great service and a distinct favor by installing telephone booths in the dormitories. However, as soon as one booth was installed, amateur bas-relief artists began to make an immature attempt at identity by carving their names on it. If this is not stopped, a condition set down by the telephon company will be exercised and the booths will be removed. Please give your co-operation to those who realize the real use of this service.

Hot O. in the Hills

By LYMAN HARRIS

Seeing as how it was almost Saturday, Hot O'Rudy and I met Friday night to make plans for the week-end. Hot O. said, "I've got a surprise for you. I made reservations for us at Pigtreat Inn, so we can go wild boar hunting this weekend. This place is stashed away up in the mountains and it's highly recommended by the SCA."

I didn't want to hurt Hot O.'s feelings so I agreed to go. I asked him if anyone else was going. "Yeah, Slob Jones and Ivan Shafted are. They didn't much want to go at first, but I told them about the good eats up there, and at the thought of fresh flesh, their ulcers growied approval, so they're going."

Hot O. said we would have to get up early so we would have plenty of time, so we got up right before lunch and went down to pack our bags in the car. Hot O., Ivan, and myself each had a trunk, but all Slob brought was a clean pair of BVD's and two cases of Mrs. Bob's cough syrup, and a box of pretzels.

We hit it on down the road with Hot O. navigating. After we rode a while Hot O. got a worried look on his face so I asked him what was wrong. Hot O. said, "I think we're on the wrong road, boys."

Slob cussed, and Ivan, who is a ministerial student, just sat there in profane silence. Then we rode by the deaf and dumb college, so Hot O. knew we were on the right road. He let out a whoop about like Cortez did when he discovered the Pacific Ocean. "My mistake. We're on the right road. I remember stopping at this deaf and dumb college one time on the way up there. I went to a football game there. It was a pretty good game too. I sat down close to the front because I wanted to see how the cheerleaders hollered in sign language. When the fullback made an eight yard run, the cheerleader in front of me broke three fingers trying to scream." (No disrespect meant.)

Slob suggested that Hot O. can the small talk and check the maps to see how much farther we had to go. Hot O. checked his charts and told us that we were practically there.

He was right because right up the road was a sign pointing right to Pigtreat Inn. We turned right, went over Boar Bridge with Sow Creek flowing under it, then through Hogback Hollow, and alongside of Swine Peak.

Pigtreat Inn was a big stone building reinforced with pig iron. In the front yard instead of grass, there was hogweed and sow thistle. On the right was a pond full of hogfish with lots of pig-eons flying overhead.

Hot O.'s aunt met us at the door. She showed us in and gave us a seat and told us that since she knew we were coming she had fixed us up with blind dates. Hot O. asked her what his looked like?

She said, "Well, she has beautiful long blond hair."

Hot O. said, "What about the rest of her?"

She chuckled, and said, "Well, she could stand to lose a pound or two." Hot O. headed for the door, but before he could get out his date ran downstairs, tackled him and had him hogtied.

There wasn't any us in him trying to run away, because his date was a pigskin pro. She was the star of her football team and led her team to so many victories last year that they got a bid to the Swine Bowl.

She wasn't all brawn though. I understand she entered a beauty contest recently and won it. She was chosen "Miss Mack Truck."

Ivan gave artificial respiration and when he finally came to, the girls said they had to go powder their noses. They did and we took a powder too.

Wake Up!

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

Well fellows, this week the cutting column is taking on a little more serious thought for a change. I hope you approve.

I wonder how many of us really appreciate the wonderful opportunities we have here at PC. Some of us may not consider them opporutnities, but just think of the people who couldn't go to school if they wanted to. I imagine that a great many of you are laughing down your sleeve at me for making something special of going to school. But, we should thank our lucky stars that there is such a thing as education, instead of living in ignorance as numerous of other countries are doing. These countries are the ones who are being tormented by dictators and dominating rulers.

Have you ever wondered about what it would have been like, if you hadn't come to school? Let's consider this question. Are we doing our best or are we satisfied just to get by. You know our parents could do a lot of things for themselves with what it costs to send us to school.

May be your parents aren't sending you to school, but somebody is planking out a great deal of dough just for your benefit. How much do we show them we appreciate what they are doing for us? How often do we write them and tell them thanks? Do we ever think of them when we are tempted to do something that they may not approve of. Someone once said to me, "Remember what you do is a reflection on your parents. You may hide what you do from your fellow man, but you must live with yourself the rest of your life."

They also told me that two wrongs don't make a right. I guess the best way to sum it up would be the age-old Golden Rule, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

I couldn't end this column on such a stern not so instead I will end it up with this tune, "Those Wedding Bells Are Breaking Up That Old Gang of Mine."

Some Days...

By GERRY GALLOWAY

You know, all offices have their ups and downs, and the offices upstairs in the PC Library building are certainly no exception! However, I will admit that their ups and downs prove somewhat more unusual, and sometimes more interesting than the usual run of offices.

Take for instance, one day we had the unusual of unusual days, and the incidents make for pretty good reading!

It wasn't a particularly gloomy day, and believe me it was a good thing. Work day started as usual at 6:45 a.m. with everyone smiling and bubbling over with little witty remarks, (some of which "stunk", but we have to be nice to each other to observe the "Quiet" signs in the Library), and a hearty laugh so we could all say that we had one good laugh that day.

Anyway, about 8:30 a.m. I heard such a commotion in the Development Office that I rushed over to see what was up. It seemed that for weeks the ladies in there had been working on an alumnus in Texas (an oil tycoon called Mr. I. M. Filthyritch) to see how much they could shake him, er, I mean how much they could ask him to pledge to the program. They were expecting that he alone would give enough to complete the fund to get a movie star to appear in chapel once a week You know, it's a shame how much Ava Gardner asks per appearance—but back to the story.

Well, Mr. Filthyritch's pledge card had just come in, and there was a pledge of $10.00 on it. I didn't take it too hard when they all cried, but when Dr. Brown came up and started weeping frantically, that put a big lump in my throat, and I just had to leave.

All was going fairly smoothly when a call came in from the Mr. Wilson, the man who dug that trench on the ground during Homecoming, stating that he had lost his little Chihuahua doggie and he wondered if he could have possibly left it here. Being kind people (and wishing to keep our jobs) we offered to look for the mut, er, doggie. So off we went on the Chihuahua Chase!

As we walked around the campus slowly calling, "Here Gagolaranddo" (the doggie's name so Mr. Wilson told us), we got many-a stare, believe me. I felt about as out of place as a bull in a China Shoppe.

After making fools of ourselves for about half an hour, we gave up and came back to the office. The phone rang just as we came in, and you can guess who it was. Yep, Mr. Wilson told us that he had found his mut, er, doggie in the trunk of his car sleeping right in the middle of all that dirt he had

INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL SEASON NEARS END

With the closing week of intramural football nearing, Sigma Nu seems to be a sure bet to take the championship. The Sigs, undefeated and scored on only once, lead the league with a 4-0 record.

They are paced by a terrific passing attack and hard rushing line. Quarterback Billy Fulton leads the offense with his top receivers being Carlton Borroughs, Bill Yearcik, and Jackson Hudspeth. Up front the leaders boast Tom Ruff, Ken Fleischer, and Lawrence Huggins.

Kappa Alpha, the only team to score on the leaders, are tied with Pi Kappa Alpha for second place with identical 5-1 records. The big game on Monday between these two teams will determine the runnerup.

Both teams are evenly matched though KA has a heavier line. The PiKAs ace passer, Johnny Tennent has such targets to throw to as Bob Hill, Maurice Copeland, and Jim Hancock. In the line there are "Chief" Segrest, "Sweed" Norris and Jim Newsome. The KAs quarterback duties are shared by Tommy Richards and Ken Foard. Their favorite receivers include Paul Arrington, Tommy Reeves and Pat Wilson. In the line the KAs have such big men as Charles Quinn, Panda Wahl, Guy Boyd and Danny Williams.

Behind these top three teams no one is playing better than .500 ball. Pi Kappa Phi is in fourth spot followed by the Rats, Alpha Sigma Phi, The Stones and Theta Chi.

GOLF TEAM APPEARS STRONG

Presbyterian's 1955 Little Four Golf Champions have been strengthened considerably by three newcomers from Georgia. These new linksters are Edgar Brantley of Blackshear, Bob Moody from Augusta and Ronald Wright, a transfer from the University of Ga. These Peach State boys join last year's Captain Warren Mays of Thomasville, Ga., and the Little 4 Individual Champion Robert Odum of Waycross. Also back from last year's championship squad are Albert Copeland, Trotti Riley and Sonny Daniels.

NEW CHARLOTTE TRACKMEN

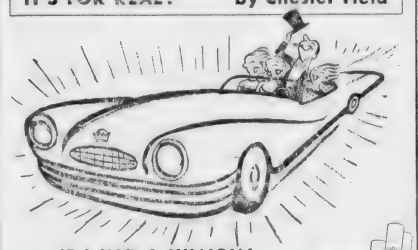
Charlie Hovie and Roy Bradley, two Charlotte products, have already begun working out and show they will both be assets to Presbyterians track team.

Hovie, a big, strong boy, who throws the Javelin around 200 ft. should give Jim Bartuski of USC some trouble this year. Bartuski holds the state record at 211 ft.

Bradley was State Chamipon in high school last year in the 100 and 220 yard dashes and should add depth to this event. Although he may be converted into a 440 runner.

Also back from last year's squad is state champion Delane Johnson, called by many of the state's sports writers, "the fastest man in South Carolina." Last year Johnson was clocked at 9.55 seconds in the 100-yard dash. Along with this dashman we have Jimmy Hancock, Richard Johnson, Wyatt Aiken, Walt Marshall, Fred Stanley and Marvin Conner. Larry Brown, who was forced out after an injury last year is back looking forward to a big year.

SHORT SHORTS



Ken Webb not only excels on the gridiron, he knows how to handle a shotgun. - - - The Livingston boys, Roy Fowler and Melvin Little are getting set for intramural basketball early this year. - - - Luke Hinson, one of the more rabid basketball fans of last year is lending even greater support this year by assuming duties of manager of the basketball team. - - - Let's all make a big effort to journey up to Salisbury and lead the Blue Hose to a victory over Catawba.

Blue Hose Face Catawbans Tomorrow; Seek Better Second Half of '56 Season

Presbyterian College will head into the second half of its 1956 football schedule against Catawba at Salisbury, N. C., this Saturday afternoon, determined to change the pattern of defeats which finds the Blue Hose with just one victory in five starts thus far.

The route ahead is rugged, but the biggest obstacles on the ten-game slate are a matter of history now.

As he takes stock of the first half of the season, Coach Bill Crutchfield searches for the answer to the problem of how Presbyterian can transform its obviously potent offensive ability into touchdowns. Never before has a PC team covered so much ground and yet produced so few scores, for the Hosemen have emerged on a par with almost every opponent in the battle of statistics.

The PC attack has produced a total of 1,503 running and passing yards in losing to Clemson, Wofford, Davidson, and Tampa and in whipping Elon.

That's an average of just over 300-yards-per-game. All of this accomplished in 333 plays figures to an average of 4.5 yards on each attempt.

Runners have produced 902 yards in 256 rushes from scrimmage to average just under 4 yards per carry. Passers have for 511 yards, an accuracy mark connected on 36 of 77 attempts of 47 per cent and a play average of 6.6 yards.

And all of these efforts thus far have paid off in just seven touchdowns, while the combined opposition has racked up 17 scores.

Individually, the PC rushing department continues to be led by halfback Ken Webb, out of the Tampa game because of injury, who has 250 yards in 48 carries for a 5.2 average. Five other Blue Hose ball carriers also have now rushed past the 100-yard mark. They are: halfback Gene Butler, 149 yards in 28 tries for a 5.3 average; fullback Eddie Brockenbrough, 131 yards in 38 tries for 3.4 average; fullback Robert Nalle, 129 yards in 30 for 4.3 average; halfback John Lucas, 105 yards in 23 for 4.6 average; and halfback Raymond Johnson, 104 yards in 23 for 4.5 average.

Quarterback Felder Cook added 90 more yards to his passing total on nine completions in 12 attempts last Saturday to broaden his domination of the aerial department.

He now has completed 24 of 44 attempted passes for 311 yards and an acuracy mark of 55 per cent. Quarterback Ron Isger follows with 11 completions in 29 attempts for 147 yards and two touchdwons.

Pass-receiving honors thus far go to end Ted Leahy, who has hauled in seven aerials for 147 yards and one touchdown, and halfback Butler with six caught for 43 yards.

PC's Men of the Week Gene Butler, Jack Powers

Lineman and backfield honors of the week from PC's 19-7 defeat at the hands of Tampa go to halfback Gene Butler and center Jackie Powers.

Butler, a Conway, S. C., senior who got off to a very slow start this season, is quickly coming into his own as a threat to the opposition. In the Elon game, Gene helped instigate the winning margin as he ran well, finally scoring the touchdown that brought the Blue Hose their first '56 victory.

This past weekend Butler earned backfield laurels by being the work horse of the offensive unit by catching two passes for 18 yards, rushing for 79 yards in 13 attempts for a 6 yard average. Butler, incidentally, scored the lone PC touchdown. The hustling Butler is coming strong and now is one of the leading Hose ground gainers for the season. He has scored two touchdowns and has amassed 149 yards in 28 carries for a 5.3 average.

Close behind Gene in the battle for the top back, came Robert Nalley, who in just three attempts gained 53 yards.

The lineman of the week honors go to Jackie Powers in a close decision over Jim "Chico" Lee. Both boys were stalwarts in the line all evening at Tampa, but Powers' blocking efficiency gave him the nod. Jackie, an Andrews, S. C., junior, has been improving each game. This week he had a 66 per cent blocking average, to lead all linemen. Jackie in the last three games has averaged 58 minutes a game doing extra duty for injured Jim McLaughlin. Powers is playing equally as well on defense as on offense. Almost every opponent's line thrust has resulted in Powers being in on the tackle.

Both Gene and Jackie are well deserving of this honor bestowed upon them. May their spirited play inspire them to greater honors for themselves as well as PC.

Hosemen Journey South; Bow to Powerful Spartans

The Presbyterian Blue Hose dropped their fourth game in five starts last week-end, when they lost to the powerful University of Tampa Spartans 19-7.

For the Spartans it was a Skonoulis to Harte combination which yielded two tallies. Skonoulis, a junior, connected with six of eight tries for a total of 89 yards. The other Tampa score was on a run made by halfback Don Herndon after another Skonoulis pass had brought the ball deep in Presbyterian territory.

The only Hose score was made in the second quarter after a kickoff return of 37 yards by Ed Messer. A 23 yard run by Gene Butler set the ball on the 7 yard line where he carried it to the safety.

The Hosemen dominated play throughout ,a scoreless second half, chalking up 9 first downs to none for the Tampans. In the second half the Hose, led by quarterback Felder Cook's 15 yard run, pushed to the Tampa 20 where a PC fumble was recovered by Mike Skonoulis. This was the closest any team came to the goal throughout the final half.

The Hose connected with 12 out of 19 passes for a total of 113 yards. Quarterback Felder Cook, who was not slated to see much action, hit for 9 out of 12 passes tried.

Leading the ground attack was Gene Butler who gained a total of 82 yards in 13 tries. Ed Messer caught a total of 3 passes for 63 yards.

On an overall account of the statistics it was 230 yards rushing for Tampa and Presbyterian 205. In the passing department Arieal of the Hosemen gained 113 yards to 89 for the Spartans.

Coach Bill Crutchfield had said that small mistakes and passes not completed cost the squad the ball game.

Danforth Foundation Offers Scholarships To PC Grads

The Danforth Foundation invites applications for the sixth class (1957) of Danforth Graduate Fellows from college senior men and recent graduates who are preparing themselves for a career of college teaching, and are planning to enter graduate school in September, 1957, for their first year of graduate study.

The Foundation, an educational trust fund in St. Louis, welcomes applicants from the areas of Natural and Biological Sciences, Social Sciences, Humanities and all fields of specialization to be found in the undergraduate college.

President Marshall W. Brown has named Dr. John W. Stevenson as the Liaison Officer to nominate to the Danforth Foundation two or not to exceed three candidates for these fellowships. These appointments are fundamentally "a relationship of encouragement" throughout these years of graduate study, carrying a promise of financial aid within prescribed conditions as there may be need.

The maximum annual grant for single fellows is $1,800; for married fellows, $2,400, with an additional stipend for children. Students with or without financial need are invited to apply.

A Danforth Fellow is allowed to carry other scholarship appointments such as Rhodes, Fulbright, Woodrow Wilson, Marshall, etc., concurrently with his Danforth Fellowship and applicants for these appointments are cordially invited to apply at the same time for a Danforth Fellowship.

The qualifications of the candidates as listed in the announcement from the Foundation are: men of outstanding academic ability, personality congenial to the classroom, and integrity and character, including serious inquiry within the Christian tradition.

All applications, including the recommendations, must be completed by January 31, 1957. Any student wishing further information should get in touch with our Liaison Officer.

brought back with him as a souvenir from Homecoming. Oh well, what could I say? If I said anything I'd wonder where my job had went, when the boss fired me without a hint!

Just before dinner that same day we got word from one of our workers conducting a Development campaign in one of our most important regions that something terrible had happened the night before.

After dinner I walked in the office with a smile on my face and a thought that nothing more could possibly happen that day. But I was dead wrong. About 1:35 p.m. a call came from downstairs and a meek masculine voice said to me, "Y'all shouldn't have left your Diamond Jubilee Dinner Invitations all down in the basement. Miss Burt's cats, well, her cats, well——." I told the voice that he need not say more, and I hung up the receiver calmly. I walked slowly into the Develpoment Office where the ladies were working madly on the names to go on the invitations. They took one look at my swiftly aging face and asked what was wrong. All I could do was to force a smile and say to them, "Well, some days it just don't pay to get up, it just don't pay to get up!"

Chapel Resounds to Cheers; IRC Reviews Coming Elections

The International Relations Club sponsored the Chapel program Wed., Oct. 31, at which time a representative of each of the major political parties presented their views of the general issues of the 1956 election. The purpose of the program was to keep the student body informed of the principles and ideas of each party.

The political parties represented were the Democrat, Independent, and the Republican. Mr. Ellis, a resident of Greenwood, and past Mayor of the same town, spoke on behalf of the Democrat party. Mr. Sloan, Chairman of the Independent party for Laurens County, and a resident of Clinton, spoke for the Independents.

Mr. Jerry Green, President of the Young Republican Club of Mecklenburg Cuonty in North Carolina, and who resides in Charlotte, N. C., represented the Republicans. Each of the three sepakers had a ten-minute limit, in which time they were asked to present their parties' attitudes toward the general issues of this election.

Mr. Ellis was introduced by Lyman Harris, Vice-President of the IRC. Mr. Sloan was introduced by Lawrence Young, Program chairman of the IRC, and Mr. Green by Johnny Summers, President of the IRC.

This program will be followed up by a program of like nature next Mon., Nov. 5.. At this time members of the student body will partciipate in th eprogram, instead of guest speakers.

Consider....

As inadequate as it is, the college chapel is still, at least during the period from 10:45 to 11:20, a place of reverance. Those who lead the programs are making a sincere effort to capture the attention of the students with a message that the speakers consider worthwhile and for the good of the students.

It is also true that the atmosphere is a little clouded with the required attendance. Yet despite the inadequate facilities and impeded atmosphere, the real purpose of the chapel period stands clearly and sufficiently. It is a time to escape the bustling tumble of the class day, a time to be alone with your thoughts and the message, not always brilliant, but always sincere, of the speaker.

However, there is a restless attitude on the part of the students in the chapel that is distracting to those who are there to receive whatever they can from the program. Unprovoked laughter is not uncommon, and the ever-present rattling of newspapers and snatching of letters seems to be growing.

This is no reflection on the chapel committee, but on the students themselves. There seems to be a need for the constraining leadership of those who will remain quiet despite the general disinterest and yield to the speaker the respect and consideration he deserves.

More Katie

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

Katie Co-ed is quite a girl. She is the main topic of conversation not only among the boys, but among her cohorts as well. Did any of you ever think of what it would be like to live in a fish bowl. Well, Katie knows! She can't even trust her own right hand any more.

She hears what she has done before she does it. If a person around here doesn't have something to talk about, they make up something and poor Katie or some other innocent person is the target of a poor joke. Why don't you put yourself in the other fellow's shoes for a change.

Would you like to hear cheap gossip about yourself? Don't judge unless you know the facts and then it is better not to say anything sometimes. Be fair to your friends! This not only means not talking about them but stick by them.

If you are a real friend you will stick by your pals through thick and thin. Girls are much worse about this than boys. People choose people they can trust for friends. Are you trustworthy or two faced? No man is an island and some day you will need a friend.

You can shrug your shoulders and say, I'm going to make hay while the sun shines, but there are rainy days, too, you know.

I mentioned that girls were worse than boys. Take this for example. Katie was telling me about a conversation that took place the other night at the Husband Hunter's Headquarters. A group of the crow-heads were sitting around chewing the fat when one of the girls became very quiet.

"What are you thinking about?" asked her roomo. "Oh, I was just thinking about faults," she answered. Her "friend" asked, "What is your fault?" "I guess it's vanity,' said the quiet one.

"I stand before the mirror for hours admiring my beauty." Her cutting cousin quickly replied, "That's not vanity, that's imagination."

The quiet one quickly quipped back, in her innocent way of course, that she knew a girl on campus that had to wait for cold weather before she could get a chap on her hands.

Katie was purely disgusted and for good reasons, too. Try to get along with people, it will help them get along with you.

Katie was terribly distressed the other day when she came tearing upstairs to relate to me the following story. It seems that Katie was walking over to the chow hall, when a freshman came wandering up to her and started talking.

To make conversation, Katie said, "Too bad about the disappearance of Prof. Gray. He was a profound thinker." The freshman replied, "yes, he was always thinking, no matter where he was. The last time I saw him he was in swimming and he suddenly called out: I'm thinking, I'm thinking!" Katie was horrified and blurted out, "You dope, Professor Gray spoke with a lisp!"

Hot O. and Tiger

By LYMAN HARRIS

Hot O'Rudy, "Tiger" Murphy, and myself came into the room in a pretty sad frame of mind. We had just returned from the funeral of a fellow student. Oh, cruel world. I can remember it all plain as day. Hot O. and I were changing the sheets on our bed, and our buddy (the one who expired) was watching. He was trying to remember the last time he had changed his sheets, and finally decided it had been several years. So right then and there he vowed that he was going to his room and change his sheets if it was the last thing he did. It was. When he scraped them off his bed, it was just like opening a pyramid that had been sealed for millions of years. The odor asphyxiated him.

Tiger Murphy had been with us for several days now, ever since Hot O. heard rumors that some of the faculty had hired thugs from Wofford to throw acid in my eyes because of my column.

Hot O. didn't want the same thing to happen to me that happened to Victor Reisel, so he decided to hire a bodyguard for me. He saw Murphy's daring Chow Hole exploit, and decided that the Tiger must be about the toughest fellow on the campus, so he hired him.

We were all pretty pooped, so Hot O. barred the windows, padlocked the door, and hit the sack. I crawled in bed and the Tiger stretched out on the rug beside me. I had nothing to fear as long as I had this brave man of courage alongside of me.

The next morning we got up bright and late, and Hot O. turned on the radio, so we could listen to the news while we dressed. The announcer told all about the Suez situation, Hungary, and Poland, etc., and then said, "Flash. Police are closing in on whom they think to be the culprits of the famous Table Mystery. The Pope of Presbyterian College, Father Frazer, who was the vicitm of the table thievery, had offered as an award to anyone who finds his table a lifetime subscription to "Bible 54 Notebook." Despite this, the search is still on."

I flicked it off and we went to chow. By the time we got through the long line, the only seats left were at a table with some professors.

Hot O. argued that he didn't want to sit there, because it would ruin his reputation, but we had no other choice, so we sat down.

We got there at the tail end of a long conversation. Friar Gettys was saying, "and I nearly died laughing last night." Hot O. said, "Yeah, which one of your jokes were you telling?" The Friar didn't take to this too well. He advised that Hot O. best buy some sack cloth and ashes and do a good bit of repenting.

We finished our meal, curtsied to the Friar, and went to our classes. Oh well, another day, another "D."

Cecil at the Fair

By LARRY BROWN

It was a pretty quiet night around the ole campus and Cecil College and all of his third floor Bailey Hall cronies were up to no good. Suddenly Cecil jumps up and says, "Hey, John, let's go to the Fair in Laurens!" It's really supposed to be terrific and it won't cost us a cent just to look around. John and all the gang readily agreed that to converge upon the Fair was a pretty good move; and so off they went to Laurens. Upon arriving Cecil saw many familiar faces from PC scattered throughout the crowd. To everyone's surprise Professors Glover and Adams were selling tickets to the Latin Quarter lavish side show, and had just sold Dr. Brown and Dr. Patte's party 25 tickets. The good Dr.'s later remarked that it was a joke, for those fair maidens had probably never seen south of Columbia, S. C.

On down the way Leo and his family were peddling of cotton candy that may have actually come out of Mrs. Bob's medicine cabinet. Right next to their stall they found Dr. Fraser's used book store. The affable Dr. was doing a pretty good business for he was running an advanced sale on second semester books.

Cecil and his colleagues began to become interested in the various games of skill that were found around the fair. They bumped into Freddy Freshman and Alan Solie, who were carrying off teddy bears in a wheel barrow. Solie remarked that he had a system and was thinking about winnnig enough teddy bears to buy out the fair. This set the blood running in our friend Cecil's veins He had to win a teddy bear. He cased the joint thoroughly trying to get the low down on the best game to play. Finally he came to a stand that was run by a nice little ole lady, and Cecil knew that he had found a place to stock up on some bears. The kindly grandmother type lady said, "Come on sonny, no one loses." It was a very simple game it seemed. Just throw big rings around little ole coke bottles, and you get six for a quarter, Well ten quarters later our hero was still determined to grab a teddy bear. One thing had changed though, the little ole lady was beginning to look more like one of Macbeth's witches. On the eleventh quarter toss, Cecil hung his fourth toss on the neck of the bottle. On the next toss he took close aim, and skilfully knocked the fifth ring on also getting the fourth. "A winner!" cried Fuzz, "you got it Cecil," hollers Kenny and Mike. Cecil grabbed his teddy bear and began to jump around happily. He started running to tell his other buds what he had done. Just at that moment the little ole lady hurled the stand like an Olympic star and hit Cecil with a flying tackle that would have put Warren to shame. She screamed, "you cheated!" "You didn't play fair!" "Give it back!" This really shook our hero, and he quickly got up and ran for a cop, This was no help for the little ole lady was held up in the shooting gallery and was going to make a fight for the precious teddy bear. After a real battle, she finally succumbed to tear gas and the whole Laurens police force.

Upon consulting the owner of the fair, it was found that the little ole lady was very fond of teddy bears and had to be convinced on the rules of winning. He said he was sorry about it and would gladly refund Cecil one big quarter. It was later found out that the ole lady had friends in Russia and the owner was a little bit scared.

Well the fair is over now, and far into the night we hear Cecil College moaning, "I want my teddy bear!"

PC Blue Hose Invade Citadel Bulldogs; Make Ready for a "Big Saturday" Upset

By Cecil Geddings

It's big Saturday for Presbyterian College as the Blue Hose prepare to invade Charleston for the annual clash with the powerful Bulldogs of the The Citadel. Presbyterian College President, Dr. Marshall Brown, has declared Saturday a school holiday to permit the loyal PC supporters an opportunity to see their Blue Hose tangle with the Bulldogs at 2:30 in Johnson-Hagood Stadium.

The Hose go into this game posting only two wins in six starts this season. But these victories have come after three consecutive losses. After ruining Catawba's homecoming with a 14-13 win last week in Salisbury, N. C., the Blue Hose seem to have found themselves and appear to be ready for an upset victory in this, the 37th meeting of the two teams.

After missing the Tampa and Catawba game due to a leg injury, P.C.'s star halfback, Ken Webb, will return to action. Although out for two complete games, he continues to lead the Blue Hose' offensive attack with 250 yds. rushing for a 5.2 average per try.

Close behind Webb is halfback Gene Butler, who has carried 215 yards and a 5.2 average. Also above the 200 yard mark is fullback Eddie Brockenbrough, who post a 3.8 average on the strength of 202 yards rushing. Felder Cook, PC's fine, smooth faking quarterback, will be back in top form after seeing limited duty in the last three games. He is among the state's leaders in passing and total offense.

The Citadel offers a particularly dangerous runner in halfback Angelo Coia, a speedster who is well known for breaking into the secondary for long runs. Also they have a hard running back in the person of fullback Dave Bochniowich.

Since the series started back in 1915 the Blue Hose have won only 9 while losing 26 and twice tieing. But of the 26 defeats, eleven have ended with margins of less than one touchdown which points to the fact that through the years both teams have been evenly matched.

The largest score ever compiled by the Bulldogs was a 47-12 shellacking back in 1942. In 1932 the Blue Hose downed The Citadel 27-0 for their biggest total.

Statistics show that this pair of teams have generally come up with outstanding defensive units. Since the start there have been 17 games in which the two teams' total have been below two touchdowns.

In total points scored in the 37 previous contests, The Citadel holds a decidedly edge. They have rolled up 472 total points while PC has accumulated 306.

So fans, from all indications this promises to be one of the most interesting games of the season, so let's all back our team and keep our winning attack going. The school holiday was given for our benefit, so let's make it an annual affair by turning out in full force and showing Dr. Brown our appreciation.

Hose Racketmen Settle to Positions

Coach Leighton's weekly tournaments are running along on schedule. It is obvious that more competitive spirit is being shown. There have been the expected upsets; Harvy Jackson beating Brownlow in the semi-finals of last week's tournament and this week Jim Peck pulled a mild surprise when he defeated Guice Potter also in the semi-finals.

Coach Leighton is very satisfied with the spirit and desire to work shown by this year's squad. He stated, "The team is imrpoving with every practice and we should be in pretty good shape by spring."

Tournament results:

First week — John Brownlow beat Guice Potter in the finals.

Second week—Harvey Jackson beat Guice Potter in the finals.

Team standings to date:

Brownlow, 10; Jackson, 9; Potter, 8; Hoffman, 2... Shakespeare, 1; Peck, 0; Lowe, 0; Roberts, 0; Ellis, 0.

Hosemen Hold on to Lead; Humbles Catawbans 14-13

By LARRY BROWN

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose held on to a slim lead in the closing minutes of the game at Salisbury, N. C., last Saturday night to take a tight contest to the tune of 14-13.

Catawba struck early with a first quarter touchdown and it looked as if they might put the game on ice as they drove deep into PC territory late in the final period only to see the rally fizzle out on a missed field goal attempt.

Early in the first quarter Indian end Ted Bates blocked a Felder Cook punt on the Hose 45 yard line and guard Gary Sherrill recovered on the PC 30. The Indians drove on to paydirt with fullback Pete Stout carrying the final 7 yards. Co-Capt. Dick Cassells converted and Catawba held an early 7-0 lead.

The second period saw the Battlin' Blue Hose come from behind to tie the contest and then storm ahead as they rallied for two touchdowns and two important extra points.

PC received a lucky break when the Indians fumbled on their own 10 and halfback Ed Messer recovered. On the second play of the series halfback Tony Benson stormed over from the 4 to put the Hose back in the game. Fullback Mitchell Mavromat added the point. Catawba 7, PC 7.

Later in the same period the Hose drove 80 yards for a touchdown and points that proved to be the margin of victory. The drive had been sparked by the running of Eddie Brockenbrough and Raymond Johnson. Hard-running halfback Gene Butler carried the fast 3 yards for the tally. Fullback Jimmy Nichols kicked what proved to be the winning point in the game. PC 14, Catawba 7.

Neither team mustered a serious threat in the third quarter but the Indians came back in the fourth period to put a scare into the PC team before bowing out in a losing cause.

They marched 72 yards for their second score in a drive that was highlighted by a 56 yard pass from quarterback Lou Biacchi to halfback Wayne Roberts that carried to PC's 16 yard line. 5 plays later, halfback J. T. Davis plunged over from the 1. Cassells missed the valuable point and it was still PC in front by a 14-13 score.

With only 2 seconds remaining in the game, a stout Hose defense held the Indians for three downs deep in PC territory. Catawba elected to attempt a field goal to give them the needed margin for victory. Cassell's attempt was short and the Hose had their second victory of the season under wraps.

Tackle James Lee played a fine game in the line for PC and made some key tackles in the last Catawba drive.

CATAWBA	7	0	0	0	6—13

SCORING:

CATAWBA: Touchdowns—Stout (7, run), Davis (1, plunge). Conversion—Cassels.

PRESBYTERIAN: Touchdowns—Benson (4, run), Butler (3, run). Conversions — Nichols, Mavromat.

HOSE VERSUS BULLDOGS

When the Presbyterian Blue Hose meet the Citadel Bulldogs tomorrow afternoon it will be the 37th meeting of the of two teams that have always played interesting games in the past.

PC coach Bill Crutchfield, rates this as a crucial game of the season for the underdog Hose. PC's record stands now at 2 wins and 4 losses. A win over The Citadel would put the Hose near the .500 mark after a poor start this year. There are three remaining games on the schedule after the encounter with the Bulldogs. This game could make or break the PC chances of having a winning season.

If past performances are repeated, the game will be very close regardless of the winner. In the past four games there has been a total margin of victory of only 8 points. In 1953 it was The Citadel, 20-14; in 1954, PC, 20-19; and in 1955, The Citadel, 14-13. The Bulldogs should be on the rebound after losing 3 straight but it looks like the talented Hose are finally on their way.

Dick Dunkel rates PC as an 11 point underdog and Joe Harris picks the Bulldogs to the tune of a 20-7 score.

The Citadel has two fine running backs in halfback Angela Coia and fullback Dave Bochniowich. Coia is a swifty who is exceptionally dangerous in the open field, while Bochniowich is a pile-driver who is tough when the chips are down. PC scouts have been particularly impressed with the defensive end play of Paul Maguire.

THANKS FOR THE HOLIDAY

In behalf of the student body, I would like to take this opportunity to thank Dr. Brown and the faculty for the holiday that has been granted to us. There has been some talk of making it an annual affair. How about it?

WEBB RETURNS TO SQUAD

Ken Webb, who has been out of uniform for two weeks, returned to practice Monday night and should be available for some duty tomorrow. The star halfback suffered a knee injury in the Elon game and missed both the Tampa and Catawba games. Although sitting out 2 complete games and a part of another one Webb continues to be the top ground gainer for the Hose with Gene Butler a close second. Both sport averages of 5.2 yards-per-carry.

EXTRA POINTS ARE VALUABLE POINTS

It has been proved before and it will be proved again, as long as there is such a thing as football, that extra points are valuable points. There are many games won by that single kick made or missed.

PC's win last Saturday was the result of 2 made kicks and one missed. The Hose took advantage of both of their opportunities and added 2 points that proved to be valuable, while Catawba missed one that proved their downfall in an attempt to tie the game in the late stages. Two substitute backs, Mitchell Mavromat and Jimmy Nichols, did the honors for PC, with the conversion of Nichols proving to be the winning point.

A few years ago there was talk of doing away with the extra point in the National Professional Football League. The idea was abandoned after careful consideration. The chance to add an extra point after each touchdown adds a great deal to the game of football. As a rule not too many professional games are won by one point but a few are and also if there were no extra point a team could kick 2 field goals and tie a team that scored a touchdown. With 40 and 50 yard field goals, a team that never really loomed a threat to score could go home with a tie.

On the other hand, if a touchdown was made to count 7 points, many games would end in ties that maybe would have been won by one of the teams. If a team is holding a 7 point lead and the other team scores a touchdown the extra point becomes the crucial play of the game. It would take a great deal away from the game if the extra point play were abandoned.

SHORT SHOTS

The Hose can now boast of 2 valuable men at the center slot. While Jim McLauchlin was on the disabled list, Jackie Powers took over the starting assignment and has done a great job for the Blue Hose. Both should be in top shape for tomorrow's battle and center should be one of the strong points in the PC attack . . . After seeing limited duty for awhile, quarterback Felder Cook is ready to go as he plays before a home town crowd tomorrow . . . Guard John Firby was in the infirmary earlier this week but is back out with the team now . . . 3 out of 4 writers on the State staff pick PC to upset The Citadel Bulldogs . . . BEAT THE CITADEL!!!

Brockenbrough, "Chico" Lee Blue Hose Men of the Week

Linemen and backfield awards go this week to two of the hardest hitting men on the campus, James "Chico" Lee and Eddie Brockenbrough. Both excelled greatly in a winning cause against Catawba.

In coming into his own, Eddie looked like the big Brock of past seasons as he tore off huge chunks of yardage through the beefy Catawba line. On tackle slants and draw plays Eddie weaved, hit the secondary like a charging bull, sometimes requiring three or four Indians to haul him down.

Overall Eddie gained 71 yards in 14 carries, for a 5 yard average and played a creditable defensive game also. Brock now joins the select group of 600 yard gainers for the '56 season.

Lineman of the week honors go to a most deserving individual, who made the Blue Hose coaching staff very happy to escape with a one point victory. "Chico" Lee was the stalwart in the line that rose up and saved the game.

After a well played game, but non-spectacular, "Chico" proved his intrinsic worth in the winning moments of the game.

With Catawba in possession of the ball on the PC 16 yard line, the Hose had a real job cut out for them. Catawba had been moving the ball almost at will and at that point had a three down and a half yard to go with one minute remaining. The Catawba winner cut off at right tackle, but to no avail.

Big "Chico" rose up and held. It was fourth down and just inches to go. Again a play to the right side and again "Chico" was a stone wall, No gain and one loss had the ball with but ten seconds remaining.

Although Catawba tried a desperate last second field goal, the game had been won.

"Chico" and Eddie played tremendous roles as the Blue Hose jumped back into the winning column.

THOUGHTS FOR TODAY $1.98

I met a man with a rather large head
Who looked at me and finally said:

"If ever you're caught
Without any thought
And you think that you ought
To be thinking a thought,
Buy one from me before it's too late.
Thoughts for today, only one-ninety-eight."

"A reasonable price," I said and bought
The following brainy, thoughtful thought:

"Me letting my kids down?"

You give your children the best of everything — you advise them, protect them, and share their fun. Can a parent do more?

Yes, there is one other responsibility, easy to overlook. In these years of educational crisis, if you haven't taken an active part in school affairs . . . it's possible you are letting your children down.

Many communities today are faced with local variations of a single nationwide problem: How to cope with the rapid and continuing increase in school enrollments. In some places, the problem takes the form of overcrowded classrooms . . . in others, of a shortage of teachers, or of equipment.

One excellent way you can help insure good schools is by joining your neighbors in community educational conferences. Across the nation, such conferences have found solutions for a wide variety of local school problems — such as financing new equipment . . . adding qualified teachers . . . consolidating schools.

It can be done! Enlightening "case histories" of local school improvement campaigns that worked are yours for the asking. Please indicate the nature of your local school objectives so that we may send you the material that best fits your needs. Write: Better Schools, 2 West 45th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

Another Milestone . . .

Milestones are becoming almost commonplace around Presbyterian College with the way progress is being made. First came the renovation of Spencer, then the all but rebuilding of Laurens, improvements in the Science Building, Bailey dorm, and now—the realization of the $750,000 goal of the Diamond Jubilee Development campaign, with contributions mounting steadily toward the $1,000,000 mark.

The student body owes a vote of thanks to the vast machine, lot more ramified than the students realize, that made it possible. Mr. Walter Ferrene and Mr. Avison deserve a large share of the credit for their leadership.

The work that has gone into this campiagn is amazing. Literally thousands of items of correspondence flow in and out of the campaign office, tremendous amounts of money go for banquets in the various regions, and hundreds of men and women are organized into triangular teams to reach every possible subscriber.

All this adds up to a significant fact—there are a lot of people with a lot of faith in Presbyterian College. There are a lot more people besides just the students who are anxious to see the proposed Student Center and Chapel-Auditorium become a reality.

It is a comfortable feeling to have someone care about you—it is similarly comfortable to be associated with an institution that many people care about, even though the students themselves may not care at times.

Of course, the campaign is far from over. This $750,000 marks the initial goal, but is significant to us in that it assures the scheduled construction of our badly needed Student Center.

The collegiate atmosphere of the college, hampered in the past by inadequate facilities, is on the horizon. About the only thing needed after that will be ivy, more obedient freshmen, more co-eds, and more tradition. This, money can't buy—it's up to you.

Dear Mom . . .

By NOBLE COLLINS

Dear Mom,

Well, I will be home for Thanksgiving soon, and I will certainly be thankful to be home! For some reason I just don't feel wanted around here any more. For instance when I find my professors lighting cigarettes off my exam papers, it suggests to me that I'm not doing well. Also, my drill instructor is quite a pain. I understand he is jealous of me because I can read and write, but maybe we can iron it out.

My only consolation is my fraternity. Boy, do they throw parties. The last one was really a blast. I was really the life of the party, and everyone said that I had the most fun of anyone. I think they're going to let me back in, though.

Tell Dad that I am broke again. I was supplementing my allowance by doing a little work in town each night, but I had to stop. I was caught and arrested.

Actually I'm making my money go a long way this year. So far I have purchased, at bargain prices, a tux, a pair of eye shades, two term papers, and half interest in a professor.

I had a close call with the student council last week. In the daily inspection of rooms, an unauthorized object was found on my bed. It was me. They made the mistake of putting me on probation, however.

I thought they said "prohibition" and immediately went to work making booze out of hair tonic in the chemistry lab. I was the campus hero until the prohibition rumor spread, and several professors were seen buying huge quantities of Vitalis and Seven-Up.

I'm beginning to think my roommates are growing tired of me. Last night they ganged up on me and made me take a shower.

I wouldn't take their little pranks so seriously, but for my Christmas present they're going to give me a book entitled "Live Alone and Like It." Actually, they're a scream. The first time they caught me stealing, they strapped my head to a phonograph turntable and put on a recording of "The Sabre Dance." Actually, I got a lot of fun out of this, and it didn't affect me a bit, abit, abit, abit.

I guess I'll have to close for now, because policemen are surrounding the dorm. Tell everyone I said hello, and please pay those pawn tickets I sent.

Your loving son,
Filbert

P. S. The reason my last letter was in crayon is because they wouldn't let me keep sharp objects where I was.

Hot O. and "Screwball"

By LYMAN HARRIS

My buddy, Hot O'Rudy, and I came back from the early flick, "Bus Stop," and took the short cut through the library. Hot O. was running short on comic books, so he grabbed up a couple of books and checked them out. As soon as they were checked out, he said, "Let's get out of here, man. This uncanny quietness gets on my nerves. Somebody needs to liven this place up."

I agreed, because I thought he was joking, but Hot O. takes little problems like these to heart, so right before we got to the door he tossed a firecracker over near the desk and hollered, "It's a raid. Every man for himself." When it exploded the desk clerk had what looked like a spastic fit, and Miss Burts came running out of her office carrying Mr. Irvin, who had fainted, and waving a white flag.

We doused the lights and hurried back to the room, because we knew that Dr. Campbell would be on the scene with his searchlight and bloodhounds any minute.

I was kinda glad it happened in a way, because Hot O., who descended from a long line of Democrats, was downhearted over the election. I wanted to make him feel better, so I said, "Hot O., cheer up. He put up a good fight. Besides, in four more years, you'll be old enough to run for president."

He said, "Naw, I won't be though with college four years from now, but I am making plans to help my boys more. I've planned for Adlay to fake a heart attack right before the next election; maybe that'll help, and I want Kefauver to change his name from Estes to Elvis. If that don't work, I'm going to put up Fats Domino for president, and see if we can get another piano player in the White House."

Hot O. picked up one of his books and thumbed through it. "This looks like it ought to be pretty good. The name of it is "Screwball Letters," and is about the devil writing Wormwood, one of his angels on earth. I think I'll read it for my history parallel."

He stretched out across his bed and mumbled the words as he read. In a few minutes he snorted a couple of snores, and was asleep. I kept on studying, but didn't get much done because Hot O. was having one of his talking dreams. I heard him say, "Lights, camera, action." (That is the way he always starts his dreams when they're in cinerama.)

Screwball's Postcard

"Dear Wormy,

"This is Satan writing to you from (my favorite quotation from Shakespeare) 'that durned spot.' I want to congratulate you on your present crusade on the PC campus. I must warn you, though, that soon we will go through a period of wretched trial and temptation. I am referring to Religious Emphasis Week. If it goes over too well, I may have to call out the Hades National Guard. But, my Buddha, I'll be deviled if I'm going to let it beat me. That kind of goings-on just burns me up! If you run into trouble call on Beezlebub Brown or any of the professors; they're on our side.

"One more thing. See if you can pledge Mr. Hot O .Rudy into our brotherhood. Most of his kinfolks are big wheels down here. One of them is chief stoker of our furnace. Well, see you later, goodness hater.

With all my hate,
Satan"

The Inside Story

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

The polls are closed and the votes have been counted! Norma Jean has again been elected the "Campus Queen" by an apparent landslide. As this news hit the Calvert Convent, it is a grand final of a perfect day.

So many nice things have been happening to the co-eds lately. Especially to Sarah! She now has a new admirer and to give you a hint I'll tell you that he wears a PiKA pledge pin and pulls a little red wagon. You can see him most any time uptown. He has been trying for a week to get Sarah to ride in his wagon, but she wont. I just don't understand girls these days.

If you see Gail out on the track on some sunny afternoon, you can rest easy. She isn't going out for track, she is just getting in shape for Sadie Hawkins Day.

Dot should be in pretty good condition. Every night at 11 o'clock she has ot run downstairs, lock the door, check the register, and run back again before the iron curtains slam shut downstairs. Daddy-O wants to make sure he doesn't lose any more of his girls.

You would think that being locked up this way that the Convent of Bleeding Hearts would be quiet, but since we have already reached the age of group activity (Attention, Smilin' George) there are several group meetings going on at this time being anything but quiet.

On the second floor there is a meeting of the members of the celebrated girls' chorus. They have been ably instructed by Pitty Patte and are rendering such selections as "Monkey Business" and "Bluejean Bop.

The girls on the third floor are not to be outdone, however, and are holding a meeting of the sisters of that honorary sorority "I've Gothim Snowed."

The minutes of the last meeting, having been read, had to be corrected slightly because it seems that some of the fair damsels are having a hard time making up their minds on what to snow. In another section of this floor there is being held the nightly meeting of the "Sisters of the Swish."

The sisters guarantee that in five lessons they can teach you to swish with results. They also say that holding hands is very effective. The bad part about it is that the main instructor lives off campus and the strain is becoming evident in her swish.

All these meetings usually end in one big rootin-tootin up-snorting yarn sessions. You boys have often asked me what we talk about. Well, I may have to recede from the union, but the main topic of conversation is MEN.

Boys beware! From now on you better be careful because when you see a bunch of chicks cackling, they may be talking about you. Now, I didn't mean to give you the big head. (To whom it may concern)

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Alpha Psi Chapter met last Tuesday night for its regular weekly session. Work was begun on a room adjacent to the fraternity suite that is to be made into a TV lounge. Plans were finished for the entertainment of Mr. Bill Holmes from the National Executive Council, who will be visiting on our campus this weekend. Brother Holmes is Editor of The Tomahawk, the national magazine of Alpha Sigma Phi.

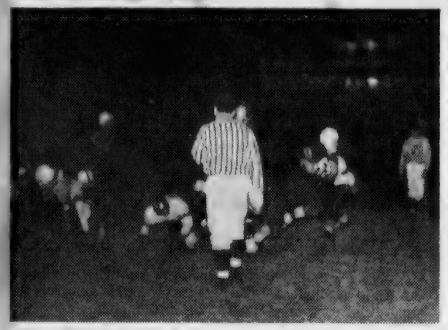
KAPPA ALPHA

The regular weekly meeting of Beta Pi was held Tuesday night at 6:45 p. m. Plans were made for extensive renovations of the fraternity room, which have been made possible through the gift of an alumni brother. Vicky Vierra will head the project committee, assisted by Phil Nealy.

The brothers and pledges of Beta Pi will hold open house Friday night following the Stetson game, and the Wild West closed social will be held Saturday night.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

The brothers and pledges of Mu Chapter held the Dungaree Ball Wednesday night. Betsy Clark, from Columbia College, was elected "Dungaree Doll."



PI KAPPA PHI

Beta had a party. It was a closed social at Peck's Thursday night. The fun began when at 7:30 the girls from Converse invaded the "Mary Lou Ranch."

At the meeting Monday night, the following officers were elected to serve the pledge class:

President—Verbi Green; Treasurer— Larmie Prickett; Secretary—Wilson Livingston; Warden—Charles Madden; Historian—Sam Grier; Chaplain—Bob Biggerstaff.

The Comeback Trail . . .

Ken Webb, PC stalwart, seems to leave the whole pack bewildered as he spurts toward a score. Ken raised his net yardage to 477.

Hose Down Appalachian; Strengthen Comeback Bid

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose, before a chilled crowd of 2,000 fans, unleashed a slashing ground attack that amassed a total of 324 yards in completely outclassing the Mountaineers from Appalachian 34-7 last Saturday night.

Halfback Ken Webb and fullBack Billy Nalley led the Blue Hose assault as Webb scored three times and gained 87 yards in 18 carries. Nalley played a fine ball game and picked up 79 yards in 13 attempts.

Halfback Gene Butler tallied the first score when he scored from one yard out to put PC ahead 6-0 at the end of the first quarter. Webb's five-yard scoring jaunt in the second period and the conversion gave the Hose thirteen while the Apps picked up their lone tally of the contest in the same period on a 38-yard drive after a poor PC kick. Stanley made it PC 13, Appalachian 7.

The only Hose score in the third period came on a 41-yard scoring aerial from quarterback Felder Cook to Webb. PC converted and it was PC 20, Appalachian 7.

The Hose added two tallies in the final period to reach their night's total. Webb scored his third and Raymond Johnson added his first to close out the scoring for the evening. Webb's tally came on a two-yard plunge and Johnson's on a five-yard run.

During the game Nalley converted twice, Webb once, and Nichols once.

Presbyterian's offense, which had demonstrated a marked ability to move the ball all year, broke loose for a total of 427 yards (324 of these by ground) in bowling over Appalachian last weekend. The eight-game total now stands at 2,549 running and passing yards, an average of 319 each contest. The dominant ground attack has accounted for 1,819 aerials; for 730 yards.

Of Stetson, Crutchfield has this to say:

"This team is extremely dangerous because of its ability to strike so quickly. Passing is emphasized, with as many as five receivers being sent downfield at once, and the spread-type of play always presents a threat. I hope we will be able to stop Saltrick."

Stetson Invades Tonight; Strong in Passing Attack

Presbyterian College goes after its fourth victory of the season against an invading Stetson University team here Friday night. The kickoff is scheduled for 8:00 p. m. on Johnson Field. Three of the Blue Hose triumphs to date have been registered over opposition from outside South Carolina, so they hope to maintain their favorable records on this score.

Presbyterian enters the game a slight favorite of the odd-makers, and the history of the series also favors the Hosemen who have yet to be defeated by the Hatters in nine previous meetings. Last year's encounter in DeLand, Fla., wound up a 6-6 deadlock.

The 1956 clash is expected to be one of the most wide-open games of the series. Both teams will field highly touted individual stars leading offensives that have been strong on yardage-collection all season.

Presbyterian will develop its attack around a powerful ground game paced by halfbacks Ken Webb, Tony Benson, Gene Butler, and fullbacks Billy Nalley and Eddie Brockenbrough. The Hosemen will also count upon the passing arm of quarterback Felder Cook, should ground action become slow.

Stetson possesses a quick-striking attack, which utilizes more passing than running after the fashion of the Southwestern spread formation. The Hatters have directing this offense a versatile threat in the person of quarterback Dick Saltrick, who is all the more dangerous because he combines a tricky running skill with his passing ability.

To thwart his efforts the Blue Hose will be counting on the forward wall efforts of guards Tommy Warren and Richard Shrigley, center Jackie Powers, tackles Jim Lee and Joe Negley, and ends Ted Leahy and Bob Mathews.

So the stage is set for a run-pass duel between the Blue Hose and the Hatters. Neither team has an impressive record, but their games have been spiced with colorful play of spectator appeal.

HOSE SHOOTING FOR .500 SEASON

Two games remain on the PC schedule for 1956. Both of these must be won if the Hose are to finish the season with a .500 record of five wins and five losses. The Battlin' Blues showed some of the potential that has been expected of them all season as they stunned the Mountaineers 34-7.

The Hose ground attack clicked for a total of 324 yards as both Ken Webb and Billy Nalley gained almost at will. Webb gained a total of 87 yards while Nalley was close behind with 79 yards. The Hose also completed seven out of eleven passes for 103 yards.

It looks as if the Hose are finally beginning to move as they have been expected to all season. PC should take wins from both Stetson and Newberry if they continue to play the ball that they are capable of playing. These two wins would turn what has appeared to be a not too successful season into a season that has not been a complete failure.

Maybe the Hose are rolling now . If they can continue to play a good brand of ball the outlook for next season will be bettered. This was supposed to be the year for PC. We won't say, "Wait until next year." That has been said too many times in the past. But, all indications point to a good season for the Blue Hose next season.

INDICATIONS OF POOR SCHEDULING

The Stetson Hatters, whom the Hose meet tonight in a home game, have had to make the long trip up "north" two weeks in a row. Last week they traveled from sunny Florida to South Carolina to meet Newberry, and this week they are back to meet our Blue Hose. This seems to indicate poor scheduling on the part of the Stetson Athletic Department. It's a long hard bus ride for the team.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL NEARS

As the Blue Hose basketeers move into serious preparation for their opening game of the season the time for intramural basketball also looms near. If all goes well the first games will be played shortly after the return from Thanksgiving holidays. The indications are for a good season. The teams this year should be better than those of last year and as all of you know the teams last year were good as a whole.

The intramural program is sponsored by the SCA and it offers each student on the college campus an opportunity to take part in active sports. It also counts toward the coveted intramural trophy for the outstanding team in all intramural activities .

HOME GAME TONIGHT

The game tonight is right here at home and it is strictly speaking not a weekend game as it is being played Friday night so there is little excuse for anyone's missing the game. If we can get out to back our team they will very probably play a better game. A team that knows its student body is behind it plays better ball. Let's back the Hose in the last two games of the season which are both played right here at home.

Hose Basketballers Tip Off; Begin Season Practice Games

Basketball is back in swing and after three pre-season games, the Indiana trio is pacing the attack. Taking over where they left off last year, Bruce and Dave Thompson, along with Bill Sullivan, have led the Blue Hose to two wins in the three games played to date. All own an average of better than 18 points per game.

Bruce, the 6'4" center from Michigan City, has poured through 67 points for an average of 22.3 points per game along leading the rebounders with an average of over 15 per game.

Bill, who has been tagged with the nickname of "Hot Rod," is a 5'10" guard from Frankfort. He has averaged 18.7 per game and with 56 total points.

Dave, although he missed the last game, is with the leaders as he posts a 19-point average on the strength of 36 points in the first two games. Dave is a forward from Frankfort, standing 5 foot, 11½.

Rounding out the starting lineup are 6'2" forward Clayton Adams from Philadelphia, and Ken Caswell, a 5'11" guard from Paris, Ky.

In the opening pre-season game, the Blue Hose took a sound 116 to 71 decision from North Greenville Junior College. The game was played in Greenville.

The Hose started scoring like the team of last season and the NGJC boys were never in contention. Center Bruce Thompson led the scoring parade with 31 points, followed by Dave Thompson with 20 points.

The Blue Hose suffered their first loss of the practice season when they dropped a hard-fought 89 to 88 battle to the powerful Piedmont Rangers on the Mill team's court.

This time "Hot Rod" Sully was the big scorer with 25 points. The flashy ball handler showed he not only was tough as a floor showman, but was capable of hitting the bucket also. Close behind Sully was Bruce Thompson with 20 points.

The Rangers were paced by their playing coach, Earl Wooten, and former Presbyterian College star, Paul Nye.

Forward Clayton Adams led the Hose to a 82-80 win over once-beaten North Greenville Junior College in the first game in PC's Leroy Springs gmynasium this season.

The Hose quintet took over the lead early in the game after NGJC had held an 8-4 lead and it was nip and tuck for the entire first half. PC led at half-time by a 36 to 31 count.

The Hose came back the second half and steadily moved farther ahead. With about six minutes left in the game, the Blue Hose held a 14-point margin. Late in the game the Junior college team made a desperate effort to catch PC and the terrific rally barely fell short. The Blue Hose had to put on a freeze to save the game.

Adams hit for 26 points to take scoring honors. "Hot Rod" Sully was second with 19 points. It was a night for the lefthanders as each of these boys are southpaws.

Top men for the losers were center Nilson, with 21, and Carlisle, with 19 points.

Blue Hose Riflemen On Way to Records

This afternoon the rifle range at Furman University echoed with the well aimed shots of two undefeated rifle teams in the battle to decide the winner of the first half of the competition in the Western Carolina Conference. At this writing, the outcome of this match is not known, but one thing is sure—PC sent into the match one of the finest rifle teams that has ever represented the school.

The PC rifle team this year is well on its way to establishing permanent records in small bore competition in the South. Already improved over a seemingly peerless group last year, this year's team has pleasantly astounded its coach, Sgt. Knight, with its accuracy and determination.

Several surprises have boosted the team's expectancy this year. First is the showing of Freshman Matthew Smith, who in a special match with the University of South Carolina, took the fifth place medal. Also, the unofficial record scores which have been consistently fired by two old members, Frank Sapp and Phil Cannella, give promise of laurels for this year's team. In the macth with South Carolina, Cannella fired an individual score of 381 out of a possible 400. This is the highest official score ever fired by a member of a PC rifle team and surpasses by two points the state championship record set last year.

Four of the members of this year's team have lettered four straight years. They are: Frank Sapp, Phil Cannella, Bill Cain, and Charles Kinsey. The promising newcomers are: Charles McElveen, Toby Hunter, and Matthew Smith. With such talent, the PC rifle team can definitely look forward to its most successful season in quite a while.

Thrushes . . .

The Presbyterian College Robed Choir, under the direction of Dr. Edouard Patte, stands for its annual portrait on the steps of the First Presbyterian Church of Clinton. The Choir began its fall season with presentations in two South Carolina churches, and will continue with presentations in Savannah and Augusta. The last trip before Christmas holidays will take the singers to Atlanta.

Robed Choir Posts Trip Schedule; Presents Concerts in Large Cities

By RAMON VEAL

The Presbyterian College Robed Choir is making final arrangements preparatory to embarking on its fall schedule. This year, the choir is not following the precedent of previous years as no fall tour is planned.

However, several weekend trips to Georgia are scheduled, which will take the place of the usual Georgia-Carolina tour.

In lieu of a fall tour, the choir is planning an extended spring tour which will take the singers through North Carolina, Virginia, and part of Maryland with a two-day visit in the District of Columbia.

The gleesters' season formally opened two weeks ago with a trip to Bishopville and Columbia. However, as an aid to the college's Diamond Jubilee Development Program, the choir's Double Quartette has journeyed to various parts of the state to participate in the Jubilee Birthday dinners.

The singers will leave Saturday, Dec. 1, for their first Georgia trip. This particular journey will take the choir to Savannah and Augusta.

The Independent Presbyterian Church of Savannah will entertain the singers Saturday night, and the choir will sing for the Sunday morning worship service. Sunday afternoon they will travel to Augusta and conduct an evening service in the First Presbyterian Church, and return to the campus Sunday night.

The following weekend, Dec. 8 and 9, will find the Robed Choir in Atlanta, Ga.

There, the singers will give their program in the Rock Springs Presbyterian Church Sunday morning, and the First Church of Decatur Sunday evening. Due to the dstance between Atlanta and Clinton, the choir will wait until Monday mornnig to return to the campus. This year's theme, "The Great Design," will be illustrated by choral numbers featuring soloists, organ, and double quartette, and introduced with portions of reading from Scripture.

In January, the choir will be heard in Abbeville and Winnsboro. After the break between semesters the singers will appear in Kingstree, Columbia, Charleston, and Denmark during February, then in Aiken, Ware Shoals, York, and Woodruff during March.

The annual spring tour will be from Apr. 7 to Apr. 15 with engagements already completed at Charlotte N. C.; Danville, Staunton, Harrisonburg, Portsmouth, Va;, Washington, D. C., and Roanoke Rapids, N. C.

A weekend trip to Sumter and a yet to be scheduled place on May 4 and 5 will close the season. After the success of the first two concerts in November, Dr. Patte has stated that he anticipated this, his tenth year as director of the chior, to be one of the most successful.

Officers for the choir include Noble Collins and Ramon Veal, co-presidents; Bill Cashwell, treasurer; and Rutledge DuRant, custodian.

The personnel of the choir by sections is as follows:

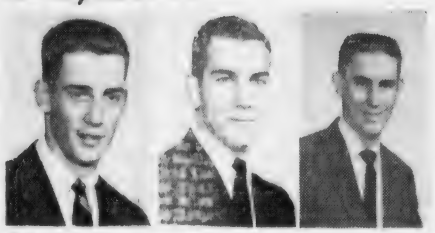
First Tenor: Harold Gallimore, Blair Baldwin, Julian Butler, Sonny Embry, Lonnie Love, and Charlie Taylor.

Second Tenor: Ron Bartlett, Billy Moore, Ramon Veal, Jack Crandall, Bobby Pinkston, Cliff Stovall, Jack Taylor, Gene Wilson, and Tom Wise.

Baritones: John Chliders, Noble Collins, Albert Copelan, Roger Godwin, Bobby Haffner, Pat O'Rear, John Neal, Gil Taylor, and Pete Westbrook.

Second Basses: Dick Carter, Charlie Dukes, Bill Cashwell, Blue Currie, Rutledge Durant, Charles Clark, Billy McElveen, Eugene McKethan, and Paul White..

Harvey Witscher is the organist for the choir this season.



• Chapel Speakers •

The chapel services during the next two weeks will have a seasonal tone as most of them will center around the Christmas theme.

The first two progrmas next week, Monday and Wednesday, will be conducted by faculty members Taylor Martin, associate professor of mathematics, and Dr. Joseph Gettys, professor of Bible.

Following an established precedent, the Freshman Student Christian Association Cabinet will sponsor the Friday, Dec. 7, program. The newly elected president of this group, Gene Wilson, and a committee headed by Ed Minus, are planning a skit for the occasion.

New Key Men . . .

Authority on Northlands To Give Lecture for IRC

By ED MINUS

Students of Presbyterian College will have a rare chance to enjoy the sort of program which is, unfortunately, seldom offered here. On Friday evening, Nov. 30, at 7 o'clock, in the chapel of Neville Hall, Mr. E. C. Raine will give an illustrated lecture on Alaska and Siberia, two fascinating lands on which he is an eminently entertaining authority.

He has resided in and traveled through these countries for the past 33 years, during ten of which he served as representative of the United States Treasury Department and visited annually every town and village in Alaska and many villages in Siberia.

Mr. Raine will relate a number of experiences and will feature the people, customs, and history of the land which he ture absorbing stories about knows so well.

His travelogue will be highlighted by colorful views of the Northland's exquisite scenery, unusual wildlife, interesting inhabitants, and spectacles such as the "midnight sun" and "Northern lights.'

This is Mr. Raine's twenty-eighth annual tour of the United States, and he has received high praise in this country and in Alaska.

The administrators and instructors at various American colleges and universities have cited his lecture as "delightfully entertaining and highly instructive," "interesting, witty, and illustrated with splendid views", "excellent work . . . clear and beautifully graphic."

Mr. Raine will doubtlessly prove to be one of the outstanding speakers to be presented at PC this year; so infrequent an opportunity for profitable entertainment should not be ignored.

Point of Honor . . .

"And your quaint honor turned to dust . . ." Honor was a fleeting thing to Andrew Marvell, and so it sems to be with some of us. Our honor seems to consist at times merely of a recognition, maybe even a partial adherence, to laws necessitated by the worst in us. We seem to regard honor as a banner standing in a dusty corner, ignored for the moment but grasped by many self-righteous hands and waved ragged when its appearance is needed.

We are in no honor crisis at the moment, but perhaps for that very fact we should consider the real source of honor while we are "outsiders" to the problem.

Honor cannot be legislated; it is not a chance product. This is its serious defect, for that leaves the birthplace of honor in the persons bound in its pledge. That defect exists, sometimes even prevails, because certain people by their own choice do not possess a character capable of honesty.

They need to be weeded out.

We're Sorry . . .

You can never tell what will happen around a newspaper plant. We are referring to last week's backward edition of the Sock, which, though probably a refreshing change of pace to the readers, was nevertheless not the best in journalism. Amidst the inevitable laughter and buffoonery of the campus readers, we had to own up to one of the most unforgettable blunders in the annals of the trade.

The material had been proofread and cleared for printing page by page, since the press was not available at that time for a composite copy. Fine. However, a deft twist of of the wrist by the mechanical end of the production reversed the pages after the staff had gone back to school before the chow line closed.

There you are, we hope, and we're sorry.

Hot O. Goes to Hull

By LYMAN HARRIS

It had been about a week since Turkey holidays, so I figured it was about time for Hot O'Rudy to be coming back to school. I always have one thing to look forward to after holidays, anyhow; that is reading the excuses Hot O. turns in for being late. So far, according to his excuses, he has been married three times, divorced once, and has lost four sets of grandparents. I remember an excuse he wrote his freshman year that made him a mother. That was in January, 1956 B.B. (Before Biology).

I had just settled down with my Christian Life notebook and a Peace of Mind pill, when somebody came hollering down the hall that I had a telephone call from Hull, Ga.. I thought to myself, "What the? Hull! Who do I know there?"

I took off upstairs and picked up the phone. Somebody said, "Hello, Hairless." I said, "Hot O.! What's the trouble? How come you're not back?" Hot O. said, "Well, I was on my way home, and had just picked up enough speed to break the sound barrier when I went through this town named Hull. I went part of the way through it, anyhow. About halfway the police chief, judge, fireman, and mayor stopped me ,and he wrote me a ticket.

"I couldn't pay it, so he put me in the pen." I said, "You want me to see if I can raise enough money to get you out?"

He said, "Naw, I got that figured out. The last outsider that came through here was Cortez, so they're not much up on some of our American inventions. Tonight I'm going to see if I can scare my way out with a cigarette lighter. Then I'm going to leave here like a bat out of Hull."

I asked him if he needed me to do anything for him.

"Well, there is one thing. I'm not worried about missing classes; I can get them excused. But I'm afraid if I keep missing chapel programs, Father will have me flogged."

"Tell him for me that if he'll overlook it I'll pay penance when I get there. I'll buy a million indulgences! I'll preach on the street corners! I'll do anything—anything, I tell you!' Anything!" (I think Hot O. was trying for an Oscar on that last line.)

I asked, "Are they treating you pretty good, Hot O?"

He said, "It's not too bad. These stocks hurt my neck sometimes, and there are a few smart alecks around here. I asked one old crow this morning when I could leave, and he said, "Do ye nae sweate it, Ace."

"Has anything happened around there?"

I said, "No, nothing except that ten boys have come down with chicken pox because of the fertilizer they're spreading all over the place."

Hot O. said, "Well, I gotta go, pal. I'll see you."

Katie Turns DJ

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

"Hello, you big, handsome Presbyterian College man. What are you doing this afternoon? Why not leave your dial set on the 100 frequency and listen to station W-RAH-RAH located in the Calvert Building. This is old Kate making a date with you for every afternoon to spin the records that suit you to a T.

This afternoon I want to dedicate the whole program to that lovely bunch of young fillies down at Daddy-O's Stable. So, let's get the show started rolling with a bang by dedicating 'Shake, Rattle and Roll' for that filly in the third stall, Sue.

"Next, I would like to play for that old nag in the second stall 'Jim Dandy to the Rescue.' Of course, I'm talking about Sarah.

"Now, Too Much Monkey Business' for Barbara, another little filly in the third stall. Gayle said her favorite song was 'Dear John,' so here goes. Someone clued me in on this next tune. June, how do you like 'Devil Lips'?

"For that second old nag in the second stall, namely Anne, here is 'Absence Makes The Heart Grow Fonder'. I don't know where I got the idea, but I think Dot could like 'My Blue Moon of Kentucky'.

"Wait one minute, don't touch that dial. This station always plays the best music and there is more to come. We wouldn't want to leave anybody out, but first a word from our sponsor. We are glad to announce that our new sponsor is the City of Clinton Water Works.

"It is a well known fact that there is no better water to be found and we should know, for the Calvert Stable uses more water than Bailey.

"Now, back to the cuts and capers of Katie's Korner. Now, for that little flaming mare, Mary, 'Time Will Tell'. No, Norma, we couldn't leave out the filly with the pony-tail, so here's 'Too Young' just for you.

For that bucking bronc, Nancy Bell, nothing could suit better than 'Tough Lover'. Shirley, 'Friendly Persuasion' must have been written just for you. Now, back to that third stall and our last little filly. One of the older songs suits Marilyn. I hope you agree! 'I've Changed My Mind a Thousand Times'.

Elvis Pre . . . (retch!)

By LYMAN HARRIS

Stick to Singing, Swivel-hips. The Grand Ole Opry's answer to James Dean, Elvis Presley, all but steals the show from Richard Eagan and Debra Paget. In order to accomplish this he utilizes his talent for passion producing in as many ways as possible.

In his first scene he embraces three men. (his brothers, who are returned warriors. Elvis should have gone to war with them. Maybe it would have matured him.)

When he puckers his thick lips and looks droopy-eyed and sullen, sounds similar to words drool forth, producing shrieks from his feminine audience and laughter from the males.

He thrills his teen-eagers with such lines as, "You ain't got no right to do this!" and "Hey, looka here. I got a brand new go-to-meeting suit." The only instance where Elvis ever shows any real talent as an actor is in his last scene; he drops dead like a veteran.

The movie begins with the final skirmishes of the Civil War in a backwoods Western area. Eagan and his troops, ignorant of the fact that the war is over, steal money from a Federal train. Meanwhile, back at the ranch, Debra, who is Eagan's girl, is attracted by "Elvis' pelvis" and marries him.

This makes for a happy home front. Eagan, upon his return home, can't stand to see Elvis waggle his hips and lips at Debra, so he decides to depart. But the Federals save the story from ending by capturing Eagan because of the stolen money.

Elvis, who is usually about a scene behind, throws some rough language at them when they're a mile or two down the road.

Some of the old gang recapture Eagan while Elvis holds the horses. Then the luscious, ludicrous Presley decides that Eagan is still a thief and that he plans to elope with Debra. So the backwoods Passion Flower kidnaps his own wife, and shoots Eagan.

By this time the audience was on the edge of its seats, because they expected Elvis to say "Shazam" and snap out of it any minute. Immediately Presley repents, is shot and dies as the guys grunt and the girls groan.

FOOTBALL SEASON COMES TO CLOSE

Let's face the facts, the Hose have just closed out a rather unsuccessful football season. In winning only four games while dropping six, the PC team has disappointed its followers. The backers of the Hose as well as the students are disappointed with the record as well as the fact that the terrific potential of the squad failed to materialize.

Afer the opening loss to the Clemson Tigers, which I might add was no disappointment, there was optimism that the Hose might wind up with a 9-1 record. Then came two disheartening performances against Wofford and Davidson. I will admit that both teams were good, but the PC team was expected to win the games and even if not win should have played better football.

PC finally hit the winning trails against a not-too-sharp Elon team. The Hose came back in the second half and played brilliantly and everybody said they are now ready to roll. PC then dropped a hard-fought contest to Tampa which was no discredit to team performance. The boys played good football. Presbyterian again hit the winning trails with a hard-fought win over Catawba. Things were looking up.

But, then came a hard loss to take. It was hard on the team, the coaches, and the fans. PC had taken a 13-point lead only to have it slip away. It still looked as if they might tie a team that was supposed to beat them, but disaster struck. A fourth down play deep in PC's own territory failed and The Citadel took over. A completed pass and a personal foul penalty placed the ball on the PC one and from there it was a TD to give the Bulldogs the victory.

The Hose caught fire and won two games. They looked impressive in their rout of Appalachian. The second team especially looked good in the win over Stetson after spotting them a first quarter touchdown and field goal. But they couldn't hold the ball against Newberry. Five fumbles lost, stopped five drives and two of them were turned into touchdowns by the Indians. It was a hard game to lose after gaining 310 yards to the opponents' 161 on the ground.

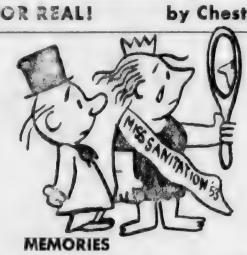
The season is over and everyone's attention turns to the hardwood and the roundball. No one blames the players. They played hard and gave their all. It was just one of those things that you can't explain. Maybe it's the breaks, but you can't keep blaming it on the breaks. There's something wrong, but who knows what it is.

CONGRATULATIONS

Congratulations are due again and this time to Ken Webb, Wayne Shoemaker, and Tommy Warren. Webb was named to the United Press second team All-State and Shoemaker and Warren were given Honorable Mention.

ROUNDBALL SEASON IS HERE

It's time for the Blue Hose to take the floor for another basketball season and all indications point to another successful season under Coach Russ Murphy. The first game is tonight with the Marines from Parris Island. The Hose had the best season in the history of the school last year and capped it all with the Little Four Championship. The Hose are on the way and running to top last year's record and successfully defend their Little Four title.



INTRAMURAL B-BALL

The Intramural baskeball season got off to a fast start Wednesday night with two games. There are twelve teams entered this year and there should be a full schedule of activity each week. There are six non-fraternity teams entered, so there should be ample opportunity for all non-frats and freshmen interested to play. The teams have looked good so far and all indications point to an interesting race to the end.

KEN WEBB

WAYNE SHOEMAKER

Webb and Shoemaker Week's Grid Heroes

To put the lid on a mediocre football season, lineman and backfield awards go to two deserving members of the Blue Hose squad. Ken Webb and Wayne Shoemaker recieve the nod for the Newberry game.

Coming into the 1956 season like a charging bull, Webb was easily the lineman of the week after the Clemson contest. Now, in the final game, the Decatur flash came through again, though in a losing cause. Kenny sped through the Newberry line for a total of 139 yards and was a hard man to stop in the secondary. His total yardage gained for the season was 624 yards in 112 carries for a 5.6 average. His total point production for the season was 37; six touchdowns and an extra point. In a recent United Press selection big Kenny was chosen on second team all-state. All in all, it was a most successful year for a boy who missed three games and still wound up among the state statistical leaders in almost every departmenti. A job well done, Kenny, and may we see you again in '57 donned in a blue uniform.

Lineman of the week honors go to a big hunk of man from Charlotte, N. C., who has probably been playing football longer than any other member of the squad. Wayne Shoemaker played his last college football game against Newberry, Turkey Day, and his efforts and merits will long be remembered on the Hose campus. He did not have a spectacular season this year, but was always close by to make a needed tackle. Big Shoe could do about anything well: block tackle, and even kick off. Good luck, Shoe, in later life, and congratulations for a season well played.

Hose Roundballers All Set; Meet Paris Island Tonight

By LARRY BROWN

The 1956-57 Blue Hose basketball aggregation will show off for the homefolks Friday night as they do battle with the powerful Parris Island Marines Quintet. Pacing the PC squad will be the 1-2 scoring punch of Bruce and Dave Thompson.

Both were unstoppable last season, as the Hose raced to an 18-5 season, including the Little Four Championship. Backing up these basket busters will be returnees Ken Caswell, Bill Sullivan, Clayton Adams, and Wyatt Aiken, along with a nucleus of very fine freshmen.

Little is known of the present Marine squad with the exception that they will be a hard team to stop. Coach Russ Murphy in a recent interview stated that they always manage to come up with good teams, equal to big time college calibre. They will have a squad well equipped with talent.

Coach Murphy continued that PC will be prepared to play any type of game. If the Marines play a fast type game, the Hose will run also. If a deliberate type game progresses, the PC'uns can also slow down.

The Hose have been working on the running type game and will be hard to handle in a high-scoring fracas. Murphy will tentatively start the Thompsons at forward, Aiken at center, Sullivan and Caswell at guard posts.

PC hopes to get away fast this season in hopes of bettering last year's already exceptional record

All-State Pollsters Pick Three PC Men

Presbyterian College's junior halfback, Ken Webb, made the United Press All-State second week. Webb made the first team as a sophomore last year, but he was plagued by an injury part of the season this year and missed two games which hindered his chances of repeating as a choice.

Tackle Wayne Shoemaker, a senior, and guard Tommy Warren, also a senior, were given honorable mention.

On the first team were four men each from Clemson and South Carolina, two from Wofford, and one from Furman.

Hose Basketballers Elect Two Thompsons

Forward Dave Thompson, of Frankfort, Ind., and center Bruce Thompson, of Michigan City, Ind., are co-captains of the Presbyterian College 1956-57 basketball team. They were named today by vote of their teammates to lead the Blue Hose in the coming season which begins Nov. 30 in Clinton. Both players are seniors who have been engaged in varsity competition for the past three years.

Dave, who was a high school threat before coming to PC, scored 24.5 points per game last year.

He led the nation's top scoring for a while and he was also among the top until he was injured.

Bruce led the team offensive by averaging 26.7 points per game.

A very constant player whose quick reaction has made him one of the leading rebounders.

As a combination, Bruce and Dave work well together with Dave shooting from the outside and Bruce from the inside.

Offensively they were possibly the nation's highest scoring combination with a combined average of 51.2 in each game. Both in their final campaign this season, they are hoping to better their past records.

Indians Take Turkey Day; Fumble Cost Hose Again

An inspired group of Newberry Indians took the annual "Turkey Day" battle from the Presbyterian College Blue Hose to the tune of a 13-0 shut-out before a chilled crowd of 4,200. The surprising Indians were determined to take the victory for their injured quraterback, Steve Peterson, who suffered a broken neck in the Stetson game.

Newberry recovered five PC fumbles to stop Hose drives and they turned two of these into touchdowns. It was the first time the Hose had been shut out this season and it was the first whitewash at the hands of the Indians since 1947.

PC's Ken Webb was the contest's leading ball carrier with 138 yards in 20 carries for a 6.9 average. Fullback Eddie Brockenbrough added 73 in 16 attempts for an average of 4.5.

Leading the way for the Indians was halfback Tyler Dufford with 111 yards in 17 carries for an average of 6.5 yards. He also completed three out of 3 passes for 51 yards. Halfback Paul Davis added 53 yards in 13 attempts.

Brockenbrough fumbled on the Hose 3 and Ralph Voyles recovered for Newberry. Davis picked up seven and then Dufford took a pitchout and passed to end Jim Fraser to the PC 10. Dufford carried twice for 7 before quarterback Terry Dukes, on an option play carried over from the three for the initial tally of the battle. Taylor's attempted conversion was no good. After 4:25 of the first period it was Newberry 6, PC 0.

Newberry started another drive but end Russ Alexander recovered their fumble on his own 27. Webb and Brockenbrough got 18. Webb spurted for 19 to the Indian 35. Benson and Brockenbrough for 7.

A penalty gave the Hose a first down. Webb picked up 7 but Nalley fumbled and Dufford recovered at the 9. Dukes kicked dead at the PC 37. Brockenbrough got 12 and Benson 15. Webb moved for 12 to the 18. Webb and Benson picked up five and Cook failed to gain. Cook passed incomplete.

Near the beginning of the second half the Hose were set back to the 3 for holding. Brockenbrough fumbled and Olin McCurry recovered at the PC 30.

Dufford and Davis got 14 for a first down at the 16. Davis picked up 9 more and Dufford moved the ball to the 2, from where he carried over for the score. Taylor converted.

Newberry took over on downs at the Hose 25. They recovered their own fumble for a 12-yard loss and Dukes kicked out at the Hose 10. PC was penalized to their own 1 from which point Cook kicked. It was partially blocked by tackle Marion Lee and Olin McCurry pounced on the ball at the 17. Dukes fumbled and Alexander recovered at the 11.

Later in the period Webb returned Dufford's quick kick to the Indian 38. Brockenbrough and Webb got 18. Butler couldn't quite hold Cook's pass, but he was out of the end zone anyway. Newberry took over on the 20 and it was only a matter of running out the clock.

Cruickshanks Leaves College With Long Record of Service

A Presbyterian College loss has become a nationally known enterprise's gain. On Sat., Dec. 1, Alexander Cruickshanks, prominent and well liked instructor of Economics, will commence his services for the renowned Deering-Milliken chain.

He will serve in the position of personnel director of the Lockhart Division Power Plant and Mill associated directly with the Monarch Group of Mill.

As a graduate of PC, Mr. Cruickshanks has served officially and unofficially in a loyal and dependable manner. Not only did he set a precedent among professors but as a student also holding the position of president of the Student Body for the year 1942 and 1946.

He was a brother of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, Blue Key Honorary Fraternity and was also selected for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. He served on the Student Council for four years.

While an instructor the collegiate-looking professor has served as advisor for the International Relations Club, Student Christian Association and financial helper for Pi Kappa Phi fraternity.

Besides school activities Mr. Cruickshanks has served as program chairman for the Presbyterian church and Florida Street School Parent-Teachers Association which more than complete average civic duties in the community-conscious individual.

Easily recognized by his crew cut, collegiate dress and warm sincerity, Mr. Cruickshanks has attained a high degree of closeness with the present Student Body. He in the past has been termed a professor with that famed "PC spirit" which is justifiably exemplified at most school functions.

Mr. Cruickshanks will reside at Lockhart along with his wife, the former Robbie King, and their young son, Sandy.

Don Reid Will Scintillate Dancers at Christmas Ball

By BILL YEARICK

Bill Hart, president of the Inter-Fraternity council, announced early this week that Dec. 7 will be the date of the annual Christmas dance. The time of the dance will be from 9 until 1 with the dress being formal.

Hart also announced that Don Reid and his orchestra would entertain the student body. Reid, who is nationally known, is making his Clinton debut before the socialites at PC.

Reid has spent nine years with Jan Garber and has built his own band along the Garber lines. Probably the most notable factor in the Reid repertoire is its widely diversified offerings.

Playing pops, standards and a healthy grouping of oldies during the dance sets, he can also switch to the Latin American numbers still maintaining an excellent performance on the various tempos.

Throughout the year he has bookings slated in such cities as Kansas City, Milwaukee, and New York City, thus giving an indication of his popularity and ability.

Due to conflicting circumstances in the obtainment of the Clinton Armory, only one dance will be held at this time. Tickets will be sold at the door at $2.50 per couple to all non-fraternity men.

Hart also asked for the cooperation of the student body in ticket procedures as all fraternity tickets are non-transferable to both freshmen and other non-fraternity men.

Saturday night each fraternity will sponsor their own dance which will follow the order of the open socials.

Development Leaders . . .

These two Presbyterian leaders of Upper Charleston Presbytery are heading the Presbyterian College Development Program in that region. Directing this drive now underway to raise $12,000 are, left to right: the Rev. Hubert G. Wardlaw of Orangeburg; and Alex McCrackin of Bamberg. Both men are PC alumni.

DJ Drive Nears 800,000; All Region Results, Good

Presbyterian College's Diamond Jubilee Development program moved close to the $800,000 mark today as Charleston Presbytery almost reached its goal and the Macon region turned in its first report.

A total of $11,320 from 81 subscriptions was reported by the little Upper Charleston Presbytery area which had set its sights on $12,000.

And although the drive there has offciially closed, co-chairman the Rev. Hubert G. Wardlaw, of Orangeburg, and Alex McCrackin, of Bamberg, expressed confidence the region would complete its objective within a short time.

Macon area Presbyterians, meanwhile, brought in $18,773 from 71 gifts at their first report meeting on Thursday night. Solicitations toward the goal of $40,240 are continuing under the leadership of Henry K. Burns and the Rev. John E. Richards, both of Macon, and a second report is scheduled for next Thursday night.

The latest returns from these two reginos pushed the development program total to date to $795,373. The campaign being conducted within the Synods of South Carolina and Georgia, which control Presbyterian College, already has exceeded its minimum goal of $750,000.

Three other regions where drives are just getting underway to add to this total for PC are Savannah Presbytery, Lower Charleston Presbytery, and the Abbeville-Greenwood area.

Four Presbyterian churches exceeded their quotas in the Upper Charleston Presbytery campaign: the Bamberg Church reported $1,060 from seven gifts for 240 per cent; the Allendale Church brought in $1,530 from six subscriptions for 166 per cent; the Estill Church, $1,465 from four gifts for 156 per cent; and the Orangeburg First Church, $5,490 from 46 subscriptions for 110 per cent.

Two Presbyterian churches of the Macon region topped their marks at the first report meetnig: $14,265 from 25 gifts for 128 per cent; and the Eatonton Church had $730 from seven subscriptions for 116 per cent.

Finley Announces Christmas Party Plans

Jerry Finley, president of the Student Christian Association, announced that the annual Christmas party will be held Wednesday night in the college Chapel.

A special Christmas dinner prepared by L. V. Powell, manager of the dining hall, will start the festivities. Six fraternities, a local sorority, and the faculty will participate in the skits which will be the highlight of the evening. The skits will begin promptly at 7:30 in the Chapel.

Each fraternity and the sorority will seek to gain points toward the Intramural trophy. Christmas carols will precede the skits.

Between the skits the student body will be entertained by a band composed of PC students. The campus co-eds will serve refreshments in the rotunda at this time.

After the skits the PC Directory, edited by Ray Howe and the Freshman SCA Cabinet, will be distributed to the student body. The directory will consist of a list of each member of the student body and his address, plus other pertinent information.

Notice!

All seniors who plan to have their activities listed in the annual must have their lists in before the Christmas holidays or the lists will not be published. This announcement was made by Tap Tobias, editor.

Recent Poll Shows Student Interest in Careers Varied

In a recent poll, the wide range of educational opportunities offered at Presbyterian College was illustrated by the variety of careers for which students were preparing.

Students preparing for careers in the business world lead the list with a total of 112 aspirants. Presbyterian has many distinguished alumni in business conncetions, owing to the thorough scope of its busines program.

The ministry as a vocation is second in preference with a total of 70 men following the pre-ministerial course. The college boasts of over 300 ministers representing several denominations at home and on the mission field. This list includes several outstanding Pastors, Moderators, and a past President of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Teaching as a voctaion has attracted 41 students who are currently undergoing their periods of observation and practice teaching.

The professional carrer of Doctro of Medicine has come to the fore in recent years and now numbers 43 members of the student body who are planning to enter medical schools upon graduation. Watch Holiday Driving . . .

With the Christmas holidays coming up, the Lumberman's Mutual Casualty Company, of Chicago, has cited some sobering statistics in relation to driving habits. Those of us who will be exposing ourselves to the highway traffic, whether in the role of driver or passenger, will do well to watch our motoring habits.

Last year traffic accidents killed 36,000 Americans, 7,800 of whom were of college age. Many of these fatal accidents occurred during Christmas holidays when poor driving conditions combined with peak use of automobiles by college students, according to Lumberman's Mutual.

National accident figures show that most auto accidents are of the non-collision type and that vehicles either overturn or run off the road. Figures also show that in auto accidents one person is killed every fourteen minutes and one person is injured every 23 seconds. These statistics bear adequate testimony to the need for more care.

Many drivers of college age consider themselves to have excellent physical equipment, good coordination, fast reactions, and good eyesight. These suppositions are true, but because of careless driving habits and faulty attitudes, students have caused a large percentage of major highway disasters.

The Blue Stocking, as the voice of the Student Body, urges each operator of a motor vehicle to re-consider his habits concerning common horse sense and courtesy, taking into account the highway conditions while driving in order to lower the usual high accident toll of the holiday season which will be upon us soon.

We are urged by the Safety Council to consider the life or death question while we endanger others on the road by excessive speed, drunken driving, and other seemless indulgences which cause the need for the great number of junk yards and filled cemeteries in our society.

Keep the following question in mind when operating an auto: Are you going to die a needless death over the holidays?

Tour Scenes

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

Welcome, young ladies, to the only school in the south that produces men. (It says so in the catalogue, really it does.) We, the members of the United Daughters of Daddy-O, would like to take you on a little tour of our quaint old campus.

First, let us take the largest "barn", oops! I mean building on our campus, "Navel" Hall. We attend classes in this ramblnig wreck and sometimes go to chapel. You can't possibly sneak into class late because the floor creaks so.

Be careful of the cracks in the floor, too, you might end up with a broken toe and wouldn't be able to go to class at all. Perish the thought!

If you see some of the boys going to chapel with a crowbar and hammer don't be alarmed. They are just going to fix their chapel seats—so they won't be able to sit in them for the rest of the year.

The next buliding is the "Ye Ole Tavern" run by Pilgrim Powell. This is where the Coffee Club, led by "Caffine" Caldwell, has their meetings.

Also the rest of the student body gather here three times a day to criticize the food. You see not only is the "Tavern" quaint, but so is the food.

We often have that delicious dish, "Leftovers a la Mold." The next stop on our tour is the "Country Club", that was, until frequently, the abode of a group of the most elite gentlemen on our campus.

It seems their wild well-mannered antics at night impaired the health of Mrs. Bob. Therefore they were asked to beat it.

We wanted to save the best to the last, but we just can't wait. Our student center, commonly known as the SCA building, is another antique on our campus. This lovely old "wreck", I mean relic, used to be the president's home, no less.

You wouldn't think the president of a college would be so rough on a building, would you but we guess when you get a bunch of guys together like our faculty for a party, it would be kind of bad.

Why, just one round of Miss Amanda and Mr. Erwin doing the bop would make the floor sag. Oh well, back to the tour. This stop is at the one bright spot on our gloomy horizon, "Bailey Boarding House".

You see, the reason it is still in such good condition is that the boys just drop in every once in a while to sleep. They really live at some place called "Charlie's".

Girls, you can't leave without seeing the loveliest building on the campus, the "Rah-Rah Roost", but we can't let you in on what goes on there because even Daddy-O is still trying to find out what is going on behind the "Green Door."

Slob Hits the Wagon

By LYMAN HARRIS

Hot O'Rudy and myself walked across the Plaza toward the Science Building. The wind was kinda whipping it up, so we had to brush ourselves off when we got to the other side. Hot O. Said, "Dad blame it. They could have at least taken the chicken feathers out of that fertilizer before they put it out!"

Two boys were coming our way and I recognized only one of them. I asked, "Hot O., who's that coming yonder with Soodo?" Hot O. looked that way and said, 'Holy cow! It's Slob Jones and he's sober! This is the first time he has been sober since he had the accident in his youth (He fell off the wagon). And he's with a pre-ministerial student, too. What's he trying to do, ruin his reputation?"

Soodo, the fellow Slob was with, graduated from Bali High in a town named Babel. He didn't need to come to college, because he's practically prefect now. He's a self-made man, and he did such a good job on making himself that he's planning on manufacturing more.

He and a couple of his followers seceded from the Ministerian Club and formed the Mutual Admiration Society. It's an organization for the elite of the elect.

Soodo aped everything he is from somebody else and it made a crazy combination. He has his hair cut like Chuck Templeton, has a Graham grin, and a Peale perfection in his religion. His drawers were made out of sackcloth.

Hot O. and I knew that if we didn't let him speak first he would be mad, so we waited for him to speak. "Halo, brethren," he finally said. We bowed to him, and he prayed for us and left.

Hot O. said. "Slob, am I crazy, or are you sober, or are you crazy?" Slob said, "I'm dead sober. Yep, I'm on the wagon. I did it for my wife and kidneys."

We both congratulated him, and asked him how it happened that he decided to crawl on the water wagon. Slob said, "Well, I went over to the chow hole the other night to see Mr. Powell. I couldn't find him, so I asked one of the cooks if he could tell me where to find him. The cook was pretty busy swapping slop for hogs with a farmer, so all he told me was that Powell was out in his car running down chickens for the Sunday dinner.

"So I went on inside and got something to eat. We had fried stake, chinaberries and carrots, and jungle.

After supper I didn't feel right inside, and so I got to thinking it over and decided that what I needed was some religion. So I talked to Soodo, and he fixed me up."

We shook his hand and congratulated him again, and then hurried off to see Colonel Smith. The military department had checked back over Hot O.'s records and found out that he played the cymbals in kindergarten, and drafted him into the band. They have him playing a trombone, because they said it wouldn't make much difference.

Hose Courtmen Take Two; Dump Parris Island, ACU

The 1956-57 Blue Hose basketball team roared into action in the past week by taking their first two games over strong opponents.

The Hose opened the season against the power-laden Parris Island Marine quintet and outraced the service team for a 100-94 victory. It was a nip and tuck contest from beginning to end. The lead changed hands several times, with the score being tied 44-44 at halftime.

Parris Island came back strongly after intermission and began to pull away from the Hosemen. Midway into the final half, the Marines held a ten point lead. Then the Blue Hose spirit began to come to life. Spirited play by Sullivan, Adams, Aiken, and Caswell, along with the high-scoring Thompsons began to pay off for the Hose as they caught fire and took a commanding lead that was not to be overcome. With but seconds remaining, Adams produced a lay up that put the PC'uns to the century mark. The tall, experienced Parris Island five as they walked off the court realized that they had been defeated by perhaps one of C's potentially most powerful team in the school's history.

Pacing the Blue Hose in the scoring parade were Dave Thompson with 31 points, Bruce Thompson with 24 points, and Ken Caswell with 20 points.

On Tuesday night the Hose traveled to Wilson, N. C., to pay Atlantic Christian College a visit, and soundly trounced the North State Conference powers by the score of 93-81. It was a fierce battle in its entirety, and the final outcome was not decided until the waning minutes of the game. The conquest of the Bulldogs marked the first time in thirty-four home games that they had been defeated. It was the same old story: too much of the Thompson boys! Dave dumped in 33 and Bruce hit for 24 points.

Blue Hose Gridmen Retire; Post High Yards, Low Score

By CECIL GEDDINGS

The annual Thanksgiving day clash has come and gone and the 1956 team have their accomplishments written in the record books. Although the 4-6-0 won-lost mark was not as good as was expected of the Powerful Blue Hose, the team had a good year.

Their total offense showed 3,128 yards in 676 attempts for a game average of 4.7 per try. They scored 22 touchdowns and made good fourteen extra points for a total of 146 points. The Hose connected on 57 of 131 passes attempted for 778 yards and three TD's.

Leading the PC rushing attack was halfback Ken Webb. The 200-lb. Decatur, Ga., bulldozer, although missing completely the Tampa and Catawba games, rushed for 624 yards in 112 carries for a 5.6 average. He also threw one pass and completed it for 49 yards.

Webb now has 1893 yards rushing in the three years that he has been at PC. This is an average of 86 yards per game and 5.2 per carry.

Behind Webb was Gene Butler, of Conway, who carried 76 times for 355 yards, and a 4.7 average per carry. Also rushing for better than 300 yards was fullback Eddie Brockenbrough, of Charlotte, who carried the ball 90 times for 342 yards and a 3.9 average. Brockenbrough was the only PC back who was not stopped for a loss the entire season.

In the passing department quarterback Felder Cook, of North Charleston, was the leader. He completed 42 of the 85 aerials he attmepted for 552 yards and one TD. Ron Isger, Blue Hose quarterback, from Clairton, Pa., was second with 14 completions in 38 attempts. Two of his shots were for TD's.

Ted Leahy, end, from Atlanta, led the pass receivers with 186 yards on the strength of 10 catches and one touchdown. Ken Webb was runner-up in the department, with 10 catches for 142 yards and one touchdown. Gene Butler was close behind the leaders as he hauled in 8 passes for 96 yards.

Also other backfield standouts were halfback Tony Benson, of Chester, who led the team in average per carry. Benson gained 219 yards in 35 tries for a 6.3 average. Billy Nalley, of Central, ries for a 4.4 average. Raymond Johnson carried 53 times, ground out 296 yards in 67 carpicking up 262 yards to rank among the top with 4.9 yards per try.

Up front the Blue Hose entire line played consistent, hard, heads-up football. Outstanding on defense were Tommy Warren, Jackie Powers, Chico Lee, Ted Leahy, and James Walker. On offense, Jim McLaughlin, Richard Shrigley, Wayne Shoemaker, Jack Coppley, and Bob Matthews led the way.

Hose Roundballers Meet Citadel Monday

On Monday night the Presbyterian College basketball team will welcome an old friend and a new opponent. The Hose will do battle with ex-PC coach Norman Sloan's Citadel Bulldogs. This will be the third start of a young season for the Hose.

The Hose will be playing a Freshman studded Citadel team that has the possibilities of a prosperous and bright future in the cage world. The Citadel, doormat of the South in basketball for many years, is slowly crawling out of the depths and can soon be considered a team of high calibre.

PC will be favored to take the contest but will have to be cautious, for from pre-season talk The Citadel will be rough.

Starting for the Hose will be the Thompsons, Caswell, Aiken, and Sullivan.

PiKA, Sigma Nu On Top in Intramural

By CECIL GEDDINGS

In the first game of the week, Pi Kappa Alpha trounced the Globetrotters by a 63 to 13 score. The game that followed this on Monday afternoon found Sigma Nu cruising to an easy 43-16 win over the House of Henry team. Jack Hudspeth and Billy Fulton led the way with 14 and 12 points, respectively. Top scorers for the losers were Billy Webb and Nick Kanos with six points each.

Led by Bill Francis and John McIntosh, the Spencer Cats upset the Kappa Alpha five in the opening game of the Monday night double-header Francis hit for eleven while McIntosh dumped in nine as the Cats took a 40 to 28 decision. John Brownlow with eight and Jimmy Hentz with seven were top men for Kappa Alpha. The second game saw Pi Kappa Alpha pick up its third consecutive win with a decisive 59 to 16 rout of Alpha Sigma Phi. Bill Aycock paced the winners with sixteen points. He was closely followed by "Swede" Norris with fifteen points. Buddy Mullis had nine points for top honors for Alpha Sigma Phi.

On Tuesday afternoon The Rebels remained undefeated as they came through with a hard-fought 36 to 31 victory over The Old Wheels. Bryan Carr was tops for the losers with ten points. Leland Brown and Russ Alexander each had eight. Top man for the night was Gene Butler of The Old Wheels with a total of twelve. Also Johnny Tennant collected six points for the losers.

The only game on Wednesday saw Pi Kappa Phi give a highly favored Ferocious Five feam a big scare before they fell to defeat to the tune of 46 to 39.

In order to keep a complete record of the standings and top scorers, each team captain is asked to turn in after each game the box score to Cecil Geddings. HOSE TO MEET THE CITADEL

The Blue Hose will take on former PC Coach Norman Sloan's Citadel Bullodgs here Monday night in what should prove to be an interesting affair. Of course, the highly-touted Hose of this season should remain a solid favorite, but Sloan has fielded an improved team with promise for the future.

While Sloan was head basketball coach at PC his teams rolled up impressive wins and just as impressive seasons. His work put the Hose or rather kept the Hose in the thick of the fight for the state champ honors and also established the Host as one of the small college powers of the nation as well as the South.

While the large colleges of South Carolina were concentrating on football especially three of the smaller colleges of the state applied their main interests to basketball and did very well at it. One of the schools even dropped football entirley. These three schools were Prsebyterian, Woford, and Erskine.

These schools still field topflight basketball teams that play an interesting fast-break type of ball. The teams show uncanny shooting ability and excellent floor work .

It will be interesting to watch Sloan's new team in action and to watch a Hose team which contains three men who played under Sloan tackle their former coach's team.

The game Monday night will be the last for the Hose basketeers until after the Christmas holidays. The team has started off the season with two victories against no defeats and it looks like another banner year for the high-flying PC basketball team.

I-M BASKETBALL

As the Intramural basketball teams close out their second week three teams have established themselves as the "teams to beat." The Ferocious Five, last year's winners, have fielded another topflight team and they have looked like probable repeaters in games played so far. However, the Pi Kappa Alpha team is also very strong. They display a good rebounding and good shooting team and they are also top contenders for the title. The third team that will probably be in the thick of he battle for the No. 1 position is Sigma Nu. There are other fine teams in the battle that could knock off these top teams and leave the title wide open for claims. This I-M season should prove very interesting right down to the final game.

With a streak of warm weather this past week the tennis team hit full stride in their practice. John Brownlow still remains the top man as a result of the weekly tournaments. Harvey Jackson is a not-too-distant second and Guice Potter is third. However, Potter has been out all week with a badly bruised knee. Hoffman, Shakespeare, Peck, Lowe, and Roberts are rounding into top form and the Hose again look strong.

CONGRATULATIONS AGAIN

Congratulations to Ted Leahy, Tommy Warren, and Ken Webb. All three were given honorable mentions on the Little All-American team. Leahy, an end, is a rising junior, while Webb, a halfback, is a rising senior. Warren is a graduating senior who has turned in four fine years of play for the Hose football team.

SHORT SHOTS

Bailey Dormitory tennis team has wrapped up a tennis match between them and Smyth "B" section by taking five of the six singles matches. The double swill be played next week. The match was the result of a challenge by Smyth coach John Brownlow, Bailey coach Guice Potter last week staged an invitational tournament which Harry Booker won. Brownlow made the challenge as Potter had asked none of his team to enter the tournament . . . It has been pretty cold but some of the track team have already begun working out in preparation for this season's schedule . . . One of the Hose opponents placed a man on the third team Little All-American. He is tackle George Rice, of Wofford . . . Remember the basketball game Monday night. It's one you won't want to miss.

Religious Emphasis Scheduled for March

Religious Emphasis Week is scheduled for the Presbyterian College campus on March 11-15 this year

The Student Christian Association sponsors this annual period when all campus activity pauses to give special emphasis to religion, and plans already are being developed to bring several outstanding Chrisian leaders to PC for the occasion.

The REW program includes two inspirational services daily attended by the entire student body, classroom discussion groups, individual consultations, and religious "bull sessions" in the dormitories at night.

PiKA Names Howe To Lead Next Semester

Ray Howe, a senior from Gastonia, N. C., was elected president of Mu Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha in their winter election Tuesday night. He replaces Bob Helm, a senior frmo Elberton, Ga.

Johnny Tennent, a senior from Rock Hill, was selected to succeed Ray Howe as vice-president.

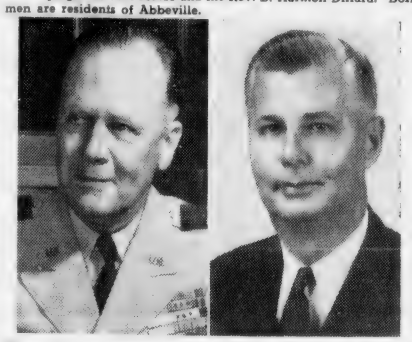
Ramon Veal, senior from Atlanta, Ga., was chosen to replace junior Blair Baldwin, of Blair, at the position of secretary. Joe Thompson, a junior from Fayetteville, N. C., was selected to fill the position of treasurer which was vacated by senior Don Rickett, of Hapeville, Ga.

The election also included the replacement of Walt McConnell, of Clover, by Bob Mathews, of Decatur, Ga., as Sergeant-at-Arms.

Choir Leads Service In Christmas Program

The Laurens-Clinton radio station recorded the annual Christmas music service which was given in chapel Wed., Dec. 12. Station WLBG used the recording

The program, under the direction of Dr. Edouard Patte, consisted of musical selections introduced by portions of Scripture which were read by Dick Carter. Ramon Veal, co-president of the Robed Choir, gave a running commentary of the meaning and origins of the choral numbers.



This was the first appearance of the Girls' Choir this year. The girls joined with the Double Quartette for one selection thus forming a mixed choir, the first of its kind at PC.

The leaders of the Abbeville-Greenwood Diamond Jubilee campaign are Joel Morse and the Rev. B. Harmon Dillard. Both men are residents of Abbeville.

Two outstanding Savannah men head up the Jubilee Campaign in the Savannah Presbytery. They are: Gen. Joseph B. Fraser, of Hinesville; and the Rev. John P. Simmons, of Savannah.

Development Tops Mark; Student Center Delayed

More than $850,000 has been subscribed to the Presbyterian College Diamond Jubilee Development program after final reports from five additional regions.

President Marshall W. Brown announced that a total of $853,973.61 has been raised through 6,337 subscriptions, mostly from throughout the controlling Synods of Georgia and South Carolina.

He pointed out the results thus far have far exceeded the $750,000 goal set for the development program last year. At least one more region remains to be campaigned, and new gifts continue to arrive from areas where drives already have been conducted and from alumni beyond the bounds of the two synods.

The five latest regions to report added approximately $80,000 to the program through 621 subscriptions. These areas and their totals are:

Macon region—under the leadership of Henry K. Burns, and the Rev. John E. Richards, both of Macon—$26,833.50 from 223 gifts; Lower Charleston Presbytery—led by Frank S. Hay, Sr., and the Rev. T. Robert Fulton, both of Charleston—$18,252 from 128 contributions; Upper Charleston Presbytery—headed by Alex McCrackin, of Bamberg, and the Rev. Hubert G. Wardlaw, of Orangeburg—$12,000 from 82 gifts; Abbeville - Greenwood — led by Joel Morse and the Rev. B. Herman Dillard, both of Abbeville—$12,190 from 155 subscriptions; and Savannah Presbytery — under the leadership of Gen. Joseph B. Fraser, of Hinesville, and the Rev. John P. Simmons, of Savannah—$10,005 from 23 gifts.

Collins Announces Military Ball Date

Noble Collins, Captain-President of the Company K, Tenth Regiment of the Scabbard and Blade, national honorary military fraternity, announced that the final plans for the Military Ball have been made.

The date of the Military Ball is Mar. 16. Collins also said that Dean Hudson and his orchestra will provide the entertainment for both dances inaugurating the social activities for the PC student body for the year of 1957.

Hudson has appeared here before and made a very favorable impresion on the people who remember his last visit. The dance will be held at the Clinton Armory.

The price for those students not in the Presbyterian College ROTC detachment is $2.00 with the dress being formal the first night and PC formal the second night (March 17). Just prior to the intremission, a leadout will take place honoring the senior cadets and their dates.

Also at this time recognition will be given to the members of the military Ball Committee who have worked so hard in promoting the annual affair. Collins also announced that there would be an honorary batallion commander chosen for the event.

Quiet Please . . .

When exam time rolls around, it seems that there are two types of people on our campus—those who study and those who don't. The inconsiderate of the latter group is steadily increasing as exams draw nearer. The dormitories are slowly beginning to resemble convention halls, with much laughing, shouting and buffoonery until all hours of the night. Any semblance of learning, quiet reverie or serious grammar or Bic Radio is apt to be smashed by a neighboring radio giving complicated birth to "I'm a Lonely Frog" or some such jungle riot. Of course, "the boys" can always be depended on to come stumbling in and blaspheme their pathetic attempt at identity. No doubt they are only under the influence of Laurence Welk's "Champagne Music", for as men of honor they wouldn't dream of breaking any rules.

It seems that this particular time makes the studious work harder and the non-studious work harder to keep from studying. It is hoped that this latter group will realize how noisy their labor is, and have more consideration for those who have respect for the ones sending them through school.

In other words, fellas, let's try to keep it quiet for exam week at least.

Welcome . . .

A new organization, or rather part of an old organization, has come into being on our campus and we feel it worthy of editorial comment.

Under the instigation of Dr. Joseph M. Gettys, Professor of Bible, an evangelistic team has been formed within the Ministerial Club. This team will present programs largely before youth groups within suitable traveling distance.

We feel this worthy of comment because a group has been formed which will represent the college and the club in a way which agrees with their mutual purpose of foundation.

THETA CHI

Several additions have been made to the fraternity suite during the last month. The brothers and pledges have worked very hard to redecorate the rooms.

At its meeting Tuesday night the plans for the annual chapel program and the "smoker" were discussed.

The fraternity is very proud to announce the engagement of two of its members, Bobby Lee Edwards and Gary Smith.

A report of the grand chapter was received at this time as information.

Hot O. Comes Back

By LYMAN HARRIS

Hot O. came running in after chapel period with our mail in his hand. He had just finished checking our mail box and fighting his way back out. He finished ripping his shirt off and wiped the blood stains off his pants before he opened the envelope in his hand.

Hot O. Said, "It's from Him. Smilin' Ed and his Buster Brown gang. They want us to report to the Administration building today." Then he threw the letter away and stretched across his bed. "You know, I could use a laugh. I think I'll go down and see what they want. After all, since I got the shaft from Mother, this is all the mail we get, and if we don't go to see them when they ask us, they might get their feelings hurt and quit writing." So we took off.

While we were walking across the plaza, Hot O fell in a tire rut. I lifted him out, and said, "Say, you picked up a little weight over the holidays, didn't you?"

He said, "Man, did I? I was so glad to get back to food, that all I did while I was home was eat. I went to the refrigerator so much that my right arm got frostbitten. One night I ate so much popcorn my stomach went snowblind."

I asked, "How much did you gain?"

He said, "I don't know. I got so fat that every time I went by a drug store, the sales jumped aside. I was so fat when I left that I had to kiss my mother goodbye through an interpreter. But I ain't sweating it. Now that I'm back I'll take weight off faster than a strip tease in a burning burlesque house.

On the other side of the plaza we met Father Frazer coming up the sidewalk. He smiled and spoke. I curtseyed and Hot O. sang "Ave Maria." I said, "You know, the good Father is a friendly fellow, isn't he?"

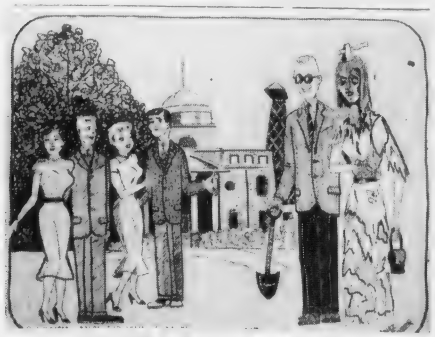
Hot O. said, "Yeah, but he has to be. He can't fight and he can't run so he don't have no choice."

We pushed the door of the Administration building open and walked in. I stopped for a drink of water while Hot O. swatted at a low-flying vampire. When we turned the corner into the administration section, Smilin' Ed met us.

He put handcuffs on us so we wouldn't pick anything up and said, "I've made a few changes in my building since the last time you were here. Follow me and I'll show you." He whistled and a man came running out, dressed in World War I army khakis. "You've met the Colonel, haven't you?" Smilin' Ed said. "Shake the boys' hands, Colonel."

The Colonel said, "thank you," and grabbed our hands. Hot O. saluted him and he jumped up and down with glee and ran off happily.

Then we came to a closet marked "Colored." Smilin' Ed explained that this was Dr. Brown's office. He said, "Colored" signs are cheaper than "Brown" signs, and since they are synonyms, we figured it would be alright. We all must make a few sacrifices, you know.



Then we talked to him about our business and left, because I'm running out of space.

• Chapel Speaker •

The six social fraternities on the Presbyterian College campus are leading the final six chapel services of the semester.

During the preceding week, the programs were led by Alpha Sigma Phi, Kappa Alpha, and Pi Kappa Alpha in that order.

Next week the services will be led by Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Nu, and Theta Chi, respectively. Chapel services are held regularly every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and this particular series is under the sponsorship of the Student Christian Association.

Well, he finally dug up a date!

Happy New Year!

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

Happy New Year! I guess it is better a little late than never. By now, I bet all those New Year's resolutions are already forgotten and everybody is fighting hard to settle down and get back in the old routine. But, those forces of memories of the holidays are pretty tough to just forget about.

Every meal you eat brings back the memories of all those holiday banquets and you practically strave to death just thinking about the difference between them and what you have to eat. It seems that everything around the campus reminds you of something that happened during the holidays.

Right in the middle of Bible class, you somehow conjur up the happenings of that fabulous Christmas Eve party, where they served the most delectable puncn. It's an awful thing to think about in Bible class, but after all you were studying about water being changed to wine.

When you change classes you think of the Christmas rush. The only difference is you are rushing to get out instead of in.

Astronomy only reminds you of those private classes you held only a few nights ago. Strange, though, that chemistry class should remind you of that certain perfume she wore. And speaking of her, when you get to economics you realize how much she helped you increase the nation debt over the holidays.

All through business problem you try to figure out where that money you worked and slaved for went so fast. But, when you dash over to the SCA building and get that certain letter you realize it must have done some good.

In psychology you try to psycho-analyze some of those goon you met at the New Year's party. The strange part is that every body was crazy except you, at least you think so, you can't be sure. Everything that happened is a little hazy. It did happen quite a while back.

Certain people remind you of the holidays, too. His Anne! I just heard someone say that they got a purple cow for Christmas. My cousin got a duck. It waddled and quacked! Sarah, did you have a nice Christmas? I understand that Rutledge Durant should have gotten a doll for Christmas since he is losing his.

Norma Jean's little sister got a teddy bear and Norma Jean said it looked exactly like Bill Nalley and it does, too! Angela got a new sweater for Christmas; I wonder if Bess got one, too.

Well, if we're going to pass I guess we had better forget about the holidays. Bu, I had to let Daddy-O in on what went on in our strange little minds after holidays, so he could write another chapter in his book. At the rate he was going he would never get it published.

Ferocious Five Quintet Keeps Lead in Intramual

By CECIL GEDDINGS

The [illegible] Ferocious Five quartet remained undefeated by dumping two opponents as the Intramural Basketball season resumed play following the holidays. Sigma Nu took pleasure in the beaten Pi Kappa Alpha in what was considered a mild upset.

This enabled Sigma Nu to remain atop the standings with the Ferocious Five. Both teams have identical 4-0 records though the powerful Ferocious Five have been well out front in point of production in games played thus far.

On Monday night Sigma Nu slipped by Pi Kappa Alpha 33 to 22 in a game which saw two previously unbeaten teams come together. It was a tight, low-scoring battle for most of the first half with Sigma holding an 11 to 8 halftime margin.

In the second half the PiKA' made a desperate [illegible] but with both teams' accuracy way off, the Sig's held on for the win. Billy Fulton and Larry Brown with 9 points each led the winners. Bob Mathews was top man for the PiKa's with six.

In the first game on Tuesday night the Ferocious Five led by the scoring of Bob Stevens overwhelmed the House of Henry by a 67-27 count. Grabbing an early lead the scoring of Stevens and the Ferocious Five reserve strength proved too much for the smaller House of Henry team. Stevens dropped in 26 for the top individual performance so far this season. Gus Bell contributed 14 for the winners. The big gun for the losers was Billy Webb with a total of 12.

The second game of the night found the Old Wheels picking up their first win of the current season with a 30 to 24 decision over the winless Globetrotters. With Johnny Tennent leading the way with six points the Wheels pulled ahead for good in the closing minutes of play, mostly on foul shots caused by the Globetrotters' eagerness to get the ball.

George Banks, the top scorer for the game, led the Trotters with seven points. He was followed closely by Harvey Jackson and Allen Snider who collected six each. The Old Wheels unleashed their demon wrecking team who played an important part in their first win. This tough bunch is composedof Ken Webb, Alvis Poe, Bill Bowman, Walt McConnell, and Tommy Warren.

The Wednesday night games found two thrillers. The first game was a nip and tuck battle which found the Spencer Cats taking a hard-fought 28-25 victory at the hands of the Old Wheels. It was close all the way with the Cats taking a 6-0 lead in the opening minutes and pulling out at intermision with a 15 to 12 advantage.

Late in the game the Cats chose to stage a freeze and it was very effective in aiding the Cats to secure victory on two in three starts. Top performmoers for the [illegible] were Jerry McIntosh [illegible] Cavers points and Harry Hoffman with nine. For the Wheels who suffered their third [illegible] Bill Porter and Bruce Cash contributed five points each.

The [illegible] was a game [illegible] intramural ball at its best. The [illegible] started out as if it would be another of the thhriller type, but midway of the first half, the [illegible] Five began to pull away and at halftime the PiKA'ers were trailing 38 to 24.

In the second half, the PiKA'ers seemed to catch fire and late in the game the lead was cut to one point. The Ferocious Five had to put on pressure to down Pi Kappa Alpha 51 to 43. Bob Stevens, who leads all intramural scorers with an average of 23.5, was again top man for the winners with 21 points. He was followed by Richard Shrigley with ten. For Pi Kappa Alpha Swede Norris and Ron Isger had eleven and ten points, respectively.

Standings:

Ferocious Five	4	0	1.000
Sigma Nu	4	0	1.000
Rebels	2	0	1.000
Kappa Alpha	2	1	.667
Spencer Cats	2	1	.667

Pi Kappa Phi	1	2	.333
Old Wheels	1	3	.250

Hose Basketballers Drop Game to Bears

The Mercer University Bears came from a 17-point deficit at the half to tie PC and then go on [illegible] in an overtime period by the score of 112-110. The Hose had completely outclassed Mercer during the first half on the Bears' home court in Macon, but could not stave off the tremendous last half surge.

The loss was the first of the season for the Hose against four wins. For Mercer it was the third win. The Bears had previously lost a close decision to Wofford while the Blue Hose upset tomorrow night.

Bear Captain Roger Bolton sparked the drive that took Mercer into a 103-103 tie. The Hose had held a 17-point lead at halftime and at one period in the second half led by 21 points.

Bolton with only two points at intermission wound up the connade a tip-in with ten seconds retest with a total of 26. Ray Banks [illegible]aining in the overtime period [illegible] the Bears.

In a meeting between sponsors and representatives of Newberry, Erskine, and Presbyterian, it was decided to hold the contest in Anderson this year. HOSE LOSE FIRST CONTEST

After a layoff over the Christmas holidays the Presbyterian College Blue Hose basketeers wound up the spring tight to go for the remainder of the season. The Hose started well with a 108-102 exhibition victory over the Greer Rockets and then easily stopped Piedmont College 107-77.

The Hose traveled to Macon Wednesday to meet Mercer. The Bears were not expected to beat PC and were only expected to push the powerful Hose only slightly. Things went as expected in the first half as PC built up a 17-point lead and then increased it to 21 in the second period. But Mercer came scrambling back to tie the game at 103 all at the end of regulation play. The Bears then went on to outscore PC 9-7 in the overtime period and capture the win.

So the first loss of the season has been recorded in the books and the Hose are coming home to meet the Wofford Terriers in an important Little Four contest on the home court. PC is no longer undefeated but the Hose still have a terrific team. They are the current champions of the Little Four and look like good bets to repeat if all goes well. A win against the Terriers would help tomorrow night and put PC off and running to their second straight Little Four tourney [illegible] at Anderson.

LITTLE FOUR TOURNEY SET FOR MARCH 1-2

The Little Four basketball tournament has been set at Anderson for March 1-2. The tourney was played there last year and turned out to be a terrific success. Last year's sponsors, the Anderson Lions Club, wanted to sponsor the affair again this year and the four entering schools agreed. So it's a return to Anderson for the tournament and we hope a return to the Blue Hose of the championship trophy which they now hold.

I-M BASKETBALL

The I-M basketball schedule was full this week and saw ten games played. The contests were all hotly contested and well played. The standings are tightening near the top but a few teams are gradually slipping. All teams are tightening for the home stretch and a chance to cop the winner's trophy (not really a trophy, just an expression.).

PC NETTERS IN TOURNEY

Presbyterian's top-notch tennis team has been invited to play in the Good Neighbor tennis tournament at Miami which starts March 18. It will be the first action of the season for the Hose and should prove to be an interestng affair. The tourney will pit last year's collegiate champs, Miami University, against last year's no. 2 team, Presbyterian, and one of the top powers in the East, Yale.

Representing Presbyterian at this legislature were Senator Lyman Harris, of Birmingham, Ala.; Senator Hugh Burns, of Piedmont, Ala.; Representative Joel Easterling, of Hartsville; and Representative Joel Patrick, of Manhattan Beach, Calif.

Senators Harris and Burns presented a bill to the Senate calling for a repeal of the Japanese import law, concerning textiles. Representative Patrick introduced a bill calling for the shortening of the residential requirements for voters in the state. Representative Easterling presented for approval, a resolution advocating the drawing up of a new Constitution for South Carolina.

Registration for the delegates began Friday morning in the Russell House lobby. There was a joint meeting of all delegates in the Chamber of the House of Representatives at the State Capitol. Secretary of State Frank Thornton welcomed the delegates at this joint assembly. After this address the delegates adjourned to their respective chambers Here, each House elected officers and made committee assignments. The delegates adopted certain established rules of procedure. Following this was the introduction of Bills and reference to the different committees.

Friday afternoon the committees met and elected chairmen and secretaries. Also, that afternoon a session was held for general legislation. Friday night the committees met in the business Administration building. At 10:00 P. M. the delegates adjourned from the committee chambers at the State Capitol. They heard the committee reports and had the session of legislation. The Student Legislature adjourned Saturday afternoon. The close of the two-day meeting was climaxed by a dinner for the defegates in the Russell House Cafeteria. At this dinner an address was made by Mr. Sydney Duncan on instructive criticism of legislature. This undertaking was given statewide coverage and interest.

Saturday morning the delegations assembled in the respective meetings.

"Me letting my kids down?"

You give your children the best of everything — you advise them, protect them, and share their fun. Can a parent do more?

Yes, there is one other responsibility, easy to overlook. In these years of educational crisis, if you haven't taken an active part in school affairs . . . it's possible you are letting your children down.

Many communities today are faced with local variations of a single nationwide problem: How to cope with the rapid and continuing increase in school enrollments. In some places, the problem takes the form of overcrowded classrooms . . . in others, of a shortage of teachers, or of equipment.

One excellent way you can help insure good schools is by joining your neighbors in community educational conferences. Across the nation, such conferences have found solutions for a wide variety of local school problems — such as financing new equipment . . . adding qualified teachers . . . consolidating schools.

It can be done! Enlightening "case histories" of local school improvement campaigns that worked are yours for the asking. Please indicate the nature of your local school objectives so that we may send you the material that best fits your needs. Write: Better Schools, 2 West 45th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

PC Diamond Jubilee Surpasses $1,000,000

Presbyterian College development program subscriptions approached $1,000,000 during the past year, President Marshall W. Brown announced.

He said a total of $938,200 was subscribed during this most productive single fund-raising period in the history of the institution.

The Diamond Jubilee campaign among Presbyterians of South Carolina and Georgia has produced $854,200 thus far. In addition, the Ford Foundation allotted $77,000 to PC; the Esso Foundation gave $4,000; Colgate-Palmolive-Peet, $2,000; and United States Steel, $1,000.

President Brown said these funds will enable Presbyterian College to meet pressing needs in the form of two new buildings and some endowment increases. He pointed out, however, that continuing greater support is imperative if the college is to maintain its pace of effective service in Christian education.

Construction of a new student center and a chapel-auditorium have top priority in the development planning at PC. Additions to endowment are being used to increase faculty salaries and scholarships to worthy students.

The Diamond Jubilee drive total of $854,200—already over the $750,000 goal, with Piedmont Presbytery yet to be campaigned—shows $557,602 contributed in South Carolina and $254,621 in Georgia. Alumni beyond the bounds of these two synods sent in $33,102, while $8,875 was added by PC students and miscellaneous sources.

The total 6,335 subscriptions average just over $103 per gift.

The $557,602 in South Carolina gifts averaged $136.47 for each of 4,086 subscriptions. There are 51,850 Presbyterians in the 14 regions campaigned within the state, which means the giving averaged $10.77 for each church member.

A similar breakdown of Georgia gifts figures a $120.45 average for each of 2,114 subscriptions and a church-member average of $4.62 for the 55,1150 Presbyterians situated in areas where drives were conducted.

The local area centered in Clinton, although relatively small, topped all other regions by subscribing $155,006 on 528 gifts. Atlanta and its vicinty, focal point of Presbyterianism in Georgia, contributed almost one-half of this state's total with $112,390 subscribed by 959 donors.

Elsewhere in South Carolina, Greenville County came second with $74,383 on 446 gifts; the Columbia region had $70,000 with 517 gifts; Spartanburg region, $57,948 with 453; Rock Hill region, $49,378 with 629; Darlington region, $32,516 with 346; Aiken region, $21,068 with 148; Sumter region, $18,502 with 192; Char-Marion region, $14,690 with 126; leston region, $17,645 with 146; Abbeville region, $13,005 with 144; Orangeburg region, $12,350 with 97; Florence region, $10,673 with 119; and Kingstree region, $9,867 with 190.

Elsewhere in Georgia, the Rome area came secnod with $33,100 on 286 gifts; Macon region had $27,627 with 227 gifts; Augusta region, $23,033 with 275; La Grange region, $19,743 with 186; Columbus region, $16,250 with 3; Savannah region, $11,460 with 31; and Athens region, $10,918 with 147.

Second Semester Enrolls 510 PC'uns

Presbyterian college's second semester enrollment totals 510 students, the office of registrar announced today.

This total represents the highest spring semester registration figure in history at PC, but as usual it is below the first semester peak of 541 students.

The registrar's office pointed out that several students had completed work upon their degrees at the close of the last term, while a number of others had been required to leave because of academic failure.

Classwork launching the second semester of the 1956-57 session at Presbyterian began last Friday. The schedule will now continue uninterrupted until the start of Easter holidays on April 18. This week-long spring vacation period will extend through April 24, after which students will point toward commencement on June 2-3.

• Chapel Speakers •

The schedule of chapel speakers for the next two weeks has been posted by associate professor Hay. The emphasis has been on student participation whenever the situation permits.

Dr. Edouard Patte, professor of sociology, will be in charge of the initial program next week. The Wednesday and Friday services will be conducted by the Inter-Fraternity Council and Westminster Fellowship, respectively. The purpose of the IFC program is to acquaint the new students with, and remind the old ones of, the rules htat govern Rush Week.

Dr. Alexander Stump, professor of Biology, is responsible for both the Monday and Wednesday services of the week beginning Feb. 18. The Baptist Student Union will conduct the final program of the week, Feb. 22.

'Nother 'Nouncement . . .

The office of the Registrar strongly encourages all seniors to check with the Registrar in the near future concerning graduation requirements. If a senior is not taking sufficient courses and hours to meet graduation requirements, it is the responsibility of the student, not the Registrar, to discover and remedy the situation.

A New Leaf . . .

"To whom much is given, of the same shall much be required."

At the beginning of a new semester, filled with opportunities, it is important that a person be fully conscious of his obligations. Nothing is given that does not in turn have requirements which must be met.

Specifically we feel that it is important that every student begin this semester in the realization of what he owes himself and the college in return for the opportunities offered to him.

The primary requisite of a college student is hard work. A man who is not willing to work has no place at Presbyterian College. It is the work of parents, faculty and others who have made it possible for us to continue our higher education. A man who does not work is falling down on his job.

It is surprising how many doors can be opened by work. One of these doors is the door of success.

Freshmen particularly should realize that the habit of study must be cultivated from the very beginning of their college careers if the greatest benefit is to be reaped.

The aim of Presbyterian College is to produce competent and enlightened Christian ministers and laymen. The obligation of the PC student is to strive to fulfill this aim through study and Christian fellowship.

Presbyterian offers you its entire resources to make you successful. If you take advantage of these resources, remember that PC expects you to be a Christian and a gentleman. These two requirements, if fulfilled adequately, will cover all other rules and regulations. If each man will do his best to live up to the aim of this school, he will look back upon these years here as some of the happiest of his life.

Hot O. and Archie

By LYMAN HARRIS

Dear Mother,

I guess you thought it was funny getting a letter postmarked from here. I am here at a family reunion with Hot O'Rudy. They are having a big celebration because Hot O.'s family is getting indoor plumbing, so Hot O. and I came down. Man. there's people here from all over. Hot O. told me that his uncle, Archie Lee O'Rudy, who is here, is a member of the House. I talked to him while ago and found out that the House he is in is the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary. He's the kind of a fellow that sings an alma mater when he passes a Red Dot store. He even founded an NACP of his own, only his is the National Annihilation of Colored People.

Hot O.'s folks have been real nice to me, Mother. They fixed me a bunk in their guest house all to myself. It's one of these one-room ranch style buildings and it has a half moon carved in the door. It's right nice, but I get kinda lonesome in it out here behind the house all to myself.

This afternoon Hot O. and I went over to see his girl. She's not too pretty, Mother. As a matter of fact, if she had been born fifty years earlier they probably would have burned her at stake as a witch.

One of Hot O"s kinfolks that I met was Yokum O'Rudy from way up north. We heard him drive his dog sled up outside and holler, "Mush, dogs! Mush! Chees, dogs, mush!" (He's from "way" up north.) Then he left his dogs outside chewing on a pedestrian they picked up on the way, and came into tell us about his trip.

He greeted everybody with something he learned in Canada—a French kiss. You know, Mother, one on each cheek. Then he told us about his trip. "Chees, I almost lost my dog sled on the way. I picked up an Eskimo girl that was hitch-hiking, and chees, we was riding along rubbing noses, and I hollered, Mush. Then she hollered, Mush. So while we were mushing, somebody stole my dog sled.

Hot O. said, "Well, Unc, glad you came to our reunion."

Yukon said, "Well, I thought I might as well. As I was on my way to the Old North Ball anyhow."

Well, Mother, I gotta close this letter. Supper is ready, I think. Yukon fixed it; we're having peanut blubber sandwiches.

Looking forward to seing you. Take good care of the car.

A Wild West Tale

By GERRY BLAKELY

Funniest thing happened to me the other night. I was reading an old book my Grandpa has about the old West, when the men were men and the women were scared to death. Anyways, the funny part was, that some of the characters in one story had names similar to people here at Presbyterian college. I thought that it was such a conicidence that I thought I would pass a summary of the story on to you.

This particular story was entitled, "The Killin' at Leo's Saloon." And as the story goes, only the orneriest and meanest critters in the West ever set foot in Leo's Saloon. Mainly because only the toughest and meanest people could stomach Leo's food and beverages!

Anyways, it began on a gloomy night out there with the wind whistling through the trees and the sagebrush a-whipping down the street like crazy: just a perfect setting for a story of the sort.

There weren't but a puny few folks in Leo's Saloon that night. One was "Two-Gun" Glover, one of the orneriest Spanish-talking critters in the West. Another was "Tippy Toe Pitty Patte," a Swiss yodeler converted to a gun-slinging cow-poke. Over near the dice table stood lovely "Frankie," "Two - Gun" Glover's sweetheart.

And sittin' near "Frankie" was that wild-eyed, Wild-West reporter who had come in to cover the story, "Scoop-the-Dirt" Hammet. And behind the bar stood Leo, stirring his new rum-cake batter with his pistol. Leo always made rum-cakes, big ones, too! Sometimes they were eight layers high. Anyways, back to the story.

A door flew open about that time and broke the silence. Into the Saloon walked that gun-toting, gun - twirling, trigger-happy menace, "Win-'em-all" Crutchfield."

He stood there with a fierce look on his face, tossed back his 20-gallon hat, took out two guns and twirled them frantically, and said, "Alrite, where's he at?"

Nobody said nothing. Everybody was froze still! Leo was still because he had dropped his pistol in the cake batter and gone to fish it out, and got his arm stuck in the batter. Leo never could make his rum-cake batter thin enough.

Anyways, "Win-'em-all" looked around the room, then stopped dead still and listened. "I hear him a-coming," he said. "Don't nobody move even a mite." Then his eyes got big and he said, "Cause, I'm aiming to win this one!"

From the back of the saloon somebody made a low smart remark about seeing is believing but "Win-'em-all" twirled his guns again, and all got quiet.

In fact, everything was so quiet that you could-a heard a spoon full of Leo's rum-cage batter drop; and some did drop, but there was no time to repair the floor, so all got still again.

From the old dirt road was heard the sound of hoof-beats: Tlot-tlot-tlot-tlot. Then footsteps were heard on the old wooden porch.

Then, the saloon doors burst open and there stood one of the deadliest shots in all the old West. "Big Walt" Johnson. (He and "Win-'em-all" had been on the outs for ten years, and this was to be the showdown.)

"Big Walt" stopped dead when he saw "Win-'em-all" standing in the middle of the floor there.

"O. K., "Big Walt," said "Win-'em-all, "when Leo counts to three—draw, cause I'm gonna kill you."

"Big Walt" just stood there scratching his head, and then he said, "Son, I'd kill you, too, but I'll declare, I just can't remember your name. And I hates to kill a man when I just can't remember his name."

"Win-'em-all" got wide-eyed and screamed, "You do remember, too, my name's "Win-'em-all and I've been a-waiting to knock you off for ten long years. Now you knowed that!"

"Well, Mr. "Win-'em-all," said "Big Walt," "I'm terrbile sorry but my mind gets asbent from me sometimes. Now, how come we don't just forget this here grudge?"

With that "Win-'em-all began to cry frantically and shouted at "Big Walt": "No, I wanted to win this fight. I've just got to. You don't understand. I have to."

Then "Big Walt" busted out and said to him in a loud voice.

"Now, you stop that bellowing, you hear? I just can't stand to see a man cry. Why don't we just sit it down and talk this thing out. Now come on - - - - - come on."

So "Win-'em-all dried his eyes and sat at a table with "Big Walt."

"Now son," said "Big Walt," "Er, what did you say your name was again?"

"Win-'em-all is my name; I just told you."

"Well, Mr. "Win'-em-all," why don't we jist -------

But before "Big Walt" could continue, Leo had interrupted and suggested that all the folks have a piece of last night's rum-cake on him. With that everybody got up and walked out of the saloon.

PC's Dave Thompson Hits 2000 Mark In Basketball

Presbyterian forward Dave Thompson established himself firmly among South Carolina basketball greats this past week when he went over the charmed 2,000 mark in points scored during his varsity career.

It has been a remarkable display of ability for the sharp-eyed Frankfort, Ind., native now playing his fourth season with the Blue Hose, for he stands a comparatively small six feet.

Presbyterian has produced high scorers in the past, but no other player has hit the 2,000 total. And this mark is one which few other college basketball men in the nation have achieved.

Going into PC's Charleston invasion of the past week-end, Dave had scored 330 points in 13 games thus far during the 1956-57 season. This figure pushes his college career total to 2,005, and there are at least nine games remaining in which to add to this total.

Thompson has averaged more than 20 points per game in each of his previous three seasons—amassing a 21.6 average as a freshman; 21.5 as a sophomore; and 24.5 as a junior.

He was headed toward his greatest year of all this campaign, averaging almost 30 points per game as one of the nation's top scorers, until an ankle injury a week ago slowed his pace. Hobbling around in two games since then, Thompson totaled only seven points and brought his average down to 25.4.

Forward Dave Thompson entered Presbyterian college from Frankfort (Ind.) high school with an outstanding basketball reputation already to his credit. He crashed the varsity lineup early in his first year and promptly fired 476 points for the season. As a sophomore he added 537 points to his total, and then last season he stepped even higher with 662 points. So Thompson entered his final campaign with an impressive 1,675 points in the Presbyterian scorebook.

And as this push-shot artist has continued to pour points through the hoops, the Blue Hose have added to their stature as a basketball power with high-scoring teams that produce victory.

College of Charleston Swamped by Hose Five

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose ran away with the College of Charleston Maroons to the tune of 103-54 to even the wins and losses on their Charleston trip at one and one. The Hose had no trouble at all as they jumped into an early lead and at the 10-minute mark virtually had the game sewed up

The Hose built up a 64-24 halftime lead and coasted to the win with the reserves in. Star forward Dave Thompson did not see action as he sat out the game with his injured ankle.

The slack caused by Dave's absence from the contest was taken up by Bruce Thompson and Ken Caswell. Bruce and Caswell shared scoring honors with 18 apiece. Danny Bridges and Ralph Chambers were next in the scoring column with 16 and 15, respectively.

Hot Hose Five Down Piedmont

Led by the scoring of center Bruce Thompson and guard Ken Caswell, the Presbyterian College Blue Hose trounced Piedmont College, of Demorest, Ga., by a 96-69 count.

The Blue Hose took on early lead and were never seriously threatened throughout the game. With Bruce and Ralph Chambers grabbing rebounds and turning them into points the Hose held a comfortable 48-36 margin at halftime.

This win moves the season record to nine wins and seven losses and the Hose scoring average was helped considerably.

Forward Dave Thompson, playing despite a painful ankle injury, accounted for 16 points. The scoring was led by Ken Caswell and Bruce with 24 and 18 points, respectively.

For the Piedmont team, center Jim Chanelle turned in the top performance with 29 points.

Citadel Bulldogs Down Blue Hose

PC jumped into the lead and held a halftime edge of 41-36 and later held a 52-42 advantage with eight minutes left to play. The Bulldogs overcame this 11-point deficit and went on to win. Freshman Vic Wherry hit a jump shot with 1:16 left to put The Citadel out front by the score of 64-63. Senior forward Mickey McDonald added a free throw with 0:39 left to close out the night's scoring.

Wherry was leading point maker for the Bulldogs with 20, while Art Musselman added 15. Center Bruce Thompson topped the Hose with 19. Going into the final eight minutes the Hose seemingly had the game wrapped up but hit a cold streak and scored only one field goal and two free throws, while the Bulldogs were tallying 18 points to tie the game at 56-56 with 5:45 remaining.

By CECIL GEDDINGS

Sigma Nu remained in the thick of the intra-mural race with a 42-36 win over Kappa Alpha to start the ball rolling in the opening game on Monday night. The game was close throughout the first half with the lead changing hands several times before the Sigs pulled up at intermission with a comfortable 26-17 lead. In the second half Kappa Alpha made some desperate attempts to overtake Sigma Nu but the lead was never cut to less than one point.

The Sigs' Billy Fulton hitting from the outside, led the scoring with 15 points. Also Sonny Phillips had twelve for the winners. The best effort by Kappa Alpha was put froth by Johnny Brownlow who tallied twelve.

The second game of Monday night devleoped into a thriller with the third place Rebels taking a hard-fought 36-33 win over Pi Kappa Alpha. The contest was close all the way and the Rebels pulled out the game in the last minute of play. With Tobias hitting well, PiKA had held a 20-19 lead at halftime. The Rebels quickly went ahead early in the second half and held on late in the game for their fourth victory.

Jim Bennett and J. C. Fowler with 11 and 8 points, respectively, led the winners. For Pi Kappa Alpha, Tap Tobias pumped in ten for scoring laurels.

Led by the scoring of Ed Jackson, the Spencer Cats took over sole possession of second place by soundly thumping the House of Henry 68-39. This game was played Tuesday afternoon due to the fact that the Blue Hose varsity basketball team had a night game in the gymnasium.

The Cats poured on the steam in the first half with McIntosh, Jackson and Thomas leading the point parade and at halftime it was 39-16 Cats favor. Canos and Webb got hot in the second half but it wasn't enough as the Cats coasted to their sixth triumph.

Jackson had 17 points to top all scorers for the night. For the losers Nick Canos had 13 and Billy Webb was close behind with ten.

The second game of the afternoon found the Rebels taking a squeaker from the Globetrotters with a 40-39 win. The Rebels remained in third place with their fifth win. In recent games the Rebels have become famous for their close wins; games which are best liked by the fans. Behind at halftime due to the scoring spree by Trotters George Banks, the Rebels had to fight from behind to edge the Globetrotters. The Trotters chances were hurt badly late in the game when ace George Banks left the game on personals. At halftime the score read Trotters 22, Rebels 20.

Top man for the afternoon was Banks of the Trotters with 19. Jim Bennett had ten and Dick Wood nine to pace the winners.

Behind the Blues

DAVE THOMPSON HITS 2,000 MARK

Presbyterian forward Dave Thompson became the first Hose star to ever reach the coveted 2,000 point mark for total scoring last week. This achievement marks a new milestone in the Blue Hose record books and also ranks Thompson among the top stars ever to play in this state.

Thompson is a senior hailing from Frankfort, Ind., and has been a standout for the Hose since he broke into the starting lineup during his freshman year. During the first season with the Blue Hose Thompson stripped the nets for a total of 476 points and a 21.6 average. He added a total of 537 points to this number during his sophomore year when he averaged 21.5 points per game.

Last year Thompson scored 662 points for a 24.5 average and pushed himself into striking distance of the 2,000 mark. This season the 6-ft. crackshot has suffered an ankle injury which has slowed him down considerably in the last few games. Up until the time of the injury he was averaging nearly 30 points per game. Due to the injury which has limited his appearances his average has dropped somewhat to a still highly regarded 25 points per game. Dave should be ready for full time action in the near future and should regain his early season form in a short time.

HOSE TRAVEL TO TERRIER LAND

The Blue Hose basketeers will be packing their gear tonight for a night trip to Spartanburg where they will take on the Terriers of Wofford College. The Hose met and defeated the Terriers earlier this season on the home court, but expect a real battle in the Terriers' back yard tonight. PC is favored to take the battle if forward Dave Thompson can score his share of the points, however, the Hose cannot expect to take the Terriers with as much ease as they did earlier in the season.

PC still stands a chance to tie Erskine for the regular season Little Four title but this game is a must if that is to be done. The Hose as it stands now would have to play Wofford in the first round of the Little Four tournament, but if they can tie Erskine for the lead there will be a draw for opponents before the first round.

The Wofford team is led by playmaker Donnie Fowler and tall rebounders Twitty Carpenter and Craig Templeton. The Hose pacers along with Dave Thompson are center Bruce Thompson and guards Ken Caswell and Bill Sullivan. The game should be a real thriller as the Terriers are anxious to avenge the earlier loss at the hands of PC.

SPRING IS COMING AND PRACTICE IS HERE

As Spring nears the Hose footballers have donned their pads for approximately 30 days of Spring practice. The schedule as it stands now calls for five sessions a week for six weeks with an occasional intra-squad game called for Saturday afternoons.

CINDERMEN BEGIN WORK

The Presbyterian track team has begun workouts in preparation for the approaching season. The Hose show promise of fielding a good team but need help in the distance and field events. These positions have been the weakest on the team in the past few years, however, look fairly good for another winning season.

More Gossip

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

As long as the earth has been an oblate spheroid, (I take astronomy in case you wondered) it has been said that women are the world's best gossipers. But, I think it is quite a different story.

Not being prejudiced, naturally, I will stick my neck out and say that boys beat the girls gossiping two to one. If I could be a little fly on the wall in some of the dormitory rooms for one night I bet I could catch up on enough gossip to write a True Confession magazine, not to mention the inside dope for the next issue of "Playboy."

Usually when the girls chew the "fat" they have the lowdown hard cold facts; but boys just seem to get carried away and will repeat anything that sounds like a good story.

This not only applies to boys, but men (?), too. They are the noisiest breed on earth. They dig so deep into the barrel of happenings they get splinters in their fingers.

You may think when you gossip that no one will hear about it. But don't count the bubbles in your booze too soon. The only time some people can keep a secret is to keep it on the move.

We usually hear our share of the sordid stories. So, in order not to be left out the co-eds can keep secrets, too.

I was cruising from one room to another the other night in Daddy's-O's Purgatory (we don't know whether we're coming or going) when I overheard a few bits of juicy gossip that were really being chewed up and digested.

The main topic without a doubt was boys or in order not to hurt anyone's feelings should I say men? It seems one poor boy has been trying and trying to give away his pin.

One young thing wanted his pin but not him.

Congratulations John Hall, we are so glad to hear that your searching was not in vain.

I feel sure that Don Rickett will be terribly disappointed when he hears that he is no longer the Sweetheart of the Alpha Psi. Tough luck, Don!

I heard one catty remark that would do to tell. Someone asked me if Billy McElveen had fallen, head first, into a bottle of Dye-and-Shine.

It seems Larry Brown is trying to live up to his name as "the handomest boy on campus." He has been trying so hard to snow the freshman co-eds that we all had to order snow shoes.

I guess I should have asked Daddy-O for some tips about gathering gossip. But, all this would have been old news for him.

Courtmen Elect Brownlow Captain

At a meeting of the tennis team held on Tuesday afternoon, John Brownlow wsa elected captain for the coming season.

Coach Leighton cited the team for its hard work in preparation for the year's schdeule. Leighton was especially satisfied with the results turned in by Blue Hosemen in the recent South Florida championships. This tournament was held in West Palm Beach between semesters.

Harvey Jackson and Jimmy Peck won first round matches against high ranking players and John Brownlow turned in a terrific performance in losing to Armando Vierra, of Brazil, 10-12, 6-8. On losing the internationally ranked Vierra, Brownlow made a great impression on the crowd. He should be well on his way to picking up where Allen Morrsi left off. Coach Leighton stated, "With Al's desire for success John could be one of the top twenty players in the country by next summer."

The team enters into the final month of practice before the Florida trip. Five weekly tournaments will be held before the season actually opens and player positions will be determined from the final results of the ten scheduled tuorneys.

Group to Interest Students For Clinton Church Groups

The feeling that a stronger and more improved relationship can exist between PC students and their individual churches has led to the creation of a new campus organization.

Known as The Inter-Denominational Council, its main purpose will serve to coordinate college activities with those of various churches throughout this community.

Functioning through delegates for each denomination, the main body will serve to acquaint every student with his own church affiliation in Clinton, develop more of an interest in what it can offer them in the way of extended programs to afford the opportunity of meeting more of their group through an evening srevice. Weekly bulletins and other media will be utilized in order for all to keep abreast of what their church is doing for student interest and enjoyment. On Wednesday nights each denominational group will hold their own vesper service led by an IDC delegate, assistant, or a representative from one of their churches. The last Wednesday of each month will see all of these groups coming together for a unified service.

The first meeting of this newly formed group was held in Neville Hall Thursday afternoon. June Adair was the Baptist delegate; Gayle Robertson, Methodist; Glen Gibson, Presbyterian; John Greer, Episcopalian. Still to be heard from are the Lutheran and Catholic groups.

Joel Easterling was elected to serve as Chairman and Gayle Robertson as Secretary. George Sanborn is to handle publicity and information. Dr. Fraser sat in as Religious Activities Advisor.

Within a short while, Presbyterian College students will receive more information as to their new service organization and its hopes of accomplishments. The next regularly scheduled meeting is to be held Thur., Feb. 14 in Neville Hall. All interested personnel are asked to be present or to see any of the above mentioned representatives.

Gridmen Start Spring Practice

Presbyterian college gridmen will open a planned five-week spring practice session on Monday afternoon, Head Coach Bill Crutchfield announced today.

He issued to some 35 squad members the call to action which will find the Hosemen working on fundamentals and polishing the mistakes of the past season until Sat., Mar. 9.

Crutchfield said the workouts will be held each afternoon between 3 and 5 p. m. for five days a week, Monday through Friday. A sixth session on Saturday afternoon will be scheduled only when the team plans an intra-squad game.

The PC coach said he expects no personnel changes from the 1956 campaign, except for the absence of the nine seniors who will not be back next year. Eight of these are lettermen, and include such standouts as: co-captains guard Tommy Warren, of Allendale, and quarterback Felder Cook, of Charleston Heights; fullback Eddie Brockenbrough and tackle Wayne Shoemaker, both of Charlotte; halfbacks Gene Butler, of Conway; and Raymond Johnson, of Whitmire; guard Bill Tsacrios, of Clearwater, Fla., and end Russ Alexander, of Lyons Ga. The single non-letterman senior is Ken Daughtry, of Macon.

The Blue Hose won four games and lost six during the 1956 season.

Lyman Harris, Ron Bartlett Picked for Top Sock Spots

Lyman Harris, rising senior from Birmingham, Ala., was named by the student body popular vote Wednesday as editor of the 1957-58 Blue Stocking. Harris, who succeeds Charles Dukes, won by a narrow margin over Blair Baldwin.

In the same election, Ron Bartlett defeated Dick Hamby and John Summers for the post of business manager.

Harris, who has served on the Blue Stocking staff for the past year, also has taken part in many extra curricular activities. At present he serves as president of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity and on the SCA Cabinet as Chapel Program Chairman. He has also represented the College as one of four senators to the South Carolina Student Legislature held in Columbia in Dec.ember, 1956. Among his other offices are: Vice-President of the International Relations Club, Treasurer of the Ministerial Club, and Co-Chairman of the Freshman Control Board. Harris has also served on the PaC-SaC staff and his character of Hot O'Rudy displays an example of his craftsmanship as a feature writer for the Blue Stocking. Harris is one of three recipients of a National Founder's Scholarship awarded by his fraternity. In August of 1956, he was elected official delegate to a national fraternity convention in Carmel, California.

Bartlett, a rising junior from Atlanta, also carries to his office an impressive and qualified record. At present he is in the capacity of Alumni Secretary of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, and also is Vice-President of the Atlanta-PC Club. Bartlett has also taken an active part in the Prsebyterian College Robed Choir, having been a member since his freshman year. He is also class editor of the PaC-SaC, and in 1955-56 served in the office of Editorial Assistant. This year he displayed a vast amount of efficiency and dependability by stepping into the appointment of Circulation Manager of the Blue Stocking. Bartlett also is the lone sophomore in the Presbyterian College ROTC Color Guard.

Both men come to office with student body as shown in the the majority support of the PC recent election.

Wardlaw, Trustee, Addresses Soil Group

The sermon preached by the Reverend Hubert G. Warllaw, of the First Presbyterian Church, Orangbeurg, on Soil Stewardship Sunday, May 6, 1956, has been selected as one of eleven to be included in a national bulletin of soil stewardship sermons.

Soil Stewardship Week is observed nationally and is sponsored by the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts, with headquarters at League City, Texas. The object of the observance is to impress upon all people the importance of being good stewards of the soil, our greatest natural resource. In addition to sermons preached on the Sunday of Soil Stewardship Week, meetings of farm and civic groups are held to emphasize man's responsibility to the good earth; to use the soil wisely as a good steward and pass it on to fuutre genreations in as good or better condition than they found it.

Editorials : Features : Humor

Moritami Te Salutamus...?

I see the lights of the village gleam through the rain and mist and a feeling of sadness comes o'er me.
That my soul cannot resist.

An editorial, according to journalistic individuals, is meant to express the editor's opinions, to give the newspaper's readers a common meeting ground, common bonds of interest, outside of their variant individual and class interests. It relays to the public in cold black type the beauty, charm, satisfaction, and life of the community in synthetic phrases. If all this is true, then this week's column is not an editorial. I don't know exactly what a journalism instructor would classify it. But when a staff administration is about to terminate, you will find practically the same train of thought expressed by outgoing editors.

I have been considering, since the first issue of the '56-'57 year rolled off the press, what I would say when the time came for me to wish my congratulations and heartfelt sympathy to a new editor. Now that this time has actually come, I'm a little confused. It has been my pleasure to read over the past files of the Blue Stocking and find out how the other editors felt. The sentiment expressed by such people like Harry Dent, Doug Kiker, Bob Hunt, Don Anderson, Gerge Everett, Ray Lord, and Richard Olvier can't be wrong.

They said that when it was their privilege to become editor of the Blue Stocking, they looked forward with great anticipation to the time when they would see their last issue hit the streets.

I'll go along with that.

They said that readers do not realize what a tremendous, mentally agonizing job putting out a newspaper is, how much time it takes to get a little four-page poop sheet printed and distributed how many scarifices are involved by each member of the staff, or how soon that Wednesday deadline comes around.

I'll go along with that.

They wrote of the responsibility, the long hours, the importance of making split-minute decisions when something falls through, someone lets you down (the most common), or an idea backfires right in your face, and the endless little things like getting the copy in, checking and re-checking errors, proofreading, or making up the dummy sheet.

I'll go along with that.

They wrote of the many contacts an editor would encounter that, although it seemed impossible in the beginning, would make his job just about the most transient enjoyment that he could have during his college career.

I'll go along with that.

They wrote of certain individuals, who would give innumerable services at any time of the day or night—Ben Hay Hammet, of the public relations office; Mrs. W. W. Harris, owner of the Chronicle Publishing Co., and outspoken fan of the Blue Stocking; Mr. Harry C. Layton, editor of the Clinton Chronicle, storehouse of knowledge and genial friend of the Sock for a good many years; "Cat" Holland, pressman extraordinary, buyer of many peanuts and "Upper 10's" for your editor, and owner of many Dodges; Ray Starnes, make-up man par excellence, ready to lend a hand anywhere, any time, purveyor of much homespun philosophy, and also buyer of many peanuts and "Upper 10's" for your editor; Lang Holland, kitten on the Linotype keyboard, possessor of the patience of Job in double measure when your editor comes up Friday morning with an article to be run, and ready with many helpful hints; the crew of Jacobs Brothers: Doug, Downs Monroe, and the rest who made our cuts in record time to save many a day; and many others, including the little volumes known as Webster's Dictionary and Roget's Thesaurus.

I'll go along with that.

And I'll go along with the rest of the boys in giving credit to their staff. The chief reason for this paper getting out every Friday was a fine, enthusiastic, and co-operative staff. To Blair Baldwin, two-fisted business manager and helpful friend, who saved many days with his sacrificial friendship, I'd like to say, "Where's my half of those National Advertiser's checks?" To Ramon Veal, news editor, your editor's long-suffering roomie, dependable and consistent digger-up of much dirt for the front page, and star saver of many, many days even at wit's end I express my heartfelt thanks and apologies—now we can sack out on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons; to Lyman Harris and Anne Kirkpatrick, thanks a whole mess for their never-flagging dependability in the writing of their columns every week; and to Tommy Richards, who could always be counted on to cough up the sports news even in the face of an organic quiz, many, many thanks.

To the rest of the staff: Bill Cashwell, managing editor and ace copy reader; Noble Collins, feature editor and close friend, Bob Helm, Bill Yearick, John Thames, Cecil Geddings, Larry Brown, Joel Patrick, Al McKie, A. C. Reed, Ron Bartlett, circulation manager; and the typists Marilyn Hettinger, June Harris, and Sue Phillips, to all of you go my heartfelt thanks and warm appreciation.

Well, the last issue is off the presses and "Cat" is shaping them up for Ron to hand out. So I guess there's nothing to do but to shake hands all around, laugh about our good times, learn from our failures, and wish Lyman, Ron and their staff the best of luck. It's a great game.

So long.

Hot O. Expires

By LYMAN HARRIS

Life can be beautiful, but I reckon it was just one of those days for Hot O. To start with, Hot O. got up on the wrong side of the bed; that wouldn't have been so bad, only there's a window with a twenty-foot drop on that side. Then he crawled to the chow hall.

Fate kept on swinging at him. During breakfast he stuck a fork in his egg and it jumped off the plate and bit him under the arm. Then he went over to the military building, and while he was cleaning his rifle the bolt closed and the end of Hot O.'s thumb on the inside and the rest of Hot O. on the outside. Before he could stop the bleeding he had lost a pint of blood, a quart of caffein, and two and a half gallons of nicotine.

He crawled to the infirmary where Mrs. Bob gave him an aspirin for it, and then came back to the room. He had checked his mail on the way, so he came in holding a letter from his girl, and singing happily, "Pig of My Heart, I Love You—." When he opened it it was a shaft. He sat down to his desk, scraped the green paint from under his fingernails (nine of them), and started on the cough syrup. After he had killed a case, he decided to trot down to the administration building for a chat with the brass.

Hot O.'s resistance was low because of the hard morning, so when all that hot air in the administration building hit him, he came down with double pneumonia. He came back to the room in a sad state, sat down at his desk and wrote his will. Then he took an overdose of peanut butter, stretched out on his sack and expired.

The reading of his will went like this, "Man, I hereby bequeath to my roomo my four-wheel personality, Slob Jones gets my four cases of cough syrup and two bottles of olives, Soodo I want to have my Christian life notebook autographed by Doc Fraser and my Peace of Mind pills. The rest of my property I bequeath to my mother, Mrs. Tutti Fruiti O'Rudy. Please thank Dr. Adams for the counseling he has given me on women, Corporal Smith for his aid in Military, and Dr. Fraser for putting in a good word for me upstairs.

I have only one request, please bury my Marilyn Monroe calendar with me. If anybody calls for me, tell them I'm haunting the Administration Building.

Note. Orphan Annie wouldn't do it and Little Henry wouldn't do it, the Phantom wouldn't even think about it, so I felt like Hot O. just had to kick the bucket. Thank you.

Behind the Blues

LAST ROUNDUP

As the Presbyterian College Blue Hose basketeers enter the last stages of the season before the time of the Little Four tournament this writer is clicking off his last column for the Blue Sock. There is an air of indifference in the room as I weigh the advantages and disadvantages of the "last one." It is a good feeling to come to the end of any task, but yet it will be hard to find anything which I have enjoyed as much. As I fade away in favor of "new blood," I leave with the hope that over the past two years I have penned some columns that have afforded pleasant reading for you and yours.

ERSKINE TIGHTENS LEAD

Last Saturday night, as PC was losing a hard-fought contest to the Terriers at Spartanburg, the Flying Fleet, of Erskine, was continuing their unbeaten string against Little Four opponents and strengthening their hold on first place. The Hose have split games with Wofford, won two from the Newberry Indians, and lost one to Erskine. This leaves the Hose in second place with the Terriers holding down third. If the end of the season finds this same line-up, PC will be meeting Wofford in the first game of the tournament. This will be a definite advantage to the Fleet who will meet Newberry in the first round.

However, last year the same set-up presented itself and the Hose came from behind the eight ball and beat on successive nights Wofford and Erskine. The Blue Hose hold two straight wins in the tournament and a win this season would give them permanent possession of the championship trophy. PC has always fielded teams that play well when the chips are down. The Hose provided this last year when they came from behind in both games to win the tournament. The Hose are again in a bad position. Dave Thompson has been injured and his limited appearances have hindered the team considerably. His return to top form in time for the tourney would bolster the Hose chances considerably. In fact, with the two Thompsons again hitting in their usual form, I would have to pick the Hose as the team to beat in the post-season contest.

HIGH SCHOOL TOURNAMENT

In the past the upper state class B and A tournaments have been held here at PC, but this year the class A tourney has been moved to Chester and the campus will play host to only the B boys and girls. The tournament will begin next Thur., Feb. 20, with six games, three in the afternoon and three at night. There will be four games on Friday and the championship games will be played Saturday night with the winners entering the state championship play at Columbia the following week. In the past the high school teams have offered a little entertainment for the college boys and although there will not be as many games this year they should be good, hard-fought contests.

HANCOCK CAPTAINS CINDERMEN

It has been recently announced that senior Jim Hancock has been elected captain of the Blue Hose track team for the 1957 season. Hancock runs both the low hurdles and high hurdles and has in the past run a leg on the mile relay team. He was bothered much of last year with a pulled thigh muscle, but still took his share of the wins. He is expected this year to team with Wyatt Aiken to give PC the best pair of hurdlers in the state.

Blue Hose Drop Big One to Wofford

The Blue Hose dropped an important game to the Wofford Terriers last Saturday night as the Erskine Fleet was extending its winning streak over Little Four opponents. Wofford jumped into an early lead and outlasted a late surge by the Hose to take the win by a 76-70 score.

The Terriers had little trouble taking a 42-43 halftime lead and held this lead for much of the second half. Finally, midway of the second period, the Hose began to hit with some consistency and closed the gap slightly. With two minutes remaining guard Bill Sullivan laid up a field goal to pull the Hosemen within two points at 72-70. PC then began to slow the game down in order to get a good shot, but Clayton Adams' push from outside was short and Wofford took possession. Bill Barbee and Twitty Carpenter then added two free throws apiece to close out the scoring a t76-70.

Carpenter, a junior, led the Terriers with 24 ponits, while Donnie Fowler and Craig Templeton had 17 and 14, respectively. Center Bruce Thompson led the Hose and all scorers with 28, but no other Hosemen hit in double figures.

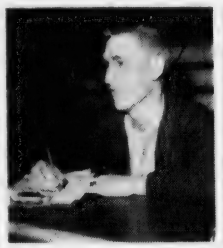
Caswell and Sullivan Basketball Standouts

Two pint-sized sophomore roles on the Presbyterian College guards have played important basketball front this season.



They are Ken Caswell, five foot, 11 inch Paris, Ky., hustler, and Bill Sullivan, a five-eight product of Frankfort, Ind. Both make up in over-all ability for what they lack in height, and their colorful floor games have been key factors in Blue Hose play to date.

Caswell possesses a variety of shots and is capable of hitting from all points. Thus far, he has amassed 233 points for a 14.5 average. A quick thinker, Caswell is the team stabilizer as he pulls the Blue Hose forces together when play becomes ragged. Since breaking into the starting lineup this season, Ken has developed rapidly and is holding down his position like a veteran.

Sullivan, the other half of the sub-six foot pair, is one of the fastest men on the squad. His unorhtodox left-handed shooting is hard to stop, and on a good night "Sully" poses a dangerous threat point-wise. Sullivan's 131 lotat points (an 8.1 average) hardly measures his real worth because he stands out as an ace playmaker. Also a defensive whiz, Sullivan is playing his second year as a varsity starter, having crashed the lineup as a freshman last season.

With two seasons remaining ahead for Caswell and Sullivan, PC opponents can count on seeing much of this pair in the immediate future.

Blue Hose Coach Searching For 1957 Grid Combinations

Presbyterian College will play a tough 11-game football schedule next fall, opening with Appalachian there on . Sept. 14, and Coach Bill Crutchfield is busily seeking the right combinations in spring practice now underway.

Crutchfield said starting on Saturday, Feb. 16, the Hose will likely have intra-squad drills at the end of each week.

The site of the PC-Elon game has not yet been determined. Rock Hill wants the game returned there again this year and PC is willing. Approval is needed from Elon for this arranegment to be definite, however.

The Blue Hose open at Appalachian, rather than with Clemson, because this was the only date the teams could arrange their game, Crutchfield said.

The PC-Clemson game will be an afternoon contest at Clemson on Sept. 21. The Hose will have four home games.

In the Little Three battles, Wofford will be at Clinton next fall, and the traditional Thanksgiving Day with Newberry will be played there.

The spring problem for the Hose will be finding the right fullback, and getting guard replacements.

Robert Nalley, the 195-pound fullback from Central, has been on the practice field this week but his eligibility is doubtful from a scholastic basis. The Hose cannot count on having him next fall.

Jimmy Nichols, 185, rising junior from Decatur, Ga., may be the No. 1 fullback. He played considerably as a freshman until being injured. Last fall he was given a try at the guard position in hopes of giving strength there, but now he is considered set at fullback.

Certain to see a lot of action is Mitch Mavromat, of Brunswick, Ga., who was behind senior Eddie Brockenbrough and Nalley this past season.

The Hose lost nine by graduation this year, and two of them are guards, Tommy Warren and Bill Tsacrios.

Guard candidates are bill Bowman, 190, Monongehela, Pa.; John Firby, 180, Belvedere; Dewitt Briggs, 185, Lexington; Medford Rockstroh, 205, Spartanburg; and Gus Bell, 190, South Orange, N. J.

All the ends return next year, and Crutchfield hopes to get help from Wilson Vastine, 185, who is out for spring practice after missing the '56 season due to a freak accident.

Vastine broke his big toe in a dormitory accident. The Pennsylvania freshman is showing up well so far in drills this week.

Other ends are Ted Leahy, 180, of Atlanta; James Walker, 215, of Anderson; Ken Gardner, 190, of Greenville; Paul Chastain, 170, of Central; Bob Mathews, 185, of Decatur, Ga.; and Willard James, of Athens, Ga.

The quarterback post is considered wide open, with Felder Cook graduating. Candidates are Bill Aycock, 195, Fayetteville, N. C.; Ron Isger, 180, Clairton, Pa.; Larry Wood, 145, Moss Point, Miss.; and Fred Stanley, 155, Rock Hill. Not in spring drills due to playing basketball is Danny Bridges, 175, of Valdese, N. C.

First team halfback will be Ken Webb, 200, of Decatur; and Tony Benson, 175, of Chester. The No. 2 halfbacks will come from John Lucas, 190, Donora, Pa.; Ed Messer, 165, West Palm Beach, Fla.; Gordon Stanley, 165, Rock Hill; and John Drew, 160 ,Georgetown.

The Hose have heft at tackles. They have size and experience there in James Lee, 220, Myrtle Beach; Jack Coppley, 250, Lexington, N. C.; Joe Negley, 235, East Pittsburgh, Pa.; Ronnie Barnette, 235, Greenwood; Marion Parrish, 250, Chester; and Mac Copleand, 195, Athens, Ga.

Rah-Rah Gracie

By ANNE KIRKPATRICK

Young ladies and genetlemen, this issue of the Blue Sock would like to present an article by that famous and world renowned undercover artist, "Gracie Gossip-gatherer."

Gracie is well known for revealing those things that no one wants known and we would like to print her story of the year, "The Confidential Story."

This story reveals what goes on behind the doors of an Alpha Psi Delta sorority smoker. In order to obtain the true facts, Gracie disguised herself. First she had to secure a good disguise.

She learned that the smoker was informal, so she proceeded to secure a pair of jeans which duz didn't do everything to, a sweat shirt three sizes too small, and a pair of loafers that were so tired and worn out looking their tongues were dragging.

Gracie was about to slink over to the sorority room when she realized she had forgotten the trade mark of a PC co-ed. She dashed back to her room, placed the sterling silver hip flask in her pocket and started again.

This time she reached her destination without mishap and got as far as the door where she was greeted by the President. It was hard to recognize her for the cloud of blue smoke which was billowing out the open door.

A rushee had just been invited in before Gracie arrived and the poor thing was blackballed the first three minutes she was there. Seeing a concentrated ball of flame and smoke erupting from a chair in a secluded corner, she immediately grabbed the fire extinguisher and proceeded to put out the fire.

The fire had turned out to be Sarah and Norma smoking their corncob pipes while carrying on a hot discussion about Danny Bridges' legs. But back to Gracie. She cut through the cloud of smoke and was stopped by the sound of the President's voice.

Gracie could have recognized that nicotine wheeze anywhere. Anne welcomed her and invited her in, telling her the gas masks were optional and she could go right in as soon as she gave the password.

Gracie panicked! She hadn't thought of the password. So Gracie blurted out the only word she could think of off hand, "MEN." "That's right," Anne wheezed, "come right in." And now the Confidential Story—

The sight that met my poor eyes cretainly wasn't a sight for sore eyes, 'cause if you had the sore eyes and walked into that incinerator, they would have been Bar-B-Q'd.

Over in one corner Moose Martin was making like a smokestack and in the other Suie Phillips was rocking in her rocking chair peacefully puffing on her pipe.

Shirley must have let Art Appreciation go to her head, for she was looking every bit a Smoking Buddha in the middle of the rug. Rug, did I say rug? I meant sponge!

I bet that sponge never had the contents of a can spilled on it in Dr. Brown's office. On second thought maybe it did!

But now to the business of the smoker—with that many girls there was bound to be some gossip. There was so much gossip and ridicule about the superlatives that they decided to choose their own. From each class the girls decided on the best looking boy.

This is such hot news that I am having a hard time keeping my pencil point from melting. This is the Confidential Story written by Gracie Gossipgatherer, a soon-to-be graduate from Daddy-O's Dirt Digging Dive.

"Me letting my kids down?"

You give your children the best of everything — you advise them, protect them, and share their fun. Can a parent do more?

Yes, there is one other responsibility, easy to overlook. In these years of educational crisis, if you haven't taken an active part in school affairs . . . it's possible you are letting your children down.

Many communities today are faced with local variations of a single nationwide problem: How to cope with the rapid and continuing increase in school enrollments. In some places, the problem takes the form of overcrowded classrooms . . . in others, of a shortage of teachers, or of equipment.

One excellent way you can help insure good schools is by joining your neighbors in community educational conferences. Across the nation, such conferences have found solutions for a wide variety of local school problems — such as financing new equipment . . . adding qualified teachers . . . consolidating schools.

It can be done! Enlightening "case histories" of local school improvement campaigns that worked are yours for the asking. Please indicate the nature of your local school objectives so that we may send you the material that best fits your needs. Write: Better Schools, 2 West 45th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

Important Interviewers Availabale for Seniors

Dean Thackton, Dean of Students of Presbyterian College, urged each senior to take advantage of the College's Placement Service. So far, the program has been lacking sufficient response from the senior class to merit the interviewers' full time here on our campus.

Mr. Jolly, an interviewer for J. B. White and Company, explained the usual procedure of a typical personal interview. He pointed out that each senior will be told of the organization of the company, general setup, what the company represents, the candidates' opportunities for advancement, fringe benefits such as life insurance, the stock interests showing financial staeus of the company, the type expansion program being carried out, and a description of the working conditions and posible location.

The interviewer is primarily interested in such items as the applicant's interests, his capabilities, and his desire to be associated with the company. He will tel the candidates what his work wil consist of, and what in general wil be expected of him as an employee of the company.

The interviewer will usually not make any definite commitments and each man should take the advice of all interviewers, whether directly interested or not, so as to see his possibilities in each field.

These interviews usually last thirty minutes, and announcements of the interviews will be posted in Neville Hall, and in the Dining Hall.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company will have a representative of its company here the 26th of February. National Carbon Co., in mid-March, and Crawford and Company, Insurance Adjusters, in the latter part of March.

Working Like the Devil . . .

From Us . . .

We of the new Blue Stocking staff realize the responsibility of the job you have given us. We will try to the utmost of our abilities, to publish a newspaper that will contain what you want it to. Therefore, we invite your constructive criticism at all times, so that we may produce a service to you that will be worthy of its name. We realize that our first issue has many shortcomings, but we will try to learn from our mistakes.

We have, and are endeavoring to give equal representation to all fraternities on the staff, and it is our intention that fair coverage be given to all organizations.

From You . . .

I received recently a suggestion, in form of a letter, from a student who attacks and offers a solution to the cheating problem. I think it is a worthy suggestion and deserves due thought, so I am publishing it.

Dear Editor,

Let's tighten the honor code A.lthough assumed that PC is the military college of the Presbyterian Church, it would hardly be worthwhile to have a militia headed by the Smiths, Lowmans, and Craigs to protect the interests of young scholars and tuition-paying fathers; but maybe, just maybe, we could alleviate the situation by an intermediate action.

The honor system on this campus evidences a great deal of work on the part of a few, but also at the same time a lackadaisical attitude by many others. Enough words have been said over the chow hall tables, dormitory bull sessions and class room lectures about this very same honor system until a touchy and conflicting subject now presents itself.

I understand that our honor system derives its doctrines from those followed on the larger university and college campuses. So, Mr. Editor, I hereby propose to the Presbyterian College Student Government, in the form of a suggestion that we further follow the procedure of more established honor systems found in the same larger universities and colleges.

Here is the proposal: That when in a classroom a definite awareness of cheating confronts a student, that student should rise and say, "There is evidence of cheating in this classroom." And before anyone can be apprehended both during and after classes, this announcement must be stated prior apprehension of the suspected student, or students.

I do not say this constitutes a definite solution, but is merely an intermediate action designed to give the cheater a chance to mend his ways. Such an intermediate action serves a dual purpose, for it takes the pressure from a virtuous and diligent student who might be blinded by his neighborly or brotherly prejudices and not have quite the desire or the intestinal fortitude to turn the guilty party in.

I laboriously bring this plea to a close with a blanketed desire in my suggestion to smother the impostors who mask as "students" at PC.

—A Conflict-Torn Student.

Minus Versus Moron

By ED MINUS

During July and August of the past summer I worked in a printing office, and among my fellow-employees was a man named Raymond, who was a moron. Definitively, a moron is a "a moderately feeble-minded person, who can be happy with tasks too simple and monotonous to satisfy an intelligent person," and Raymond (I do not know his last name) was a moron.

He was a small man, fifty-five or sixty years old. His shoulders were rounded; his hair, short, but ragged, and a dirty white. His movements were those of a boy; he walked quickly and loosely, a spring in his step; his hands were stuffed in his pockets or hung freely at his sides. His countenance was also boyish, although his face was lined and often wore a perplexed expression. His features were unremarkable, except his eyes. They were dark brown, somewhat deep-set, and they were sad, troubled eyes.

Raymond laughed often and at things which were not funny. He would throw his head back, open his mouth, revealing small gray teeth, and cackle loudly; small wrinkles would appear aruond his mouth and at the outer corners of his eyes, but the eyes themselves remained unchanged. Theirs was an abysmal secret.

Raymond had worked in the shop for thirty years—even before the present owner, Mr. Alton, had come and during Mr. Alton's apprenticeship—and Mr. Alton hated to let him go, for it would have been difficult for him to find another job. So he was kept on.

He stood before a table and gathered, from stacks of printed sheets, receipt books, order books or check books. A yellow sheet, a white sheet, a pink sheet; a yellow, a white, a pink; yellow, white, pink. Thousands upon thousands. Each morning and after lunch each day he swept the shop, and he carried packages to and from the delivery trucks. These were his duties, had been for thirty years, and he performed each of them eagerly and conscientiously, as if he were tackling for the first time a really challenging assignment. He tried constantly and desperately to please, but he could not always do so, and perhaps this was

Snaffled Bunter-Cleech

By MIKE FURRY

I am waging a holy war on instruction booklets. Wanna join me? Here's a booklet I've tried to follow, but it always loses me. Go on, take a look inside,I dare you. It's about sailing.

"—— then, snaffling the bunter-cleech through the marling pin, tie a stop-knot in the banyard, and the sail is ready to hoist (provided that you've beefed the runtle securely.)"

Now, everything goes fine 'til I find the bunter-cleech refuses to snaffle, and I can't find the hole in the marling pin to snaffle it through.

If I ever get this situation cleared up, I'll have to find beef for the runtle anyway, so to heck with it. You've convinced me that I don't like sailing in the first place. (We'll burn this one.)

Now, try this book from an Erector Set (No. 7½ for ages 8-10).

"—— now that point A is opposite aperture H. turn the knurled knob (K) 45 degrees to the right and rod D whl slide into place. Lever B will then slide into slot P as illustrated. So simple a child can assemble it."

Observe the nasty mess before us. Does it even faintly rsemble the "as illustrated"? It might if I could find point A. Aperture H has rod D sticking through it at an angle of 45 degrees. As for the knurled knob (K), it's still in the kit.

But I have seized upon a quick way to finish the work. I also have seized upona a hammer (R) and chisel (J) and using a stroke of approximately 45 degrees, drive chisel (J) through the mess before me from A to Z thus finishing the work.

Recipes are just about the same. I always try to avoid the recipes which include whole eggs, because every time I use whole eggs it turns out sorta crunchy. The recipe says its supposed to be "smooth and creamy," but to me, it's crunchy.

BABY DOLL

"Baby Doll" is another of Tennessee Williams' tales of an unlovely South, artfully directed by Elia Kazan and starring a rare, finely matched trio of actors. Carroll Baker plays the petulant, unkempt child-wife who continually taunts her middle-aged husband (Karl Madden) with a promise made to her dying father that they should have no real marriage until she reached her twentieth birthday.

Finally made desperate by her threats to nullify their a greement when all the furniture is repossessed, the frustrated husband sets fire to a successful competitor's cotton gin in an attempt to regain the business usurped by this Italian stranger, Eli Wallach. "Tit for tat," says Malden after the fire, believing hmiself now even with Wallach.

But the Italian, his own Sicilian traditions as deep as those of the dusty South, professes a similar credo of "a sort of Biblical justess—eye for eye." He determines to force Baby Doll to sign a statement as proof that her husband set fire to his gin.

The girl is fascinated by his half-serious wooing, and after a hilarious scene in which he makes a game of chasing her around the molding house, she is frightened into signing the paper.

Later, she invites him to nap in her favorite spot, the old nursery. When Malden returns home, he discovers his wife strangely ma tured. The Italian had been a more cruel than he intended.

Though often amusing, "Baby Doll" provokes troubled laughter and the moviegoer leaves, puzzling over a strange taste in the mouth.

Ferocious Five on Top as Intramurals Draw to Close

It's the same old story in intra-mural basketball as the powerful Ferocious Five continue their onslaught to remain atop the standings with the only undefeated mark. Since last week's standings were released, Sigma Nu has moved up a notch to gain a tie for second place. It's still anybody's guess as to the second place season winner with the Cats, Rebels, Sigma Nu, and Kappa Alpha all in the thick of the race.

Last Thursday's games found the Rebels trouncing Alpha Sigma Phi and the Old Whels forfeiting to the up and coming Pi Kappa Phi quintet. The week drew to a close with Sigma Nu topping the Old Wheels and the Spencer Cats taking a 50-39 win at the hands of Pi Kappa Alpha. The Cats took an early lead and continued to pour on the points to hold a commanding 25-11 lead at the half. Thomas and Hoffman led this first half surge to spark the Cats in their bid for victory number six. In the second half Bob Hill led the PiKA's in a comeback effort, but the bid fell short and the Cats coasted to a 50-39 victory. Top man for the night was Cat Harry Hoffman with 18, followed by his teammate Thomas with 14. Leading the PiKA's was Hill with 12. Swede Harris also tipped in seven for runner-up honors.

No games were played on Monday night, though Kappa Alpha picked up victory number six with a forfeit win over the winless Theta Chi team.

On Tuesday night the front-running Ferocious Five basketeers crumpled the Spencer Cats 62-38 to run their two-year win streak to 17 games. Hitting with their usual accuracy the tall Ferocious Five bunch completely outclassed the second place Cats as Gus Bell led the way with 18 points. The Cats, enternig the games in hopes of stopping the terrific win streak of the F. Five, had trouble finding the range and the F. Five breezed to their seventh victory of the current season. Top man for the losers was Ed Jackson with 10.

On Wednesday night Sigma Nu pulled into a second place tie with a 38-32 win over the Rebels. Billy Fulton, as hot as a firecracker, poured in 15 points to share the brunt of the offensive duties for the Sigs. The Rebels held high scoring Sonny Phillips to six points in an effort to down the Sigs, but Fulton took up the slack along with Rodney Derrick who hit for nine. For the losers, Dick Wood bucketed ten, Don Segrest hit eight and Byron Carr tallied six points.

Editor's Note:

The team representatives have neglected to turn in after each game the scores and top scorers. If their team is to receive its deserved publicity this information must be in to the sports editor or one of his staff not later than Chapel period on Thursday of each week.

SCA All Star Team

The Student Christian Association is sponsoring in conjunction with the intra-mural season the selecting of an All-Star Team. This team will be picked by the coaches or a representative of each team participating. The selections may be from any of the teams of the league, with the exception that not over two players may be picked from each team. Each representative will place five players on his ballot in the order of their importance. In other words, each coach will list the player whom he thinks is tops in the league at the top of the list, second best player next, and on down through a starting five. The votes will be counted on a 5-4-3-2-1 basis. That is, the player listed number one on your list will receive five points, the second player four, and so on through five.

The five players receiving the most total points will be listed as this year's All-Star team and will, if at all possible, play the Blue Hose Junior Varsity or an All-Star Team from Wofford Intramural league.

This voting will be done at the close of our current Intramural season. If their is any question about the voting technique, see Cecil Geddings, Don Rickett or Bill Yearick.

Presbyterian Halts Erskine Flyng Fleet

The high-scoring quintet of Blue Hose moved into Due West to meet the favored Flying Fleet of Erskine on Tuesday night. PC came home with an upset 72-69 win, led by the scoring of Bruce Thompson and Ken Caswell.

With the accuracy of the Hose somewhat off during the first half, Erskine came up with a 35-31 lead at the half.

The Blue Hose came fighting back in the second half of play and about midway of the period the score was deadlocked at 47-all. From there on, it was anybody's game.

With the scoreboard clock showing less than three minutes and Erskine holding a 69-68 lead, they chose to freeze the ball. Ken Caswell and Bill Sullivan were able to steal the ball from Erskine's Ronnie Rice and a long pass to Bruce Thompson netted two points and a 70-69 Blue Hose lead. Erskine came down and missed on a shot from the corner and PC took possession of the ball and employed a freeze of their own.

A foul was called on Erskine with only 50 seconds remaining but the try for the free throw was no good and Erskine again

Run of the Hose

By LARRY BROWN

Ring out the old and bring in the new! For the last two years on PC campus, the sports department has been under the able leadership of Tommy Richards. Now Tommy is hanging up his typewriter, and turning the reigns over to we the successors.

The outgoing Sports Editor did a most creditable job in covering every phase of athletics on campus, and now we will attempt to carry on on the same manner.

CAGE TALK

As the paper went to press, the PC cagers are sporting a 13 win 8 loss record with two more scraps to be played before the all-important Little Four Tournament begins. The Hose with an impressive 72-62 revenge win over Erskine Tuesday night are improving rapidly and should pose a real threat in the coming tournament. In 21 games this season (one game by forfeit) the Blue Hose have amassed 1758 points to their opponents 1597. This gives PC an 87.9-79.8 advantage over their foes. The Thompsons continue their two-man slaughter against all comers. Dave, with 42.6, and Brue 436 (21.8) are a terrific one-two punch. Other notable averages on the squad include: Ken Caswell, 15.1; Clayton Adams, 6.5; Bill Sullivan, 7.3; Wyatt Aiken, 4.0; and Ralph Chambers, 5.8

SPRING FEVER

While basketball is still "king" sport on campus, the four spring sports are beginning to materialize. The tennis team is hard at work as they prepare for the Florida trip. This season's squad possesses more balance and another banner year in tennis is anticipated.

Delane Johnson will blow the lid off the track season as he participates in the annual Indoor Games at Raleigh, N. C., this weekend. Delane, who ran a 9.5 yard dash last season showed well against competition from all over the South.

Elsewhere on the cinders, the boys are hard at work, enjoying the beautiful weather while they may, as they prepare for the USC meet in March.

The other two spring sports, baseball and golf, are starting, but as yet little detail is known on them.

SHORT CUTS

In the recent PC-Belmont Abbey basketball game, the Hose collected 123 points to set new Leroy Springs (115 points) Gymnasium scoring record. The old record was scored against The Citadel last year.

Intramural basketball is still very hotly contested. The "Ferocious Five" seems to have sewed up the over-all record, but the race for frat honors is still in the balance. Sigma Nu plays Spencer Cats next week in an important battle for second plcae. Also, mathematically Pi Kappa Phi and the Rebels are still in the running to cop second place laurels.

Matthews, Waters, Isger, And Aycock Bid for T-Slot

By BUDDY MULLIS

After watching his thirty-five candidates bang heads for two weeks now, the usually optimistic PC coach, Bill Crutchfield, pauses to enumerate his concern over the vital and important quarterback spot for the '57 season.

"With our material and experience in the T-spot, we are a better balanced team than when Harry Hamilton was field general of the Blue Hose."

Presbyterian lost its starting quarterback, Felder Cook, by graduation from the 1956 team. Only letterman reporting for spring practice is sophomore Ron Isger, from Clairton, Pa. He was called on quite frequently to fill the T-spot last season, thus giving him the experience as a capable signal-caller, and a deceptive ball-handler. Ron has shown much improvement as a passer in spring drills, and will be counted on with his experience for the starting role next fall.

Backing up Isger is sophomore Bill Aycock, from Fayetteville, N. C. Aycock has seen limited action for the past two years, but with his passing ability and more experience, he could break into the starting lineup.

Crutchfield indicated that Bob Mathews, a 185-pound sophomore end, would be given a chance at quarterback during the spring sessions. Bob transferred from Florida State University two years ago, where he played both end and halfback positions. For the Hose last year Bob lettered as an end.

The Presbyterian College mentor said that Mathews "shows progress at his new spot and indicates great potential as a passer, as well as having the ability of being a good running quarterback.

A newcomer bidding for the starting role as the Presbyterian quarterback is Bob Waters, who transferred to PC from Stetson University. He stands 6'2", and weighs 175 pounds. Bob is from Sylvania, Ga. He definitely shouldn't be a stranger to Blue Hose fans on the gridiron, since he completed five of eight tosses into the PC secondary when Stetson met the Hose last season.

Crutchfield said that "Waters will strengthen our outfit considerably with his experience and passing ability."

Presbyterian will wind up its present spring training session with an intra-squad game on March 15.

McIntyre Calls For Baseball Candidates

The initial call for candidates for the 1957 Presbyterian College baseball team has just been announced by head coach Vince McIntyre. McIntyre, who recently met with the new Hose hopefuls, last Monday night expressed his definite optimistic view for the ensuing season. Approximately 40 candidates turned out for the meeting. McIntyre, who is starting his fifteenth year in organized baseball, also stated that the new edition of the Blue Hose Diamondeers will have an aim of displaying a vast amount of teamwork in an effort to win as many games as possible.

McIntyre brings to the PC coaching staff a very impressive record. As a graduate of Kent State University in Ohio, he participated both on the gridiron and baseball diamond and achieving such standards that merited an approach by the Celevland Indians in the American League. His professional career consists of a short stint with the now defunct Americus team of the Georgia-Florida League. With the Americus club he was used as both infielder and outfielder. In the past h ehas served as head baseball coach for a Class A high school in which he produced repeated winning seasons against the cream of the Ohio baseball crop.

McIntyre also hopes for active student backing from the PC student body at the ball games.

Blue Hose Squeeze Past Newberry, 61-60

Led by the scoring of the Thompson pair, the Presbyterian Blue Hose edged the ever-improving Newberry Indians by a 61-60 margin in Leroy Springs Gymnasium.

With Newberry mostly controlling the backboards in the first half, the Blue Hose had to settle for a slim 33-32 halftime margin. The Indians actually held a one-point lead when the halftime buzzer went off, but PC's flashy little guard, Ken Caswell, was fouled just as the buzzer sounded and he promptly put PC ahead with two quick free tosses.

The second half was close with the furious type of play which is often enjoyed by the Blue Hose supporters. The lead changed hands several times and with the score at 60-60, and less than two minutes left, the Blue Hose went into a freeze, and were successful in keeping the ball. Then with about 15 seconds left, forward Dave Thompson drove for the basket. He was fouled before getting off his shot. With a one and one situation confronting Dave, he calmly sank two charity shots to assure PC of at least a tie. Newberry then asked for time out with onyl about two seconds left and after the ball was put into play, the Indians were unable to get off a shot and PC took a thrilling 62-60 Little Four win. Bruce had 24, and Dave 23 points for PC. For Newberry, center Jim Woolridge had 17.

Raymond was capable of understanding and remembering certain things, but the thoughts and ideas of his own mind were sparse. Therefore, he held tenaciously to each of them, echoing again and again each sentence, each idea he hit upon.

Some of the other men in the office occasionally teased or joked with Raymond, harmless jokes ordinarily, but Raymond often became angry or embarrased, and more than once I saw his troubled eyes grow shiny with tears. Then the jokes would cease and the men grow quiet; and Raymond would wander away muttering something over and over again. Later they would try to make amends by being extra friendly, and Raymond would forget, if he had not already forgotten, their caustic jokes. Then they would clap him on the back, and say to one another, "Raymond's a good old boy." I do not think they ever realized the truth of that statement.

PC Stops Erskine

had their chance to win. Erskine guard Bobby Johnson lost the ball out of bounds while driving for the basket.

Sullivan brought the ball down court for PC and was fouled with six seconds left. Showing the caimness of a veteran, Sully dropped both through the hoop and PC took a 72-69 win.

The victorious Hosemen put four men in the double figures. Bruce Thompson was tops with 22 points.

For Erskine, little Ronnie Rice, subbing for his injured brother, hit from the outside for 22 points to top Erskine scoring.

Coker Chicks Sing Here Monday Night

Coker College's Glee Club will sing at Presbyterian College on a week-long circuit of South Carolina and southern North Carolina.

The girls' chorus of some 35 voices is to appear here in the college chapel Monday night, March 8. There is no admission charge.

Their annual spring concert tour will take the Hartsville collegiennes to eleven Carolina communities this season. These engagements mark the glee club's tour debut under the direction of Robert E. Fort, Jr. Fort joined the Coker music faculty last fall.

The tour program as usual features a variety of outstanding selections, both sacred and secular, old and new. They range from memorable carols of different nations to traditional folk songs and light-hearted medley of rounds, canons and catches. Included is a four-song group for a picked sextette of the glee clubbers.

Two Marion girls head the glee club. Junior Eleanor Blanche Powers is president and sophomore Anne Davis, secretary-treasurer. Miss Davis also serves as piano accompanist for both the full chorus and sextette. The sextette includes Molly Creadick, of Aiken; Marian Duke, of Lake City; Patricia Hamilton, of Dillon; Laurens McMaster, of Winnsboro; Sylvia Pennell, of Charlotte, N. C., and Lois Sawyer, of Georgetown.

Coker President John A. Barry, Jr., will be guest minister at the Timmonsville, Orangeburg, and Sumter Sunday church services featuring appearances of the college singers. Only the sacred portions of the tour program are to be presented on these occasions. Miss Sylvia Sweet, alumnae executive secretary at Coker, will chaperone the touring collegians.

The club's new conductor, Mr. Fort, has had experience as vocal director and performer. The young musician holds a bachelors degree from the School of Church Music of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and a masters degree from the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester. A native Floridian, he is also a graduate of the University of Florida.

Coker Chicks Croak . . .

Coker College's Glee Club will sing at Presbyterian College Monday, March 4, in a week-long circuit of South Carolina and southern North Carolina. The girls' chorus of some 35 voices is to appear in the college chapel Monday night at 8. There is no admission charge.

Their annual spring concert tour will take the Hartsville collegiennes to 11 Carolina communities this season. These engagements mark the glee club's tour debut under the direction of Robert E. Fort, Jr., who joined the Coker music faculty last fall.

Positive Power of Negative Thinking

In a recent newspaper article Hal Boyle stated that, after visiting a college after twenty-five years, he noticed one definite change in everyone. That is, that all seem to have one quality in common—an optimistic confidence that life will turn out well with them. This optimism seems to be only part of the "positive" approach to personal and social problems that is sweeping the country, and which has reached the "big business" stage. Perhaps never in our nation's history have so many people devoted so much time, money and effort in trying to become adjusted to their society. This "positive" approach is preached in books, tracts, movies, and what have you.

It made me feel good, therefore, to hear a voice raised in favor of the power of negative thinking. I read an article that came from The Manton (Ill.) Journal-Gazette, whose author had the courage to raise his voice in favor of a type of individaulism which was at one time characteristic of America.

He said, "The trend today seems to be to amile prettily and do anything you don't want to do, simply to make people like you . . . Tell the other man he's a better man than you, so he'll look down on you with loving tenderness . . . Speak not about yourself . . . Don't criticize, but do follow the leader.

"This creates a lot of smiles, but it will also create a lot of worthless evenings out when you really should be home, scowling at the world from the window.

Popular people have no solitude . . . They wake up rich and frustrated, and they take their affirmative little selves to the grave beneath a brightly polished piece of marble engraved with an inspiring headstone.

"But a great man is a critical man. He considers yesterday and plans for tomorrow . . . and pulls no punches when his track is straight. He learns, early in life, that a simple 'no' is a great time saver."

Mad Scientist Plays With Skull Cracker

By DR. JOHN SUMMERS

If it were possible for a scientist to construct a machine that would show each individual's innermost thoughts or ideals, consider how terribly shocking it might prove to civilization.

While visiting with PC's genius minded mad scientist, Dr. Whitelau, deep in the depths of the Science Building dungeon 17, I found that this great man had discovered a cross betwen an IBM Univac and a hgh fidelity set. When the grids of each are moved in a counter-clockwise direction to each other, Krogmonium waves are built up in such a large number, that even the thickest of craniums can be entered. Once these waves hav entered the brain they bounce back out, and form a light picture on any working oscilloscope. The IBM takes over from here and produces on an electric typewriter the brain patterns in black and white.

After the campus was quiet one evening, I slipped down into the laboratory, and with the aid of one of the students' pass keys, borrowed this wierd electronic invention. All through the night I ran back and forth from the lab carrying the machine piece by piece until by early morning, I had pieced it together, and mounted it on top of the dome of Neville Hall. From here I could aim the beam in any direction on the campus, and could read these sacred secrets of man's mind.

At approximately 7:54, a faded blue Ford rolled up in front of the Science Building. A Captain in the Army Artillery got out and sauntered up the steps of the building. Carefully I aimed the beam in his direction. Suddenly the typewriter, which I was balancing on my left knee came to life.

"---- 4.2 inch mortar placed directly beneath middle office on third floor might equal promotion for said captain."

Needless to say, I was immediately thrown into a state of shock, as I realized the Captain's mind was actually contemplating the mutiny of his superior officer. As the Captain entered the building, the good colonel came up the stairs from the weapons room, and each told the other good morning with a very sincere morning smile on their faces. Great Scott, how can the man be such a hypocrite?

At the far end of the Plaza, I trained the electronic eye on a peculiar figure. He was walking towards the Administration Building, but peculiarly enough, his body was almost parallel to the ground. I hurriedly focused the ray on this man, not being able to see his face, I was curious to see what the machine would tell me—possibly his identity.

"---- &)&'$ "%$1 ?&$;)($*&? ")(!!$& UGBHT—KG"

Certainly, I should have guessed, this man was the Prez of the College.

Time was running out, and I knew if anyone was to spot me on top of the dome of the building they might be suspicious, especially with a typewriter on my knee, and an IBM machine with a side- mounted Hi-Fi set hanging from my back. (It is sometimes uncanny how even the smallest of things cause suspicion to rise in the minds of these in-

Battle Cry, Away All Boat

by MIKE FURRY

We had just been ordered overseas and had arrived in the gangrene hills of Potrzeble. There had been many Rurshluginne uprisings, and we, the 77th Invincible Lowman Lancers (led by Corporal Craigg, noted boot liquor and legger) had been ordered to put down the insurrection.

We had just bedded down for the night in our GI ditches when we were suddenly aroused by the terrible cry of the enemy, "Err, I say charge! Err . . . ." (They were led by the wayward warrior Emperor Edouard, at whose terrific battle song Lowman slipped a disc.)

Sidney Faress (alias "Pharisee") almost forgot his Gung-Ho Kit (No. 7½ for ages 8 to 10) as he leaped from his GI ditch shouting, "Alma Mater, hail to me!" Lieutenant F. V. Smith (alias "Snuffy") while brandishing a bottle of Corporal Craigg's boot liquor, narrowly escaped being hit in the spit-shine by a flying dirt clod while valiantly attempting to recover Craigg's copper tubing from Emperor Edouard.

Tom Golden was captured while trying to act as interpreter between the lines. (The Potrzebians didn't appreciate being called "Rabbis" in German) .His last words were, "Neki Hokey, my fault, gang."

Charlie Quinn, our Jamaica correspondent, while tyrning figure out his income tax on Ouija board, slipped on a banana peel and expired. His last words were, "Work all night on a drink o' rum, Daylight come an' I go ta go."

Colonel Campbell (I lost three lives for the PTA) was shipped home when it was discovered that he didn't have enough quality points to fight Potrzebians. (Provision was made that he could re-enlist next semester if none of his checks bounced.)

Charlie Murphy, president of Big Business Enterprises, Inc., found out the hard way that Potrzebians won't take Jacobs Hill, the Statue of Liberty, Texas, or London Bridge as collateral for Potrzebian Cadillacs.

Our junior K. P. Lee was transferred to the Chemical Corps when we found out that Potrzebians considered it taboo to walk across ground which has been sprinkled lightly with "tren casserole." We were also delighted to note that Leo's other preparations proved equally as deadly against the Potrzebians, producing rockin' rigormortis in anyone who came in contact with it.

Gone With the Wynn

by CARROLL F. TAYLOR

"It's finally here, a movie you'll remember for years; gals, music, the works, as only 20th Century Wolf can produce." At least that is the way the poster read in front of the theater; and I being of true college spirit invested 50c in this gigantic spectacle.

The scene opens with Marybelle Weathergood, a small, farmtown girl, standing at the entrance of the spacious campus of Yahoo U, completely lost. From one of the brick buildings just inside the entrance came the combined voices of the choir blending in perfect harmony to the tune of "Ya Yahoo U." Marybelle is instantly filled with the old college spirit. After fighting down her impulses to try out for the football team, she enters the Administration Building and gets her room assgignment.

Marybelle's roommate is May Wynn. This name is very misleading because May always gets her man. She tapes about the same as Anita Ekbert. It is obvious by now that May is BWOC (Big woman on campus). Marybelle being from a small town is dumb to the ways or in other words, "a square bear." May has everything that Marybelle ever dreamed of, including Hugh Few.

Hugh is the athletic type. If not only captains the football, baseball, basketball, and track teams, he is president of the Sigs, other words, is BMOC.

At'em Sigh Fraternity. Hugh,

Marybelle sees Hugh passing by her window with his football, baseball and pole vaulting stick on his way to practice. After getting one glance at the top of his head, she is instantly in love with him and starts making plans immediately to win him away from May Wynn.

Marybelle makes herself as attractive as possible. She puts on her lowest cut dress. This one is so low cut that the dimples on her knees are showing. She strolls by the Sigh At'em Sigh Fraternity house just in time to catch Hugh with his football, baseball and pole vaulting stick coming out of the fraternity house. Hugh, seeing Marybelle drops his equipment and does a Fred Astaire version of the rock 'n roll. Marybelle, sensing that this is her big moment, exhibits a dance that makes the hula look like a slow waltz.

Marybelle has done the impossible. She has won Hugh away from May. The last scene takes place at Charlie's the campus sweet shop. Schatmo Strongarm and his combo are playing, "It's A Big Wide Wonderful World." All ends well when Hugh pins Marybelle in that last scene.

I could hardly say that this was a movie I would remember for years. The next day I couldn't even tell you the name of it.

Run of the Hose

By LARRY BROWN
TOURNEY BOUND

When the Blue Hose journey to Anderson tonight to open their defense of the Little Four Tournament, they will be trying to permanently retire the coveted champion trophy to PC for good. To try to predict just how well the Hosemen Cagers will fare in this rodeo of basketball, would put us on the spot, for in the past tournaments, the favorite has been knocked off many times while the underdog wins. Newberry and Wofford cannot be counted out of the winning. The Indians crept within two points of the Hose this season, while the Terriers handed PC a 76-70 loss. Erskine will come to Anderson fighting mad after being trounced by the Blue Hose and Wofford last week.

Coach Russ Murphy's boys definitely have their work cut out if they expect to bring home the bacon for good. True, the team has been hampered by the loss of Dave Thompson during mid-sason, but his ankle has completely healed now and the Hose should go into battle Friday night in full strength.

CAGE TALK

While much of the attention in the cage world around PC has been founded on the Thompsons, many other players have been keeping th Hose hot in the last couple of weeks. Ken Caswell and Billy Sullivan have recently caught fire and are scoring as well as setting up plays. Caswell has been in double figures many times this season, with his highest total 27 points coming against Belmont Abbey. The Paris, Ky., flash has hit 139 out of 249 shots for a 56% average. Ken has 320 points (15.2). Sullivan broke loose Monday night against Furman and racked up 27 points to help pace the Hose to a win over the Paladins. Bill's average does not indicate his real worth. He has 186 points (8.4) but has helped account for many more. Moving on, Joe Armantrout has 60 points (8.1); Clayton Adams 140 points (6.6); Ralph Chambers 108 points (5.7); and Wyatt Aiken 83 points (3.9).

The Hose have a 15 win-8 loss record to date (prior to the Tournament). They have been over the century mark seven times, with the highest score being 123 points against Belmont Abbey. The least productive night for the Hose was when they collected 52 against Erskin.

ODDS AND ENDS

The golfers are beginning to limber up as they begin their Little Four title defense. Odum, Brantley, Copeland, and Riley can be seen putting around, while bed-ridden Warren Mays has not yet appeared.

The Blue Hose Baseballers open a 20-game schedule on March 18 at Catawba. While Intramural basketball is bowing out slowly, plans are being made for the coming softball season . . . all non-frat members interested in forming a team should see Bill Yearick, Don Rickett, or Cecil Geddings.

Hose Shine in Win Over Furman Hurricanes 92-69

By CECIL GEDDINGS

Prsbyterian College thrilled the hometown fans by dumping highly-regarded Furman University 92-69 in Leroy Springs Gymnasium last Monday night.

Sparked by the amazing outside shooting of guard Bill Sullivan, the Blue Hose jumped off to an early lead and held on to hold a comfortable 41-23 lead at halftime.

The Hose defense was at its best as the Paladins' high-scoring guard, Dick Wright, was held to only 12 points.

In an effort to halt the high-scoring Blue Hose, Furman used a full court press the second half. This was to no avail as the Hose continued to pour in the points with Sullivan and Bruce Thompson hitting consistently.

From the free throw line the Paladins were hurt somewhat as they were able to hit only 11 of 25 attempts.

This game was the last of the regular season for both teams. The Blue Hose posted a season record of 15-8 while Furman's stand at 10-16. In games played within the state PC has a 6-3 mark and Furman posts a 1-7 record.

The capacity crowd stood at the beginning of the second half and gave PC's two brilliant senior stars, Bruce and Dave Thompson ,a long and thundering ovation.

The fabulous pair ended their season befitingly as Bruce topped all scorers with 31 points, and Dave kept steady pressure on Furman and set up many of the Blue Hose scores with his deceptive passing and ball handling. Bruce also grabbed 18 rebounds to take top honors in that department.

Sullivan was the thorn in Furman's side all night as he hit on nine out of twelve field gaol attempts and nine out of 18 free throws to establish his best scoring night of the season.

For the Paladins, Dick Wright entered the elite circle of 1,000 point makers to devise their only consolation.

Hosemen Defeat Abbey Crusaders in Last Half

With a brilliant second half surge, the Presbyterian Blue Hose came from behind to capture a 93-88 win over the strong Belmont Abbey Crusaders in Charlotte, N. C.

Abbey with their usual fast type of play dominated first half play and held a commanding 54-44 lead at the half.

The Blue Hose caught fire in the second period and with about eleven minutes remaining, the Crusaders changed their offense and switched to a possession type of play. As the clock showed only six minutes left, Clayton Adams hit under the basket to put PC out front for the first time in the second half by a 71-69 margin. From then on the Blue Hose continued to pour in the points and bring home a brilliant 93-88 win.

Presbyterian's Bruce Thompson topped all scorers for the night with twenty-seven points. He was followed by Dave Thompson and Ken Caswell with twenty-one and twenty points, respectively.

For Abbey, guards Rodger Mariel and Al Laglevi each had sixteen points for top honors.

Spring Training Intra-Squad Game

by BUDDY MULLIS

Spring football hit its stride last Saturday afternoon as the Blue Hose squad was divided equally as Blues vs Whites, for an intramural squad game. This game ended the third week of drills for the Hose.

The White unit got their hands on the ball first, and drove down the field for an early score. Bill Aycock guided his unit very capably with a sharp passing attack and running option play. Aycock's first aerial was complete to Ed Messer down to the Blue 30. The play covered 50 yards. The running of halfbacks Messer and Lucas carried to the six. The next play, Aycock boot-legged it around end to paydirt. Mitch Mavromat's conversion was good. With such men as Rich Shrigley, Marion "Bull" Parrish, and Joe Negley up front in the White line, they held onto a slim margin of 7-3 at the end of the first quarter.

The two teams fought on even terms for the first seven minutes in the second period. But, then the Blues quickly found themselves back in the game as Jim Nichols and Tony Benson constantly ate up yardage through the White defenses. Benson went over for the TD and Nichols converted. QB Bob Waters, a transfer from Stetson, set up the play with a 45-yard pass to end Ken Gardner.

Larry Wood, freshman from Moss Point, Miss., shows considerable promise in future years for the Hose with his fine running for the Blue team.

At halftime the score stood at Blue 7, White 7.

The Blues got the kickoff and had little trouble penertrating into White territory. Ron Isger flipped to Benson for 30 yards. Wood and Nichols took it down inside the 10. Isger sneaked to the two. Then the White line toughened and held for two plays. With fourth and goal to go, Nichols went in to score standing up. This time Nichols' try from placement was wide. The Blues now enjoyed a 13-7 lead.

Twice in the last quarter the White unit got down inside the Blue 20, but the fast charging linemen, James "Chico" Lee and Ted Leahy, kept them from making any serious threat. Thus, the score ended with the Blues taking the close contest, 13-7.

Coach Crutchfield said, "the team made a lot of mistakes, which I hope can be ironed out before the end of the spring sessions. I would single out Bill Aycock for his superb job of quarterbacking the White team.

"Also Bull Parrish can be lauded for his startling line play and fine defensive game."

No serious injuries were received in the game by either team, though Center Rich Shrigley missed this week's drills due to a bruised shoulder.

The spring workouts will be concluded after next week's intra-squad game.

Brownlow, Jackson Lead Tennis Team

Presbyterian College's perennially strong tennis team embarks on a 19-match schedule, with sights set on the best season in the school's history.

A northern invasion of the Ivy League schools and matches with national champion Miami University, plus a strong home schedule including Duke, Kalamazoo, and Michigan State, highlights the net schedule this season.

Coach Jim Leighton, Blue Hose Tennis mentor, says this team has the best spirit of any he has ever coached, and can definitely be labeled as one of the top teams in the South and East.

Leading the Blue Hose this season will be captain John Brownlow, of Cleveland. He is backed up by a nucleus of fine stroking veterans, plus two newcomers. Brownlow, who played three years behind departed PC great, Allen Morris, has greatly improved his game in every Hurriedly now, I swung the beam in a slow arc as the professors came out of the Library. Dean Thackston's brain was kicking his cerebellem.

A charming lady with an armful of censored books was entering the building when the typewriter started working.

"---- if only Cuddles Erwin could see me in this new Dior fashion!"

The jolly, partially bald Bursar strutted up his steps going into his administration building.

Dr.T. Layton Fraser looked as if he were in some meditative mood ,but the rays read deeper than this front.

"---- If I sell my book by the pound the chances of higher profits would certainly be a blessing."

The last person to be secretly invaded was Dean Sterky.

"---- A still in the head is worth two in the bushes, Yassah!"

As the typewriter finished the last letter, I felt four hands grabbing me by my shoulders. I quickly turned around to find that two members of the SBI (Student Bureau of Investibation) had come to apprehend me for the theft of one cranium eavesdropper. I was surprised that these men of questionable intelligence had been able to capture me, but later discovered that the inventor of the machine had placed a small vial of U-235 in a false tube in the Univac in case someone might try to borrow his machine without his permision. for one should surely get permission before borrowing machines, as this is only fair to the owner of the mach---- the heck with it.

phase. Possessing a powerful serve and much speed, he is expected to match strokes with the intercollegiate best this season. Behind Brownlow's number one spot, Coach Leighton believes will possess greater squad depth, and therein lies the basis for his confidence that this season may be the best yet. Senior Harvey Jackson, of Washington, Ga., will be the number two stroker, with junior Guice Potter, of Anniston, Ala., in the number three position. Harry Hoffman, Philadelphia, Pa., freshman, will hold down the fourth slot, while sophomore Jim Shakespeare, Hollywood, Fla., newcomer, Jim Peck, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., will be playing at the five and six positions, respectively.

Jackson, Potter, and Shakespeare have greatly improved their game over last year, and Coach Leighton feels that their improvement will be a deciding factor in PC's record this year.

The newcomers to the squad have added needed strength down the line. Hoffman, a nationally ranked high school player, looks especially strong to the PC coach and could develop into one of PC's all-time net greats.

The Blue Stocking
Distinguished for Its Progress
Vol. XXXV Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., March 8, 1957 No. 17

Dr. Grady Wilson to be Main Speaker for Week's Program

The SCA has announced that the main speaker for Religious Emphasis Week will be Dr. Grady Baxter Wilson. Dr. Wilson is the associate evangelist on Billy Graham's well known evangelistic team. He and Billy Graham, both being from Charlotte, N. C., grew up together, were boyhood pals, and worked together traveling over North and South Carolina selling Fuller Brushes after high school. They both went to a series of Hamm-Ramsey revival services and became Christians at the same time.

They both attended Wheaton College in Wheaton, Ill., where Grady met a beautiful girl, Wilma, who later became his wife. After graduating, he preached several years and then joined the Billy Graham organization of which he is now a member.

He has a large part with the organization since he is Dr. Graham's right hand man. He is on the Hour of Decision weekly nationwide broadcast, and did much work when he traveled with Billy to Korea, London, and Europe. He has been an evangelist about eighteen years and received his honorary D.D. degree from Baylor University in Texas two years ago.

He still calls Charlotte his home where he resides the few weeks of the year that he is not traveling. He has two daughters, Connie Jean, age four, and Nancy Carol, age twelve. His younger brother, T. C. Wilson, is also a well known minister.

Grady is at present holding services in Ontario, Canada. He and Dr. Graham are both preparing for the New York campaign which will begin in May in Madison Square Garden, and will last for at least six weeks, with no closing date set.

Thomas Cunningham Cook, another of our speakers, was born in Richmond, Va., on June 12, 1899, and spent his childhood in Richmond, Clifton Forge, Va., and Baltimore, Md. Educated in the public and high schools in the above Virginia cities, Hampden-Sidney College in Virginia and at the Union Theological Seminary at Richmond, graduating from that institution in 1930.

He has served the following pastorates: Second Presbyterian Church, Salisbury, N. C.; Little Joe's Presbyterian Church in Barium Springs, N. C.; First Presbyterian Church, Laurens; St. John's Presbyterian Church, Jacksonville, Fla.; First Presbyterian Church, Hartsville; First (Scots) Presbyterian Church, Charleston, coming to Walterboro last March as minister of the Bethel Presbyterian Church, his present pastorate.

Rev. Cook served in World War I with the AEF in France and the American Army of Occupation in Germany. He has served as Chaplain for several American Legion Posts, is active in Scout work, with AA's, and all phases of community work, in Presbyteries, and on college campuses for youth work. Married to Rosie Mae Brooks, of Richmond, he has three sons, the two oldest are also preparing for the ministry.

From Rocky Mount he moved to Great Falls where he is now serving and has been for the past tow years. His wife is a graduate of Winthrop College, of Rock Hill. He has three children, two boys an done girl.

Just before that, however, the freshman put in a lay-up to narrow the score to 54-52 only 45 seconds from the end as he filled in for center Raeford Wells, who fouled out after scoring 24 points.

The star of the game for the winning Presbyterian quint was center Bruce Thompson, a 6-foot-4 performer, who ended up with 24 points while pulling down many rebounds.

Honorary Degree Recipient Chosen, Officers Elected

Presbyterian College trustees elected new officers, chose three honorary degree recipients and voted an increase in faculty salaries as the highlights of their annual board meeting here Tuesday.

Robert M. Vance, Clinton banker, was elevated from vice-chairman of the board of trustees to succeed the Rev. Harry K. Holland, of Marietta, Ga.

The Rev. J. Davison Phillips, pastor of the Decatur, Ga., Presbyterian church, was elected vice-chairman to replace Vance; and J. Ferdinand Jacobs, Clinton advertising executive, was re-elected board secretary.

The trustee group decided to award two honorary doctor of divinity degrees and one honorary doctor of laws degree at commencement exercsies on June 3. Those men chosen to receive the doctor of divinity degrees are; the Rev. Neil Truesdale, pastor of the Aveleigh Presbyterian church of Newberry; and the Rev. Allison Williams, pastor of Atlanta's Trinity Presbyterian church. The doctor of laws degree will go to Douglas G. MacRae, also of Atlanta, a Christian leader and television Sunday school teacher who serves as assistant superintendent of the Fulton County Public Schools.

Dr. Marshall W. Brown, president of Presbyterian college, said the trustees authorized salary increases of eight per cent for the faculty. He said this raise will apply to all members who have been on the faculty for two or more years and will become effective next September. Dr. Brown pointed out the board also approved a salary scale which would mean further upward adjustments when resources become available.

Hurriedly now, I swung the beam in a slow arc as the professors came out of the Library. Dean Thackston's brain was kicking his cerebellem.

A charming lady with an armful of censored books was entering the building when the typewriter started working.

"---- if only Cuddles Erwin could see me in this new Dior fashion!"

The jolly, partially bald Bursar strutted up his steps going into his administration building.

"---- If the board won't give me his job, maybe I could use arsenic, or strangle him ..with old lace from my handkerchief."

Dr T. Layton Fraser looked as if he were in some meditative mood ,but the rays read deeper than this front.

The last person to be secretly invaded was Dean Sterky.

As the typewriter finished the last letter, I felt four hands grabbing me by my shoulders. I quickly turned around to find that two members of the SBI (Student Bureau of Investibation) had come to apprehend me for the theft of one cranium eavesdropper. I was surprised that these men of questionable intelligence had been able to capture me, but later discovered that the inventor of the machine had placed a small vial of U-235 in a false tube in the Univac in case someone might try to borrow his machine without his permision, for one should surely get permission before borrowing machines, as this is only fair to the owner of the mach---- the heck with it.

phase. Possessing a powerful serve and much speed, he is expected to match strokes with the intercollegiate best this season. Behind Brownlow's number one spot, Coach Leighton believes will possess greater squad depth, and therein lies the basis for his confidence that this season may be the best yet. Senior Harvey Jackson, of Washington, Ga., will be the number two stroker, with junior Guice Potter, of Anniston, Ala., in the number three position. Harry Hoffman, Philadelphia, Pa., freshman, will hold down the fourth slot, while sophomore Jim Shakespeare, Hollywood, Fla., newcomer, Jim Peck, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., will be playing at the five and six positions, respectively.

Jackson, Potter, and Shakespeare have greatly improved their game over last year, and Coach Leighton feels that their improvement will be a deciding factor in PC's record this year.

The newcomers to the squad have added needed strength down the line. Hoffman, a nationally ranked high school player, looks especially strong to the PC coach and could develop into one of PC's all-time net greats.

The Blue Stocking

Distinguished for Its Progress

Vol. XXXV Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., March 8, 1957 No. 17

Dr. Grady Wilson to be Main Speaker for Week's Program

The SCA has announced that the main speaker for Religious Emphasis Week will be Dr. Grady Baxter Wilson. Dr. Wilson is the associate evangelist on Billy Graham's well known evangelistic team. He and Billy Graham, both being from Charlotte, N. C., grew up together, were boyhood pals, and worked together traveling over North and South Carolina selling Fuller Brushes after high school. They both went to a series of Hamm-Ramsey revival services and became Christians at the same time.

They both attended Wheaton College in Wheaton, Ill., where Grady met a beautiful girl, Wilma, who later became his wife. After graduating, he preached several years and then joined the Billy Graham organization of which he is now a member.

He has a large part with the organization since he is Dr. Graham's right hand man. He is on the Hour of Decision weekly nationwide broadcast, and did much work when he traveled with Billy to Korea, London, and Europe. He has been an evangelist about eighteen years and received his honorary D.D. degree from Baylor University in Texas two years ago.

He still calls Charlotte his home where he resides the few weeks of the year that he is not traveling. He has two daughters, Connie Jean, age four, and Nancy Carol, age twelve. His younger brother, T. C. Wilson, is also a well known minister.

Grady is at present holding services in Ontario, Canada. He and Dr. Graham are both preparing for the New York campaign which will begin in May in Madison Square Garden, and will last for at least six weeks, with no closing date set.

Thomas Cunningham Cook, another of our speakers, was born in Richmond, Va., on June 12, 1899, and spent his childhood in Richmond, Clifton Forge, Va., and Baltimore, Md. Educated in the public and high schools in the above Virginia cities, Hampden-Sidney College in Virginia and at the Union Theological Seminary at Richmond, graduating from that institution in 1930.

He has served the following pastorates: Second Presbyterian Church, Salisbury, N. C.; Little Joe's Presbyterian Church in Barium Springs, N. C.; First Presbyterian Church, Laurens; St. John's Presbyterian Church, Jacksonville, Fla.; First Presbyterian Church, Hartsville; First (Scots) Presbyterian Church, Charleston, coming to Walterboro last March as minister of the Bethel Presbyterian Church, his present pastorate.

Rev. Cook served in World War I with the AEF in France and the American Army of Occupation in Germany. He has served as Chaplain for several American Legion Posts, is active in Scout work, with AA's, and all phases of community work, in Presbyteries, and on college campuses for youth work. For Every Man a Christian Calling...

Religious Emphasis Week is here again. It presents an opportunity for you to improve yourself and in turn to improve our PC. Tuesday morning will mark the opening of the 1957 Religious Emphasis Week. You may be a freshman, or even an upperclassman, and are still wondering just what Religious Emphasis Week is. It is one out of about thirty-four school weeks that is set aside for the Student Christian Association. It is a time when you are called on to turn more to the face of Jesus Christ, to examine your life on the campus and attempt, through the leadership of outstanding ministers, dorm discussions, private conferences, prayer meetings, and the grace of God, to find a better way of life. The real purpose of REW is this: to help at least one boy or girl open his or her eyes, mind and heart to see and know more surely that which is the best way for a Christian man or woman to live. We all need to do this; we all need strengthening to enable us to stand when others are falling.

REW is a product of practically a year's work by your Student Christian Association cabinet. True, many hours of worry and planning have gone into the organizing of the week by this small group, but no matter how much the cabinet does the week cannot and will not be a success without the full support and cooperation of everyone. Support REW by attending the meetings and by your prayers..

What is in it for you? What would you like to get out of a week of Religious Emphasis? Maybe you are a person that has personal problems or questions in your life that have been puzzling and bothering you. Perhaps you can find your answer with one of the visiting ministers who will be on the campus all week; a private conference can easily be arranged with him. Any of the ministers will be glad to talk to you privately.

Maybe you are the fellow that likes to discuss religion and religion related to different walks of life. If you like informal discussions attend and take part in the dormitory discussion groups. Ask most anyone who has attended these discussion groups in the past, and you will be told that they very often turn out to be very interesting.

Do you want to start the day with a short inspirational prayer meeting? Short meetings on this order will be held every morning at 6:45 and every afternoon at 5:00 in the Radio Forum Room. The meetings will be short and informal and conducted by different students.

Do you want to hear a series of inspiring talks by an outstanding Christian leader? Attend the morning and evening service conducted by Dr. Wilson. His messages promise to be of such high calibre as to make you stop and think and to look again for the Christ that you may have seemed to have lost contact with.

REW means that you will go to chape every day next week beginning Tuesda Some will go into the chapel and star looking for their assigned seat, A-5, E-5 S-18, etc. Some will go in thinking abou that 11:20 class, and still others will go in to the chapel in a spirit of reverence, seek ing an answer or the way to a happier lif How will you enter REW?

As a fellow student interested in P and you, I ask you to take advantage of a the opportunities that will be yours durin the week. Talk with the visiting ministers They are giving up a lot to come here an be on the campus with us. Attend the meet ings and support them with your participa tion and prayers. If you are the fellow wh is interested and looking forward to th week, interest the boy down the hall an bring him with you. REW has a lot to o fer to you, and you, too, can contribute a lot to the week by your spport..

I have mentioned a few of the way your life can be enriched during the week That is about all I can do outside of asking you to help put it over. The ministers ar going to try to help us. Let's try to hel them by our prayers and the interest w can take in all the activities of the week It's there for you. The ball is yours now to carry or to drop. "Nothing ventured i nothing gained."

All the Junks at Pusan, Go to Press

by DR. JOHN SUMMERS

While making a report to the Board of Higher Education for crippled Colleges and Undulating Universities, I found it necessary to use the notes of the Trustees who were recently on the campus. These notes, primarily observations of events occurring on or about the sprawling campus, are what we might call personal, but I won't use any names like Chairman of the Board—Mickey Spillaine; Board Member—Lou Costello, etc.

Here are some of the notes:

"Soon after arriving at PC, I walked down the Plaza and much to my surprise I saw two young men laying near naked under a Magnolia tree sipping wild cherry wine. One of the two men had a short wave radio and was listening to a program from Seoul. The announcer, a news commentator, was Hung Tom, a Korean who sounded something like Walter Winchell with Sinus trouble. 'Gud efening Meester and Meezees Manchuria, and all the Junks at Pusan, let's go to press.'

With this one of the men rose and commenced to call, Hey, Sue. Obviously the wild cherries were wilder than the two had anticipated.

"I have often heard that the students of PC are a little lazy. It is clearer to me now that I have personally witnessed their outstanding enthusiasm. For instance, I saw one man that had miniature iron lungs on the sides of his cigarettes. With him was another fellow that was so far gone he couldn't be picked up with a 300-foot antenna. He was called Alan Alchoholic by his classmates. He was taking his booze interveiniously, Skotch in his right arm, and soda in his left.

"Apparently the Crown is thought to be in serious trouble here at PC. I saw one small mustached man bobbing around the campus yelling, 'God save the Queen.' A few minutes later, a smiling German was seen skipping down the steps of Neville Hole singing, 'Der Yellow Rose Hamburg.'

I was talking to a Dr. of Architecture today, and he informed me that the SCA building will stand for approximately 74 more mail rushes before it will crumble. I must urge the Board to look into this matter, as I do not believe that crumbled buildings will be much of an asset to the campus. I did observe a family of some 13 odd mice leaving their home by way of the ladies lounge window for fear that their lives were in danger. I also believe that the lights in the basement of Bailey need replacing as they are dirty and don't get used much.

If I'm lucky, I might be able to get all the way across the rotunda without falling through the floor. This Neville Hall is certainly a wonderful building, just as Dr. Brown told us. Not all small colleges have cigarette urns in the foyer. Judd Dining Hall, one of our finest edifices, is located just east of the Hall. I can tell that the manager was once a free lance veterinarian. There are enough animals in here to stock Noah's Ark.

Mrs. Bob of the Infirmary was seen teasing several of the students. She kept needling them, but they realized it was all to their best end.

Well, students, here is the information I'm using to accredit this half-aced campus. I'm sure the Board will be pleased to learn that the competition for first place in the CCUU race is almost a sure thing for us. Even if we don't get it we certainly deserve it!

A Time of Joy and Value

By CHARLES TAYLOR

Religious Emphasis Week begins Monday. Preparation and anticipation have been hoped for, but in most aspects of our campus, I can see none that reflect the joy and value of the approaching week. Scarcely five people have attended morning watch each day and vespers show little more. Religious Emphasis Week was recently called, "Red Cross Week." A student commented that indulgences would be on special sale the entire week. A disheartening sight it is to see the unconcerned students of this Christian college.

I termed Religious Emphasis Week a time of joy and value. Why is it a time of joy? Most of us were reared in Christian homes. We have attended Sunday school and church and been active in the church's youth program. We came to college. College is a new way of living. There are many activities, much studying, and little time for idleness. It is not difficult to wander away from the church life we once were so very active in. What a joy it is to prepare our hearts and minds for a week in which we can do nothing but think of God and His plan for our lives. What a joy it is to know that next week we will have an opportunity for appointed times of well-planned worship and discussion each day. How great it is to know that next week there will be an opportunity for us to return to God in a campus-wide attempt to seek Him and once more live fully for Him. Do you not agree that next week does hold within it a joyous time of worship and devotion?

I also termed Religious Emphasis Week a time of value. Why is it a time of value? If ever there will come a time for rededication of purpose and lives—next week is that time. How valuable the week would be if every student would hear the call of Christ and follow Him. What peace our hearts would have if we opened the door for God to come in. How challenging our lives would become if we would let the Holy Spirit come in and take control.

A time of joy and value is a time that no student should neglect. Call this a sermon. Call it what you may. I can only remember the unchanging call of our Lord. "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for My sake shall find it." (Matthew 16:24-25)

Run of the Hose

SPRING SPORTS HAVE SPRUNG

With the change of weather, a change has taken place in the campus sports. The track, baseball, tennis, and golf teams are working hard in preparation for the opening games. This year the baseball and tennis teams enter into scheduled competition with meetings charted for Mar. 18.

They will both be away from home, as the baseball squad ventures into North Carolina for an encounter with the Catawba Indians. The tennis team enters a tournament in Miami.

On Mar. 22, the Blue Hose golf team will travel to Newberry for a Little Four meeting, and the following day the trackmen bring the first spring sports event to the campus when they entertain the powerful USC track team.

TOURNAMENT OFFERED USUAL THRILLS

Just as it has in the past, the Little Four Tournament was the same exciting show this year.

The Blue Hose, though losing both games, gave the paying customers the kind of game they like—the thriller finish variety. Last year the Hose dumped Wofford 103-102 in overtime and then went on to take the Little Four title with a come-from-behind 91-90 win over the Flying Fleet of Erskine. This type of ending has come to be a trademark of the beloved Blue Hose.

In losing this year 89-85 to Wofford, and 67-62 to Newberry, the Blue Hose probably became the first team in the history of the Little Four to score the most points in the tournanment and finish last. Bruce Thompson, with 45 points, and Dave Thompson with 43, were both the top point-makers of the tournament. This combined total of 88 points was well over half of the team tournament high of 147.

WRITER PICKS ALL LITTLE FOUR TEAM

Each year there are always published the All-Conference teams from the teams' repective leagues. Although many may have different versions of who should be entered on this type of team, there are always the accepted pick by the sports writers. Since no one has ever botherd to pick an "All Little Four Team," I have ventured out on the limb and come up with this all-star squad:

Bruce Thompson, Dave Thompson—PC
Jimmy Woolridge—Newberry
Sam Karr—Erskine
Donnie Fowler—Wofford

Although all five of these players are either centers or forwards, I still believe that they are the five most outstanding basketball figures around the Little Four Circle.

Presbyterian Rifle Team Finishes Season With Victory

by JOHN THAMES

The rifle team concluded a very successful regular season last Friday with a decisive victory over Clemson, firing 1375 to Clemson's 1325. This brought the season shoulder match record to 6 won-2 lost. ing beat Clemson, USC, and split- of these two along with Kinsey and Cain will mean that a search for new talent will be conducted in order to keep this rifle team up to the standard these men have helped achieve.

A note of sorrow was felt by the rifle team this week when it was learned Furman had won over Davidson to take first place in the Western Carolina Small-Bore Conference. Presbyterian College took first place in this conference last year, but close decisions to Furman and Davidson, the only matches lost during the regular season, leaves us in second place.

The team is scheduled to go to the State Rifle Match which will be held at Wofford College on Apr. 26 with one of the strongest teams in many years. After having beat Clemson, USC, and split- ting 1-1 with Furman, most of the team members feel their only real competition will come from the exceptionally strong Citadel team.

The loss of Charles Kinsey who graduated at the end of first semester, may cause the team some trouble, but freshmen Tom Golden and Bruce Tufts are both likely candidates to fill that slot on the firing line come April 26. The other five men that will definitely see action will be: Seniors Frank Sapp, Phil Cannella, William Cain; Sophomore—Toby Hunter; and Freshman—Maththew Smith.

Team Captain Phil Cannella and his firing mate, Frank Sapp, have teamed together for the past four years to be one of the top scoring combinations in rifle competition in the state. The loss with less than half a minute left. Fowler hit on two free throws to cinch the victory.

Dave Thompson was top scorer for the night with 34 points while Bruce followed with 26.

PC-NEWBERRY

The Newberry Indains established a new tournament record when they downed Presbyterian 67-62 for third place in the Little Four Tournament.

This marked the first time a Newberry team had won the consolation honors since the tournament was started.

Again it was the same story as the night before. The Blue Hose grabbed an early lead and held a 38-30 margin at halftime. The Hose couldn't seem to hit on anything in the second half and with eight minutes remaining the Indians took the lead for the first time. From then on until 17 seconds were remaining, it looked like anybody's ball game. Then Dugan, of Newberry, iced the contest with two free throws. He also hit on a jump shot from the corner as the buzzer sounded to give Newberry a 67-62 victory.

Bruce Thompson led the Hose with 19, while Ken Cashwell hit for 14 points.

Hose Basketeers Lose Two In Little Four Tournament

PC-WOFFORD

After taking an early lead and holding it for 34 of the 40 minutes, the Blue Hose lost an 89-85 battle to Wofford in the first round of the Little Four Tournament in Anderson.

This come from behind victory for Wofford marked the second time the Terriers had prevented the Blue Hose from taking into permanent possession the coveted Little Four trophy. Back in 1953, PC went into the tournament in Spartanburg seeking their third successive title, only to lose a highly disputed 99-98 decision to Wofford.

The Blue Hose led the Terriers at half-time 45-36, after a fine exhibition of shooting led by Dave and Bruce Thompson.

But in the second half, with Donnie Fowler playing at his best, Wofford poured in 53 points to lead the Terriers to their second win over the Blue Hose this season.

Wofford went ahead for the first time in the ball game on a driving lay-up by Twitty Carpenter. The Hose were still in the ball game right up to the last 30 seconds although Wofford never relinquished their lead.

Spring Sports Salute...

JIM HANCOCK

TOMMY REEVES

JOHN BROWNLOW

Blue Stocking Spotlights Senior Stars of Track, Baseball, Tennis

Jim Hancock, senior letterman from Rock Hill, was recently elected captain of the 1957 track team. This honor climaxes a long list that has highlighted Hancock's career.

Even as a senior in high school, Hancock was regarded as one of the best prospects in the state as he copped both state titles in the high and low hurdle events. During this same year he remained undefeated, setting the record in the highs and tying it in the lows.

During his freshman year at PC, Hancock continued to set this phenomenal race in becoming undefeated champion in the high hurdles and placing in the lows.

Although Hancock did not retain the state championship in his sophomore year, he improved his time in the 120-yard event from 15.6 seconds to 15 seconds. He still placed a very close second in the highs and again placed in the lows.

Jim's junior year was plagued with injuries and for most of the season he was unable to hit his consistent winning stride. He did, however, garner many points for the PC thin clads and also placed in both hurdle events in the all-important state meet.

Besides being a constant point gainer in the hurdle events, Hancock has repeatedly run in the mile relay team, posting one of the better marks as a 440 man.

Barring injuries, this should prove to be Hancock's greatest season both in the high and low events. Hancock himself has his sights set on another fine season of hurdling with special emphasis on the state championship in May.

Tommy Reeves, the diminutive-sized second baseman of the Presbyterian College baseball team starts his fourth and final season as a Blue Hose starter in the season's starter against Catawba.

Reeves, a relatively small man at 5'8", is from Denmark where he posted brilliant records in football and baseball during his high school years. He also played fashionable ball in the fast semi-pro East Carolina league for four seasons.

He distinguished himself his first year at PC by being the only freshman to step into a starting role on the Hose varsity. Playing flashy ball, Reeves was one of the team's most consistent hitters.

He has been the starting second sacker for the Hose since his frosh year.

Probably the team's best buntter, Tommy collects many of his hits by dragging the ball down the third base line. A left-handed hitter, Reeves has in the past been noted for his spray type hitting.

As a fielder Reeves must be considered one of the most consistent in South Carolina circles. He is able to make the difficult pivot on the double play with apparent ease and agility. His favorite defensive play is, however, the fast underhand flip after charging a slow roller past the pitcher.

An example of Reeves' keen eye at the plate is shown by the fact that he has hit in the leadoff and number two slot most of his college career. His "pigmy"-like size is fundamental in getting him on base many times by working the pitcher for a walk. On the bases Reeves is always capable of the steal and has been among the leaders each year in stolen bases.

Besides his vast amount of ability and desire, Reeves' all-around field generalship should help marshal the Blue Hose to a successful season.

One of PC's biggest hopes in the tennis world for a successful season lies in Senior Captain John Brownlow, of Cleveland, Ohio. A veteran of many tennis campaigns, Brownlow is acclaimed by Coach Jim Leighton as being greatly improved on every phase of his game. Brownlow, an agile six-footer, has been a mainstay in the Blue Hose net lineup every season he has played except for one year of ineligibility. He has played one season at the number three spot, and last year played number two man behind Allen Morris.

Possessing a powerful serve, Brownlow gets the jump on his opponents quickly, and consistently keeps them off balance. Being an over-all good player, Brownlow should rank very highly this season in the South, as he tries to better his 50 won-10 loss total collegiate record.

Captain Brownlow is a veteran of many of the Nationally ranked tournaments and has been tagged by many tennis observers as a man to watch in the future. Last summer Brownlow toured the South and East, participating in various tournaments. His biggest achievement came last summer as he captained the Northwestern Ohio Tennis Tournament by routing every player he faced. He defeated Eighth Seeded Church DeVoe, of Indianapolis, Ind., 2-6, 6-3, 6-1.

In a more recent match in Florida, Brownlow extended internationally ranked Armando Vierra 12-10, 8-6, before bowing to the Brazilian.

Coach Jim Leighton says that Brownlow is continually improving; his attitude is good; and his over-all desire to play is top-notch. Backed by five other able tennis players, Brownlow should experience his greatest season as a PC netman.

Meet the Pressed

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: If Russia attacked Turkey from the rear, would Greece help?

Eduardo G. Campbell—"It is very difficult to conceive that these two strongholes would have any trouble warding off an attack by such an obviously weak nation as Russia."

Prez Marshall W. Calico—"If the great military forces of this great institution, Preezbitierian College, were assembled to assist the nations of Turkey and Greece, it would prove to the world the outstanding things of which I have been telling the world for the past few years. As you all know, Preezbitierian College is located in the lowland Plains of the Appalachian mountains, and on the glorious campus, modern ivy league architecture is employed on the many edifices adorning the college campus. Here, men become men as their desire for knowledge is --------." (Continued on Monitor!)

Ben Hay Eggitt—"I have no zeal in the matter. What does this have to do with the Diamond Jubilee Development Program?"

Ingrate Ingrid Guttys—"It mattereth not to just so longeth asth it wath predestined, and they tresspasseth not on the Holy Land."

Captain Richard S. Clipboard—"You may stand at ease while I address you. First of all, I will disclose to you that the Point has requested me to hold all information at this time, and to keep it classified. However, as soon as the Pentagon is through with my report on the matter I will send a messenger with the news. At this time I have no release for the press. Dismissed!"

Next week another question of current importance will be laid before the minds of the Campus.

South Carolina's Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet, set for May 3-4 at Presbyterian College highlights the six-meet schedule announced for the Blue Hose track season.

The Presbyterian squad, once more coached by track dean Lonnie S. McMillian, will open the season by entertaining state defending champion University of South Carolina here on March 20. Three other Clinton meets also are on tap before the climatic Little Olympics on May 3-4.

Here's the 1957 track schedule facing PC:

March 20—South Carolina at Clinton; 30—Furman at Clinton; April 13—Mercer at Clinton; 20—Clemson at Clinton; 27—Citadel at Charleston; May 3-4—State Track Meet at Clinton.

Pat Boone Refused Beverage Contract

Pat Boone, the new singing idol of American teenagers, turned down three offers from his own network TV shows because he felt the sponsors' products conflicted with his obligation to teenagers, TV GUIDE reports in its March 9 issue.

Two of the programs Boone was offered were sponsored by cigarette companies; the third by a brewer.

"I realized these people want me because of my influence with teenagers," the 22-year-old singer said. "I am personally opposed to both smoking and drinking and do not want to be responsible for influencing anyone else in taking them up."

Under his new contract with ABC, the Columbia University student has the privilege of accepting or rejecting sponsors. He will receive $1,000,000 under the new contract over a five-year period.

Boone actually stands to make about $400,000 this year, the magazine noted, from television, movies and record sales. His record sales over the last two years have totaled 8,000,000 copies.

The Texas-born singer said he regrets leaving the Arthur Godfrey troupe, but before making the decesion to accept the new television offer, he discussed it with Godfrey. "He told me that whatever I decide to do will have his blessings. I will always be grateful to Mr. Godfrey as a benefactor," Boone said.

Two Thousand Records Bought for PC Library

Miss Burts urges that students take advantage of the collection of two thousand records the library has purchased for student use, benefit and enjoyment. This collection includes more than forty-five new records which have just recently been procured. These range in taste from the popular, to the semi-classical, and classical. The music room is on the second floor of the Administration Building. It is open from 3:00 to 5:00 every afternoon, and from 7:30 to 9:30 on Monday through Friday nights. A Hi-Fi set is in the room, and there a student listening attendant is on duty during listening hours.

Dr. Grady Wilson Sparks Activities As Religious Emphasis Week Closes Today

By CHARLES TAYLOR

Official kickoff for the Religious Empahsis Week program came last Monday night with the Committee of Fifty-SCA banquet in Judd Hall. Dr. Marshall Brown introduced Dr. Grady Wilson, principal speaker for the week. Dr. Wilson presented the after-dinner speech with great emphasis upon the threat of Communism to the world. He said that the one hope against the dread villian was the power of Jesus Christ. Also introduced at the banquet was Rev. Ellis L. Oakes, a dormitory and classroom disoussion leader for the week. Rev. T. C. Cook did not arrive on the campus until Tuesday after chapel.

Tuesday morning began very early with morning watch in Neville Hall. There were twenty-one people present, making one of the largest crowds for the morning devotions. Dr. Wilson was presented to the student body for the first time Tuesday morning in chapel. Jerry Finley was sthe leader of the program. Dr. Wilson began by establishing his firm belief in the power of the Word of God, the Virgin birth, and the power of Jesus Christ. The first night service was held in Neville Hall at 7 o'clock. Fraternities turned out in full force to hear the message of Dr. Wilson. He preached on what seemed to man to be three hopeless cases, but what seemed to Christ the snap of the fingers. The first sesion of dormitory "bull sessions" was held after the service. This was a typical day in the activity of the Religious Empsasis Week program.

Dr. Wilson said that the main force that compelled him to be an evangelist, aside from the call of God was the ever threatening hand of Communism. He became aware of this great threat in 1948 when he toured Europe with the Billy Graham team. He said that upon his recent tour of the Far East he became more concerned about this problem than ever before. The purpose of being an evangelist, in the words of Dr. Wilson, was to stem the tide of Communism all over America as the world. He feels that the only way this important mission can be accomplished is through the power of Christ. Dr. Wilson said that he was impelled and compelled by the Holy Spirit to become an evangelist and that he was not at peace until he had begun his mission.

Dr. Wilson also discussed with your Blue Stocking reporter the question of "Damascus Road Conversions." Some people can tell you the day and the month that they were converted to Christ in His power. But there are others that cannot tell you any of the details about when this miracle took place or when it happened. People who have not had a dynamic conversion are often asked by Christians and non-Christians to validate their rebirth and salvation. Dr. Wilson had only this answer to those people, "God said it, Christ said it, I believe it, and that settles it." Rev. Ellis Oakes agreed with Dr. Wilson in a dormitory discussion last Tuesday night. He said, "You have no argument against the statement that I have been reborn, because each individual has a different experience. The results of this experience can be validated in the power of God's Word."

This is supposedly a sequel to last week's article. Was this week a time of joy and value? Was it a time of re-dedication and worship or was it a time of wastefulness and vain discusions? Some people had much to say for the speakers and some had much to say against them. You might ask yourself if you can see the results of all of this emphasis. I can only say this—an acute interest has been aroused in most every walk of our campus life. Some of us were confronted possibly for the first time with the decision of life and death, heaven or hell. With that statement some of us might cross ourselves and play a sweet tune on our make-believe violins . . . if you know what I mean. But I for one thought this was an exceptional week on our campus.

Tribute To Unpredictable And Colorful '57 Basketmen

During the 1956-57 basketball season the Blue Hose fans were treated to one of the most colorful and unpredictable basketball teams ever fielded at PC.

This team was led by the high-scoring combination of all-staters Bruce and Dave Thompson who averaged 22.4 and 20.8 points per game, and by the ball handling of playmakers Bill Sullivan and Ken Caswell.

The Blue Hose, who had a 16-11 record during the season, started off by winning their first four games. They were then upset by Mercer and from then on it was an on and off campaign. Dave Thompson, who was hurt during the middle of the season, had a lot to do with the failure to produce more victories.

The Blue Hose after finishing the season entered the Little Four Tournament as one of the favorite teams, but were defeated in both their games. Even though they lost the Little Four Tournament they had a 7-2 record against NAIA teams and were picked to participate in the district NAIA tournament. Here they upset Lenoir-Rhyne in the first game only to lose the final to a great Elon team.

The Blue Hose went over the century mark seven times during the season and had an average of 84.9 points, which was sixth in the nation, while their opponents were scoring 70.9. The greatest ouptut of points by the Blue Hose came when they set a new Leroy Springs Gymnasium record by scoring 123 points aaginst Belmont Abbey while their lowest output was against Erskine with 54 points. The greatest point production by a single player was Dave Thompson's 50 points against Newberry.

The biggest highlight of the season came as a result of the stunning victory over Furman where Bill Sullivan showed he was not only a great playmaker but also a good shot, scoring 27 points to lead the Hose. Following, with a score of 54-52, the Blue Hose defeated 20-game undefeated and favored NAIA tournament winner Lenoir-Rhyne.

Scabbard And Blade Names New Members

At the annual Military Ball parade in honor of the young ladies present on the PC campus this weekend, nine men were tapped for membership in the Scabbard and Blade, honorary military fraternity. The new members are Guice Potter, Bob Hall, Alex Moorhead, Jim Newsome, Bill Bowman, Billy Fulton, Melvin Little, Tommy Richards, and Bill Yearick.

Requirements for membership in the Scabbard and Blade, as announced by Noble Collins, Captain of the fraternity, are a "B" average in Military for his three years, exhibition of leadership in Military and participation in other extra-curricular activities.

Cadet Colonel Tommy Reeves, battalion commander of the Presbyterian ROTC Unit, was awarded the Reserve Officers Association medal as the outstanding senior of the unit. Major General Ansel Godfrey, Commanding General of the 51st Infantry Division of the National Guard, made the presentation this afternoon at the ceremonial battalion parade held at Johnson Field. This award is presented annually to the outstanding senior by the Reserve Officers Association of South Carolina.

Situation Well in Hand For Military Ball Tonight

Spit and polish, ever important dates and uniforms are of the first order. This afternoon's review started off activities officially. Tonight it will be on with Dean Hudson. The spotlight of attention is upon PC's ROTC.

Women . . .

"Genesis 2: Then the Lord said, 'It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him a helper fit for him." . . . . So the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon the man, and while he slept took one of his ribs and closed up its place with flesh; and the rib which the Lord God had taken from the man He made into a woman and brought her to the man. Then the man said, "This at last is bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh; she shall be called woman, because she was taken out of man."

MEN ARE TOPS

By now all you girls are probably feeling pretty good. Your boy friend and your mirror have been telling you how good looking you are, and all you have to do to get anything done you want is to turn to your fellow, and whimper. It's not that we object to you making us dreamy-eyed and cuddly, it's just that we want to make sure you know who number one is. Be sure you remember that is was man who was created first: woman was made just to sort of help him out. God did the job he had in mind—he created man, then when He was through working on His masterpiece and was messing around, He became the first electrical engineer. He took a spare part, a rib, and built the first loudspeaker.

WHAT IS A DOLL?

It seems to me that you girls' primary purpose in life should be to please men. What man wants in a girl isn't hard to live up to. Benedict summarized what we're looking for in a woman in Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing". "I will not be sworn but love may transform me to an oyster; but I'll take my oath on it, till he have made an oyster of me, he shall never make me such a fool. One woman is fair, yet I am well; another is wise, yet I am well; another virtuous, yet I am well; but till all graces be in one woman, one woman shall not come in my grace. Rich she shall be, that's certain; wise, or I'll none; virtuous, or I'll never cheapen her; fair, or I'll never look on her; mild, or come not near me; noble, or not I for an angel; of good discourse, an excellent musician, and her hair shall be of what colour it please God."

Book Review . . .

The Outsider

Mr. Colin Wilson, 25, has stirred the reading people of Engla with his euridition and his book, "The Outsider." The book has be acclaimed by such big guns as Dame Edith Sitwell, Cyril Connol Philip Toynbee, John Connell, who have cited it "astonishing," "a markable," "alarming." Its philosophic background is essentia vitalism and romantic existentalism.

"The Outsider" is the epic social problem. He has been an Insider for the whole of his life, naively accepting everything as natural, self-explanatory. Suddenly he is awakened, as if from a long sleep, with a thought-piercing, screaming to the depth of his being, completely deflating his ego, negating his "Self," the thought that his life has not and is not going anywhere. He feels an estrangement and a "Thrownness." He has been thrown into life and continues to whirl through this nothingness. Life is unaccepetable. Outside the security of the bourgeois the "Otherthan" Man watches life passing before him like a huge cinerama. he feels no identity with the drama. (By bourgeois Mr. Wilson, evidently, does not refer to the Marxist connotation, but to the men who live in the realm of immediacy, spontaniety, with blind acceptance of life and second hand meaning.) He now sees "too deep and too much" and what he sees is chaos. In the religion of the bourgeois he sees a bunch of frightened little non-"Beings" mechanically parroting, parading around under the masque of complacent, confident, gutless security. Or if the god the bouregois were to call h him on the phone and say, "I lieve and be saved, or doub be damned" he would probabl have to answer, "I doubt" an hang up.

Are They a Doctor in the House?

by DR. JOHN SUMMERS

The following question was sent to me by a reader in Southern Asia. I have broken it down into its smaller parts, and have proceeded to answer it, using only the most reliable sources of information.

Doctor, do you believe that the cigarette industry deserves the amount of persecution it is now undergoing?

In view of the present ban on cigarettes, I for one, want to come to the rescue of the cig manufacturers. Now I know that this does not make me any John of Arc, for there are many thousands of others who also would like to take all the non-indulgers, and tell them to go right straight to the drug store and buy some of the precious CA sticks. (CA being the medical term for cancer Straight from the horse's mouth.)

Don't you think it is a definite fact that the use of these cigarettes encourages cancer?

It has been reported that they say the number of cancer patients among non-smokers is alarmingly smaller than with those who constantly use the rolled nicotine. But, did you know that cancer occurs more often among canoe paddlers than with those primarily interested in the construction of dams. Also, there seems to be a striknq similarity between the years when milk was at its peak of production and with those years of slower production.

Doctor, I can't understand why people smoke when it is so expensive.

I agree that coffin nails may seem to be expensive. Some smoke as many as twenty cigs per day, thus causing an expense of twenty-five cents per day, or $1.75 per week, or the startling sum of $90.00 per year. But, how about the cost of chewing gum, which non-inhalers use as a substitute for the leaf. Let's say about two packs a day, that's ten cents, or seventy cents per week (unless, of course, you don't chew on Sunday), or $36.00, per year. Also, without the use of the natural leaf of enjoyment, one's diet is definitely stimulated to the point of hunger pangs between meals causing an increase in the size of the meal, and also in the size of the waist. Now if the meal is increased in cost only the mere amount of some fifteen odd cents per day, not even per meal, this cost, along with the chewing gum, has already exceeded the cost of the cigs, but the extra clothes necessary due to an expanded program of fats will make the 25c per day look like nothing.

Why are smokers so messy with their repulsive habit?

Nicotine cylinders are messy, but what about some of the other habits of man, such as: wood carving all over the floors, sculpturing, painting, chewing (yes, tobacco), and drinking. These others are not necessarily habits, but the same sense of satisfaction is derived from each of them.

People smoke only because they are nervous.

Next we have the argument of nervousness. The angels who condemn the smoker say that he does this only because he cannot control his nerves. Surely no one will argue that twenty-five cents is so much more expensive than a house call by a physician, and the cost of his prescription.

All in all, dear reader, I would say that to a smoker there is no thrill that can be compared to the one of buying a new, fresh pack of smokes, grabbing the little red tape, pulling the cenophane top off of the pack, then tearing the aluminum foil open to expose the cylindrical ends of the two inch tubes of tobacco and paper, taking a long drag off of the end of one of the small sticks and tasting the fresh, warm, moist, taste of the slow-burning, sun-cured leaves. No sir, you can take your CA reports, and your gripes to someone else. This guy and many others I know are going to keep right on getting the rich full tasting enjoyment of the terrible weed.

Spring Sports Review . . .

Richard Johnson, Harvey Jackson and Cecil Geddings are in Week's Spotlight

RICHARD JOHNSON

Harvey Jackson, who is presently holding down the number two spot on Presbyterian's famous tennis team first learned to play tennis in Washington, Ga., on public courts at the age of six. As a child star his first tournament was at Davidson, N. C., in 1948 where he and his partner lost to Ham Richardson and Bob Serria in semis of the boys' doubles after beating Gerry Moss and John Fraser in the quarters. By the age of fifteen, Harvey was ranked number ten in the country.

After graduating from Jerome High Schol he went to Bolles Military Academy in Jacksonville, Fla., where he played tennis the year round under Jerry Teeguarden, tennis professional player, and coach. In the Junior Division he was ranked number one in the South for two years.

Later Harvey attended the University of Tennesee on a tennis scholarship, but was ineligible as freshmen cannot play in the SEC. In the fall of 1953 he transferred to PC .

In various years Jackson has won state titles in New York, New Jersey, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, and Tennessee. His best win probably was in the Boys' Division of the Nationals in Kalamazoo, Mich., where he upset the fourth seeded player, Les Ruthven, in the first round. This was in 1949.

Last year, Harvey's first season at PC, he played steadily in the number five position. This year the little man is expected to take over the number two spot behind John Brownlow. Jackson will add much to the all-around strength of the powerful Blue Hose.

CECIL GEDDINGS

Cecil Geddings, who's second religion is baseball, begins his final year in the sport, leaving behind many colorful episodes.

Cecil, who hails from Paxville, graduated from Manning High School in 1953 after playing three seasons of topnotch baseball at all positions on the infield. Playing shortstop his senior year, he led the High School team to the first District Championship in over 20 years.

After coming to Presbyterian College, the versatile little infielder has held down posts at second and third base during the past two seasons and this year is expected to handle the chore at the hot corner. This is the position at which Cecil feels most at home. It was at third that he set a one-game mark against Wofford by handling the ball twelve consecutive times without a miscue.

Although Cecil is not a power hitter, his keen batting eye and aggressiveness on the base paths make up for light hitting. Over the past two seasons he has maintained a .323 batting average and is not expected to lower the total this season. One of the top defensive men in the state, he led the team n this department last year with a .956 fielding average. Plugged as the team holler guy, Cecil is always heard talking it up on the infield and keeping his teammates hustling. On the bases, he can be counted on for the ever important steal. Although not the fastest man on the team, he seems to get the jump on the pitcher and his hook slide makes him a hard target for the opponent to tag.

During the summer months, Cecil plays with the semi-pro teams in his area. Last summer in the fast Pee Dee League he topped his Manning Blues teammates with a lofty .400 batting mark while holding down the shortstop slot.

Students and baseball fans alike will be looking for the flashy play of Geddings to help push the Blue Hose to a winning baseball season.

HARVEY JACKSON

One of PC's brightest hopes in track this season is senior pole-vaulter Richard Johnson. Richard attended Thomasville High School in Georgia, and was an outstanding contender for three years. His soph and junior years in High School were highlighted by winning the Regional Meet both years and he took second place in the event his senior year. Johnson vaulted against the present state champion, Conrad Snypes, of USC, in the tenth grade. Snypes at that time was vaulting over twelve feet to Johnson's ten. Richard will face Snypes this spring at the State Track Meet. The highest vault Richard attained in high school and his freshman year at PC was 11 feet. However, Johnson's main concern his freshman year was in improving his form. With his form improved as a sophomore, Richard vaulted for twelve feet to take a second place tie in the State Track Meet with Abbot ,of Clemson. The steadily improving vaulter reached thirteen feet his junior year against Mercer after obtaining valuable experience from the ACC indoor meet at the beginning of the season. Against Johnson tied for second place in the State Track Meet his junior year after dropping down to twelve and a half feet with Metz, of Clemson, who had won the state championship the previous year with thirteen feet. Richard has his sights set high this year, hoping to break the State thirteen feet, three inch record. Bidding with him for the record this year will be Snypes, of Carolina, and the "man to beat" for the first place honor.

Webb Stars As Hose Battle Hose Saturday

By BUDDY MULLIS

The Blue Hose ended Spring football sessions last Saturday on Johnson Field with the Whites trimming the Blues 14-13, in a hard-fought intra-squad game.

Behind 13-7, going into the last quarter, the Whites tied it up on a 36-yard pass from QB Bill Aycock to HB Ed Messer and won the contest on Mitch Mavromat's conversion. The running of John Lucas, Mavromat, and Messer set up the score.

Halfback Ken Webb practically put on a one-man show as he powered over the double stripes twice, and kicked the lone extra point for the Blues. In the first quarter, the Decatur flash bulled his way over the five, puting his team in the lead. Then after the Whites had taken the lead, he made it very brief as he took the kickoff and raced 82 yards for his second TD of the afternoon. Webb kicked the PAT, giving the Blues a 13-7 lead.

If Webb's spring showing is any indication of his performance next fall, the acclaim of Little All-American will certainly hold true.

The line play of 250-pound tackle, Bull Parrish, was exceptional for the Whites. On many occasions he filled the gaps, thus preventing the Blue backs any possible running room.

Coach Crutchfield was very pleased with the squad's showing, and is hoping for a much better season next fall.

Two Thompsons Voted All-State By Writers

Presbyterian College was the only school in the state to place two players on this year's Hornet All-State basketball team.

Bruce and Dave Thompson, the lone seniors on the Blue Hose squad, gained this honor by their outstanding play during this past season.

This marked the first year that the Furman Hornet newspaper has sponsored the All-State team and it may well the the standard and recognized All-State team in the future.

It was conducted with the Sports Editors and Assistant Sports Editors of all the South Carolina College newspapers participating in the voting.

With thirteen ballots cast, Grady Wallace of USC, was the only unanimous choice. He was the honorary captain because he received al thirteen votes. Furman's Dick Wright was next in voting with eleven ballots. PC's Bruce Thompson polled ten votes, Dave Thompson followed with five votes, and Clemson's Vince Yockel completed the starting five with four votes.

The second team was composed of USC's Ray Pericola, Teddy Weeks and Dick Wherry, of The Citadel, Donnie Fowler, of Wofford, and Erskine's Eddie Rice. All men of the second team received three ballots each.

Run of the Hose

GOING SOUTH

With basketball now in the past tense, spring sports are rapidly taking over on campus.

The tennis team embarks this weekend to Miami Beach for a three-day stand at the Good Neighbor Tournament which begins on Monday. The Hose netmen will match strokes with many of the top-ranked International players of the day in this tournament. Following the tournament, PC will play one match with Yale and two matches with powerful Miami, before returning home to open locally against Kings College, March 25. After this, Duke, Erskine, Cornell, and Kalamazoo visit Hoseville for successive stands against Coach Jim Leighton's magicians of the court. Good tennis is in store for PC fans this season, so much support is urged for the boys in match play and practice sessions.

TEE SHOTS

When the Blue Hose golfers blast off against Newberry March 22, two boys who have been top golfers for PC throughout their college career, will again be in the number one and two positions. Warren Mays and Robert Odum, two South Georgia golfers, have done everything for their sport from being playing coach to caddy. This pair in three seasons of collegiate competition has amassed together a total of 40 victories against 20 defeats. While other PC golfers were being defeated in match play, Mays and Odum stayed with the best and many times leading golfers from USC, Davidson, and Furman, among other such highly regarded opponents. In recent practice rounds, both boys are shooting with consistency in the low 70's, and if the other members of the team come through, PC may well be proud of a winning golf team.

CREAM OF THE CROP

Returning to basketball for a moment, we find that much interest was created in the intramural league this year. The Ferocious Five came through with another successful undefeated season as they subdued all comers for a 11-0 record. Pi Kappa Phi edged the Sigma Nu's for the top position in the fraternity standings.

Many outstanding performances were put forth by various intramural participants, and along with Cecil Geddings' able assistance we have come with an "All-Intramural" squad which we hope will compare closely with the one that is presently being determined by the various club managers. In making our selection, we included the ability to perform as a good team man as well as a scorer.

For our first team we have: Billy Fulton, Sigma Nu; John Brownlow, Kappa Alpha; Gus Bell, Ferocious Five; Jim Bennett, Rebels; Bobby Matthews, Pi Kappa Alpha.

Second string: Sonny Phillips, Sigma Nu; Wilson Livingston, Pi Kappa Phi; Richard Shrigley, Ferocious Five; John McIntosh, Spencer Cats; Ed Jackson, Spencer Cats.

Honorable mention: Bob Hill, Blair Norris, and Tap Tobias; Pi Kappa Alpha; Gordon Livingston and Bog Biggerstaff, Pi Kappa Phi; John Lucas, Ferocious Five; Buddy Mullis, Alpha Sigma Phi.

PC Golfers Open Season

PC's golfers will swing into action on March 22 against Newberry College, led by a nucleus of seasoned veterans backed up by good potential freshmen.

The Blue Hose strokers are defending Little Four Champions and will be in a good position to vie for state honors at the State meet at Hampton on April 26-27.

A 12-match schedule, including the University of South Carolina and Furman, will pose a target for the Hosemen as they strive to better last year's 6 win-7 loss record.

Leading the way will be seniors Captain Robert Odum, of Waycross, Ga.; Warren Mays, of Thomasville, Ga.; sophomore Albert Copelan, of Mooresville, N. C.; and Trotti Riley, of Columbia; all lettermen returnees.

Other notables who will play will be senior Waldo Dodson, senior James "Chico" Lee, of Myrtle Beach; junior Mitch Mavromat, of Brunswick, Ga.; and newcomer Ed Brantley, of Blackshear, Ga.

Odum is defending Little Four Champion, and along with Mays and Copelan, will be hard to beat in match play this season. Riley is a good all-around golfer, and will contribute to the strength of the team considerably. Lee will also add needed strength down the line.

The good news for PC golfdom is the appearnce of Ed Brantley, who is labeled as a topflight golfer, and will be a threat to take over the top spot.

War Ain't Bad

II and Korea trained alumni gave en their best efforts, several the supreme sacrifice. It was a former PC cadet who gained worldwide attention when, in Berlin, Russians stopped his jeep with American Congressmen and their guests. Lieutenant Moon McQueen showed by his handling of the situation the value of early training.

To meet America's expanding military needs of preparation and for an individual to be better qualified to fulfill service obligations, all ROTC candidates receive actual Army training along with their other studies. Morning drills, classroom instructions, military inspections, and a six-week summer camp with maneuvers offer necessary experience to assume rank of Second Lieutenant. Presently the PC unit comprises four training companies and a band of 25 members.

Lieutenant Colonel Francis Vinton Smith commands the training of future officers as Professor of Military Science and Tactics. Major Henry F. Lowman serves in the capacity of assistant PMS&T. Captain Richard S. Craig as Military Adjutant.

ROTC Batallion Commander Cadet Major Thomas J. Reeves, of Denmark, will help usher in the start of festivities. Other cadet officers in the leadout will include James H. Hancock, Harvey Butler, Noble R. Collins, James C. Dukes, David Collins, Donald Rickett, Thomas B. Warren, and S. F. Sapp.

An so this evening, as the Military Department puts its best foot forward, as the cadets shine, their dates beam, we can be assured that war isn't always hell.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: What should be done to provide the students with more cultural entertainment

John Thames — Form a WAC ROTC unit under the leadership of Cadet General Thames.

Tommy Richards—Free Marilyn Monroe movies in the chapel every Wednesday night and Dixieland jazz concerts every Friday night.

Bill Bowman—Charter a bus to Charlie's.

Ben Hay Hammet—I don't see what this has to do with the Diamond Jubilee Development Program.

Guice Potter — Bugle call should be Brahms first Symphony, and library books in shelves should be installed in all heads.

McIntyre Gives Schedul of Twenty Baseball Game

By LARRY BROWN

The Presbyterian College baseballers will launch a 20-g schedule on March 18 against Catawba College, with a new co at the helm.

Hoping to better the 6 won-15 lost record of last season, Vic Intyre, new Blue Hose diamond mentor, will stress strict playe training. McIntyre, a veteran of some pro ball, feels that good p dition is essential in every sport, therefore he is running the h hard in preparation for opening day.

The Blue Hose face a tough schedule which includes Little Four, North State Conference and Southern Conference foes.

Led by Malpass, who won three games last season and knuckle baller Tennant, along with curve ball artist, Norris, and speedballer Gardner, the pitching staff should be greatly improved over last year's tossers.

The infield with Geddings, Reeves, Benson, and Freshman Dusty Reeves, of Clinton, show -ing up well, will be defensively sound.

The main weakness of the club, however, is hitting. Only Benson, who was last year's batting champion (.388), is hitting with any consistency. The return of injured slugger Richard Shrigley to the Blue Hose lineup could help considerably. Big Shrig blasted away last year for many extra base hits, including two home runs in one game.

Newcomers Eddie Jackson, infielder, Billy McElveen, outfielder; pitchers George Aiken and Bill Dobbins wil ladd needed reserve strength. Also Gus Bell, transfer student, should greatly bolster the PC hitting attack.

The 1957 Blue Hose baseball squad should possess good defense, no-hit, strong pitching a much speed.

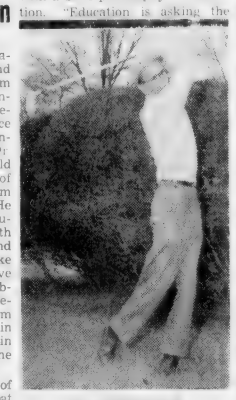
Books, Papers, and Smoke–Dr. Stevenson



By CHARLES TAYLOR

Books, papers, a vivid caricature hanging on the wall, and Pall Mall smoke swirling from the nostrils of a thin-faced gentleman who is slightly bald describe none other than the office and person of Dr. John Stevenson, Professor of English. Dr. Stevenson—better known as "old buddy"—is an informal sort of man who doesn't exactly conform to the usual line of PC profs. He has an acute interest in his students being individuals with their own separate interests and initiatives. Dr. Steve isn't like some professors who talk above your head about most any subject. He is the kind of gentleman who can sit in the classroom and present a serious lecture in the morning and then just plain joke with you over a coke at the soda fountain in the afternoon.

One of the questions asked of Dr Stevenson was that of what did they have at the school you went to that would be a big improvement over PC. His answer to this was, "I think in terms of my own work. We had a publications board of four faculty members and four students. They appointed the editors and business managers of the three publications. This took such jobs out of political competition."

Dr. Stevenson continued by pointing out some of the organizations that were present on his campus. "My school had a Phi Beta Kappa chapter. I think this indicates an academic achievement which is not exclusive. There are only two in South Carolina. There were two literary societies which met twice a month. Through these organizations there were speakers, debaters, and student papers presented." He also added, "This comes from an older tradition and I do not believe it would be succesful today."

Dr. Stevenson reflected his interest in scholarship when he made this statement by George Kitchen, "Concerning the importance of the library, every other building, including the gym, could burn down and we would still have have a college. The mate- to the library." He continued with a brief philosophy of education. "Education is asking the rial of all departments is related right questions. I would be satisfied if students would ask questions right or wrong."

He climaxed his statements with one that every person on the campus might agree. "I sometimes feel the noble promise we make in the catalogue about individual attention is not always maintained." He qualified that statement by saying, "There is always a descrepancy between the actual and the ideal.'

Sigma Nu Names Bill Yearick Commander

At last Tuesday night's meeting, Bill Yearick, a rising senior from Miami, Fla., was elected Commander of Zeta Theta Chapter of Sigma Nu. Larry Clark, of Winston-Salem, N. C., was elected Lt. Commander while Ken Fleischer, of West Palm Beach, Fla., was elected Recorder, and Bill Fulton, of Atlanta, Ga., was elected treasurer.

Bill Crutchfield Now Aide For Furman U. Backfielders

Bill Crutchfield, head coach at PC since 1954, was named last Friday the new backfield aide for Coach Hobbs at Furman University. Because he teaches physical education courses here at the liberal arts college, he will stay on the job until July 1, then will officially begin his duties on the Furman staff.

Crutchfield, an Orangeburg county native, served as assistant to Lonnie McMilian for the 1953 season, and was promoted to head coach in 1954.

The Blue Hose had just finished spring drills when Crutchfield resigned. As a result, the new coach can't get acquainted with the capabilities of his players until September 1 when fall practice opens.

Presbyterian College was left with a head coaching vacancy for only the third time since 1915. And it could be the first time a staff member at Clinton will not be elevated to the position.

Dr. Walter Johnson, athletic director at PC, said the college had not had time to consider the naming of a new football coach. "We will certainly get the best man possible," he said. "We have enjoyed working with Bill Crutchfield. He certainly knows his football. The resignation didn't come suddenly, we knew he had opportunities to leave."

It had been known for some time that Crutchfield was dickering with at least three places for a change of jobs. One was for a new opening at the University of Florida.

Actually, PC is raising its academic standards. The requirements are becoming so stiff until the outlook does look difficult for obtaining football players to compete against schools of similar size. Indirectly this could mean a de-emphasis, although there is no intention of such.

Crutchfield recently said his staff at PC had screened about 40 or 50 high school prospects for football scholarships next fall. Six were desired in particular. None of the six had the entrance requirements now necessary at PC.

It seems that the Presbyterians of Clinton are moving in the direction of the Presbyterians of Davidson. There will be a full athletic program. But a football squad large enough to compete against strong teams is difficult to obtain with a limited athletic budget plus high academic standards.

PC offers a good opportunity for a young coach, but the college does not pay its football coach more than the average faculty member receives. This is different from many schools. It is likely the college will this time reach into the high school ranks for an alumnus with a good prep coaching record.

COACH CRUTCHFIELD

Mrs. Martin, Registrar, has announced a new, Selective Service Ruling. From now on, any student approaching his eighteenth birthday no longer has to register personally with his local Draft Board or that of Laurens County. All need be done is to stop by her office. She then forwards necessary information to the Columbia Regional Office. They in turn advise the local Draft Boards.

Cabinet Heads Picked At First SCA Meeting

The new SCA executive officers met for the first official time in the library Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. President Bill Yearick presided over the meeting, and all of the officers were present. The main item of business was to appoint the Cabinet officers for the coming year. The folowing Cabinet heads were appointed: Christian Faith and Heritage, Roger Godwin; Personal and Campus Affairs, Neil Bain; Publications, Sonny Embry; World Relations, Mike Andrews; Sports, Bill Fulton, Charles Prickett, and Paul Arrington; Chapel Programs, Dick Carter; Publicity, Bowman; Music, Lonnie Love; Dormitory Discussions, Buddy Mullis; Deputations, Ken Gardner. Tentative plans for the coming year were discussed and much etnhusiasm was shown for an active SCA Cabinet in the coming year.

President Bill Yearick expressed his desire to see the SCA run on an unprejudiced basis. "The duties and aims of such an organization transcend the meager quarrels between fraternities, clubs, special persons, or any other opposing bodies. In the SCA is found a composite of the student body as a whole. It should and will be a united group striving to do what is best and advantageous for the Christian life of the campus. Within a week the first general session of the new SCA will be called and things will get off to a rolling start—for now and the coming year.'

Important Interviews, Future Development

A study toward charting the future development of Presbyterian College and its maximum role in Christian higher education will get underway Monday under the supervision of six distinguished educators, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

Dr. R. H. Fitzgerald, chancellor emeritus of the University of Pittsburgh, will serve as director of the study. He will have as consultants: Dean Maxwell A. Smith of the University of Chattannoga, Dr. James M. Godard, of the University of Miami (Fla.), President J. Ollie Edmunds, of Stetson, Chancellor Guy E. Snavely, of Birmingham-Southern, and Dr. G. H. Cartledge, of Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

This group of educational experts will assemble in the periodical room of the college library at 10:30 a. m. Monday for the initial meeting of the project which is sponsored and financed by the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church US. A number of representative Presbyterians of South Carolina and Georgia, serving as an advisory council by apointment of the moderators of the two synods, also will attend the meeting.

They will discuss, at this time, the methods of study and the objectives to be achieved, and begin an analysis of the educational tasks of the two synods as well as how Presbyterian College can best meet its responsibilities.

President Brown said the study is being conducted at the invitation of the administration and the board of trustees. The Board of Christian Education has recently initiated a number of these surveys at other Presbyterian colleges, and it is allocating $5,000 for the PC study.

He said Chancellor Fitzgerald, in his capacity as director, remains on the PC campus for about one month, coordinating the study and consulting with the college staff, trustees, alumni and Presbyterian leaders. Each consultant wil spend several days examining som eparticular phase of the college work.

After analyses have been prepared, a second meeting of director, consultants and advisory council wil be held to receive the report.

The Trouble With Grady...

I received this letter this week from a student. This is not necessarily my views on the matter and I wll gladly publish a challenge to it if there is someone who disagrees and will write a letter in opposition to this.

THE LETTER

Dear Sir:

Religious Emphasis Week has passed and, perhaps, it has done some of us some good? A better name for it might have been "Religious Emphasis Weak"—for in my own opinion it offered nothing but disappointment to a number of us who honestly thought we would receive some helpful and very much needed instruction on Christian Calling in life.

I question seriously whether anyone who heard the many addresses, revival sermons, and bull sessions, really learned anything profitable about making our life's work a matter of Christian calling.

Look at these three telling facts. The Student Christian Association heads publicized this major emphasis by the theme: "For Every Man A Christian Calling." At least by inference we were led to believe that the high-powered evangelist, Grady Wilson, would give us real insight into an understanding of this important subject. We all admit that every one of us here at PC certainly need help in this quarter, and, I would venture to say, we would have listened both carefully and with open minds upon this subject.

What happened? Instead of giving us what was announced, we were treated to an old fashioned revival. Do not misunderstand me. I am not against revivals per se. But I do call, in question what happened on our campus passing as religious emphasis week on the theme of Christion Vocation. It seems to me that we were deceived by someone somehow.

I object basically on two counts. One, I was really looking for some help that week about my vocation. I thought ahead to the time when I would be out of college, settling down, and taking an active part in a community. I know that some day I will be reasonably active in a church. To be frank, the idea of committing my chosen vocation as a part of God's great design was something that I had not given too much thought to. That week should have helped me.

But I object even more strongly to having a revival of the kind which was presented fostered upon me. It appeared that Evangelist Wilson had no other theme than "Jesus Saves" and "Sinner Repent!" Indeed, we were dragged through the quagmires of sin on every occasion, and honestly, I was tired of it before the end came. It was a very emotional appeal, which depended almost completely upon the heartrending stories of little boy with starry eyes and radiant countenances coming into bars where pie-eyed drunk fathers were clinging to the bars, weeping crocodile tears into their cups. Had he appealed to a man's true emotions rather than attempting to work us all up into an emotional frenzy it might have been a different matter.

I was not stirred to deep thinking about any religious theme; and, in that regard, I would say his message was shallow. I couldn't even think deeply about the subject of sin, because that constant hammering out of it in such pathetic terms served only to mesmerize my thinking. The vast volumes of the Bible which he glibly quoted were no help to me, for though I heard them, I did not hear much interpretation, or only a superficial interpretation at best, fall from Grady Wilson's lips.

I think we still need a Religious Emphasis Week on Christian Vocation!

Royal Order of Worms Meets

by DR. JOHN SUMMERS

At this time I would like to announce that the Royal Order of Worms will be formed on the Presbyterian College campus. All men who may be interested in becoming official members of this new collegiate organization will assemble in the Radio Forum Room at 1659 hours on 31 February, and will at that time be sworn in.

To those unfamiliar with the high principles of this society, I would like to announce that only men with very high EEK's (IQ's) will be allowed to participate in the club's activities; these being —whenever a club member has due to exam failures, poor Professor - Student relationships, frustrations caused by miserable relations with the opposite sex, or other types of mental ailments; he will then be allowed to go to the club room, where he has the unquestionable privilege of devouring squirmy, little worms. (Many New York doctors claim that by eating worms, frustrations due to muscular aches and pains, nueritis, or uueralgia, are usually quelled in one's mind.)

Of course, due to the formality of the procedure ,there is a certain protocol that must be performed before any member is even allowed to lift the latch to the earthen- filled box in the center of the room. When a member aproaches the door to the Hall of Worms, he must remove the spade from the door sill, and dig one of the slimy morsels from the soiled earth outside the grounds. (This creature is later purified and made edible by the Lord Chief High Worm Cleaner and Department of Sanitation for the Royal Order of Worms.)

This worm is placed in a small metallic container and shoved under the secret swinging transom leading to the Lord Chief—Great Caesar's Naval—his desk, where it will be taken care of. After ringing the ceremonial bell four and a half gongs, the door flies open, levels out for level flight, and the member may then enter the room. He is welcomed by the Wormy One of the Day, who helps him dress in the proper gowns for the Removing of the Worm Ceremony. (This is a very short but impressive part of the procedure and must be observed at each occasion.

Incense is lit, and the bright lights dim until they are no longer bright lights. After spraying the partakers' hands to remove any type of dirt, soot, bacteria, fungi, virus, or filth, the Worm eater then trips over to the earthen filled box in the center of the room. Several stanzas of Montavani are played, thus encouraging the crawly creatures (for they must feel that their life has been lived in vain) to keep their heads high while they are sacrificed for the sake of the human beings' wel beings.

As the gold plated howitzer is fired three times, the Wormy One of the Day lifts the latch and plucks out a worm. Not just any worm in particular, mind you, for it is thought by the worm-eaters to be highly disrespectful to eat just any type of worm. Only those with double clitellums are used for the more provocative type of frustrations. However, for a simple everyday upset, worms with singlar clitellums, and elongated metameres are usually thought to be acceptable for the occasion.

After the worm is inspected, and brushed free of clinging dirt, it is placed in the grip of the thumb and forefinger of the left hand of the Wormy One of the Day who holds it over the head of partaker and drops it into his mouth with one quick motion, being careful not to let the worm touch the tongue ,as sometimes it crawls under this soft bed of flesh and gets lost in the mouth, and then the whole ceremony has to be repeated. After the worm is

The Bridge at Ando

By KIT DELANY

Perpetrated by the terror of the AVO, the undercurrents of content spread through the streets of Budapest swelled to break open rebellion on the chill October 23, 1956. Only days later Jo Michener began his six weeks of interviewing the Hungarians fled into Austria; their accounts are "The Bridge at Andou" lowing the successful "Tales of the South Pacific" and "The Bo at Toko-ri," Michener again exploits war.

"The Bridge at Andou" is not fiction; it is the story of individuals or composites who were the students to capture the Budapest radio or burn the Communist propaganda newspaper, or the worker whose crowbar felled the ugly statue of Stalin, and the old woman who waited her turn in line to spit into the face of the monstrous metal Stalin. This is the account of the common but private sentiments of the Hungarian worker, intellectual, and youth which were at last admitted and with one huge movement of hate rebelled.

From his conversations with the very men and women who were the essence of the rebellion, Michener presents a vivid account of the defense of the Killian Barracks by rebel forces who with gasoline bombs, one captured tank gun, and sheer courage destroyed twenty Russian tanks plus eleven armored cars in one night. This is an important triumph but more important were the four hundred Communist soldiers of the barracks of which not one remained faithful to Communism. This, however, is only one incidence of the Communist instilled denouncing the hy risy of the "world brotherh

Ku Klux Klan and Ollie

By TOM GOLDEN

One night a couple of weeks ago I decided that I would watch television. Before I left the room

I took out a fresh deck of Butts and opened them as quickly as possible. I accidentally dropped a piece of cellophane on the floor. When I opened the door there was a crowd of boys, who had heard it, waiting to bum a cigarette.

I climbed out the window and went on over to a friend's room to watch TV, but he wasn't there. I turned on the set and the first program that was on was Fred Solovan's Amateur Night. He introduced his fist talent. Her name was Normal Jean and she sang "Farmer in the Dell," while doing the CAN-CAN in a coffin.

Unimpressed, I changed channels. Hody Doodly revolted me, so did Kukla, Kluxla, Klana, and Ollie. I finally settled on a soap opera entitled, "The Shadow of the Mountain," or "HOO-HAA." The sponsor was raving about his product, Gimlet Gizmo, automatic self-propelled, ragcleaned, rain cooled, hand operated, insect weapon. Even a child can operate it. Simply take hand A, pick up block B, place insect C on Block D, place block B on block D, an dapply gentle pressure, until insect C on Block D, stops wiggling.

Despite these many hardships, John is contented. John was at work bending hairpins, when he heard that his wife, Cynthia, had been bitten by an Aardvark. The doc said that the only known cure was tse-tse fly soup.

"Will John get his raise? Will Cynthia get her tse-tse fly soup? What will happen to the wall-tent? These questions will be answered at the termination of this series in 1987.

Movie Review

Anastasia

By PRISCILLA EICHELBERG

"Anastasia" is a better average movie flavored some superior acting. The st that of the reappearance of member of the Russian roya supposed killed in the revolu ten years before, limps ab rather apathetically to a surp ingly moving climax, after wh the movie-goer is subjected series of increasingly less int esting developments preceding uninspired close.

Fortunately for the box off as well as a new generation whom the Swedish actress is tle more than a legend, the mo is dominated by Ingrid Bergm in the title role. Miss Bergma appearing in her first Americ film since her much-publicize marriage to Italian director R berto Rosselini several years a displays a depth of ability wh absence has left an abysmal p in American movies unstopped Ekberg or Grace Kelly.

One particular scene betwe Miss Bergman and Helen Hay who also gives an excellent pe trayal of the royal grandmoth almost obscures the medioc plot in the poignancy of their r union. Bald-pated Yul Bryne manages to look Mongolian a intense even while constant lighting ridiculously fat cigar ettes as the severe tutor d dancing master, but he is plain outclassed.

In a sense, "Anastasia" may have rung true had it had an o dinary cast. But the scintillati acting of Miss Bergman and Mi Hayes shows up the rest of t movie as drab and artificial. It is a pity, for the time may n come again soon when Ingr Bergman consents to act in American cinema.

Spring Sports Review...

WARREN MAYS

JOHNNY TENNANT

Senior golfer Warren Mays, a veteran of three seasons play here at PC, will wind up this spring with a record worthy of mention in the PC annals. Mays, a topnotch golfer during his entire stay at Presbyterian began playing six and one-half years ago. He accredits all of his golfing wisdom apd know-how to the careful tutoring of his father who used to be a professional. The affable Mays, a Thomasville, Ga., product, is a seasoned swinger with much tournament play under his belt. In 1953 he captured the Glen Arden Country Club tournament at Thomasville, defeating many well known golfers.

Mays, who captured the Blue Hose golf team for two years, has never been under the Number Two position. He consistently shoots in the low 70's and just recently won the Inter-Team Tournament which was held to determine the lineup for the opening match against Newberry today. He defeated teammate Robert Odum one up in the finals to deserve the honor.

In his three seasons for PC, Mays has amassed a record of 20 wins and 10 losses. He has come up against the best and defeated them. Warren was very instrumental last year in the Blue Hose winning of the Little Four Crown at Hampton, and he will again be called upon to come through on the tee and the green in his final season.

Johnny Tennant, senior hurler for the Blue Hose baseball team is a product of Winthrop Training School in Rock Hill. While in high school Tennant lettered in three sports—baseball, basketball, and football. He was co-captain of the football team in '52, and captain of the basketball team in '53.

Johnny played three years of American Legion ball and went to the state semi-finals in 1950 and 1951. In 1950 they were defeated by Olanta who won the state championship, and in 1951 lost to Sumter who went to the regional finals. Johnny pitched and won a game in each series.

In his senior year in high school, Johnny had a 6-4 record and a team batting average of 200. He pitched for Chester in the Springs Mills Textile League in 1954, and last summer pitched for the Rock Hill Rebels in the Gaston Textile League. In this league Johnny had a won-lost record of 8-1.

Johnny was primarily a fast baller in high school, but now prefers an assortment of pitches, including an effective knuckle ball and a slider. He was approached by Detroit and Washing scouts when he graduated from high school, but decided to go to college and study dentistry.

Johnny's freshman year at PC, he pitched good ball and is still considered the best knuckle baller in the state. The versatile mounder plays cool headed ball when the going is roughest. One of the outstanding moments of his college career was when he came into the game with the bases loaded and no one out against the hard-hitting Mercer Bears. He promptly struck out the first three men he pitched to.

Senior Tennant got the Hose off to a good start by pitching a neat five hitter against Catawba this week and is expected to be one of the top pitchers in the Blue Hose battery this season. Besides being a good pitcher Johnny is also dangerous at the plate.

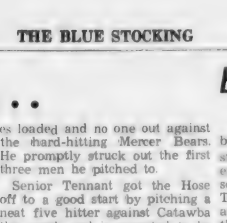
Delane Johnson, the senior speedster from Spartanburg, looks forward to a very successful track season. Not a man in the state could catch him last year and as track season looms nearer, it looks as if the fleet sprinter will again sweep all honors in the 100- and 220-yard dashes.



Johnson has been running track since he was in junior high school. While in Spartanburg High School, he won state meets in the 100-yard dash. He lost in his junior year when his time was 10.6 seconds. Johnson's time is usually far superior to this mark.

During his first two years at PC, Johnson had difficulty with Tommy Woodlee, of the University of South Carolina. He always ran Woodlee a good race, and on occasion defeated him; but Woodlee seemed to be a step faster in the state events. Woodlee graduated, and Johnson seemed to have no peer last year. One sports writer tabbed him as "the state's fastest human."

Against Mercer last year, Delane ran the hundred in a remarkable 9.5 seconds. He was not far behind this mark against Furman with 9.6. Johnson also runs the 220-yard dash with unusual speed. He has reached times of 21 and 22 seconds for this event.

Johnson, like every PC trackster, is pointing to the state meet for his best showing. The state record for the hundred yard dash is 9.7 seconds, and for the 220, 21.6 seconds. As Johnson rounds into shape, he is constantly aiming at bettering these two marks. With a good day, the Spartanburg native could achieve his goal.

Dusting 'Em Off

Coach Jim Leighton is piloting the famed Presbyterian College Tennis team again this year. The netmen won their first match yesterday 8-1.

Blue Hose Baseball Games

PC-CATAWBA

The Presbyterian Blue Hose baseball team got off to a strong start winning the season's opener 5-4 under the flashy arm of senior hurler, Johnny Tennant. Tennant scattered five singles and allowed no earned runs in the Blue Hose win over Catawba.

The biggest blow of the game was struck by shortstop Tony Benson when he clouted a homer in the third inning with Tommy Reeves on base. Trailing by two runs in the seventh inning the Blue Hose tallied three big runs to provide the margin of victory. Cecil Geddings walked to start the seventh. Tommy Reeves singled, sending Geddings to third and Benson beat out an infield roller scoring Geddings for the third run of the game. Then clean-up hitter Dusty Reeves delivered a two-run single to put the Blue Hose ahead to stay. The leading hitter for PC was rightfielder Ed Jackson who collected three for four. J. T. Davis led the Indians with two.

PC-LENOIR-RHYNE

A last inning PC rally fell short as the Lenoir-Rhyne Bears staggered through for a 7-4 win over the Blue Hose. Charlie Malpass went for five innings on the mound before being relieved by George Akins who turned in a superb performance. Akins held the Bears scoreless in the last four innings and allowed only one hit while striking out six batters.

After scoring early in the game the Bears were never in serious trouble until the ninth inning rally by the Blue Hose. PC bobbed into the scoring column when leadoff man Cecil Geddings singled to open the fifth inning. Then Tommy Reeves led off the ninth with a base hit. Benson ran Reeves in but was himself out of at second. Ted Leahy then tripled into the left field corner. Ray Hodge stepped in and slammed a towering homer into the right field stands. Dutsy Reeves kept the rally alive with a sharp singel to right field but the next two hitters went out to end the contest.

Run of the Hose

By LARRY BROWN

When PC plays Clemson next fall in football it will mark the first time in over fifteen years that it will not be the opening game for the Blue Hose. Not since World War II days have the PC'uns played another club before tackling the Tigers. Maybe some of the pressure will be taken off in the opener against Appalachian, and a more closer skirmish could result when these two arch rivals of the gridiron lock horns.

The resignation of PC head football coach Bill Crutchfield brings to front the question as to what course the Athletic Department will take to replace the soon to depart Crutchfield. With the talent presently on the football squad, an attractive job could fall into the hands of some deserving coach.

NET NOTES

News from down Florida way is on the encouraging side. The Blue Hose tennis team fared well in the opening rounds of the Good Neighbor tournament which included such renowned dignitaries as Vic Seixas, Herb Flam and Gardner Malloy.

Harry Hoffman, of PC, won his first match over Job Clark, of Yale, 6-0, 7-5. Jim Shakespeare, another Hoseman, gave Malloy a terrific battle before bowing to the veteran 6-2, 7-5. Carlos Jernandey, the Brazilian ace, was extended to three sets by PC's Guice Potter as Potter was finally defeated by him 6-2 3-6, 6-3.

Hernandez Salas, Colombia's number one ranked player, had a better battle with Hoseman Jim Peck in defeating him 7-5, 6-2. When this article was written no news was yet in on Brownlow and Jackson, but the other four PC net aces carried the school's colors well in Florida.

INTRAMURAL

It seems to me that since much interest was shown in the Intramural basketball program this year, that even bigger strides could be taken to make it more recognized.

Since we do not have a junior varsity, so to speak, preliminary games consisting of two well balanced intramural teams would add much color to fans during basketball season next year. Steps should be taken to make this a reality. Also on the agenda, I would like to see for next year an intramural league among the Little Four schools. This would create better feeling among the boys, and would tend to familiarize the schools. There are many fine basketball players that do not play varsity ball, and a top notch brand of ball could be played. This is only a thought, but if seen to properly, something might come of it.

Presbyterian College Cindermen Jump Into Action Against Furman University

Presbyterian College cindermen will fly into action on March 30 against invading Furman University with a squad of few veterans and many ager newcomers. Four other dual meets plus the annual state meet at Clinton May 2-3, lie in the path of the Blue Hose this season.

Coach Lonnie McMillian's experience-shy team can boast only six returning lettermen; consequently the once proud "champions of the cinders" may have to rely on individual performances rather than over-all team production this season.

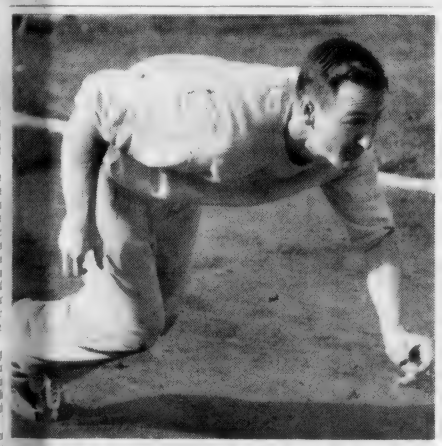
Pacing the Blue Hose will be senior Delane Johnson, Spartanburg flash, who is defending state champion in the 100- and 220-yard dashes. Johnson recently placed fourth in the Atlantic Coast Conference meet at Raleigh.

Other returning lettermen, around which the team will be built, are senior Jim Hancock, of Rock Hill, high and low hurdles, junior Wyatt Aiken, of Greenville, the work horse of the squad, senior Richard Johnson, of Thomasville, Ga., pole vaulter, and two sophomores, dash man Walt Marshall, of Greenwood, and middle distance runner, Fred Stanley, of Rock Hill.

Team Captain Hancock and Aiken will pose big threats for opponents in both hurdles this year. Both boys placed in last year's state meet and are eager for repeat performances.

Vaulter Johnson reached 12 feet last year consistently and will be striving to break the State record of 13'4" held by Clemson. Coach McMillian thinks Johnson has a good chance of attaining this feat the first of May.

Marshall and Stanley both collected their share of seconds last season and should again add much needed secondary strength in the dashes and middle distances.



Two Charlotte freshmen, Charlie Hovis and Roy Bradley, are making Coach Mac take notice in their respective events.

Bradley, high school dash champ last season, is a speedy product and may excel in the 440 as well as the 100 and 220.

Hovis, a weight specialist, is a veteran and has picked up valuable experience while in service. The most notable of his events is the javelin, in which he has reached 200 feet. If Hovis lives up to expectations, PC's long famine in the weight division may be at an end.

Dash man Bob Browning, of Palatka, Fla., and broad jumper, Curtis Linder, of Decatur, Ga., are two more freshmen of promise that should come through as experience is gained.

Delane Johnson will be out again to lead the State in 100-yard dash and the 220.

Bridges of Andou

in the past the Hungarians have fought to overcome conversion to Islam or against the military operation of the Nazi or even as retaliation against ancient enemies but at present their fight is against the debasement of Hungarian life which is called by the Russians an act of friendship, an elevation of the peasant, a dictatorship of the proletarial. Michener rather sees "the stealing from housewives, contamination of children, allowing old people to die of poverty and calling it "world brotherhood as sanctimonious cynicism." Thus he marks the red dimension of hypocrisy. Further he quotes the Hungarian intellectual: "Terror as terror is cruel but terror clothed in hypocrisy is unbearable. From this the Hungarians fled to 'The Bridge at Andou.' Some came frozen blue or dying of starvation but they came goaded by the intolerable lies, vain promises and ruled by the primary desire for self preservation.

Accounts of the heroes of nine year olds' attack upon a Russian tank is only a part of the story, as is the nobel strike of the workers of Csepel, but most important to Michener is the message of the Hungarian revolutionist that "life under Communism has no hope, no future, no meaning. Yesterday, today, tomorrow we are lost."

The Blue Stocking

Distinguished for Its Progress

Vol. XXXV Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., March 29, 1957 No. 20

Hurricane Hose Hits Miami

Netmen Ruin Miami's Hopes of Winning 84

Mighty Miami's five-year streak of seventy-two tennis wins was halted last Friday by PC in a 5-4 upset battled out with an overnight recess.

PC prevailed in doubles matches that were suspended overnight because of darkness, with the meet tally 4-3 in Miami's favor.

John Brownlow and Harry Hoffman, of Presbyterian, defeated Dave Harum and Allen Quay, of Miami, 6-3, 6-4, in one and Jim Jim Peck and Jim Shakespeare won 6-1, 3-6, 6-1 over Richard Walsh and Harry Rosen in the second.

Singles results: Johann Kupferburger (M) Brownlow, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4; Allen Quay (M) D. Jackson, 8-2, 6-0; Ed Rubinoff (M) D. Jim Shakespeare, 6-0, 6-0; Guice Potter D. Dave Harum (M) 6-8, 9-7, 6-2; Harry Hoffman D. Richard Walsh, (M) 6-1, 5-7, 6-2; Jim Peck D. Harry Rosen (M) 6-1, 7-5.

Miami came back strong the second day as they trounced PC 7-2.

That afternoon the Hurricanes won 5 of 6 singles matches and 2 of the 3 doubles.

Harry Hoffman, the lone survivor for the Hose in singles, defeated Bob Rohe 6-1, 6-1.

Also, for the second straight day, the combination of Shakespeare and Peck team up again to spell defeat for Miami's Rosen-Walsh, 6-3, 6-4.

Big Wheels Conduct April Fool Inspection on Monday

By JOHN SUMMERS

On Monday and Tuesday, April 1 and 2, the ROTC unit (Russian Officers Training Corpse), will be inspected by two visiting wheels, Col. Fly and Col. Big. This is to be a very formal inspection, and most of the cadets are urged to wear uniforms. This has been strongly advised by the good Major, who informed the staff that neither of these Colonels is now or has ever been a member of the Sun Club, or Nudists Incorporated.

As soon as the noise of the day breaking at the crack of dawn stopped, the inspection team will begin worming its way through the countless files of cadets on this campus. Captains Haig & Haig will be observing the inspectioneers for his annual report to the Point. Col. Smitz, commondant of the Corpse, said and we quote—"I'fd nevah seed sich Spree Day Corp in all my life, itzreally grate!"

One of the most important things to be inspected is the classroom procedure. It has been rumored even as far as Washington that there has been so much laxity, not exlaxity, that some of the miltia Profs have stooped so low as to show movies in their classes.

Weapons will also be examined by the inspection team to see that they are being taken care of according to Army Regulations. Any rifle who does not have a carrier will be given two days on the racks, or an extended sentence of two swabbins with warm oil by Sgt. Simsins.

Take heed fellow cadets; make this inspection count. May the glory of Presbyterian College be shown to the whole Third Army as these birds go through the ranks. When the inspection officer steps in front of you, stick your chin out, let your chest drop, and let that stomach fall. This is Your Army!

Answers To Last Week's Letter on Grady Wilson

LETTER RIP

Dear Sir,

This writer would like to record a few observations made by different students concerning a letter to the editor on March 22.

Some students did not receive the help they expected toward a practical application of Chrsitianity in their chosen vocations during REW, yet possibly a definite service was rendered to our campus by Grady Wilson. There were two pastoral ministers on the campus for those who needed vocational guidance and there are on the campus daily professors and ministers who would gladly render advice in this matter.

Grady Wilson admitted that he was working under a disadvantage in dealing with a student body many of whom are serious theological students. Obviously his appeal would not be to the latter but can not we consider his work as an integral part of the Christian ministry? Many people will accept the call of an evangelist and become consecrated Christians without the soul-searching that others, due to their nature, must pass through before a true faith is established. Some may call this blind faith but certainly if one has accepted Christ with their whole being, the Holy Spirit working in him will lead him in a growing and working faith. What matters the mode of acceptance, growing or instantaneous, providing it is true.

Undoubtedly, "we were dragged through the quagmires of sin" by Grady Wilson. Yet many of us have found justification for certain of our sins and need constant reminder of its damning nature. If we consider Grady Wilson's approach too emotional we may be gravitating to another extreme mentioned as a weakness of Christianity in Robert E. Hume's "The World's Living Religions." That is, "the tendency in certain sections of Christendom to over-emphasize theology instead of maintaining the founder's emphasis on moral conduct." This is all a matter of degrees and personal belief, but nevertheless it is something to consider.

For those who have previously received a calling, REW this year was a repeat performance but let us not be ashamed of the gospel whatever the method of presentation. If a certain type of preaching is not to our liking possibly we shouldn't reject it entirely, but hope that it was of help to some and ourselves set the daily example of an acting Christian that others can follow.

Thank you,
INTERESTED STUDENTS

LETTER RIP

Dear Critic,

This reply to your letter of last week is not primarily a defense of Grady Wilson. Needless to say, he is subject to error and would be the first and loudest to admit it. Perhaps he did digress from the single topic of Vocational Calling, if this was clearly presented to his beforehand as the limits of his subject matter. However, Grady Wilson was not Religious Week Incarnate. He certainly expected, and got, able assistance from the other visiting ministers and participating faculty members along the line of Christian Calling. The programs given at each service were also helpful.

But did he entirely bypass the theme: "For Every Man a Christian Calling?" I'm convinced that he did not. On the contrary, he hit at the very heart of the matter in every session. The secret of guidance is in following the Guide. This is just as true in Christian Calling as it is in a hunting safari in the Sudan. Dr. Wilson was forever presenting the claims of Christ, the forgiveness of Christ, the deliverance of Christ and the power of Christ. His emphasis was that we should be properly related to this Person. In such a relationship the puzzle strangely seems to piece itself together. "God's great design" that you speak of is, after all, nothing more than God's daily etchings in collection. To find your place in the former you must give total interest to the latter, and this always begins with "Jesus Saves" and "Sinner Repent." This, too, may sound "shallow," but in your quest for "deep thinking" you r stumbling headlong over the obvious.

You say you object on two counts, one be the lack of vocational help and the oth the brand of evangelism fostered u you. I'll venture a guess that the first object is in reality an outgrowth of the second. Y chafing against sound and fervent go preaching has resulted in a cloudy view things needing spiritual discernment. Ma point out that Grady Wilson is in tradition good company in his emotional approach and his sin-salvation theme. All Jesus ever s about guidance was "Follow Me." He w over the sins of Jerusalem and condemned Pharisees and they nailed him to a tree beca of it. John the Baptist rebuked an adulter ruler in on uncertain terms and got his h chopped off. Peter screamed "Repent" so l and long that they crucified him upside do Paul determined to know nothing but J Christ and him crucified and was hailed bef a Roman court and did time more than once as a result. And so it has been down through ages. Grady Wilson's message has never b popular but it has been needed none-the-le

You made reference to "man's true e tions" but failed to mention what they are. T was obviously an oversight on your part.

In your third paragraph, the last senten you said that had the announced theme b followed, you would have listened both caref ly and with open minds upon this subject." this an admission that you did not listen ca fully and with an open mind to what actu was presented? This is hardly consistent fr one who complains about being deceived.

I am sorry that you got no help from quotations from the Word of God. May I s gest that you take a copy of it to a quiet pla and kneel with the words of the hymn writer your lips, "Blind unbelief is sure to err, a scan His work in vain: God is His own Interp ter, and He will make it plain."

Thank you,
JIM PECK

It Came From Outer Space

by DR. JOHN SUMMERS

It was a cold foggy night, and only a few lights could be seen still glowing on the campus. (They were in the heads.) Behind Neville Hall, three men could be seen picking up garden utensils, but these three men were not gardeners.

It was the night of March 7. John Haul, William Staycee, and John Nox, quietly left their dorms and met behind Neville Hall where they picked up a pick, two shovels, and other miscallaneous equipment. Being it was 3:30 AM, and was also dark, the crew of congealed gray matter moved in a Squad Diamond to the center of the Plaza. Staycee was lookout, and Haul and Nox began to dig.

Approximately two hours later, I say approximately because my watch has been broken ever since I tried to get my mail out of the Wreck House during the peak hour, and two diggers came out of the now deep hole and shook each others hand. A glowing smile ran down the face of Haul, and Nox simply nodded his head. Staycee skipped over to where they were standing, and looked down in the pit. Nox walked over to a car that was parked nearby, and pulled out a large clinker that had been secured from the furnace in the Gym. Carefully, he laid it in the bottom of the hole, and climbed back out. Haul poured some type of flammable liquid over the clinker, and on the edges of the pit. Staycee lit the fluid, and all three men ran towards the Dorm.

Joal Easterlin, a very observant mmeber of the student body, quickly spotted the fire, and called the Clinton Fire Department. It was only a matter of a few hours later when the first truck arrived on the scene in time to wet the ashes of the crowd.

Naturally the cause of such a catastrophe was necessarily looked for, so that the right man can be complimented on a job well done. But in this case it was passed through the crowd that it was the pit of a meteor. Dr. Stump, a prominent member of the Science Staff of the Cowpens Tribune, proceeded to examine the clinker. He immediately announced that the meteor was from Wolf 129, a planet of no small size found in galaxy 70115.

Dr. Purdum, a smilling dignified looking scientist who some seem to believe is from Wolf 129 himself, stepped into the Lime light and also examined the clinker. He stood on some nearby student and began an oration on the hows and whys of such natural phenomenon and why he thought the members of the student body should be impressed with this miracle to take his science course more seriously.

The next scientist to be seen in the milling crowd, I say milling because so many of the crowd were from Lydia, was Dr. Carter.

As fast as a rabbit multiplies, he whipped out his two-way radio, called MIT, and asked for an envoy of fellow scientists to examine the pit. The poor man didn't realize that Sgt. Knight had used all the batteries he had in the radio to power some of his now famous AN-PRC'10's.

Dr. Whitelau stood on the edge of the pit and flipped his ashes from the burnt out pipe into the hole, and laughed at the whole crowd. He looked at the clinker in the bottom and immediately recognized the fingerprints of Nox. He could tell from the marks on the side of the hole that John Haul had helped in the construction of the pit, and by observing the clump of squashed down grass some ten to twenty feet away, could easily deduct that only one man of such weight could have stood there, obviously Bill Staycee. Being very courteous, he did not disclose the time of the night when the act was committed, but he knew inside of himself that he knew. All three men were given the Nobel Prize by Nobel Collins who is a very noble person for giving such a prize in the first place.

Things Don't Look So Hot, Do They?

By MIKE FURRY

I am rapidly becoming enmeshed in a trap, into a life which I thought I could escape. "I will be rich; I will have what I want; nothing is impossible for me; I shall be a man among men,' but this is all conjecture; the faint heart cannot free himself, he cannot break his bonds and be a MAN.

A man, what is a man? A being who exists only to cut his hair short and to wear pants, where is the real man? Strong, tan, and virile? Has he completely disappeared from the face of the earth? Can any woman be satisfied with what passes for masculinity any more?

I must be different. I cannot bear to be tied down to oblivion, a small job, scratching with all the power in a week mind and body to have the bare essentials of life. It cannot be, it must not be. Am I to become like all men, nondescript, and hiding behind the skirts of civilization? I must be a man who has his way not by influence, but by being a MAN, strong individual, dependent on no one but himself.

But I am sinking further and further. It is almost impossible to break away and be the radical. I am losing a quality called "identity,' 'and am having to depend on others for life; only by comparison with those weaker than I am can I seem strong; I cannot stand in a comparison with equals, and I shake with fright at the tread of my superiors. Oh, how I long to break free of what 'men" call education, diplomacy, and society, ot be afraid of offending no one, dependant on no one for popularity, unafraid of being a misfit.

A man must labor to eat and eat to labor, a vicious cycle, and the further he follows it, the deeper he descends into the coils of the smoke of routine and nonentity. Where is variety, where is the new, the fresh idea of individualism? The answer lies in that stinking pit, CONFORMITY! The word which sticks in my throat! I cannot endure t sound of it!

Why must a "man" say, " morrow I shall break away," "Next year, perhaps, the day be, when I shall come into own, but not just yet, I have go to school, I must quit my what would other people think This man is already doomed. bound in his existence that matter how much he wants break away, he is a robot or pa pet of society, controlled by whims of fashion, and bene his own dignity.

Run of the Hose

By LARRY BROWN

TRACKING THE TEAM

I was down at the track on Tuesday, watching the time trials and Coach McMillian's reserve shy track team seems to be perking up considerably. PC, once a feared team of thin clads, has not produced an over-all strong squad since 1953 when USC nosed them out in the final event 56½-54½. Good individual performances coming from such boys as Delane Johnson, Richard Johnson, Wyatt Aiken and Jim Hancock, among others are not uncommon.

One thing that the squad has lacked since '53 is spirit. This seems to prevail more this season than in the recent times past.

If anyone two weeks ago had tried to tell me that the Hose had any kind of a chance to defeat South Carolina this Wednesday, I would have thought them crazy. But after observing the trials last Tuesday, I believe that PC has a good chance of knocking off their cousins from down Columbia way. USC was defeated last week rather handily by Duke and in comparing their times with the Blue Hose times favorable results could occur. The winning time in the high hurdles at Columbia was 16.3; while Aiken and Hancock were tripping over at a 15.5 pace. The 100 was run in 10.4 at USC, while Walt Marshall ran a 9.9, closely followed by two teammates.

Richard Johnson is already pole vaulting around 12 feet, 6 inches and will pose a threat to defending champion Snipes, of Carolina. With times like this being put forth, happy days on the cinders may be here again.

DIAMOND DUST

Hats are off to the PC baseballers who are playing a heads-up scrappy brand of ball. The Hose defeated Catawba and Belmont Abbey and have lost close duels to Furman and Lenoir-Rhyne. Leading the titus far potent batting attack are a trio of Hosemen who are all over the .300 mark. Senior Tommy Reeves has collected 6 hits in 13 trips to the plate for a .461. Dusty Reeves has amassed 5 hits in 13 times at bat for a .384 average. Last year's batting champ, Tony Benson, has collected 6 hits in 17 times up for a healthy .352. Leading the way afield are Cecil Geddings and Ray Hodge. Ted Leahy recently broke into the starting lineup; and along with Ed Jackson and Hodge form a sound outfield.

Baseballers Defeat Furman And Stomp Belmont Abbey

PC-BELMONT ABBEY

The Presbyterian Blue Hose went on a scoring spree against Belmont Abbey to the tune of 15-6 Wednesday, led by the hitting of first baseman Dutsy Reeves who had a perfect day at the plate, collecting four for four and driving home six runs. Extra base hits were plentiful as the Blue Hose collected four triples and two doubles along with 21 total hits.

The big inning was the eighth. Going into the eighth the Blue Hose held a slim 7-6 lead. Cecil Geddings led off with a single. Jimmie Newsome reached first on an error and Ken Gardner walked loading the bases. Ed Jackson's double drove home Geddings and Newsome. Tommy Reeves reached first on a fielders' choice and Tony Benson was hit by a pitched ball to reload the bases. Dutsy Reeves came to the plate, Baumbaner balled in Jackson, and Reeves hit a tremendous four hundred foot triple. Ray Hodge flew out for the second out; then Ted Leahy singled sharply into center field bringing home Reeves for the thirteenth run. Geddings batting for the second bounced out from short to first to end the inning. Hose hurler Ken Gardner went all the way to pick up the win. He allowed only four hits.

PC-FURMAN

The Presbyterian College Blue Hose bowed to the Hornets of Furman University in the opening home game of the season, 6-3.

Johnny Tennant allowed only seven hits and all the way pitched a creditable ball game. Twelve hits by Furman, coupled with Blue Hose errors and failure to score men on base led to PC's downfal lin the contest.

Furman's Charlie Moore relieved Jerry House in the htrd and pitched shutout ball all the way for the Hornets.

PC tallied one in the first inning when Ed Jackson walked, Tommy Reeves singled and Dutsy Reeves singled to drive home Jackson. The Blue Hose second run came in the second inning when Cecil Geddings was safe on an attempted sacrifice, Johnny Tennant and Ed Jackson walked to load the bases. Tommy Reeves walked and forced in Geddings. The Hose last inning rally produced the final run. With one away, Ed Jackson singled to left field. Tommy Reeves doubled and Tony Benson lined a single to drive home Jackson.

The Hornets' leading hitter was Jerry Penland with 2 for 4. Tommy Reeves and Ed Jackson each collected two to lead the Blue Hose.

Spring Sports Review...

TONY BENSON

ROBERT ODUM

Tony Benson has just begun his second year as the starting shortstop of the Presbyterian College Blue Hose.

Benson, who led the team in hitting with a .338 batting average in his first year at Presbyterian, was born and reared in nearby Chester and it was there he began his illustrious career in baseball and football.

Since he has been able to hold a bat, he has been playing the game of baseball. Most of his playing days have been spent on the infield.

Benson brought to PC many pleasant memories of his outstanding exploits in both baseball and football while in high school. He was All-State for three years in baseball and compiled a four-year batting mark of a lofty .421 This along with his superb leadership both on and off the field gained him the award of the most valuable player his last two years. He was also the team captain his senior year. Upon graduation from Chester, he was offered professional contracts from both the Cleveland Indians and the Philadelphia Phillies. Benson turned down these offers because he chose to further his education before signing, although he does plan to go into pro baseball after graduating from college.

Baseball is not the only sport Benson excels in. In football he was named on the All-State team his last two years and Captained the squad his final year. He was the Most Valuable player his last two years and played in the Shrine Bowl game in Charlotte and the All-Star game in Columbia his senior year. In both of these big events Tony was picked as the outstanding defensive back and later was recognized as the most outstanding back in South Carolina high school football. Though Benson got the praise, he attributes much of his success to the powerful blocking of his best buddy, Bull Parrish, who is still a teammate on the Blue Hose eleven.

With the season just beginning, Benson has already made big news with a tremendous 380-ft. homer in the opening baseball game and right now he leads the team in total hits while posting a soaring .500 batting average. With two more full years the Blue Hose are in store for much more of the sensational play of Benson.

Benson teamed with Hose second baseman Tommy Reeves to form one of the top double play combinations in the state last year. He played every inning of each game and his dependable hitting and fielding kept the Blue Hose going in many of their games. His lightning-like movements and reflexes enable him to get many balls that would normally go for base hits. Many times he goes deep in the hole and snares hard hit balls and makes quick throws to first frequently nipping the batter.

Robert Odum, of Waycross, Ga., is the 1957 captain of the PC golf team. Since coming to PC, Odum has always played number one or two. He has tasted defeat only ten times, while winning more than twice this number against such stiff competition as Wofford, Furman, The Citadel, and numerous others.

The lanky senior first became interested in golf when, as a young boy, he caddied for his father, who taught him much of the game. He credits this teaching for his outstanding game today. In his hometown of Waycross, Odum has won three city matches, and has lost only one, a fact in itself that the teaching has paid off.

Odum's tremendous drives are an outstanding feature of his game. He is also well versed in the othor phases of the links. Odum has been a little off in this early season, but as spring wears on, he should regain his last year's form of shooting in the low and middle seventies.

Last year in the state tournament at Hampton, Odum shot a combined total of 275, which was good enough to capture little four honors, and to place him among the top golfers in the state. This year, with a better balanced and more experienced team, he hopes to lead the PC golfers in improving over their last year's record of six wins and seven losses.

GUICE POTTER

One of the prominent features of the PC tennis team this year is the fact that it's depth is such of an outstanding caliber. This fact was disclosed in a recent interview with Coach Jim Leighton. Evidence of this is found in the tall number three stroker on the famed tennis squad. He is Guice Potter, of Anniston, Ala.

For the last three years Potter has been the number four or three man on the team. In this position he has amassed the stellar record of thirty-three wins against eight losses.

Already this year he has won all his matches except one which came at the hands of powerful Miami. Potter's upset over Dave Harmum, one of the top seeded men in the South, came to be the turning point in the match, in which PC snapped Miami's 78-game, 5-year win streak. Once before in last year's match, Potter upset the highly favored Harum on another tension - packed Miami match.

Before coming to PC, Potter had already proved himself to be an outstanding netman. While attending high school Potter led his team to the state championship in 1953 and 1954. In the singles competition he was runner-up both years. During Potter's senior year he participated in the National Interscholastic Invitational and achieved the ranking of seventh best high school player in the nation. At this time he was also ranked fourth in the South right behind his present day team member, Harvey Jackson.

In the summer of 1955 Potter was the winner of Tennessee State Men's division and also had the ranking of 13th in the South in the Men's division.

The following summer Potter was runner-up in the Southeastern Invitational held each year in Columbus, Ga. In a semifinal match he defeated Wade Herren who is ranked number five in the South. This is considered the highlight of his short but illustrious career as a netman. In the same summer Potter also won the Anniston Country Club Invitational, defeating the topnotch competition of the area.

In junior letterman Wyatt Aiken, who is considered to be the workhorse of the PC track team, who led the Blue Hose in scoring last year, is hoped to take numerous first places this spring.

Aiken hails from Greenville, where he attended Greenville High School and lettered in track for three straight years. In his 10th year, he concentrated his efforts on the 440, mile, and the mile relay, claiming third place in the state mile that year.

Advancing his interests a little further on the cinders, he attempted the hurdles and high jumping his junior year. With a jump of 5 ft., 10 in., he took the state high jump title, and also tied an old record in the 120-yard high hurdles at 15.9.

He was undefeated in the high and low hurdles his senior year and went on to capture state laurels by breaking Jim Hancock, of Rock Hill High's, existing record of 15.6 with a time of 15.5.

Wyatt's opportunity to prove himself worthy of the remarkable high school record was shown in his first collegeiate state meet. He collected a few points for the Blue Hose that afternoon with a 4th in the 120-yard high hurdles, 4th in the high jump, a 3rd in the broad jump, plus running in the mile relay.

As a sophomore, he showed much improvement in his various events. Despite his towering 6'4" and 195 pounds, he cleared the 6-ft. mark twice in the high jump during dual meets.

In the state meet last year, he considers his race with Steedly, of Clemson, to be the most exciting in his track career. Even though he was beaten by inches, Wyatt's time of 15.1 was exceptional. He also took 3rd in the 220-yard low hurdles and 4th in the javelin throw.

The term "work horse" certainly holds true, as he amassed a total of 97 points to lead the Hose in scoring last year.

With Wyatt's ability and performances for the college, several school records will fall this spring, and of course his sights will be set on the state meet in May.

PC Trackmen Defeat Furman U. in First

Great Day for the Race . . .

Baldwin Named Editor PaC-SaC; Bob Hill Elected Business Head

Highest Vote of This Year For Yearbook Boss

The campus was filled with campaigning Wednesday, as posters and loudspeakers brought in four hundred and twelve votes, the largest number this year. Blair Baldwin won the title of editor of the PaC-SaC, our school annual, with one hundred and eighty-three votes. He defeated Lawrence Young who gathered one hundred and twenty-six votes, and Jim Barksdale, who got one hundred and three.

Baldwin, a rising senior from Blair, is a past Business Manager of the Blue Stocking, a member of the Presbyterian College Robed Choir, a Deans' List student, and past secretary of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

In the race for Busines Manager of the PaC-SaC, Bob Hill collected one hundred and eighty-two votes to defeat James Faile with one hundred and twenty, and John Summers with one hundred and eleven.

Hill, a rising senior from Mayesville, is past Secretary and Treasurer of the Inter-Fraternity Council, a junior representative of the Military Ball Committee, a member of Scabbard and Blade, and President of Tau Phi Pi Science Fraternity.

Carl Latham, Charlie McElveen, Ned Marshall, and Rod Miller were chosen as cheerleaders for the coming year. Latham led the pack with three hundred and twenty-three votes.

$3,000 Scholarship Donated By Youngs

A scholarship in memory of the late Dr. and Mrs. Jack H. Young, of Clinton, has been established at Presbyterian College by their daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Young Dick and her husband, the Rev. James McDowell Dick, of Raleigh, N. C.

President Marshall W. Brown, in announcing the gift, said the scholarship will be named "Jack Holland and Lana Copeland Young Scholarship Fund."

He said the recipient will be a needy and qualified student; first choice, from the City of Clinton; second choice, from the County of Laurens; third choice, from the State of South Carolina.

Dr. and Mrs. Dick are giving $3,000 to endow the scholarship fund, subscribed as part of the Diamond Jubilee Development program. Dr. Dick is a PC alumnus who serves as pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Raleigh.

Federal Inspectors Pleased With ROTC

Shines were in order this past week as the annual Federal Inspection Team roamed its way around the campus. All phases of military instruction were inspected along with the usual types of applicatory work including drill and ceremonies performed by the cadet corps during the year.

The inspecting officers were Colonel D. E. McCrory and Lt. Col. Lewis Martin, of Fort Benning, Ga. These men arrived early Monday morning and began their way through the department with a snap inspection of the battalion on the drill field.

All during the day, the inspectioneers visited the military classes where they held the last twenty minutes of these classes, interrogating the students in their past military instruction.

The inspection team made many favorable comments on the performance of the cadet corps, and were apparently well pleased with the drill and class results. They said that the Presbyterian ROTC unit is one of the best units in the district, and more than lived up to its expected high standards.

The annual inspection was completed Tuesday afternoon when the cadets held their Ceremonial Battalion Parade for the officers to observe.

Aiken and Johnson Lead Hose Past Furman 75 - 76

Paced by Wyatt Aiken and Delane Johnson, the Presbyterian thin clads defeated quite decisively a Furman University team 75-56 in their initial outing of the season. Aiken and Johnson scored 11 and 10 points, respectively, in leading their team to victory.

Even with the absence of team captain, Jim Hancock, the Hose still showed surpassing strength in most all departments. Hancock who was out with a pulled ligament in his back, was not needed in his specialties as Aiken took first in the highs and Ed Messer took first place in the 220-yard low hurdles. Aiken also took a second in the lows behind the fleeting Messer.

One of the outstanding performances of the meet was turned in by Fred Stanley in the 880 run. Stanley ran the distance in 2 minutes, 8.8 seconds in a duel with Davis, of Furman, which eventually saw the PC thin clad forge to the front during the stretch. This capped a race which saw the lead change hands four times.

Johnson, still in quest of a PC record in the dashes, managed to turn in the 100-yard dash in 9.8 seconds, winning comfortably over Walt Marshall, of PC, and Ray Starr, of Furman. The same trio finished in these respective positions also in the 220 with the winning time of 22.2. This achievement gave the PC fans something to look forward to when the state meet rolls around.

In the field events PC was well represented, winning five out of six events. Richard Johnson, also setting his eye on the state record in the pole voult, jumped his way into an easy victory, finally topping the bar at 13 feet. In the weights Ken Webb captured first place in the shot put with a heave of 42'5½". The team of Charley Hovis and Wilson Vastine led the hose to sweep first and second places in the javelin. Hovis' throw was 171'7". Bruce Thompson took the high jump with a leap of 5'8".

The box score:

Javelin—1. Hovis, PC; 2. Vastine, PC; 3. Lowers, F.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Editorials : Features : Humor

Snicker Flickers . . .

The Student Christian Association picked up as a project something that has been chewed on for quite a while here on campus. They are going to try to start an old movie club, society, organization, fraternity, or whatever you'd like to call it. The idea was originally Dr. Stevenson's, I believe, and Captain Craig has tossed it around a bit.

I know from visiting other schools that these types of organizations have been successful. Old Shakespeare films are available, as well as other educational films; also we would be able to see some of the famous actors and comedians of the past. The price should be reasonable, the administration is willing to pay part, and townspeople could be invited if the cost proves to be too much. Sounds like a good idea. What do you think about it?

Letters from You . . .

We are going to put in the paper from now on a Letter Rip column, for the letters that we receive from you. This is your paper and we want to give fair representation to your ideas. If you get an idea, write us a letter about it and we'll print it as long as it's clean.

Keep off the Grass . . .

We have been asked to announce that the PC Race Track has been moved from the Plaza to the Laurens Speedway. All races in the future will be held on the Speedway, and not on the Plaza, please. A good bit of money has been spent on the campus improvements lately; grass has been planted and a lot of manure has been spread around, in hopes that students would avoid the manure and thus miss the grass. Let's give it a chance to grow. After all, we're paying for it.

Readyyy? Fowarddd March!

by I. EDWARD MINUS

I'm Just Wild About Harry, and Harry's Just Wild

One of the fundamental elements of all humor, and of humor in the Blue Stocking particularly, is exaggeration. Several weeks ago in these pages we employed that caricatural device when we remarked briefly and in verse some fabled features of a few of the kids on the faculty: Harry Lowman, for instance, was depicted as "pudgy," although in reality he is only a bit rotund about the Mason-Dixon line. (In fact, the Major assures us almost threateningly that he has lost twenty-nine pounds since Christmas. He cunningly failed to make clear which Christmas, but we are willing to assume that he referred to the last one ;and we are determined, moreover, that he receive, in recognition of this accomplishment, some sort of very inexpensive medal, which we shall present to him in the sincere, not to say fervent, hope that he will find it possible to continue to reduce at the aforementioned rate, in which case, according to our calculations, he should, before many more years roll by, vanish entirely. So long, Harry!)

And, ironically enough, that labored and completely unconvincing illustration of exaggeration and its use serves simply as the introduction to an autobiographical dissertation on a subject to which the artificial art of travesty lends itself scarcely at all: the military program at Presbyterian and, more specifically, our very own hideously comic career therein.

But! so much for this euphistically involved analysis of the nature of wit: On the topic at hand: READYYYYY? FOR-WARDDDDD MARCH! Hut, two, three, four! Hut, two, three, four! Hut, two, three . . . Change step, You!

The Snake In The Grass

The essential difficulty, you understand—so far as this business of exaggeration is concerned—is that to invent an episode more absurd or more horrible than any single fiasco we have actually committed is well nigh impossible. For we have attempted everything in the book, and in some cases made additions all our own), from an extremely messy auto-amputation of our right thumb to a number of experimental drill improvisations of a frightfully unique order.

Once at the beginning of the first semester, we were tripping along rather jauntily in the ranks of our little crack platoon, when a youth in the rear began to shriek, a definite note of anxiety in his voice, "Hit that pivot! Hit that pivot!" Well siree, we just stopped dead in our tracks (a most apt metaphor from several points of view) and began to scan the ground for an unfamiliar yet surely poisonous species of reptile. Needless to say, this upset our platoon leader, an ill-humored chap at best, to absolutely no end. He strode toward us, flames issuing from his nostrils, and, with the butt of his carbine, dealt us a swift and shattering blow on the right temple.

I must confess that I have exaggerated just a bit in the foregoing account (I have, really). Nevertheless, what possible fabrication could in any way exceed in sheer, mirth-provoking idiocy such a display of incompetence. I, for one, can imagine none at all. But I have not tried too terribly hard, for if I were to hit upon a possible blunder which I have not yet committed, it would simply give me something else to worry about. And I have quite enough to do to keep from repeating previous faux pas.

(This is the first in a proposed series of pieces on the same topic, by the same author. The second will appear in a subsequent issue, and then again, maybe it won't.)

I Was an F. B. I. for the Communis

by DR. JOHN SUMMERS

My name is Herb Fleabrick. I am a Communist. I am an undercover agent for the party who has infiltrated the Federal Bureau of Investigation. In other words, I was an FBI agent for the Communists, or I led four lives, or five, or six, or—aw, the heck with it!

It was the afternoon of Saturday, March 30, at 3:42 Russian Central Tundra Time. I was just leaving the cell meeting, which meets every Wednesday night in the basement of the Krogister Building on the square of the metropolis of E. Pinkenville, a thriving community in the heart of the Aluetian Islands. My cell leader, Comrad Tex, told me that there was to be a large military inspection at a small college in South Carolina. My assignment was to go to this inspection and to inspect the inspection team to find out what in the earth they were inspecting that was so all-fired important to inspect. He issued me two sets of tickets to a place called Clinton, S. C., which, by the world almanac, is an almost existent town in the Piedmont Third Army, and since we had cated the lungs and liver, we knew where the whole body isted.

Seeing the bird Colonels were flying overhead, I pull out my artificial FBI badge began moving about throu the ranks of cadets.. Of cour all thought I was an agent t was sent to guard the inspe tioneurs, but I fooled them. dirty bunch of flag salute At one time, I felt the eyes one of the cadets staring at backside. From here the corp of cad marched down to the footb field. It is still unknown to why in this wide commun filled earth they have to down to the football field to the things that can be done the upper drill field. This surely add to my report to Co rad Tex, for the upper fi might be mined.

After I typed up all my not I shook each of the men's han told them goodbye, and board my special plane for the Aluen Islands. The fascinating story of Iben is a long and involved one and there is room here for only an introduction. The last time I saw Iben, he was bending springs for pogo-sticks and writing his autobiography.

Introducing Iben Sackenlot

By NOBLE COLLINS

Iben Sackenlot was not exactly the most gifted boy on the campus. You could tell by the puzzled look which was forever stamped on his face, and the highly unorthodox walk that carried him about. The puzzled look came about as a result of the completely unconscious state of mind in which Iben was always to be found. And the walk, well, that walk has yet to be explained.

It was a sort of combination between a lunge and a drag. One step would be a brisk, determined movement, but the next would be a slow scuff. Some people said the wafk was a result of Iben's not knowing whether he was coming or going. That's as good an explanation as any.

Anyway, Iben knew his own mind pretty well, and it was no place to be cooped up in for very long. He constantly came up with revolutionary ideas about doing things. For instance, he invented a portable subway for getting to classes without bothering with crowds. He also claimed to have invented an electric bird-watching machine, a feather-coated bowling ball, and he wrote a novel to be published as a book one inch wide—for narrow-minded people.

Iben's main nemesis was his roommate, Cecil Timms, the loudest boy on the campus. Cecil was known as the star of rage and scream by his friends, and he well deserved the title. Iben had a definite allergy which was

by TOM GOLDEN

The other morning I was thrown from my bed by a terrific quake. At first, I thought there might have been a cave-in close by, but after a thorough investigation, I found that my roommate had just jumped out of bed. Just when everything had settled down a bit, I left for breakfast. As I opened the door, the door frame started to tremble, so I got out of there.

The chow hall was serving eggs, grit sand juice. I was hungry, and I anticipated a hearty breakfast. Somewhere along the line everything gave out except the grits. So I had a hearty breakfast of grits.

At drill I was knocked down by the impact of an M-1, someone had executed rear march on the wrong foot. Afted which we marched through a series of knee-high grass, knee-deep holes, and ankle-deep mud. It was unusual of the frequency of the times I would be over a patch of slick clay, when a flanking movement was called.

JIM SHAKESPEARE

Two years ago when net coach Jim Leighton witnessed the Orange Bowl Tennis Tournament down in Miami, he observed closely the play of a very promising and consistent performance of Jim Shakespeare. Casting aside several offers from nationally famous tennis plants, including one from University of Miami, Jim chose to play his collegiate tennis for Presbyterian College.

Shakespeare makes his home in Hollywood, Fla., in the winter, and spends the summer months at Beach Haven, N. J.

At the age of eleven, he began playing tennis at the public courts near his home in Hollywood. He entered his first tournament at the age of twelve, finishing runnerup in the doubles Thirteen and Under Bracket of the Orange Bowl Tournament. Then at fifteen, Shakespeare was already playing all over the state of Florida. The same year, he departed for the Nationals at Kalamazoo, Mich., where he upset seeded player Dave Harum, now University of Miami star, in the Fifteen and Under Class. Jim advanced to the thirty-second round before being eliminated.

Jim also played the summer circuit, entering the Southern, Eastern, and Western Tournaments, and again the Nationals. Though only in the eighth grade, he acclaimed the ranking of fifth in the country in his class.

Entering South Broward High in Hollywood, he played number one man for three years. His outstanding play on the court made the squad among the best in the state. Shakespeare himself, was one of the top five in the Sunshine State. Now classified in the Eighteen and Under Class, he duplicated his previous feat by again defeating Dave Harum in the Nationals, receiving a national ranking of thirty-seventh in his class.

During the summer months following high school graduation, Shakespeare won the singles title in the Florida East Coast Championship at Daytona Beach, and also the Coral Gables Invitational.

Shakespeare said, "While in high school my game was helped considerably by the pointers of Martin Buxby and Slim Harbbet, who incidentally, coached Doris Hart, professional from Coral Gables."

The 1956 PC team had considerable strength from first to sixth man, the position which Shakespeare held down last season. As a freshman, he had a remarkable record of eigheen wins, and only three losses.

Before the season began this spring, the Blue Hose entered the Good Neighbor Tournament held down at Miami. Shakespeare drew a prominent figure in the tennis world in Gardner Malloy. He gave Malloy a terrific fight before bowing, 6-2, 7-5.

Now as a sophomore, he and teammate Jim Peck are undefeated through nine matches to lead the Hose in the doubles department. Thus far, his singles record stands at 6 wins, 2 losses.

Shakespeare claims that this year's squad is just as good, if not better than last year's. He sees no reason why the team can't finish the remainder of the season undefeated.

JIM NEWSOME

Jimmie Newsome, a rising senior from Decatur, Ga., is beginning his third year of baseball at PC. The steadily improving catcher attended Decatur High School where he played four years of baseball. Jim's first two years of high school ball were limited mostly to batting practice catches, where he gained valuable experience, and he was on the starting nine and batted .250 both seasons. In his senior year Jimmie was voted the best catcher in the Region 4AA and was chosen to play in the Atlanta-Greater Atlanta All-Star Game, sponsored by the Atlanta Journal-Constitution.

Newsome played football his freshman and senior years at Decatur. His sophomore and junior years were blocked by a series of serious asthma attacks. However, Jimmie started every game his senior year and was dubbed the best end in the Region 4AA.

In American Legion baseball, the "husky catcher" turned in two colorful years, leading the league in home runs, stolen bases and hit an amazing .512 as well as leading the team in the most men thrown out at second base.

Jimmie devotes much of his summer vacation to baseball also. He plays in the Atlanta Industrial League which is composed mostly of college-players and ex-professionals. Jim has had two successful seasons in this league with a batting average of .300 for the past two seasons and only two men have been successful in stealing on him.

Here at PC Jim's hopes are bright; he became the starting catcher this season and will be relied on heavily for the rest of the season. Jim's antics keep the team in good spirits, and his steadily improving catching is expected to boost team spirit even more. Newsome lettered first last year and is expected to duplicate this season, as well as next season when he will again play a big part in the success of the Blue Hose on the diamond .

Walter Marshall, the diminutive speedster from Greenwood, will add a great deal of balance and strength to the 1957 edition of the Presbyterian track team. Although Marshall doesn't place first in too many events, the reason is justifiably answered by the fact that the state's fastest human usually precedes him. Marshall consistently picks up points with second and third place finishes in the 100- and 220-yard dashes. In the long run, these points prove invaluable in the final tabulation.

During the state meet in his senior year in high school, Marshall placed only third in the 100-yard dash. The two men who defeated him were Roy Nickles and Walter Bull, who both entered Furman University after graduation. Marshall entered PC and tasted sweet revenge, as he outran both of these men in an early season win over Furman. Marshall also achieved this same feat in one of the meets held on the opponents' track last year.

Marshall's best day on the cinder paths occurred last year in the meet with Mercer University. He ran the 100-yard dash in 9.8 seconds, and the 220 in 22.1. Generally speaking Marshall runs a consistent ten seconds flat in the hundred, while he turns the clock at 23 seconds for the 220. Walt proves his versatility by also broad jumping with his best mark in this event being twenty feet.

It seems that Marshall would tend to be a little disheartened in always finishing behind Johnson. However, with Johnson graduating this year, Marshall could blossom into a full fledged track star next spring, breaking the tape many times. Therefore, it is conceivable that Marshall may be the fastest man in the state meet next year in the 100- and 220-yard dashes. The wiry speedster certainly deserves first place honors and barring injuries, should attain them in the near future.

Intramural Ping Pong Tournament Set by SCA

The Intramural Committee of our Student Christian Association has announced that there will be a ping pong tournament this year. Each fraternity will be requested to bring their ping pong table to the gymnasium and allow it to remain there for three days. During these three days the ping pong aces will battle it out. The fraternity or group winning the tournament will have no points added to their intramural record. It's just for fun.

Run of the Hose

By LARRY BROWN

CINDER ELLAS

Upon observing the USC-Presbyterian College track meet on Wednesday, the possibility of a neck and neck state meet showdown between these two intra-state rivals appears evident.

The Blue Hose, woefully weak thus far in the mile and two-mile events, should strengthen here considerably, and boys like Buddy Hodge and Mike Andrews will begin to hang on for those valuable second and third places.

Needless to say, our sprint crown appears to the intact, with such ables as Delane Johnson, Walt Marshall and Eddie Messer finishing in 1-2-3 fashion against the powerful Gamecocks.

Work has to be done yet on the high and low hurdles to enhance our chances for first place finishes in the state meet, come early May. Presently in the highs Jim Hancock and Wyatt Aiken stand excellent chances of taking top laurels in the "Little Olympics." In the low hurdles, Messer and Aiken are the two to bear watching, as they slowly round into shape

Pole vaulter Richard Johnson is aiming for both the state championship and the state record (13 feet, 4 inches).

The biggest unexpected asset to the squad, thus far, has been the shot putting of Big Kenny Webb. Webb in the first two meets has captured two first places, besting some of the state's best weight men.

Another big help to the squad is the appearance of broad jumper Curtis Lindner. Lindner has won in his first two college meets, and will add much needed strength in team point production.

Other notables who have paced the Blue Hose cindermen are Fred Stanley, Charlie Hovis, Bob Salyer, Wilson Vastine, and Melvin Little.

HALF-RUBBER

While football has its Webb, and basketball the famous Thompson boys, we have still another star that shines brightly on PC's campus. He is South Carolina's unclaimed half-rubber champion, Lawrence Huggins. In a recent interview with "Coach Hug," I asked him if he would assist me in picking an all half-rubber team. He consented, and these are our first string selections: Wilson Livingston, Julian Weston, John Poshet, and George Aiken. Coach Huggins believes that he has some of the best material in the school's history, and he is interested in contacting other neighboring schools for intra-school contests.

History Highlights

Presbyterian college dining hall at 7:00 p. m., Saturday, will speak on "I Take Pen in Hand." The Emory history teacher is the author of the best-selling historical works, "The Life of Johnny Reb," and "The Life of Billy Yank."

Current officers of the South Carolina Historical Association are: Professor Robert D. Ochs, of the University of South Carolina, president; Professor Thomas B. Alexander, of Georgia Teachers College, vice-president and program chaiman; Professor Jack K. Williams, of Clemson, secretary-treasurer; Professor Charles Anger, of The Citadel, and Professor Newton B. Jones, of Presbyterian College, executive committemen; and Professor Daniel W. Hollis, of the University of South Carolina, editor of proceedings.

with some food. Being broke, my friends avoided me, sensing it. I decided to sleep until chapel. I awoke refreshed, and went over to the chapel. As I reached the door, I heard the strains of "Praise God from Whom . . . I left.

Things were uneventful until I set out to see the historic Town of Clinton (pronounced Klinnun). There are many and varied things to see in Clinton Thornwell Orphanage, Smyth Ruins at PC, Presbyterian Cemetery, Jacobs Hill, Roddy Center point of Clinton, trains going past, and automobiles.

The recreational facilities are exceptionally good. On Saturday night you can go the Broadway Theatre, go to Charlie's, see a show, hang around, go to the movie, twiddle thumbs, take in a flick, or just look at the two buildings that a drunken kangaroo could jump in a single bound.

I gave up and went to the dorm and narrowly missed being impaled on a falling beam. Much needful sleep. Gee, I wish that fellow with the trumpet would stop practicing.

Dr. Stevenson Resigns; Will Teach at Millsaps

Dr. John Stevenson has resigned as Professor of English at Presbyterian College. However, the resignation will not become effective until September 1, and he will teach here during the summer session.

Dr. Stevenson will leave here to become Associate Professor of English next fall at Millsaps College in Jackson, Miss. It is a very highly rated Methodist co-educational college with an enrollment of eight hundred and fifty students. Only academic scholarships are offered by Millsaps.

Dr. Stevenson, who came to PC in 1950, has been here for six full years, taking one year's leave of absence to complete his degree. Dr. Stevenson stated, "In many ways I regret leaving PC, but for professional reasons I did not feel I could turn down the invitation to come to Millsaps."

Another factor which contributed largely to Dr. Stevenson's decision to join Millsaps' staff is that they have no Saturday classes, and a nine-hole golf course is located on campus.

Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson and their four-year-old son, John, Jr., will leave for Jackson from Clinton on September 1.

Jim Elliot Elected New BSU President

Jim Elliot, of Georgetown, was elected president of the Baptist Student Union last Monday night. June Adair, of Clinton, was named vice-president. Plans were made for the Annual Installation Banquet to be held on Tuesday night, April 11, at Blazer's.

The BSU Spring Retreat is to be held in Anderson on Friday and Saturday of this week, April 12 and 13. Representatives from the local group will attend.

SCA Spring Picnic Set For Fellowship

The Spring picnic sponsored by the SCA for the entire student body, will be Wednesday, May 8. Camp Fellowship on the Greenwood Highway has been secured and transportation will consist of the students' cars plus a truck for those who are not able to find a ride. Roger Godwin will be in charge of transportation; anyone carrying a car who does not have a full load should contact Roger.

Recreation wil linclude volley ball, horseshoes, swimming, and softball. Bill Fulton, Paul Arrington and Charles Prickett will be in charge of the sports, and they have stated that an endeavor will be made this year to carry enough equipment that everyone will be able to participate that is interested.

Mr. Powell will supply the food in full picnic style.

In an interview Bill Yearick stated that he wants all students, including day students, the faculty, and their families to come. He and the SCA Cabinet are hoping for 100% attendance.

The selection of Periodical Literature ranges from "The American City" to "The Yale Review," while the pamphlets offer such topics as National interest at home and abroad, Conservation and resources, World Affairs, and many others too numerous to name here.

United States Steel Donates To Colleges

A $972.95 gift to Presbyterian College has been contributed through the South Carolina Foundation of Independent Colleges by the United States Steel Corporation.

This gift was part of a total of $9,000 presented to the Foundation for distribution to its nine members.

The contribution to South Carolina educational institutions was part of a nationwide aid-to-education program through which U. S. Steel is giving $1,800,000 to more than 600 privately supported colleges and medical schools in 1957.

Friday night, May 3, Johnny Williams and his combo will play.

Bill Hart, president of the Intra-Fraternity Council, said, "The attendance is always high at the Masquerade Ball, but rather low at the Friday night dance. We want to get everyone out for the Friday night dance, so we have secured a hot combo, one of the top two in the state. Williams has played at Converse and is highly recommended. The dance will be very informal, and there will be a theme for it which will be announced later.

"We are striving to make this dance somthing different."

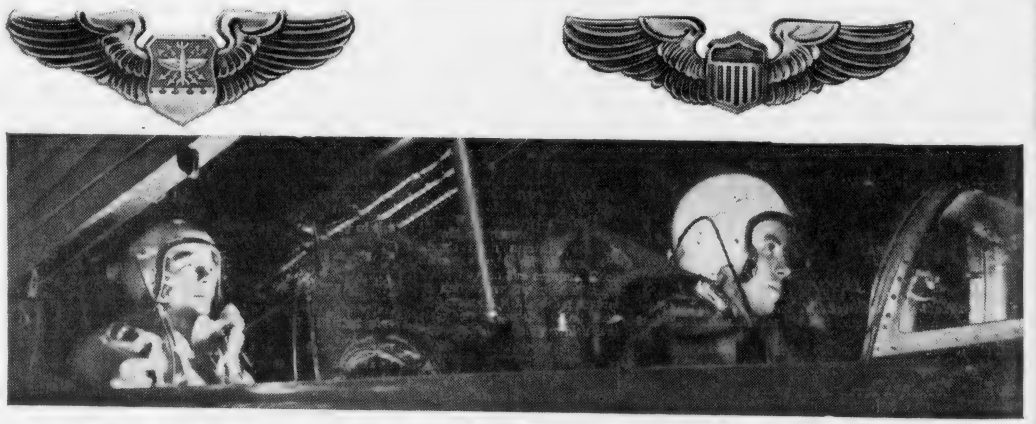
Grab That Stallion!

By LYMAN HARRIS

John Thames, six foot, four, ninety-seven pound weakling, is the first in a series of seniors to be spotlighted by the Blue Stocking. The "Fat Rat" had only one request to make concerning this article. "Remember," he said, "the people of Manning will see this paper, and it is my responsibility to uphold the moral and mental facilities that have been so thoroughly blazoned into my character." With this in mind I have written John's interview especially for the people of his home town, Manning.

John Thames, huge, golden haired, muscular mass, has compiled quite a record while at Presbyterian College. In the sports world he has shone annually as the Intramural swimming star: he has been winner of the fifty-yard float for four consecutive years. On the gridiron he has also been outstanding, as he takes his place as the whole left side of the line for Kapa Alpha.

In the extra-curricular events, Thames has been president of the Student Council, vice-president of the SCA, Battalion Commander, Sharpest of the Scabbard and Blade, Number One of Kapa Alpha Order, and President of the Ministerial Club. On the drill field he first shone as he was named "Most Drilled Freshman." Now he has risen to the rank of Company Commander, and is considered by many a reincarnation of Joshua.



Thames has for three years been president of the Lone Ranger Safety Club, and Counselor of the Clinton Camp Fire Girls. He has done a notorious job as a member of the Blue Stocking staff for the past three years, and was last year Assistant Sports Editor; this year he has dropped to the ranks of an humble sports writer, but he has shone in this position. He is also a member of the International Relations Club, and has been elected "Wittiest" of the Senior class. Recently John was tapped to "Who's That in American Colleges and Universities."

John has definite plans for the future. He has been assigned to artillery, and will leave for training at Fort Sill when he graduates. He has been an outstand-military man and should do well in the army. He might even be another Ike.

All joking aside, I think John will be remembered for a long time around here. (He has a face that's hard to forget.) He is one of the friendliest boys on the campus, always smiling, and always dependable. He is classified tops in the ranks of the "Good ole boys.'

ALL SHOOK UP

It's an Elvis Presley century—shaky, unpredictable, preoccupied with sex, undependable, and fun loving. I don't believe this blab about it being a more sinful generation than those of the past; we don't sin more; we've just invented new ways to commit the old sins.

My gripe is that everyone is looking for fun and no one can be depended on. A Negro minister's explanation of his call to preach is typical of our generation's ambition. He said, "The sun am hot, the work am hard, and the days am long. Therefore I am called to preach.'

This undependability and search for fun are what makes jobs tough and progress slow on our campus. That's why our organizations don't improve, why there's nothing new, "just the same ole stuff", and why our spirit is dead.

WHAT'S UP, DOC?

Nothing sloopy sentimental, Doc Stevenson, but we would just like to tell you, "thank you." We like what you stand for, and we appreciate what you have taught us.

Best of luck from the entire student body in your new job at Millsaps.

CONGRATULATIONS IN STORE

Congratulations are in store for members of Sack Chapter of Presbyterian College. According to an interview made by the Ohio University Post, you have the right idea. They found that "many got more sleep than usual during the time of tension, and "A" students seemed to have slept more than anyone. One honor scholar commended taking cat naps during the afternoon to revive ones self from the tension of exams." It seems that we have the right idea. Keep up the good work!

Campfire Boys Meet Her

By TOM GOLDEN

The Exalted Lodge Leader of the Junior Campfire Boys was campus this week, looking for able men to lead this world-renown organization for boys from the ages of six to twenty-eight. To qu fy for a leader's position you must be stupid, lousy, helpless, fiesty discourteous, rude, disobedient, thriftless, cowardly, filthy, and rent.

The Exalted Lodge Leader is the holder of all the badges, medals, stripes (prison stripes), etc., offered by the Junior Campfire boys. His most prized awards are the ones he wears on his uniform.

The highest rank in the JCFB is the Falcon Award. One must have twenty merit awards, sixteen thousand Cruelty Certificates, and six million Wheaties box tops. Although hard work is usually done to win these awards (safe cracking, etc.), our Exalted Lodge Leader won his in a floating crap game.

Now a history of the Exalted Lodge Leader: He was born in Holland of Russian and Venezuelain parents. He was taken to Japan early in life and became a citizen there. The Cub at first was a group of Kamakaze units, but being a spy i England, he had to withdraw France. The reason he wi drew to France was to pass

Ah, Spring Has Sprung . . .

By MIKE FURRY

Ah, Spring! When the trees break out in blossoms, the birds break forth in song, and the faces break out in pimples. The sound of runnig feet, the satisfying splash of water hurled from the third floor, and bottles breaking merrily on the drain grate. What a joy to sweep water from your room on a day like this! What a joy to shake the shaving cream and toothpaste out of your sheets on such a day! The thrill of the hunt for the missing light bulbs and the joy of victory when you have thoroughly flooded the first floor.

If you feel blue on a day like this, just change your hair style, like Yul Knox, or Yul Newsome. Tan the top of your head; the "scalped effect" will give you a lift.

Ah, Spring! The fragrance of blossoms is in the air, the color of green is on the trees, and the smell of armpits is in the dorm; the odors of rice 'n casserole are wafted on the breeze as Leo rides again

Ah, Spring, when a young man's fancy as he can be; boy-mice are hunting up little girl-mice, boy-birds are hunting up little girl-birds, and boy-men are just hunting.

The merry tinkle of glass and the staccato music of TNT's and torpedoes are all sounds of the season as Spring rolls around an' around an' around (hey stop!) again.

A brisk walk and merry whistle, a splash of water, a hearty oath, and a pair of blue suede shoes are hung up to dry (again). Doors slam, "Shut up, you guys", and a fist pounds the desk in rage as the typewriter key sticks (again) and water gurgles merrily under the door.

Ah, Spring . . . splash . . . splutter . . . blub . . .

Toward The Unkown

by DR. JOHN SUMMERS

"And now for the first time in the history of the great institution, two of our students shall endeavor to mount this lighter than air aircraft and will soar into the great unknown, bringing fame unlimited to our college, the most wonderful in the two Carolinas." With this Dr. Brown concluded his speech and cut the official cord that held the balloon safely moored to the deserted compost pile.

Surely enough, the balloon lifted slowly in the air, and began to move northeasterly across the plain. The crowd screamed, cheered, and then continued drinking their beer after it disappeared over the nearest hill.

In the craft, the two students radioed back to the administration Building that they were having serious difficulties holding the big bag of wind in place. Surely enough, Dr. Brown had managed to get aboard. For a few days, and many nights the three loomed over the clouds that darkened the face of the earth beneath. Their radio reports became weaker and weaker, for the balloon was being swept out to sea by the jet stream, which incidentally is where they wash the new F-100's. Realizing their very dangerous position, they mounted the balloon cabin with two portable helicopter rotors and commenced to pedal their craft as fast as possible towards the nearest continent, which is known as Afreakah. Great Scott, what a hineous place to get stuck with a deflated ole silk bag.

Out of the woods, for they do have woods over there, came the wretched cross breeds of Chinese Mongolians, and Hollerink Natives. (Explanation — the Chinese Transportation Corp. had a serious plane crash here several years ago, and you know how things work out.) All three PC' uns were captured, and their fate was going to be fat, for the Nongoonative leader had decided to feast on them.

When Dr. Brown was placed in the pot, the natives roared. Man, was he a sight for sore eyes, and believe me, he made your eyes sore. Just as the other two men were heaved in the boiling cauldron with the good Doc, the African Rescue Mission sent out a dog sled to save the men from their wretched fate. As the natives returned to the depths of the forests from whence they had come, the now jubilant crew jumped out of the pan and into the fire where they commened to do the now famous African Rock and Roll series number 10.

It was not long before the world learned of the frightening exploits of these three brave men. The AP, the UP, and the DOWN wrote up articles that were published from Formosa to Tiujuana. Presbyterian College, the fabulous little college from the United States, is now one of the most up and coming (and going) colleges in the world.

Well, I've told you the story of how PC became famous. If you dont' believe it I certainly don't blame you, 'cause it's not exactly the absolute truth. (Who do you think I am, Uncle Remus?)

Movie Review . . .

Fear Strikes Out

Feud and fraud are rolled a baseball as psychiatry has red-hot inning in this film bi raphy of Red Sox outfielder J Piersall in a movie that deals with antics on the field, but w manics in his mind. Twen four years old Anthony Perk Hollywood's latest James De scores in the title role. Karl M den, who played Archie Lee "Baby Doll," rages as a psyc again, this time in the role Piersall's father.

The key lines to the plot a the words Jim speaks to his p chiatrist while in a mental ins tution. "Listen," he says, "I hadn't been for my father stan ing behind me and pushing and driving me, I wouldn't where I am today!"

This, ironically, was th truth: it was the same old ston of a father who is not satisfie with his own life and is deter mined to make his son excl where he missed. His ambition was for his son to play for the Boston Red Sox, and Piersa make it, in a straight jacket.

"How'd I do, dad?" the b would ask .

His answer always was, "N bad, son. But you weren't on yo toes all the time, and you kno it."

Anthony Perkins' ace in th hole that made his part a succes was charm. "Time" calls it " gangling, gulp-and-golly, never been-kissed sort of charm." makes a hit as a nervous you wiggling and stammering like kindergarten kid who needs to excused. His manic panics successfully acted, and he clicks the "cute" scenes to please sots of sentimentality.

PC 2-CITADEL 1

The Blue Hose of Presbyterian College downed the hard-fighting Bulldogs of The Citadel 2-1 on Young Field here Friday. George Akins pitched splendid ball but had his shut-out ruined in the seventh when Dick Guerreri singled in Bill Leonard who led off the inning with a walk. Akins struck out four and walked only two in stopping The Citadel's three-game winning streak.

Trailing 1-0 in the bottom of the seventh the Blue Hose came back to tie up the game when Cecil Geddings singled to lead off the inning. Sonny King beat out a bunt to first, was then picked off, and George Akins lined a single to left field driving in Geddings. The Blue Hose produced the winning run in the bottom of the eighth. Ted Leahy singled; then Hodge and Geddings went down, and Sonny King singled to drive home Leahy with the decisive run. Dusty Reeves led the team in hitting with 3 for 4.

CATAWBA 5-PC 4

A desperate last chance rally caused Catawba to take a 5-4 decision from the PC Blue Hose. Only two outs away from a victory the Blue Hose faltered and the Indians squeezed in a run to provide the margin of victory in the extra inning. PC hurler Bill Dobbins pitched excellent ball until the ninth when he was touched for the two runs that tied the ball game. Johnny Tennant relieved Dobbins of mound duty in the tenth with one man on and a bad throw to second allowed the runner to advance to third. From here he scored on a squeeze to give the decision to Catawba. The Blue Hose led by three runs and dominated play for the first eight innings.

Fantastic catches seemed to be the order of the day. Cecil Geddings pleased the crowd as he made an almost impossible running catch on a Vinton foul in the hedge near the scoreboard, along with some other fine stops on balls hit to his side of the field. Five running catches were made in the outfield by fielder Ray Hodge and center fielder Ed Jackson.

The first three PC runs came on five singles in the opening frame. Tommy Reeves led off with a single. Then after two outs Dusty Reeves, Ted Leahy, Ray Hodge, and Cecil Geddings hit successive singles to account for the three runs.

Tommy Reeves had two for four to lead the hitting for PC, including a tremendous triple.

GEORGIA TEACHERS 12-PC 4

In their last two trips the Presbyterian College baseball team has been soundly trounced. The trip to Statesboro, Ga., proved to be a game played with wildness on the part of the Blue Hose, and in the midst of an array of errors the Hosemen emerged on the short end of a 12-4 score.

Ray Hodge accounted for two of the total runs for the Hose while Ed Jackson and Ted Leahy each scored one. The leading batters for the Blue Hose were Cecil Geddings and Ray Hodge. Geddings had two for four, while Hodge had two for five.

WOFFORD 12-PC 1

Cecil Geddings scored the only run for the Blue Hose to deny Wofford's ace pitcher, Johnny Booze, a shutout.

After Tommy Reeves led off the ball game with a single, the Blue Hose were hitless until the eighth inning. With one out in the eighth Cecil Geddings singled through the pitching box. Sonny King, batting for Jimmy Newsome, singled, and Johnny Tennant singled, to drive home Geddings for the only run of the ball game.

Ken Gardner started the game for PC, but was relieved in the third by Johnny Tennant who went the rest of the way.

DUSTING THE DIAMOND

The baseball squad has come up with something this season they have lacked in the past. This, of course, being hitting. The Blue Hose diamond dandies have been really blasting the cover off the ball thus far, and this outshines their present won-lost record.

Before the season began, Coach Vic McIntyre was quoted as saying he would possess good pitching and good fielding, but would be woefully weak in the hitting department. He was correct in the first two statements, and is thankful that his statement made on hitting has been disproved.

Batting averages prior to Tuesday's game with Wofford were as follows: Tommy Reeves, 11-27, .407; Ed Jackson, 8-29, .275; Tony Benson, 8-28, .279; Dusty Reaves, 13-25, .517; Ted Leahy, 1025, .400; Ray Hodge, 7-31, .226; Cecil Geddings, 626, .231.

In the pitching department, Johnny Tennant has led the way, backed by George Akins, Bill Dobbins, and Ken Gardner. Tennant has a 1-1 record; Akins a 1-1 total; Gardner a 1-0 record; while Dobbins is 0-1 for the season.

Backing these pitchers behind the plate have been two able catchers in the persons of Sonny King and Jimmy Newsome. Both boys are good backstoppers and provide big targets for the Blue Hose chunkers.

The games played this season have all been tight ones, and with the exception of the 12-4 loss to Georgia Teachers, each could have resulted in a PC victory.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Athlete of the Week honors go to a deserving young fellow from South Lemon, New Jersey, for the creation of a new sport on the campus. He is Gus Bell, all-around sports enthusiast who has gone into Beagle Hound raising. Mr. Bell, along with associate O'Neil Crocker, captured two Beagle pups last week, and have now opened a kennel on the third floor of Smyth B section. Mr. Bell beheves that this can be a thriving business as well as an adequate sport for any of the students on campus who wish to purchase one of these fine hounds for the purpose of hunting Beagles. Beagle season in Laurens County is from April 15-17.

The South Carolina State Tennis Tournament will be held again this year on the PC courts. The dates have been set for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday,(April 25, 26, and 27.

Saturday Mercer Meet Called Off By Coaches

The athletic department announced Wednesday afternoon that the scheduled track meet with Mercer College, of Macon, Ga., has been cancelled. The track coach at Macon called Coach McMillian and said that due to a lack of team members he could not afford to bring the team to PC.

The team with ten men scored only seven points in a triangular meet with Davidson and Richmond Colleges last weekend. Since then the squad has lost five of its members.

The meet with Mercer has been an annual affair for many years, and will probably be scheduled again next year.

Craig and me April 29 was the grandest gesture of all in my four years duty at your college. Seldom it is that a military man is fortunate enough to be assigned to a school where his job (operating the military department and supervising the ROTC unit) is given the support of both the students and the administration, and where the student interest is of such caliber as to cause comment by inspectors year after year.

"Sure—you drill every day! Sure—the cadet regulations are tough. Sure—the classes are run on a formal basis. The reason, you ask? There are many.

1.—To develop you a leader.

2.—To make you as ready as possible to defend your country should the need arise.

3.—Try and inculcate in you a sense of responsibility—and

4.—To prepare you, by military methods, to take your place in this topsy-turvy world.

"I should like to express my appreciation to each one of you, military and non-military, for the manner in which you have received me, treated me, and made my family and me welcome in your city and state. The Welcome Mat . . .

Presbyterian College would like to extend a cordial welcome to all the visitors on campus this weekend. We hope that the students from other schools will be pleased and that the alumni of Presbyterian College will be satisfied with the improvements since they graduated. The welcome mat is out.

It Wont be Long . . .

Many students have expressed their disapproval in the fact that the construction of new buildings hasn't begun. We checked with G. E. Campbell, our valiant Business Manager, on the situation. He stated that the building program will soon continue to progress again. Money for the new chapel is now on hand and is being used to finance the Student Union building. As soon as the Student Union building is financed it can be started and thus both will be finished sooner. The Student Union Building is probably the greatest need since it will be used more by both regular and day students. The buildings are expected to both be rapidly underway.

My Rifle is Quick

By PAUL SPILLIANE ARRINGTON

It wasn't the first morning I had gotten up with that taste in my mouth, and I doubt that it would be the last as long as those prohibitionists were out of circulation. I crawled out of the four-poster and set my sights on the kitchen. With nothing more than a few bruises, I made it and threw strips of fat-back in the pan. I put on a pot of Postum while I headed for the shower and the razor. The water brought me enough out of my stupor so that I could steady the razor for a few quick strokes. No sooner had I scraped off the last hair than the doorbell rang. Being the trustful type I gave whoever it was the "come-on-in" routine; she came on in.

She wasn't the type you usually expect to find coming into your room at such an hour—tall, slim, curved, and dressed like she had been in a hurry. Her dress was low enough to make a baby cry, but I didn't feel too much like being a baby, so I just stared. She stared back and when I looked up I found her looking into her handbag.

She brought out a small envelope and strode across the small room extending a slender hand out to me. I didn't know whether to kiss it or shake it, but I didn't have to make up my mind because a slight breeze came in and cooled me in too many places. I found out why when I turned my head and saw my pajamas lying in the door of the bathroom. I wasn't so startled because we were almost old friends, but I thought better of it and excused myself.

When I came back she was sitting cross-legged behind the coffee table looking thirsty, so I threw her some Vodka Kool-Ade together, returned, and sat across from her.

I picked up the envelope from the table, ripped it open and removed the contents. There was a picture of a girl who might have been her sister, a short signed statement, and a green card.

They didn't mean too much to me as I started inquiring. She was employed at one of the local

Used to be a 97 lb. Weakling

Yesterday I tripped over something that looked like a dead white corpse, only to find out that it was someone sunbathing. Then as I came up the steps to my room, I was suddenly shaken by what felt like an earthquake. As I looked in, I saw roomo contemplating the hole in our floor through which had disappeared a hundred pounds of weights.

We were wondering just what to do about the whole situation when our problem was solved for us. From below came the voice of Ken Webb. "Hey, you guys want these back?" and up they come the way they went, making a perfect three-point landing on me, roomo, and the floor.

Sure do wish I could get a sun tan. I'm the one they call the "Great White Father' when I go out and try to get a little sun. That's not half as bad as what happened the other morning, though. Someone burst into my room and shouted, "I'm rich- I'm rich! I've found a sunken chest!" But at closer inspection they saw that it was only me doing my daily lying down exercises.

I wrote to Charles Atlas last year. I saw his advertisement saying, "I used to be a 97-pound weakling." I feel that I've made tremendous improvement since then. I took the course and now I'm a 120-pound weakling.

Coupla weeks ago, I got a letter saying, "Do women scorn you? Are you afraid of your own shadow? Are you afraid of high winds?" Well, I wrote back an emphatic "Yes!"

Last week I got an answer. "Life is touch all over, isn't it?" signed "T.S." So I'd better sign off now; the wind is rising. If you happen to see a broken derby rolling along the sidewalk, don't chase it hoping to earn a quarter from some old man. I'm riding in it!

Tomato Juice Time

Starkle, starkye little twink,
What a tool I are you fink.
I'm not under the affluence of incohol
Like some pickle feeble drink I are.
The drunker I stand here, the longer I get
But I don't give a durn!
I've got all day sober to Sunday upin,
Take me drunk, I'm home.

Americanism

By DON DANIELS

On the surface "Teahouse of the August Moon" appears to be a light, satirical comedy of military errors. But underneath is well-thought-out, sarcastic, almost bitter, highly organized, far-reaching attack on "The Good Ole American Way."

The movies' locale is Okinawa, althoughs its slams are practically universal. From the moment the occupation troops begin to occupy Okinawa after World War II, the Okinawans are occupied with forbearin gthe overbearing, self-imposing American way.

Without a choice democracy was forced upon the natives. Completely overlooking Okinawa's culture and history, Americ -can culture and history was superimposed and initiated by means of the American school system without the slightest modification by anything Okinawian. They even built the school buildings 'pentagon" shaped.

We are reminded of the American missionaries who went to India to preach the gospel of Christ and preached, primarily, the gospel of Americanism. The Indians, upon being educated, dugt into their own past and found they had a pretty good one and that they also had a great teacher in Buddha. Now they want to come to America and preach the gospel of Buddha.

In the village of Topekee the villagers are portrayed not only as proud of their own culture, but the culture is pictured as deeply ingrained in the Okina-

In One Head and Out the Othe

by DR. JOHN SUMMERS

High in the Himalayan Alps there dwells a very notorious man of science who is now embarking on an extremely important experiment. In all the days of the earth every man of discovery has been able to do but one thing, that being to discover something that had not yet been discovered. But this noble man, this courageous person, this true seeker of things unsought wanted to discover the undiscoverable. His whole life is dedicated to the high purpose of proving that there is something not yet known about nothing.

Early in childhood Dr. High Digger read in his science manual. "Science Manual," that much effort is necessary to prove that things of the universe are so. It requires countless operations and computations to prove the way to good hypothesis, and even more work to form a solid law.

One lucky man even found out that apples fall out of trees to the ground, and don't rise as some might have suspected.

Dr. High Digger found out early in life that most discoveries of his age had been made by contemporaries. Realizing this, he is now seeking to go beyond his day, to the era of vacuums and empties where only zero is plentiful.

In his secluded laboratory Dr. Digger is setting up some entirely new types of machinery and apparatus consisting of pressureless flasks, empty toe-sacks, and countless meters of voidness. With this delicate lactious unsomethingness, Dr. Digger is experimenting daily to investigate the possibilities of creating "Nothingness" out of "Insideness."

Many textbooks agree that whenever two opposites are brought together they attract. When two similar forces are brought together they repel. Therefore, if two unlike yet similar forces are taken away they must do nothing. From here Dr. bright as he suffered a ser lower spinal accident when h a young infant. (It is suspec by many leading men in this fi that Jaques did not report s of these things seen.)

Dr. Diggers' final victo came when in a spirit of u solute defeat he pressed hidden button that sucked hi into a compressor that w emptying a room of air, furn ture, floors, and other thing As he was pumped away, he r corded these notes in his disa pearing notebook. "I have no discovered nothing. It is no similar to anything I have ev known. I feel as though I u not anymore anything. There fore, Law 73.5—Nothing is jus that."

With that last period Dr. D ger gave up his existnece wh is the price of non-existence. this serve as a worthy tribu to a great man who is acclaim by many to be the All-Americ Nothing of all time.

Furman Greases By Hose 1-0

Bill Dobbins pitched no-hit ball for six and one-third innings against Furman University at their new campus diamond last week, but allowed three hits in the eighth inning to drop a 1-0 decision to the Hornets. Dobbins retired Furman batters in order for five innings but the Hornets' Joe Cooper beat out an infield roller to score Jerry Penland in the pitcher's duel. Leading the Hose were Tony Benson and Dusty Reaves with two hits each, while Cecil Geddings, Jerry Crawford, and Dobbins each had one.

Cecil Geddings collected three hits and drove home both Blue Hose tallies to beam a bright light for the PC baseballers on a dismal day against Georgia State Teachers College. The Blue Hose droped a 10-2 decision to the powerful Teachers who ran their victory streak to five. Ted Leahy followed with two hits while George Aiken started on the mound but was relieved midway in the game. Bill Dobbins and Ken Gardner pitched creditable ball in relief.

PC 5—Lenoir-Rhyne 3

Led by a tremendous home run off the bat of team captain Tommy Reeves, the Blue Hose took a 5-3 reverse win from Lenoir-Rhyne. George Aiken turned in one of the top pitching performances of the season as he hurled a neat four-hitter. Also connecting for a long extra base below was Ray Hodge who drove in a run to help clinch the game in the late innings with a triple. Tony Benson and Cecil Geddings were outstanding defensively backing Aiken while the freshman right-hander picked up his second win of the season.

Mercer 4—PC 2

PC jumped off to an early lead and led for eight complete innings in a mid-season game against the Bears from Macon. With Ken Gardner looking magnificent on the mound, the Blue Hose seemed virtually assured of victory when with only one out in the ninth, two Mercer batters doubled and lead-off hitter Joe Smith homered to give the visitors a come from behind victory.

Wofford 11—PC 4

The Wofford Terriers took a come from behind 11-4 victory from PC's Blue Hose on Young Field today.

PC ace pitcher, Johnny Tennent, held the Terriers in check for the first half of the game as he tossed scoreless, no-hit ball for five complete innings. Wofford capitalized on poor fielding by the Hose defense and pushed several runs across the plate.

The Blue Hose opened scoring in the fourth as centerfielder Ed Jackson led off with the first hit of the ball game and a single by Tony Benson and double by rightfielder Ted Leahy produced two runs.

Wofford clinched the game with five big runs in the top of the ninth.

Announcement

The administration has announced that the pool will be open Monday afternoon from 3:00-5:30 P. M. for use of the faculty, their families, and the coeds. The lifeguard will be on duty during these hours, and all these are invited.

Stones, Alpha Sigs, PiKas, and Sigs Win

Intramural softball season started off with a bang Monday afternoon as the Stones defeated the Ministerial Club 12-2 behind the fast hurling of Bruce Thompson. In the second game of the afternoon Pi Kapa Alpha stomped the Hopeless Nine 13-0.

Tuesday afternoon saw the Alpha Sigs emerge victorious over Theta Chi by the score of 13-1. Buddy Mullis was the winning pitcher. In the second game, Sigma Nu came from behind with a four-run outburst in the bottom half of the fifth inning to defeat Kapa Alpha 5-2. Ken Fleischer, of Sigma Nu, bested Larry Wood, of Kappa Alpha, in a pitcher's duel. Fleischer was touched for only one hit.

Blue Hose Hopes High For Charleston Games

Riding a five-game losing streak, the Blue Hose baseball squad invades Charleston for a two-game series that ends the season for both teams.

Hoping to bounce into the win column, the Hose hopes ride on the strong arms of pitchers Bill Dobbins, Johnny Tennant, and George Aiken. In a previous meeting on the PC home field, Aiken twirled a masterful five-hitter to lead the Blue Hose to a -21 victory.

The Blue Hose are paced at bat by first baseman Dusty Reaves woh has compiled a .350 batting mark. Behind him comes shortstop Tony Benson at .295; second baseman Tommy Reeves, .269; right fielder Ted Leahy, .259; and third baseman Cecil Geddings with .250.

Defensively, Tommy Reeves and Cecil Geddings are setting the pace. Behind the plate freshman Jerry Crawford is leading the catching corps. He receives able assistance from Sonny King and Jimmy Newsome.

Coach Viv McIntyre explains that the inability of this year's green team to hit with runners on has been the cause of many of the close defeats. The team has displayed fine defensive play and there is potential for a great team next year.

Hose Take Three

The Presbyterian College tennis team triumphed three times and suffered a lone defeat while on a northern tour of the Ivy League schools.

The Hose won easily over Princeton 6-3, an All-Philadelphia aggregation 6-3, and Yale 8-1, before bowing to a tough Harvard squad 6-3.

The Big Two . . .

Coach Bill Lufler and Captain Ed Rubinoff of the Miami tennis team are pictured above. Miami defeated Presbyterian here Wednesday and Thursday.

Miami Victorious Over Presbyterian Netmen

The powerful University of Miami Hurricanes took a 6-3 tennis decision from the talent-laden Presbyterian College Blue Hose in a tension-packed match on the Clinton Courts Wednesday. Miami, starting a new win streak, had trouble in all matches before downing the Hose before a crowd of approximately 500. The win achieved great satisfaction among the Hurricane netmen as it not only gave them a strong hold on the Number One spot in the nation but also avenged an early season defeat which came at the hands of the Hose on Miami courts. Miami now leads in the 1957 series two matches to one.

Paced by Johann Kupferberger, the transplanted South African, the Hurricanes won the first four single matches and two doubles matches. Kupferberger defeated John Brownlow 6-3, 6-3, which saw the victor have continual trouble before putting away the wiry Hose netman.

Diminuitive Harvey Jackson extended Allen Quay in the first set 7-5 before losing to the towering Miamian. Quay then went on to take the second set 6-0. The first set was marked by an exchange of flashy play with the lead changing hands several times before Quay forged ahead.

Team Captain Ed Rubinoff defeated Guice Potter 6-1, 6-0. Rubinoff, a southpaw, had little trouble with Potter, easily winning early in the match. His lob game and expert court play labeled him one of the outstanding performers of the day. Rubinoff, always aware of his opponent, remarked after the game that he could not have won if Potter was able to carry the game with his vicious drives drives and

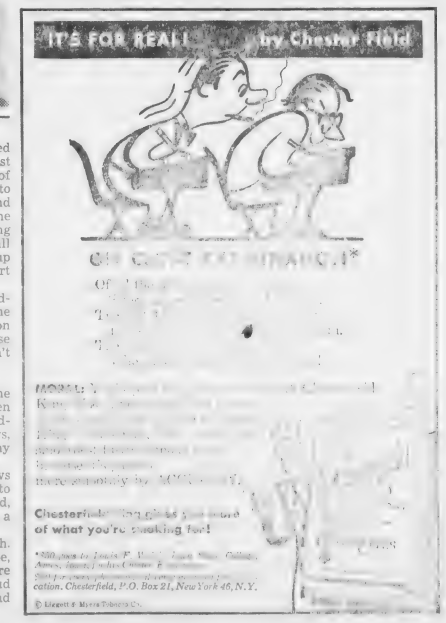
CHIP CHATTER

We're back again ater a two week layoff and much has happened in this space of time in the field of sports at PC. One of the most notable events was the recent annexation by the Hosemen golfers of the Little Four title. Led by Warren Mays, the golfers stroked to their second title in succession. Mays was the individual champ, and was among the top ten golfers in the over-all state standings. The affable Mays was second to teammate Mitch Mavromat in the driving contest. Mavromat won the state driving crown as he hit the ball over the 300 yard mark. Other Blue Hose golfers who showed up well were Ed Brantley, Robert Odum, Bobby Moody, and Albert Copelan.



Before we leave the golf links here's another note of interest. Odum and Mays, while playing out at the Lakside Country Club the other day, both got eagles on the same hole. They collected them on a par five hole, and chipped in from a pretty far distance. In case any of you duffers such as Webb, Fulton, Jefferys, and Hogue, don't know, an eagle is two under par on a hole.

SOFTBALLING

The Intramural softball season is well underway, and most of the contests thus far have been of high calibre. The pitching has been topnotch, and defense has outshone hitting, save a few games. Leading pitchers have been Larry Wood, of Kapa Alpha, Bob Matthews, of Pi Kappa Alpha, Bruce Thompson, of the Stones, and Kenny Fleischer, of Sigma Nu.

In a recent game between the Sigs and the PIKa's, Matthews and Fleischer locked up in a tight pitcher's duel that went into extra innings before the Sigs pulled it out 2-1. Matthews, Wood, and Thompson have excellent speed while Fleisher relies mostly on a variety of cute pitches.

Umpire of the week honors go to Red Stone, the Maxton flash. Big Red calls the game loud, clear and true. There's one trouble, however, he bellows like a bull so loud that all of the catchers are having to wear cotton in their ears. Stone recently called a loud strike and broke up the Little League game on the next field and had all of the babies in Vetville crying.

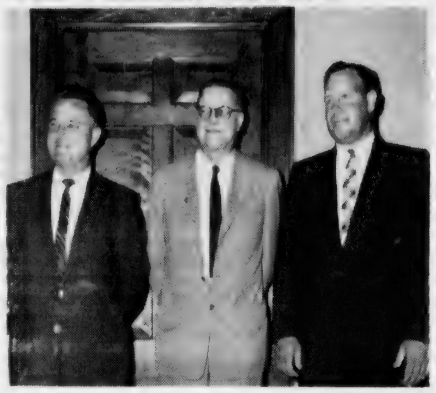
"Thank you again.

F. V. SMITH,
Lt. Col. Inf. PMS&T"

Dr. Brown, president of PC, hda this comment to make of Col. Smith. "My knowledge of the fine educational background and experience of Col. Smith led me to secure him as PMS&T and he has fully justified my expectations. He has been in full sympathy with the educational ideals of the institution, has won an unusually high place in the esteem of the townspeople by his civic work, and he has demonstrated superior leadership qualities and instruction efficiency in maintaining fully at PC the high standards which are traditional with our military department."

Lt. Hal C. Bennett, Jr., an officer in the United States Artillery, will relieve Capt. Craig in the Military Department. Lt. Bennett was commissioned in 1951 in the Regular Army, and is a graduate of the University of Alabama. He has served as a First Lieutenant since 1953. Lt. Bennett served in the Navy during World War II overseas in Europe. He comes to us from Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and is the father of two small children.



Captain Richard S. Craig, who has served as Assistant PMS&T for the past two years, is also leaving the Presbyterian College campus along with Col. Smith. Capt. Craig has been an important leader both in the community and on the campus. His reputation as a military man is admired by every cadet in the Battalion.

Dr. Brown gave this statement to the Blue Stocking: "Capt. Craig has also contributed his full share to the efficiency of our ROTC unit. A West Pointer with fine scholastic record, he has kept his military classes on an educational par with the best academic work prevailing in other departments.

"Both Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Craig have been prominent in church and civic affairs, and will be greatly missed when they leave this community.

"Mrs. Craig is expected to accompany her husband to Fort Bliss and Mrs. Smith will reside here if Col. Smith's next assignment is in an area not well suited for the families of army personnel."

New Football Coaches

two capable assistants to round out his coaching staff.

He pointed out that Jones comes to Presbyterian College well qualified, both academically and athletically, to make a contribution to the Blue Hose sports program which long has ranked among the foremost in small college cidcles. Jones has received both his BA and MA degrees from the University of North Carolina aid has completed considerable work toward his doctorate.

Jones has been at Decatur High since 1951, and during this time he has consistently produced some of the best teams in Georgia's fastest high school league. He was selected "Coach of the Year" for Region 4AAA in 1951 and in 1953, and he was named Georgia high school "coach of the year" in 1955. During the past season, his Decatur squad won the Southern Championship of Region 4 with a record of eight wins and two losses. The opponents were held scoreless in these eight victories, and no AAA team scored on Decatur during the regular season. He helped the South squad in the North-South Shrine fotball game in Miami, Christmas of 1955, wroking on the press box telephones as an assistant.

He is married to the daughter of University of Georgia Coach Wallace Butts, and they have a young son and daughter.

A star athlete at Lanier High in Macon, Jones attended Middle Georgia College and was captain of the football, basketball, and baseball teams before leaving to serve in the army during World War II. He entered North Carolina after the war and after receiving his MA there served as coach at Cordele (Ga.) High for two years before going to Decatur High School.

well placed shots.

Displaying the best tennis of his career, sophomore Jim Shakespeare nearly pulled the upset of the day before bowing to nationally ranked David Harum in what proved to be the turning point of the match. Shakespeare captivated the crowd with a 6-1 victory in the first set. Displaying good form Shakespeare came wihtin point of taking his match before his seasoned opponent came from behind to win. The score of the match was 1-6, 6-0, and 7-5.

Freshman Harry Hoffman had little trouble putting away Bob Rohe, of Miami, defeating him 6-2, 6-0. Jim Peck, playing number six for the Hose had to come from behind after losing the first set to capture the other Blue Hose singles match. He defeated Harry Rosen 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Shakespeare and Peck combined to win the only doubles event for the Hose by beating the doubles combination of Rohe-Rosen 6-3, 4-6, 6-3. Miami captured the other two doubles events to ice the match. The final score was Miami 6, Presbyterian 3.

PCuns Visit Bug House

By HUGH BURNS

On Tuesday, May 7, 1957, Reverend Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kessel, of anna, Jack Taylor, and I attended the annual "Clinic Day" at the outh Carloina State Hospital. The tour is sponsored to acquaint stu-ents of Psychology with the operation of a "therapeutic community" ospital.

After a period of visiting the atients in the wards and talking ith them, the group, composed f students from various colleges the state, was welcomed by Dr. awson H. Bowling, Clinical Di-ector, Columbia Division. Dr. owling brought before us a pa-ent who was a paranoid schizo-hrenic—characterized by delus-ns of persecution, ideas of ref-rence, influence, emotional ap-thy and indifference. This man ad entered the hospital in 1949 which time he was having ab-rmal ideas and feeling that he was God.

It was observed that he was very sick, denying reality, and using suppression, repression, and projection. Preceding the time he came before the group, he had told the attendant that he was going to tell us what a lousy place the hospital was and how mean they were to him, but when he came in and saw the Director was to question him, he immediately began to answer every question contrary to his previous statement. This illustrates one of the symptoms of a schizophrenia in

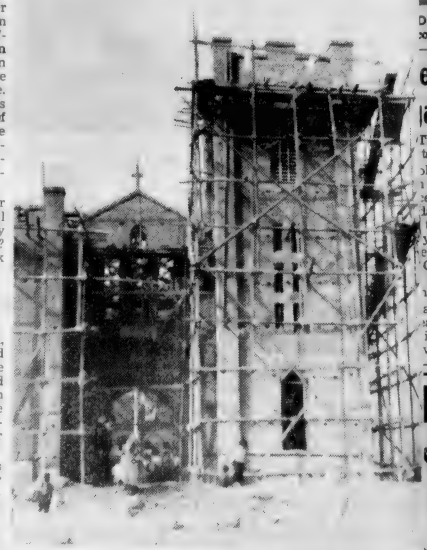
Give Us This Day...

"Give us this day, our daily bread, and, God, we pray that you will be with those less fortunate than us" is a prayer that is continually made at our dinner tables. These words have boomeranged because now we've come face to face with a chance to help someone less fortunate than ourselves.

The top picture on the right is the remains of the Anyang Presbyterian Church of Anyang, Korea, after the Korean War bombings in 1951. Construction of a new church in that spot began in 1954, but had to be stopped because of lack of funds. The lower picture on the right shows how much has been completed.

This construction has stood as it is for two years now and proper funds still haven't been raised. There are no windows, cement walls without plaster, no furniture and no organ. Four hundred people still attend this church, but they have to sit on the floor and sing without musical accompaniment.

In the winter temperatures run as low as fifteen below zero degrees centigrade: the people still come. But if three thousand dollars isn't raised soon, the construction already completed will be ruined by summer rains and typhoons and winter snow.



A campus drive will begin next September, led by Yong Ki Lee, to raise money for this church. This will leave time for individuals or fraternities to raise contributions if they wish to. There will be no pledging or pushing to raise funds; it will be left entirely to the individual to decide whether he wants to contribute or not. Here is a chance to do something for someone else in the midst of pleasure-filled lives.

Hurricane Narcasm Hits Campus

by DR. JOHN SUMMERS

I don't know whether you have noticed or not, but there's a new type of language going around the campus that should properly be named Negative Sarcasm, or Narcasm. It runs something like this.

Jim is walking down the plaza with a pile of books in his arms. Bill sees him and says, "You going to the Library, Jim?" Then Jim answers him with this bit of Narcastic slang, "Ain't I!" This means to say, "You retarded sack of lifeless protoplasm, yes. What's the matter, you blind?"

Another case is often seen when one person who is known to frequent a certain Beer establishment in the heart of this community, is asked, "Have you been down to Charlie's?" The answer will invariably be, "Hadn't I." This means to those who have not yet learned to interpret this lingo, "Ask me some other time when I don't have to answer."

Another slang term which is heard repeatedly around the grounds of this institution is the word, "Babe." This can be used in any number of ways, such as: "How you doin', Babe-uh?" or "Hi, Babe-uh" This has absolutely no connection with any infants as might be expected from hearing the phrase, but is just another way of using someone's name in a miserable way.

"That's cute!" are two words also found in the Narcasm dictionary. It is usually used after someone has made some incredible statement. For example, "I was standing on the bank of the Nile River in Sweden when a fantabulous fish hit the line and knocked it unconscious. (After a brief period of disbelieving looks, this stirring remark emerges from the lips of the listener.) "That's Cute!"

One more and I shall stop, for this week anyway. This one can be used at almost any time in reference to almost anything. It can be heard day or night when someone is trying to emphasize an event of dynamic importance. It is, "It got good tuh me!" This is used by those who can't think of such things as, "I enjoyed the performance at the Little Theatre," or 'The book certainly stirred my heart," or "It was an enchanting evening."

When I hear these phrases or any others that sound as corn ball as those, all I can say is, "They get good tuh me—Don't they? That's Cute! What you think Babe-uh?"

The Story of a Good Boy

By TOM GOLDEN

To look at this old gray man, one would not think that he had been responsible for ninety-five per cent of the air victories and hand-to-hand combat victories in World War II. Since the war he has spent most of his time breaking up sky rings and atending air shows.

During World War II he was at ten thousand feet in a Piper Cub unarmed except for a forty-five, when at three o'clock 12 "zeros" jumped him. At nine o'clock six more jumped him; also at six o'clock twenty-three jumped him.

He took his forty-five and sent seven of the imperial airplanes of the Japanese air force cutting wide arcs into the sea. He then set the automatic pilot and took his GI 128-3 Marilyn Monroe Calendar and held it above the cockpit; then he dropped it onto the island. Fourteen of the planes which were in sight of the calendar dived after it, crashing into the island. The remainder of the planes began the gigantic single strafing run.

Zack then took a ball-bearing and threw it into the eye of the first Jap pilot, who in extreme pain lost control of his plane. While the plane was out of control his plane cut off the left wings of the other planes. This had just been the precise plan of Zack. The "zeros" began to circle in ever-descending arcs until they crashed into their own tail sections.

Zack then realized that during the battle he had lost his plane and was without his parachute. Zack—Splat.

My Rifle is Quick

June had been suspicious of some of May's friends, especially the one she had last gone out with, and being concerned, came to me. Things didn't look any more than routine until I picked up the green card; the words sprang out at me from the top—". . . member of the LAST PARTY."

When I read the statement I got dizzy. May had made a quick trip to D. C. for anything but a social visit; she had taken her camera for a few shots of the Potomac's cherry blossoms, but had somehow gotten some AEC document shots. Everything had looked fine for Moscow except for one thing, she didn't pass them on to the relay man. The statement didn't say why she had failed to conform, but one thing was for sure, she was hot.

I looked up and asked Diane why she had come to me. The corners of her mouth turned up as she asked if I'd find either May, the pictures, or more probably, micro-film. I guessed that she didn't care to answer my question, and I was going to tell her where she could go when she pulled out another envelope. That handbag must have been full of them, but this one was different; it was green—the same as the contents. I relieved her of it, contemplated over 20 pictures of Grant, and stuck it into my pocket.

She stood up and asked me to get my coat. I got it, put it over my shoulder, and thought about the goods on the stove. Relieved, I remembered that I hadn't turned on the fire; as I think about it, I don't think I turned on my brain, either.

We walked out together and hopped into the old Chevy. I didn't know where I was going to begin looking, but I was brought out of my thoughts by Diane. She suggested having a drink to start things right; I agreed. I found a parking space near a tavern labeled Joe's, got out, locked arms with my client, and walked in.

We had just sat down when the waiter took our orders; mine was sweetened soda water, hers was VODKA Kool-Ade. I suspected something then, but it must have slipped my mind; later I wished that it hadn't.

I noticed a couple walking over the welcome mat to sit near the front. I was thinking that I had seen the girl before when it hit me. Things might start happening sooner than I expected.

What's Their Line?

By PAUL SPILLIANE ARRINGTON

The applause at the conclusion of the first number was stopped abruptly, and squinted eyes turned toward the entrance in an attempt to peer through the smoke and the lights reflecting from various illuminated masks adorning the wall of the small ballroom. A tall, turbaned man and his glamorous partner were entering with heads held high as the applause began in appreciation of the couple's appearance in helping to make the club's Masquerade Ball a huge success.

Following them was the typical "Rabbit" couple in colorful costumes with the 'Martians" following in close pursuit. The orchestra resumed its music as the last couple entered and brought with it a reminder of the "Roaring 20's."

The dance floor was crowded with those who liked to move with the sounds coming from the bandstand, the tables with those who wanted just to talk, and the bar with those who just liked parties; everyone seemed to be enjoying himself.

Just before intermission, the judges came out to mingle with the masqueraders in attempting to pick out that couple with the most original and entertaining costume. With a hundred dollar prize in the offering, they had to be fair in their judgment.

After ten minutes they asked for everyone to parade by the judges' table for the final time and said that the winner would be announced as soon as possible.

Records Tied, Broken At State Track Meet

By ROY FOWLER

The state collegiate track meet held its thirtieth annnual running on a beautiful Tuesday afternoon, after being rained out the previous weekend. Clemson took first place honors with 53 points, followed closely by South Carolina with 42½, and Presbyterian with 38¼. The game thin-clads of PC put up a spirited battle with the two larger schools, and were not considered out of the final running until the last three events.

Don Goodroe, of South Carolina, established a new state record in time trials of the 120 high hurdles with a fine time of 14.4 seconds. He proved this was no fluke by running the official race in the same time. Leon Newman, of Clemson, also set a new state record in the one mile run with a time of 4 minutes and 26 seconds.

Senior Richard Johnson, of PC, put forth a very fine effort in trying to break the state record of 13 feet and 4 inches in the pole vault. Johnson had cleared 13 feet to win the event, the bar was raised to 13 feet, 4¾ inches. Johnson had three attempts to try to clear the bar, but each attempt was in vain.

Two upsets occurred as Snyder, of Clemson, out-heaved Dick Bartulski, of USC, in the javelin throw, and Simmons, of Clemson, outran favored Don Goodroe, of USC, in the 220 low hurdles. Bartulski is the holder of the record for the javelin throw, with a toss last year of 213 feet, 8½ inches, but Simmons defeated him this year with a throw of 204 feet, 6 inches.

Delane Johnson took both the 100- and 220-yard dashes as was predicted. His time for the 100 was 10 seconds flat, and for the 220, 22.4 seconds. Messer, of PC, except for the final five yards, pushed Johnson all the way in the 100, and established himself as a distance threat for 100 yard laurels in the future.

Another fine victory for PC was in the broad jump, in which freshman Curtis Linder jumped 22 feet. Wyatt Aiken, the team work horse, also showed up very well by finishing second in the 120 high hurdles, and tying for second place in the high jump.

Other fine performers were Tom Cameron, of Clemson, who high jumped 6 feet, 2½ inches, which was only a half inch away from tying the state record. Brown, of Furman, by finishing first in the 880 with a time of 2 minutes and 1 second, won his school's only first place honor. Latham, of USC, proved his great endurance by finishing first in the two mile run and second in the one mile run.

All in all, the Thirtieth Annual State Track Meet honorably takes its place with the other twenty-nine. Furman and Citadel showed promise and in the near future may do away with the old saying, "Clemson, Carolina, and PC came to run, while the others came to watch." PC, with the smallest enrollment of the schools participating in the meet, proved itself to be far from smallest in talent, and come next spring, PC should again be in the thick of the fight for first place honors.

Tennis, Horshoes and Ping-Pong on Tab Next

The SCA-sponsored intramural sports program is going into its final stages as the volleyball teams begin concerning themselves with final standings. Softball is in ful swing and is getting large support from a number of teams.

Something new is being added this year as the SCA announced that three minor sports, tennis, horseshoes, and ping-pong, will be added to the major ones; these will not count in the final contention for the intramural trophy.

Monday night at 7:30 the swimming meet will be held in the college pool. At 3:15 p. m. on Tuesday, the annual intramural track meet will be held. A ping-pong tournament will be held in the gymnasium, beginning at 7:00 p. m. on Wednesday and will be run for three nights, ending on Friday. The tennis tournament has already gotten underway and will be run until the last man is eliminated in the single-elimination tournament. Horseshoes will be run in the same manner as tennis, with lists of competitors being posted in the dining hall.

The remainder of volleyball and softball will be played concurrently with the others so that the entire intramural athletic program will be completed before exams.

PiKes, Sigma Nu, KA, Stones Are Victorious

Intramural softball entered its second week of play in 1957.

The Stones, last year's Intramural softball champions, resumed its former status by whipping KA, 10-2. The big guns in the game for The Stones were catcher Bob Stone and pitcher Bruce Thompson. Stone drove in four runs on a double and a triple, while Thompson pitched a three-hitter in routing of the KA's.

The second game of the day saw Pi Kapa Alpha show their muscles and go on a rampage to defeat the Alpha Sigs, 1-4. The PiKA's jumped on Mullis, the Alpha Sig hurler, for four runs in the first inning and then slammed nine more in the fifth. The Alpha Sigs tied it up in the second at 4-4 with "Tiny" Lower's two-run triple, but from then on it was all PiKA.

Sigma Nu nosed out a surprising Hopeless Nine team 9-8 in the first game on Tuesday. Ken Fleischer turned in a creditable pitching chore for the Sigs in the loosely played contest.

A determined Ministerial Club outfit gave Kappa Alpha a battle before losing 11-9, in eight innings.

Hose Baseballers Fall To Newberry Indians

By JOHN THAMES

The Blue Hose baseball team suffered its second loss to the Newberry Indians at Newberry Monday by a score of 11-3. The Hose caught fire and went ahead, scoring three runs in the top of the third; however, the Indians retaliated and scored eleven runs. Bobby Shealy allowed the Hose to collect seven hits while Newberry capitalized on four PC errors which aided the Newberry cause.

Ken Gardner went all the way on the mound for the Blue Hose, allowing nine hits. Gardner pitched creditable ball throughout the contest. However, powerful Indian batters proved their mastery as Little Four champs by picking up their sixteenth win of the season. Tommy Reeves was the defensive standout for the Blue Hose while Tony Benson delivered the big blow for the only extra base hit of the contest.

Announcement

The Presbyterian College Tennis team has received an invitation to play an aggregation from the Greenville Country Club. This match will be played in Greenville on Saturday afternoon.

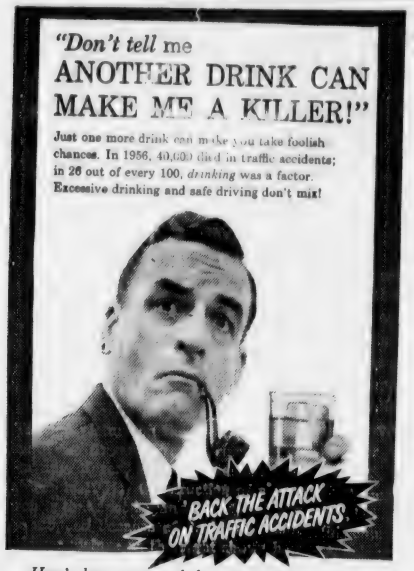
LITTLE OLYMPICS



Clemson's well-balanced Tiger cindermen annexed the thirtieth annual State Meet, but were pushed to the hilt by USC and PC. This year's meet can be classed as pretty even down to the wire, for PC was in the thick of things until the final two events, the two mile run and mile relay. PC, once the holder of the state's finest relay teams, did not enter a team due to manpower shortage. Had we been represented in the relay, we could have wrestled the number two position from USC.

Possessing one of the smallest squads in the school's history, PC's thin-clads scored 37½ points in the "Little Olympics." In doing this, the Hosemen were without representation in the mile run, 440, javelin throw, the two mile run, and had only one man in the 880. Had we been able to pick up valuable points in the distance events, the state champs might have been a different school.

Some of the Blue Hose track aces who fared so well Tuesday were dashman Delane Johnson, the day's high scorer and only double winner of the meet; Richard Johnson, pole vaulter, who won with a vault of 13 feet; broad jump champ Curtis Lindner; along with hurdlers Wyatt Aiken, Jim Hancock, and Eddie Messer.

BASEBALL

The Presbyterian team after a good start has faltered considerably and now possess a 5 win-2 loss record (excluding the May 9th game). Being unable to hit in the clutches has hurt the PC diamond aces greatly. Hitting leaders thus far are Dusty Reaves, Tommy Reeves, Ted Leahy, and Tony Benson. Fielding sparkplugs are still Cecil Geddings and Ray Hodge, along with Reaves and Reeves.

PC Receives Good Crop of Professors

Five additions have been made to the Presbyterian College faculty. Their fields cover English, Math, Economics, and Physical Education.

Fulbright scholar O. R. Bush joins the faculty as associate professor of English. He succeeds Dr. John W. Stevenson, who left after seven years of service to tech at Millsaps College in Jackson, Miss.

This new PC professor taught as a Fulbright teacher at Rotterdam, in The Netherlands. A native of Pennsylvania, he earned both his AB and Master's degrees at the University of Pittsburgh, and has completed most of the requirements for his doctorate. He contributes articles to publications in his field and expects to have a book published shortly.

William S. Cannon, a native of Whitney, and Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Wofford, comes to PC as a mathematics instructor. He has just completed two years of service in the U. S. Army at Fort Benning, Ga., and Fort Chaffee, Ark. He is married to the former Miss Jerry Corbett, and they have twin sons 18 months old.

The head basketball coach for the 1957-58 season is Courts Redford, who comes to PC from Atlanta, Ga. He served as assistant under Coach Jones at Decatur High for two seasons before he moved up as coach at O'Keefe High School in Atlanta three years ago. He is also serving as assistant football caach. Married, Mr. Redford has two sons. A much sought after Georgia athlete and high school All-Southerner, Redford starred as a Georgia freshman quarterback before injuring his knee. He completed his education ,after interruption, at Georgia State in 1955.

The job of assistant professor of economics will be filled by Edwin K. Clickner. He has a special knowledge of the insurance field, having served in various capacities with three of the nation's largest companies for the past thirty years. Clickner received both his BS and MA degrees from the American University and has completed most

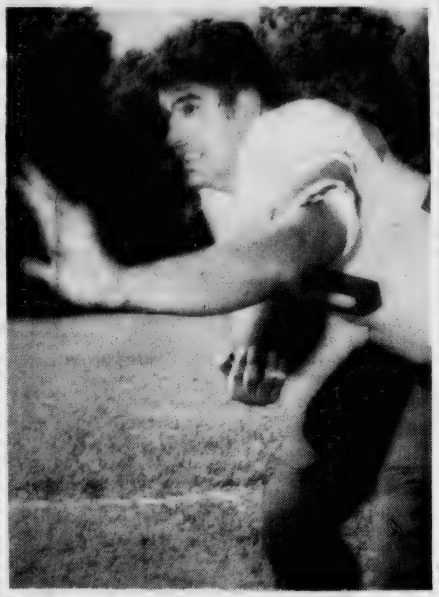
Improvements Made On PC Dormitories

Many decided improvements have been made on the campus since June of this year.

Neville Hall had its face lifted with new paint, floors, and stairs. Residents of Smyth may have noticed the reconditioned plumbing and bathroom fixtures along with the fresh paint.

Spencer dwellers haven't been forgotten as new wardrobes, desks, and chests-of-drawers have been placed in certain rooms with the idea that all old furniture will be replaced by the same type in the future.

The grounds are being made more attractive with the addition of shrubs and grass.



It is hoped that all of these new improvements, which are being made for our convenience and comfort, will be taken care of in the proper way. Burning cigarettes do not add to the looks of these new floors and scuffing around the rooms always results in broken pieces of furniture, marks on the walls, and huge holes in doors and windows.

If it is proved that these improvements can be taken care of in the proper manner, there will be more, and we will all profit greatly by it.

Not only is there improvement in evidence but construction on the new Student Union building has also begun. It will be completed some time late in April or early May.

To profit by all of this are the five hundred and twenty students who enrolled this semester, of whom one hundred and sixty-one are freshmen and transfer students.

Last Weeks Star

Tony Benson, pictured above, was the big man in last week's opener against the Appalachian Mountaineers. Presbyterian was defeated, nevertheless, 20-7.

Work Underway on New Student Union Memorial

A low bid of $222,500 for Presbyterian College's proposed new memorial student center was submitted by W. E. Baker and Son, contractors, of Whitmire.

Work on the structure, which will serve as a memorial to PC alumni killed in World War II and the Korean War, got underway August 1. It is scheduled to be completed within 300 calendar days, or by next June.

Nineteen contractors submitted bids on the student center. When they were opened and tabulated in the Presbyterian College Library Friday morning the proposals ranged from Baker's low bid to the high of $261,500 turned in by G. E. Moore Company, of Greenwood.

Several other construction firms made proposals that were close to the low bid. These included: Charles J. Craig Construction Company, of Columbia, $226,896; W. G. King and Sons, of Clinton, $229,000; C. Y. Thomason Company, of Greenwood, $230,777; Morris Construction Company, of Greenville, $233, 170; and Harper Builders Supply, of Williamston, $233,407.

The building committee of the Presbyterian College board of trustees met on Friday afternoon and formally awarded the contract to W. E. Baker and Son. Committee members meeting with President Marshall W. Brown at this time were: Chairman Robert M. Vance, P. S. Bailey, and J. F. Jacobs, Sr., all of Clinton; and James C. Todd, Sr., of Laurens.

The Baker company indicated that T. C. Johnson would handle the heating and plumbing work on the new building and Utility Sales, of Greer, the electrical wiring.

Student center plans by Six Associates, of Asheville, N. C., call for a two-story building of colonial Georgian design with portico and four limestone columns in keeping with the architectural theme of the campus. It will be erected next to recently completed Bailey Hall dormitory and directly across the plaza from Spencer Dormitory.

The center will include on the first floor two large student lounges, a snack shop, post office, recreation room and book store, while the college guidance center, guest rooms and offices will be situated on the second floor.

Robert Helm, PC '57 Dies at Elberton, Ga.

Robert C. Helm, class of '57, passed away after a prolonged illness at the home of his parents in Elberton, Ga., Tuesday, Sept. 10.

Bob's influence was strongly felt throughout the Presbyterian College campus during his four years' stay which was interrupted several times due to his diminishing physical strength. But the group which felt his influence most was the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity which attained the high position of the best chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha in the nation this past year under Bob's presidential leadership.

Bob, who was an energetic worker in his Presbyterian Church, was a Dean's List student with history as his major subject. Upon graduation, Bob was selected to receive the Jones History Award for the years' best history paper.

Not only was Bob's death felt by a small fraternity group, but by the student body, faculty, and administration because he had the wonderful and unusual ability of making close friends with people in all walks of life, both young and old.

THE BLUE STOCKING PRESENTS

Editorials : Features : Humor

Hi Ho, Gangerino!

A Tranquilizer . . . . . .

Welcome back. Are you tired of shaking hands? Are you tired of asking, "How was your summer?" and answering the same question? The answer to your problem is "Don't!"

Text and Sermon . . . . . .

Recently I attended a meeting with our leaders who discussed campus problems. The topic discussed most was the honor system and some very good ideas were brought up; perhaps the best idea, or at least the most popular put forth, was one that was published, in the form of a letter, by the Blue Stocking last year. John Knox, president of the Student Council, asked me to reprint it.

"Dear Editor,

"Let's tighten the honor code. Although assumed that PC is the military college of the Presbyterian Church, it would hardly be worthwhile to have a militia headed by the Barnetts, Lowmans, and Bennetts to protect the interests of young scholars and tuition-paying fathers; but maybe, just maybe, we could alleviate the situation by an intermediate action.

"The honor system on this campus evidences a great deal of work on the part of a few, but also at the same time a lackadaisical attitude by many others. Enough words have been said over the chow hall tables, dormitory bull sessions, and classroom lectures about this very same honor system until a touchy and conflicting subject now present sitself.

"I understand that our honor system derives its doctrines from those followed on the larger university and college campuses. So, Mr. Editor, I hereby propose to the Presbyterian College Student Government, in the form of a suggestion that we further follow the procedure of more established honor systems found in the same larger universities and colleges.

"Here is the proposal: That when in a classroom a definite awareness of cheating confronts a student, that student should say, "There is evidence of cheating in this classroom." And before anyone can be apprehended both during and after classes, this announcement must be stated prior to apprehension of the student, or students.

"I do not say this constitutes a definite solution, but is merely an intermediate action designed to give the cheater a chance to mend his ways. Such an intermediate action serves a dual purpose, for it takes the pressure from a virtuous and diligent student who might be blinded by his neighborly or brotherly prejudices and not have quite the desire or the intestinal fortitude to turn the guilty party in.

"I laboriously bring this plea to a close with a blanketed desire in my suggestion to smother the impostors who mask as "students" at PC.

—A Conflict-Torn Student"

This is a very good idea, but these are only words, and what it's going to take to help the situation is action.

Amen

Chin's Case of the Astonishing Wart

By TOM GOLDEN

The scene takes place at the residence of Alfred E. Newman. His wife, Clarice, had just been discovered with a knife in her throat, her head had been bludgeoned with a blunt object, and three bullet holes were found in her gall bladder.

At this precise moment the eminent Charlie Chin and his number one son had (just by chance) stopped in to take the census.

Chin enters, exclaiming, "Ah so, are very suspicious looking butler at door." Chin looks at body on floor, notes blood oozing from wounds. Chin suspects foul play. Chin whips out slide rule and ouija board, and makes a few offhand calculations, and speaks. "The murderer of this woman was six feet, three inches tall, weighs two hundred and seven pounds, is left handed, and his eyes are blue."

Number one son dashes into the room holding bloody left-handed monkey wrench. Chin throws it away saying, "Is irrelevant to case."

Chin calls in all members of the Newman household—the maid, the butler, the gardner, the chauffeur, Mr. Newman, and his three-year-old son, Lance.

Only one member of the household answers the description predicted by Chin, Lance, the three-year-old son. Chin questions Mr. Newman. "Mr. Newman, where were you at the time of your wife's death?"

"I don't know. Surely you don't suspect me."

"Everyone suspected. Are you nervous, Mr. Newman?"

"What, me worry?"

"Are pleasing to answer question. Are you nervous?"

"Noo!"

Chin steps to center of room and says, "Murderer is the gardner."

Mr. Newman steps forward and says, "Mr. Chin, how did you ever discover that the gardner committed the murder?"

"This you will never know. Now, you will please to pay fee of one thousand dollars. Thank you very much, Mr. Newman, and here are your green stamps."

Later in the evening, Number One son asks, "Gee, Pop, how did you find out that the gardner was the murderer?"

"Ah son, that was elementary, the gardner confessed."

Cold as a Well Digger's Donkey

By EX-CADET J. SUMMERS

The Anti-Artic safari was now well on its way through the tundra of northern Alaska. This safari was the brainstorm of a distinguished Army general who, after a messy party at the Officers Mess at Ft. Benning, had decided that the men fo his division needed conditioning in the case of a war in the equatorial zone. The training was to be intensive, and anti-subversive in nature. All American flags, for example, were only blue and white; and the training was intensive in that each man waited in line for six hours before each meal.

The equipment was very modern in design. All sleds had two runners and connecting rods of chrome-plated chrome. The General's sled was made of uranium ore. This was to show the men of his division that he was modern and knew all about ROWSID. The General's Aid was a major from South Carolina. His sled, not only out of necessity, but also because he was a Republican, was pulled by six pink elephants, all of which tooted their trunks to the tune of the National Anthem whenever the Major yelled "Mush!" This sexytet was usually off-key, however, as one of his beasts had a cold in his trunk.

The expedition, termed "Operation Hotspot," is taking place in a very peculiar area of Alaska. In the area, the snow is not snow at all, but actually frozen bits of water. (The main difference can be explained by reading Field Manual SNOW-1957B1.) The time of day is also deceiving because the sun never sets, but rather moves around tweny-four hours each day. This is by order of higher headquarters.

Many difficulties in supply were encountered by the good general's division. In this particular latitude the wind is severe, and the last twenty-seven copies of his requisition were lost. Of course, the supply sergeant, being very patriotic and conscientious, did not think it proper until al channels had their edition of the form.

Chief cook for the group, known as LVP to those on intimate terms with him, was used to this and prepared a dish he learned to contract in the states. It was very filling and lacked many of the dangerous chemicals found in most foods, such as: Niacin, iron, phosphorous, and vitamins B1 through B12. It was made with a base of potatoes and rice covered with a slab of whale blubber with peanut butter and saurkraut on top. The officers here demonstrated their desire to let the men have the best as they ate Sea-Rations.

The Major dispatched two of his top sergeants one afternoon to leave the base on a Recon patrol. These two fearless men, Sergeants Paddle and Day, left with brass bands playing, "I'll Be Down To Get You In An Igloo, Tammy." Later, about three hours from the camping area, these men spotted a tribe of Eskimos. Being basically well mannered and desiring a little wholesome fellowship, they sat down with them and chewed the blubber all afternoon.

Their report to the chief dispatcher of Military Reconn Sender Onners, read as follows: "Lost—one afternoon. Found—Large group of Pro-Subversive Nomadic peoples making ices of themselves while floating in Artic Ocean. Estimation of situation—Harmless, except when hostile."

One of the major objectives of this safari was to demonstrate to the men how much cold it was possible for them to take. Several recruits were asked to strip down to their BVD's while others kept on their anti-artic gear. Both groups, in a record time of thirty-seven minutes, were frozen solid. This proved that if you are caught with your woolens down, don't panic. The coffins for the deceased volunteers, model CFN-275991173-Disposable, were designed for the pigmy troops of Africa, so they were chipped into three foot sections and sent home. When they were packed you couldn't make heads or tails of them.

The trip is nearly complete now. As soon as the weather gets to 90 degrees, plans will be drawn up for their return to the states. All participants are guaranteed a three-months leave with pay if they are not single or married.

All in all it proved many things to the men and for the army. One being that the booze in the Officers' Club is bad business, and that Army efficiency is still the best in the world.

Hose and Tiger Gridiron Match A Historical Event

By ROW FOWLER

Tomorrow at 2:00 P. M., the Presbyterian Blue Hose and the Clemson Tigers will tangle on the gridiron for the thirty-ninth time. In the past thirty-eight games, PC has won three and tied four. In these games PC has amassed a total of 139 points as compared with Clemson's 1,081 points.

In 1920 PC tied Clemson 7-7 under Coach Walter Johnson; then, in 1925 under Coach Johnson, the Blue Hose beat the Tigers 14-9. The following year PC repeated itself by beating Clemson again 14-0. The very next year the two teams fought to a 0-0 deadlock.

In 1931, the Blue Hose again tied the Tigers 0-0. Two years later, PC and Clemson fought to another tie. The score was 6-6. From 1933 to 1943 Presbyterian lost every game to Clemson. Then in 1943 the Blue Hose pulled through and beat the Tigers of Clemson 13-12.

Since 1943 Presbyterian has not won or tied a game with Clemson. In 1914 under Coach B. Theller, the Blue Hose tied the Clemson freshmen 6-6. The next year under Coach Walter Johnson, PC beat the freshmen from Clemson 13-7. Saturday's game marks the twenty-eighth consecutive time that PC has been the opening day opponent for Coach Howard's Bengals.

PC, as usual, will be the decided underdog. The Hosemen, hoping to get off to a winning start for a change, suffered their first loss instead to Appalachian last Saturday by the score of 20-7. However, that is all in the past, and Coach Frank Jones and his assistants have had another week in order to eliminate the costly errors that hurt them so much in their initial start.

For the last two years PC has played fine ball against the more powerful Tigers. The games have been much closer than the scores have shown, as indicated by the rushing and passing yardage gained by the Blue Hose in the two contests. Danny Bridges and Bob Waters, provided they can shake the injuries that have plagued them thus far this season, may fill the air with passes Saturday afternoon. Both of these quarterbacks are potentially fine passers. Of course the Decatur, Ga., bull, Ken Webb, will again be trying to ram the stout line of the Tigers. That Clemson respects Webb is shown by the fact that they picked him for their 1955 All-Oponent Team.

It is true that Presbyterian has had little time in order to become accustomed to Coach Jones' style of play, but it should also be remembered that Clemson is a young team and that it, too, has its green spots. Many of the vital positions on Frank Howard's first two units are filled by sophomores, and sophomores are sometimes liable to error, even when they have the high potential of Johnnie Mac Golf and Harvey White, Clemson's two fine sophomore quarterbacks. The tackle position is also filled with relatively inexperienced men.

PC has been working hard all week in order to get ready for Clemson. The team is in pretty good shape with the possible exception of tackle "Bull" Parrish and guard underdog. The Hosemen, hoping to of these men will be able to see action.

Again the odds are overwhelmingly in favor of Clemson to win, but a long shot may accidentally pay off. Afetr all, David did defeat Goliath, and the "slingshot" arms of Bridges and Waters, along with the running of Webb, Benson, Lucas, and Mavromat, should make the game highly interesting at any rate.

Hungry for Tiger Meat

Coach Jones, Dr. Brown, and line coach Ehrhardt are pictured above. Saturday Coach Jones will lead his Blue Hose gridiron team against the Clemson Tigers for the first time. If his men are able to defeat Clemson, it will be Presbyterian's first victory over them since 1943. Last year Clemson defeated Presbyterian 27-7 in a closer game than the score indicated.

Run of the Hose

By BILL YEARICK

AN OLD, OLD STORY

On the 22nd of September, 1956, powerful Clemson took the field against the smaller forces of the Presbyterian College Blue Hose. Already picked as a pre-season favorite to win the majority of her games and even finish high in the tough Atlantic Coast Conference, Clemson appeared nervous and worried as they went through pre-game workouts. This same anxiety seemed to plague the Tigers as the game progressed in its early minutes.

The final score indicates quite apparently that the Tigers from Tigertown overcame these pre-game jitters to come out on the long end of a 28 to 7 score.

The next day the papers raved and splashed how mighty Clemson rolled on to another victory in their season's opener. A closer examination reveals that between both teams' box scores a statistical evenness was to be found and for the greater part of the game the action took place between the 30-yard lines.

A MATTER OF BREAKS

This all points up to the fact that often the game is decided on the breaks made by each team and the action that is taken following this opportunity. This could easily be the year for the Hose to come out on the long end of the score.

The PC line averages 214 pounds from end to end. Their backs, although not as hefty as others, possess great speed with each man capable of breaking away for the long gain at any point of the game. The passers have better than average accuracy and can hit from any part of the field. Most of all the new ciach is enthusiastic, energetic and competent. He can handle his men to the extent that soon they will mold into a winning team. This is evidenced in the fact that while at Decatur High he established a precedent for winning. The question remains how soon can the Hose resume their winning ways of 1954.

Therefore it is not too illogical to assume that this is the year for the Hose to twist the Tiger's tail. The team and coaches face this contest with renewed optimism and confidence that they can defeat Clemson. They are not afraid of the so-called mighty Tigers of Clemson for the Hose know that their opponents put their pants on the same way—one leg at a time.

CAGE NEWS

The 1957 basketeers have already started practice for their opening game in late November. The Hose begin the season without All-Staters Bruce and Dave Thompson who were lost via the graduation route. Starting lettermen who have returned include guards Ken Caswell, Bill Sullivan, and Danny Bridges, along with forwards Ralph Chambers and Clayton Adams. Other returnees are Wyatt Aiken, Sonny Wells, Bob Stone, and Frank Barnes.

A NEW SPLASH

Several members of the student body have expressed a desire for an inter-collegiate swimming team. The main asset which could help promote this idea into a reality is the availability of a regulation swimming pool. This effort could be molded into another achievement for PC in state, and even Southern, competition.

BORROWING AN IDEA

Approximately two years ago the sports editor for the Blue Stocking suggested floodlights for the tennis courts since so much interest was displayed in this sport. This would enable those who could not secure a court in the afternoon a chance to play at night.

As far as this reporter knows nothing was done about this idea and like so many others was quickly forgotten. Perhaps if a little more active interest was shown the lights may be secured.

SCA Intramural Launches Season

Intramural athletics got underway Wednesday afternoon as the Kappa Alpha Fraternity defeated Alpha Sigma Phi in a 13-6 thriller.

Eight teams have entered the 1957 competition in what should be an exciting round of intramural football. The remaining teams are: Pros, All-Stars, Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Nu, Pi Kappa Phi and, Theta Chi. The schedule for all games is posted in the dining room.

Appalachian Beats Blue Hose 20-7

The Blue Hose of Presbyterian College got off to a disappointing start in losing its initial game to Appalachian by the score of 20-7.

Coach Frank Jones, of Decatur, Ga., in his first start as a college head mentor, watched his charges score in the opening five minutes of play. From this point on, however, a lack of time for preparation began to show through, and the Hosemen constantly fumbled and jumped offsides at crucial moments in the game. Coach Jones had less than two weeks in order to orient the PC team in his method of playing football.

Ken Webb scored the only PC touchdown when he crashed through the Appalachian line from four yards out early in the game. Danny Bridges converted after the touchdown. The score climaxed a 65-yard drive sparked by a 27-yard pass from quarterback Bob Waters to halfback Tony Benson, after which Benson romped for 11 more yards to set up the score.

Benson proved himself a nemesis to the Appalachian eleven all night as he picked up 68 yards in 12 carries. The bright spots in the defeat were quarterback Bob Waters, who displayed a promising passing arm, and the fine end play of Ted Leahy, and Ken Gardner, of Greenville, with several good kicks, may have nailed down the all-important job of punting for the Blue Hose.

Tennis Team Shines During Summer Matches Over U. S.

Five of six last year's outstanding tennis team returned to PC this fall after a busy summer of playing circuits, tournaments and long hours of practice.

John Brownlow, of Euclid, Ohio, engaged himself into tough competition at a Chattanooga, Tenn., tournament where he breezed through Jose Ochoa, a leading Mexican player, and UCLA star, Norman Perry, in the first two rounds. He was very impressive with his win over Ormando Vierra in a tight quarter final match. Maxwell Brown, a leading U. S. singles player, proved too much for Brownlow in the semi-finals.

In the latter part of July, the No. One PC star moved along with the Grass Court circuit to South Hampton, Long Island, defeating Malcolm Anderson in an interesting three-set match. The National Men's Tournament pitted Brownlow against top-ranked Ashley Cooper, losing 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Brownlow and sophomore Harry Hoffman from Philadelphia, teamed victoriously in several doubles matches before falling to Mike Green and Mike Franks in four close sets at the National Doubles in Boston.

In the Narbeth section of Philadelphia, Hoffman narrowly trimmed teammate Jim Shakespeare in three sets. Then, at the National Father-Son Doubles in Boston, Harry and his father proved best in the field, inucluding a defeat of the No. One Princeton player in the finals.

Down at Fort Benning, Ga., Guice Potter won the Summer Camp ROTC Tournament in All-PS final. He defeated teammate Bill Roberts for first place.

Jim Shakespeare was quite busy running a drive-in restaurant in New Jersey plus playing a little tennis occasionally. In a tournament down at Montgomery, Ala., he decisioned University of Miami's John Capell, 6-2, 6-2. At Philadelphia in July, he beat Harry Hoffman, Sr., in the semis and Leif Beck, No. One player at Duke in the finals, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3. Jim found Australian star Bob Howe too tough in the Nationals, falling in the first round.

Jim Peck spent the summer in and around Clinton playing his tennis. He won a tournament staged here in town, went to the semis in a Greenville tourney before losing out to former teammate Harvey Jackson, and was defeated by one of Presbyterian's greatest all-time players, Allen Morris, in a Charlotte tournament.

PC will count heavily on young Bobby Daniel, a freshman from Belton, who shows a great deal of promise for the future.

Lamp of Jerusalem

successor to the throne of Judea. Ahaziah's mother, Athaliah, is the daughter of Jezebel. A true daughter, Athaliah is a worshiper of Baal and holds a deadly grasp on Ahaziah and on Judea. She is determined to turn Judea into a pagan nation.

A worshiper of Jehovah, Zibia finds herself playing an important part in the salvation of Judea from Heathenism.

Miss Myrant, a resident of Charleston, told this reporter, "I think Athaliah's reign is one of the most dramatic and terrible things in the Bible." She adds, "Athalia was far more evil than her mother, Jezebel, yet Jezebel's name stands for wickedness and few know of Ataliah."

The book is filled with colorful, lifeful character. Love, intrigue, and history combine to make enjoyable, yet constructive reading.

This fast-moving story is terse and well researched. Lamp in Jerusalem should certainly shine as a light on most literary lists this fall.

Plan For First Floor

These are the plans for the first floor of the new Student Union Building which is under construction. Prominent features are the recreation room, the post office, book store, snack shop, faculty and student lounges, and a terrace.

Inside Student Union Building is Convenient

By next June, Presbyterian College students will have a convenient new quarter-million-dollar student center as their focal point of extra-curricular activities.

It is being erected now as a memorial to those youth who worked and played upon the campus in past years and then went out to give their lives in service in World War II and in the Korean War. Alumni have looked forward to the fulfillment of this dream for more than a decade.

The Memorial Student Center is being built next to recently completed Bailey Hall dormitory and directly across the plaza from Spencer dormitory. Plans show a two-story structure of colonial Georgian design with portico and four limestone columns in keeping with the architectural theme of the campus.

It will be 120 feet long and 96 feet wide on the right side, which includes a wing extending to the rear within a few feet of the number one tennis court backstop; 56 feet wide on the left side, with a 30x56-foot terrace adjacent to the rear wing and overlooking the number two and three courts.

On the first floor will be situated: two large student lounges, a snack shop (with soda bar, booths and tables), a recreation room, post office, book store, faculty lounge and ladies lounge. The second floor will include: the college guidance center, three guest rooms with private baths, two large meeting rooms, a sound-proof music room for band and glee club practice, a day students room and seven offices. A self-service laundry, heating and storage facilities will be located in the basement. Plans call for a total of nine bathrooms to be included in the building.

The entire first floor will be of terrazio tile on marble base, with the exception of Carolina bluestone used for the portico and terrace. Asphalt tile on rubber base will be used throughout the second floor, and all ceilings will be of acoustical materials.

The same combination which provided such satisfactory results in the construction of Bailey Hall again is at work on the student center. Plans were drawn by Six Associates architects, of Asheville, N. C., and the contractor is W. E. Baker and son, of Whitmire. Baker's bid of $222,500 was lowest among the proposals submitted by 19 contractors. The high bid was $261,500.

Construction on the student center began on July 26 and is scheduled to be completed within 300 consecutive calendar days. Ten large oaks fell before the bulldozer in preparation for laying the foundation, and the outdoor chapel had to be eliminated.

The building presently used as a student center—known now as the SCA building, formerly called the 'Y' and once used as the president's home—will be left standing until the new structure is completed. It is situated so that only the porch extending along the right side had to be removed to make room for the Memorial Student Center.

Dates Set for Dances And Fraternity Socials

Dates have been set by the Inter-Fraternity Council for fraternity open socials and for both dances to be held this semester. President of the IFC, Gordon Livingston, also announced that orchestras have been secured for the dances.

Pope Becomes Director Of PC Guidance Center

L. B. Pope will take over as the new director of the Presbyterian College Vocational Guidance Center.

Te replaces Dr. Clarence L. Thayer, who is taking over the guidance work at Davis-Elkins College after three years of outstanding service in this capacity at PC. Dr. Thayer's move to West Virginia will enable him to be near his elderly mother in Pennsylvania.

In coming to PC, Pope assumes direction of the guidance center which is under the joint sponsorship of the college and the Synod of South Carolina. His primary responsibility will be in testing and counseling Presbyterian high school young people of the state, as well as work with the college students. He also will teach some classes as a member of the Presbyterian College faculty.

Pope has had several years of experience as a high school counsellor, and he is now working on his doctorate in guidance at the University of North Carolina.

English VIP Makes IRC Chapel Speech

The International Relations Club, an organization designed to keep the members informed on world affairs and international events, sponsored Chapel exercsies Monday, September 23. At the meeting before the student body, John Childers, President of the IRC, called the meeting to order, and John Summers, an IRC member, introduced his English cousin, Dr. John Reckless.

Dr. Reckless, a native of Staffoshire, England, is presently in charge of an English Medical group in the Black Forest Region of German, and holds the rank of Major in the Royal British Army. Before serving in the Army, Dr. Reckless was very active in his university events. He was President of the Debating Society, and President of the Dramatics Club. He also served as President of the student body for fifteen months at Birmingham University located in Central England. During this time, he made some forty trips to the continent where he visited all the major continental centers of learning, including the Scandinavian countries.

He talked to the students about the student events at many of the universities in Europe, including

Million Mark Reached With Jubilee Campaign

Presbyterian College has received a second payment totaling $48,000 fromthe Ford Foundation bringing the campaign total to $1,033,335.70.

This figure brings to $93,500 the amount given PC as part of the giant Ford Foundation grant to privately supported colleges and universities. It represents a $17,500 increase over the share tentatively designated for Presbyterian College when the program was originally announced in Decmeber, 1955.

Dr. Brown pointed out the funds have been distributed over a two-year period. He said PC had received its first check for $45,000 from the Ford Foundation in July of last year, and the final check completing the grant has just arrived.

In accordance with the wishes of the Foundation, the funds will be used as an endowment to increase faculty salaries.

Altogether, the Ford Foundation desginated $260,000,000 for the 615 private, regionally accredited four-year colleges and universities. An amount of almost similar proportion was granted private hospitals and medical schools of the nation.

President Brown, in making his announcement, summed up his feelings in these words:

"I am especially pleased that Presbyterian College's total grant amounted to $93,500 instead of $76,500 as originally designated. Not only are these funds of great assistance in our development, but I feel the grant will stimulate interest among potential donors, especially industrialists looking for ways of making charitable eleemosynary contributions."

Al McKie, from Alexandria, Va., will serve as fraternity editor, while John Summers from Charlotte, edits the military section of the PaC-SaC. Dick Wood of Greer, will handle the collection of snapshots from the students. The departmental assistants on the editorial staff are Pete Beckman, of Columbia; Alex Moorhead, of Anderson; and Scott Reed of Bath, N. Y. A New Slant on REW...

The Student Christian Association is in the midst of launching a new and almost radical plan in which a spiritual regeneration will be recognized on this campus. This plan is to take place during the annual Religious Emphasis Week in March and will feature many outstanding speakers in the southeastern United States.

The idea of the new plan has formulated from the desire that religion is taking a new trend along with everything else and instead of forcing the week's activity on the student, the topics will be presented and offered. The SCA expresses a hopeful desire that everyone will take an interest in the new program. Here is the tentative plan:

The new idea calls for the dismissal of all classes for the two-day period allotted the cabinet for the RE Week. The only class that will be held is Drill.

Fraternity competition will commence at the annual Monday night kick-off session and will continue until the closing discussion. By dismissing classes it is the desire of the Cabinet to present a new look to the RE Week. The speakers will consist of prominent men in various and sundry fields of specialists.

At the present time the plan states that there will be nine speakers who will have three discussion periods each day. The discussion period will last for one hour which will be followed by an hour break. This break will be followed by another hour of discussion. At two o'clock the final hour of discussion will take place.

Each student will be rotated so that he is exposed to every speaker. The topics have been chosen so that one of the many subjects will fit into the individual's interests.

It was also disclosed that an intensive indoctrination program will be launched around the early part of 1958. The Cabinet disclosed need of active student participation in its program and welcomes any suggestions for improvement.

Whole Lot of Shaking Going On!

by Ex-Student John Summers

The OD was delivering messages to the professors about a faculty meeting which was to be held Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock. I've always been curious as to what takes place at these afternoon brawls, so at four-fifty, I plugged in the batteries to my portable tape recorder and moved into the radio studio of the Radio Forum Room and began recording the proceedings so that Columbia could make an LP hifi record of this intellectual gathering.

Shortly before the meeting began, Doctors Gettys, Fraser, and Hay met in a rear corner of the room and started singing, "Whole Lot of Shakin' Goin' On!" Dr. Patte smiled approvingly, and waved his index finger as though conducting the trio. After the number, they began discussing the possibility of adding another word to the Holy Roller cult, but decided to forget it when they realized that EP would be chairman of the bored.

Meanwhile, Professor Baker was trying to persuade Dean Bellingrath to invest his money in Baker industries. Bellingrath told him he would, but that he had lost everything the night before in the rear of Charles'.

Colonel Thackston marched into the room, saluted the portrait of George Washington, sang "My Country Tis of Thee," and then sat down at attention waiting for the session to commence. The Bushman and Professor Toole were still arguing about whether Shakespeare was a Presbyterian or a Baptist when the sound of the gavel on Miss Burts' head was heard over the rear in the now well-packed classroom.

"Ouch!" screamed Miss Burts. "Shut up!" replied the remainder of the group in unison. Quickly, Mrs. Bob rushed over to Miss Burts and put a tourniquet around her throat to stop the flow of blood from her wounded head. Surely enough, the bleeding stopped, but so did the breathing. LV threw a glass of his famous grapefruit juice in her face, and she immediately started running around the walls of the room. "You gotta get it in you!" was the response of Dr. Fraser as his head spun around trying to follow her blurring image around and around.

Dr. Brown stood up, sitting down periodically as Miss Burts came by, and stated the purpose of the gathering. "We are gathered here this twenty-fifth day of September in the year of our Lord, 1957, to discuss the subject of our students' attitude towards learning here in this glorious institution located in the foothill region of South Carolina. Even though they can see the poison ivy covered traditional filled walls of the college, they seem to desire to sleep and romp more than to expand their mental facilities in accordance with our expectations. Presbyterian College, which as you all know, is a school designed to . . . . . ."

WHAM!!! He was knocked across the room into Miss Blakely's lap when he miscalculated the now retarding forward movement of Miss Burts' track effort. Dr. Whitelaw explained that her velocity in a fixed orbit was not unlike a celestial satellite, and he cursed severely as Dr. Brown had caused the phenomena to end.

Col. Thackston drilled up to the front of the room and took over. "Good afternoon, Gentlemen!" he called, but the response was very weak. He informed the mob that there was really no particular reason for the meeting, but since they were there, that they should discuss something. Prof. Glover bounded out of his chair and hopped up onto Dr. Jones' shoulder and pleaded with the good Colonel to discuss the problems of class cutting in all Spanish courses he taught. There was a unanimous groan heard echoing through the tiring throng, so he was pushed back in his seat and given an old issue of Playboy to soothe his nerves.

The profs for the militia detachment were playing gin rummy and singing, "Anchors Aweigh," but Col. Thackston called them to attention and informed them that if they did not stop singing the traitorous song, that he would make them stop playing their game. They bowed their heads in humiliation and took their seats. This was the last heard from them until some ten minutes later when someone called someone else a dirty gin rummy cheater-atter, and fifty-two sheets of plastic covered pieces of paper fluttered through the air.

After deciding on a date that they could not meet on for the next assembly, the group was dismissed by the now recovered Dr. Brown. On the way out, I couldn't help but overhear a few of the intellects revealing their thoughts on how well they had handled the faculty meeting, and that with so much accomplished, that this would certainly be a profitable term for their students.

Freshmen Heads Will Roll

by Jimmy Eason

For a feature this week it was decided that we might present the views of a freshman regarding the finer points of a subject very real to him—rat season. It is surprisingly hard to get first-hand material, for upon being queried on this, the new boys tend to clam up before juniors, to cringe and he when it is asked by sophomores, and actually run in sheer terror upon its being mentioned by a senior. (All of whom look like freshman control men to the frosh.) What was needed was an inside source, and getting a rat for the job is a rather common idea, I can tell you! This writer, the rat in question, intends to describe our impression by citing the examples of a few friends of mine.

Let us first picture the typical rat, imagine him a lanky, ridiculous-looking adolescent. Though he's changing fast he still has much high school in him, which is evidenced by his lack of reserve, his careful attention to the manner of the upperclassmen, and even by his high school habits of dress; he rolls up the sleeves of his T-shirt—How disgusting!

Last year our rat was, in the huge world of high school, just about the ultimate in big men; he was a high school senior. With all the humbling I've undergone, my own senior year experiences still have some of their ego-boosting lustre. But, I can comfort all with the testimonial that such notions are fast disappearing. (And ti's a good thing!) An inflated ego never helped anyone succeed, and I'm sure nothing wins fewer friends, except maybe BO or liking Ike. It is my personal belief that the rat season idea is essentially quite beneficial in the role of head shrinking as well as various other ways. It remains to be seen how the freshmen like being benefited.

Few of us are really ecstatic over such things as a "dying cockroach," a brisk run around the plaza, or the shoe polish under our nails, so I wasted no time polling the question, "What is your favorite part of being a miserable rat?" Instead I refer to a much more reasonable poll taken by Mr. Tom Golden. Here the friends I mentioned express further our views of rat season:

Don Dunlap: "I like it."

Chuck Clontz: 'I hate to shine shoes, but my specialty is ginning."

Hardy Ledbetter: 'I refuse to answer on the grounds that it may tend to incriminate me."

Jim Eason: "I only regret that I have but one life to give for my upperclassmen."

Chuck Alliford: 'No comment."

Rod Williams: "I love it."

Ronald Boston: "Bowing to the silly mailbox."

Ralph Dunhan: "I hate to gin."

Don Girvan: 'I will hate to have to take baths on my own accord after rat season is over."

Donald Brown: "Habla usted Espanol?"

Dick Shawn: "Please no! I ain't done nothing."

Bil Wilkes: "I hate to shine brass at 12:00 at night."

Ben Vincent: "Running errands for upperclassmen."

Movie Review . . .

Face In The Crowd

A Face In the Crowd is directed by Ella Kazan and stars the boy with the orange, Andy Griffin. It attacks the gullability of the American people and the shallowness of our heroes.

Andy Griffin is a homespun philosopher whose talent is discovered by a small radio station. He is promoted to a Memphis television station, as Elvis Presley was, and rises to national fame.

America is the land of opportunity, and so Griffin, a loiterer, drunkard, and fornicator, becomes the power of the people through television, magazines, movies, and politics. His reply to the fame is "I'm just a country boy."

This is a movie full of drama, comedy, and nausea. Andy Griffin, backed by a cast of common American people (most of whom are not actors), does very well in his first serious role.

Run of the Hose

By BILL YEARICK

A MATTER OF PRINCIPLES

Oddly enough after the Blue Hose suffered such a humiliating defeat at the hands of the Tigers of Clemson, some sort of psychological victory was attained in the respect that the 39th annual meeting between Presbyterian and Clemson marked the last time these two teams would clash during the immediate future. Always in the past the Hosemen have optimistically journeyed over to Tiger Town only to be outmanned and usually outscored. The journey home for the most part was nothing more than a long trip.

This was no doubt discouraging to a team that had the potential to win against schools of their own caliber. In some cases the attitude could be nothing but that of a defeatist one. And besides coming out of the game with a warped mind, the team more often than not was badly beaten and bruised and unable to reach a peak before the next week's game.

THE ROOT OF ALL EVIL

The big game was traditionally a money game ,with PC hardly getting compensated for their efforts. Now with the worst behind them, the Hose will no doubt prove much stronger in their season's opener. Laurels should go to coaches and directors who have done away with the annual vice with Clemson.

CAMPUS WELCOMES NEW HONORARY

A new chapter of the national athletic fraternity, Sigma Delta Psi, is soon to be chartered on the Presbyterian College campus. This organization, founded in 1912, has the purpose of achieving the mental, physical, and moral aspects in athletics by the college student. At the present time there are 107 chapters in the United States, Hawaii, Alaska, South America ,and Mexico, with nearby chapters chartered at Wofford, Furman, and Davidson.

Membership is achieved by successfully completing 15 events as required by the organization's national constitution. All college students are elgiible as potential candidates for membership.

The member chapters subjects their ten best men's performances into national competition to determine the chapter that has achieved the sperior standards. A plaque of national recognition is given to the winner. Having attained membership each individual is given a shingle and a Sigma Delta Psi key.

THIN CLADS WORKOUT

The 1958 track team, under the guidance of coach Lonnie McMillian, has already started their initial workouts. Cross country meets have been tentatvely set with Davidson and Furman in the near future. A large turnout of freshmen has indicated strong interest in this sport.

GOLF TEAM MEETS

Recently the Presbyterian linksters met to determine the aspects of the ensuing season. From a very early pre-season poll, it looks as though the Hose will be very strong against statewide competition. Returnees number four and each is capable of shooting under 75—a score which if proved consistent could cop state honors. Those returning for another season include Bob Moody, Al Copelan, Mitch Mavromat, and Trotti Riley. Also added to the squad after a season of ineligibility are Larry Ford and Ronald Wright. Newcomers Harry and Hexie McDonnold, from Asheville, N. C., and Sonny Ball, of Macon, Ga., will add necessary strength to the team. This strong number shows a great deal of depth and provides for an optimistic season.

Gridiron Rats

These are the freshmen additions to the Presbyterian College 1957 football squad. Several have shown themselves to be of value in the past two games, and all will be counted on heavily to add strength to the Hose for the rest of the season.

Twenty-one Freshmen are Counted On Heavily to Provide Strenth

by Buddy Mullis

Twenty-one freshmen hopefuls from six states converged on the PC campus to compete for positions on the 1957 Blue Hose varsity.

Head coach Frank Jones, almost as new as the freshmen at PC, and his assistants, Clyde Ehrhardt and Courts Redford, are counting heavily on this group to provide valuable bench strength. If they can find among this group a few key freshmen capable of varsity assignments, then the PC gridiron outlook will be greatly improved.

One of the four freshmen guards being counted on to provide reserve strength for the varsity is Don Bridges, from Decatur, Ga. His ability to react quickly and handle himself well, achieved All-State, and All-Greater-Atlanta selections in high school.

Bruce Barnes, Concord, N. C., high school fullback, has been converted to guard and saw considerable action as a reserve. Another switch has placed quarterback Bobby Jones, a Jacksonville, Fla., boy, at the guard spot. Bobby has shown in practice that he is a capable defensive player. Ken Nix, a hustler from Atlanta, round out the freshmen guards.

Freshman tackle Eddie Anderson, of Augusta, suffered an early September injury, but is now back and pushing the more experienced Blue Hose tackles.

"Ledbetter shows promise," Jones says of the frosh tackle, of Ridgeland. He played a great deal against Clemson last week, and showed up with several good line plays for the Hose. With the strategic tackle position in the poor shape it's in right now, much of the load will fall on the new boys.

Ah the all-important quarterback slot, Bob Waters, of Sylvania, Ga., who transferred to PC last February after Stetson dropped foothball, has stepped right in to take over the number one spot. He started both the Appalachian and Clemson games. Behind him is Danny Bridges, fro mValdese, N. C., an unusually well coordinated athlete and excellent field general.

Also included in the group is Bill Cox, from Thomaston, Ga., called one of the finest prep passers in Georgia three years ago, but military service without football has taken quite a bit off his promising ability.

There's also a fine prospect who joined the quarterbacks just this week. He's Dusty Mills, who directed LaGrange to a Georgia State Championship last year. Dusty is a little bitty back, but can capably carry out assignments and should help the Hose with his passing.

Four are halfback candidates. Billy White, of Seneca, isn't a stranger in the Hose camp at all. He played for PC back in '52 under Coach Lonnie McMillian. He should help especially with his open field running and the ability to get extra yardage when hit. Don Kemp, Alex Jones, and Billy Benton should help once they get the needed experience.

Former Clinton High star, Billy Sease, is an able replacement at the fullback position. Also frosh Alex DuBose, of Oswego, proves to be a hard runner, but lacks seasoning.

The freshman team takes on Gordon Military Academy down in Barnesville, Ga., this Friday night.

These are the freshmen trying to make the Blue Hose varsity:

Ends—Hay Choyce, Decatur, Ga.; Herman Dunn, Andrews; Steve Wilson, Baton Rouge, La.; James Kolb, Sumter; Charles Howard, Darlington.

Tackles—Hardy Ledbetter, Ridgeland; Eddie Anderson, Augusta, Ga.

Guards — Don Bridges, Decatur, Ga.; Bruce Barnes, Concord, N. C.; Ken Nix, Atlanta, Ga.; Bobby Jones, Jacksonville, Fla.

Center — Robert Carter, Atlanta, Ga.

Quarterbacks—Bil Cox, Thomaston, Ga.; Pat Malone, Atlanta, Ga.; Don Denning, Sandersville, Ga.; Dusty Mills, LaGrange, Ga.

Halfbacks — Alex Jones, Atlanta, Ga.; Billy White, Seneca; Don Kemp, Charleston; Billy Benton. Fullbacks—Alex DuBose, Oswego; Billy Sease, Clinton.

Second Round Added To IM Football Tussle

The SCA intramural football competition is to go into a second round at the completion of the regularly scheduled first round. In the past, the teams have played each other only once, but due to the increased interest shown by all teams, an additional round has been added.

Volleyball also launched its season with the KA's taking a victory from the Theta Chi's.

In the past volleyball has been played during the spring months, but because of the heavy schedule of events during this time made it necessary to alleviate the situation somewhat by scheduling volleyball at this time.

Hose Attack Lenoir-Rhyne After A Tremendous Defeat by Clemson

by Roy Fowler

Saturday afternoon, September 21, 1957, was a miserable day in the annals of Presbyterian College football. After the smoke had cleared away, Clemson walked off the field with a 66 to 0 victory. It has been a long time since PC has suffered such a tremendous beating. The only consolation is the fact that this will be the last time that PC will meet Clemson in the traditional opener. Next year Clemson will open with Virginia, while PC will undoubtedly be meeting someone closer to its size.

The big Presbyterian line looked like a huge sieve, as orange-shirted Clemson backs constantly dashed through and around it for long gains. On the other hand, the PC offense lagged, stalled, and died because of costly fumbles. The only real action was displayed by Rod Miller and his cheerleaders. The score in itself tells the story—66 to 0.

This weekend in Rock Hill PC meets another difficult foe in Lenoir-Rhyne. However, this nothing new for the Blue Hose, as they face one of their toughest schedules in years. Every Saturday will be rough. One optimistic note lies in the fact that PC struck bottom against the Tigers, and they must do better against Lenoir-Rhyne whether they win or lose.

Lenoir-Rhyne's nineteen - game winning streak was shattered last Saturday by Wofford by the score of 13 to 6. So, naturally, they will be out for blood this weekend in Rock Hill. The North Carolina squad possesses a relatively light line, the heaviest man weighing 202 pounds, but all of them are extremely fast and hard tacklers. The Bears run from the now seldom seen but still powerful single wing. The man to watch in this formation is fullback Howard Bullard.

Coach Frank Jones is a very disappointed man. Perhaps he did not expect to see the Hose win against Clemson, but neither did he expect to see them lose in such a fashion.

A boost in the team spirit and morale could mean a great deal of difference in the game with Lenoir-Rhyne. A little more confidence would also be helpful in a possible upset of the rugged Bears. Potentially PC is a better team than it has shown thus far. Ken Webb has yet to have a big game. Saturday could be it. Bob Waters, who was knocked out of the game early against Clemson, could be a valuable aid if he is able to see more action against Lenoir-Rhyne. Presbyterian may finally begin to function as a unit in the game Saturday.

Toby Hunter Chosen As PC Rifle Team Captain

Toby Hunter was chosen captain of the rifle team at their annual supper at Sgt. Knight's home. The rifle men are looking ferward to a very successful season, with five returning—lettermen. They are: Toby Hunter, Charles Murphy, Mathew Smith, Dick Crowder, and Tom Golden. They are also fortunate in having a number of new students who are showing an interest in the team.

After the election of the team captain, future matches were discussed. The champion U. S. Army rifle team will come to the PC campus for instructional purposes, after firing a shoulder match with the Presbyterian rifle team.

Through the Years the Campus Has Grown

by Sonny Embry

As of late much attention has been focused by the student body to the construction of the new Student Union Building. At the completion of the building, the college plans to tear down the wooden SCA building which has served as a landmark on our campus for over fifty years has a colorful and interesting history, reflecting the past as well as the present progress of our campus.

Just after the turn of the century, the Old Presbyterian Church, a frame building, was torn down to be replaced by the present stone structure. The worth of the materials in the old church was realized, and the College purchased them for use in the construction of a Presdient's home for the College—the building known to us now as the Student Christian Association Building. Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Neville, the grandparents of Mrs. John Glover, were the first to live in the new building.

These were busy years for the College. In 1907, $99,500 was raised for the erection of an Administration Building (Neville Hall) and a smaller amount for a dormitory to be named Alumni Hall. Neville was the first building of any size in this area to be wired for electricity in its building. The office presently used by the Bible Department, was then the Presidents' office; that used now by the History Department was the Business Office.

In 1908, Judd Dining hall was constructed. Pictures of the building show a strong contrast with the present building, since an addition on the north side was added later. The meals were served family style on long oil-clothed tables surrounded by high ladder-back chairs. By the time all the tables were set, the food was often cold.

Laurens Hall soon followed, heated by coal stoves in each room until it was renovated and rebuilt in 1954. In 1912 Spencer Hall was completed, followed by Jacobs Science Hall in 1913, named after the founder of the college, who passed away four years later. The library was located on the first floor of the latter. Mr. Baker now occupies an office formerly used as part of the stacks. At that time, the very valuable books of the South Carolina Collection were kept in a large fireproof vault in the basement of the building. This can still be seen in the military supply room.

The buildings were now all lighted by electricity, but the College provided no furniture for the rooms. In those days each student not only brought sheets to school with him, but his bed as well.

As years passed Leroy Springs Gymnasium, a swimming pool wing to the gymn, and Smyth Hall were built. Pictures of the campus in those days were very crude as compared to those of today. There were no paved roads then. For many years Nevill Hall rose from a barren plot, looking very much like the mansion pictured in "Giant." A large cornfield stood behind the SCA Building, and Mr. Taylor Martin's father, also a Math Professor at PC, owned a mule barn that stood on the site of our Administration Building.

One morning in 1929, Dr. John McSween, then president of the college, was approached by an old Negro riding bareback on a mule. He handed the bewildered president an envelope, the contents of which he knew not, and rode away. Enclosed in the envelope was the deed to a beautiful home adjacent to the campus which had been the pride of the Young family. This home was to replace our present SCA Building in the duties of housing the president. From 1904 to 1930, it had been known as "The White House of the Campus." Boys had posted sentries for years outside Spencer during certain rowdy nights to watch for a disturbed president to come racing across the plaza in an effort to quiet the noise. All this was coming to an end.

For a while the building housed the vice-president, but later it became the hub of the campus with the location of the canteen and postal boxes within. Until 1955, with the completion of Bailey Hall, students have lodged on its second floor beside the office of the Blue Stocking.

1942 and 1943 were also building years for the College. In 1942, the present Library and Administration Building were built, $25,000 of the money being donated by the City of Clinton on a plan tthe College would run it is a community as well as a college library. The school donated the land and books, and the Government $100,000. In 1943 Alumni Hall was remodeled, inside and out, into its present capacity as Doyle Infirmary.

Presently we can see many changes in our campus, too numerous to mention here. Future plans are also being made to make PC a bigger and better place.

Germany, Finland, and England. During the time he was President of the student body at his university, he made over one hundred and fifty after dinner talks.

After his tour of duty in the British Army, Dr. Reckless plans to return to America next year and study Psychiatry at Duke University.

Plans for future meetings are now being formulated by President Childers, and a date for the qualifying examination for new members to the organization will be released shortly.

Blue Key Plans To Make Wofford Visit

The Presbyterian College chapter of Blue Key National Honor Fraternity will travel to Spartanburg on October 3 to hold chapel exercises at Wofford College.

The program at Wofford wil consist of a devotional by Jim Barksdale, short talks by football co-captains Ken Webb and Bil Bowman, and a number of selections by the Presbyterian Robed Choir quartet. John Knox and Lyman Harris will be the main speakers.

The Presbyterian Blue Key Athletic Sportsmanship Award will be awarded to Wofford at the halftime ceremonies of the Presbyterian-Wofford football game on October 5. The presentation will be made by Jim Barksdale, President of Blue Key.

At the last meeting of Blue Key, Dr. Newton Jones, head of the history department, was selected as advisor. Projects for the coming year were discussed at this meeting. One of the proposed projects was the possibility of having a similar athletic Sportsmanship award with Newberry.

Class Officers Nominations Protested

The Blue Stocking
Distinguished for Its Progress
Vol. XXXV Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., October 4, 1957 NO. 3

Nominations Again on Monday

Lawrence Young protested the nominations for class officers which was held last Wednesday. The protest was accepted by the Student Council although it was felt that it was not based on legal technical grounds; therefore nominations will be held again on Monday, October 7, and elections will come on Wednesday, October 9, at the originally planned time.

The protest came from Young because, he claims, sufficient notice was not given to the Student Body; ballots of approved form should have been provided; the ballot box should have been in charge of at least one Student Councilman known as the election manager; there was illegal solicitation of votes at the ballot box.

The Student Council accepted the protest not on technical but on moral grounds. There was a slight discrepancy in the ballots which was the only technical case against the nominations. The ballot box was not in charge of a Student Councilman, but a student appointed by the president of the Student Body, John Knox; the Student Council considered, and still considers this appointment valid.

The protest was accepted by the council because of the first reason listed. That is, that the sufficient notice was not given to the student body. The Constitution does not require that previous notice be given, but it is felt that the constition is inadequate in this respect; therefore, not only did the Council accept the proposal, but also discussed revising the Constitution in the near future.

President Knox stated: "I feel that the Student Council is a well respected group of the student body, and it was voted by the council to make the protest valid. I'm for what the majority of the student body is for."

Nominations will be made to replace last year's senior officers, ene Butler, Monty Cook, Don Rickett, and Noble Collins. Officers of the Junior class last year were John Knox, Bill Yearick, Guy Haddix, and Blair Baldwin. Sophomore officers were Ron Isger, Bob Matthews, Maurice Copeland, and Herbie Entrekin. Representing the freshmen were Jack Taylor, John Brown, Sue Phillips, and Bob Stratton.

The Thornwell Jacobs Library Donated to PC

The library of the late Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, prominent educator, author and minister, has been presented to Presbyterian College as a gift from his five children.

Dr. Marshall W. Brown, president of PC, today announced the gift which includes an estimated 4,000 volumes, hundreds of pamphlets and personal papers of the Clinton native who was founder and president of Oglethorpe University.

President Brown pointed out that among those volumes are approximately 1,000 stock copies of several books published by Dr. Jacobs. The family has given to PC the copyrights on these books so the college may receive royalties accruing from them. He said the gross proceeds of all sales will be assigned to a special scholarship fund.

When Dr. Jacobs died at 79 on August 4, 1956, he still was receiving royalty payments on such poular novels as Red Lanterns on St. Michael's, When For the Truth, and Drums of Doomsday. Copies of these books now are available for purchase through Presbyterian College, along with The Diary of William Plumer Jacobs (the diary of his father which he had published) and Memorabilia (sketches of Clinton by Wiliam P. Jacobs).

The five children making the gift to Presbyterian College include: Thornwel Jacobs, Jr., and Dr. John Jacobs, both of Atlanta; H. Fred Lesh, Jr., of Whittier, Calif.; and Mrs. Olsen (Harriet) Field and Mrs. Herman (Maude) Koester, Jr., both of Weston, Mass.

President Brown, in accepting the gift, said that he was delighted to receive the library of so distinguished an alumnus of PC. He added:

"Dr. Jacobs had a very fine personal library, with special strength in philosophy and science. It is a real addition to our present materials. I am particularly grateful for this gift, because I hold the man in high regard as a friend as well as a scholar."

Dr. Thornwell Jacobs was the last surviving child of the Rev. William Plumer Jacobs, who founded both Presbyterian College and Thornwell Orphanage while serving as pastor of the Clinton First Presbyterian Church. He finished PC in 1894 and went on to become a minister, establish Westminster Magazine, found Oglethorpe University in Atlanta, and direct it for more than 30 years, originate the famed Crypt of Civilization, and write numerous volumes of prose and poetry.

Moorhead to Head Scabbard and Blade

Alex Moorhead, of Anderson, is to be Captain of Scabbard and Blade National Military Fraternity. Acting as First Lieutenant of the organization will be Bob Hill, while Bill Fulton is slated to be Second Lieutenant. First Sergeant is Guice Potter, and Chairman of the Military Ball Committee will be Bill Bowman.

K Co. 10 Regiment of Scabbard and Blade is located here at Presbyterian College. Its purpose is to promote interest in Military Activities and strive to improve the general standard of the Corps of Caets. Scabbard and Blade taps members once or twice a year at the discretion of the membership. Tapping is a formal invitation to those men of the Junior and Senior classes who best meet the standards of the organization. The membership is representative of the very best Cadet officers of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

The top project of the organization is the sponsorship of the Military Ball. This is one of the outstanding social events of the year for which an outstanding band is secured and the ROTC is spotlighted.

Plans are being made to send a delegate to the National Convention to be held in St. Louis, Mo., in November. Plans will be formulated for the coming year and the problems faced by the various companies will be discussed.

Members in addition to the officers of the organization include Melvin Little, Tommy Richards, Jim Newsome, and Bill Yearick.

Bush Set As Speaker At First IRC Program

Mr. Bush, associate professor of English at PC, will speak at the first meeting of the International Relations Club next Wednesday night, October 9, at 8 o'clock in the chapel.

Bush graduated with an AB degree from the University of Pittsburgh, did graduate work there and at the University of Indiana, and has just completed a two year's stay in England where he studied at the Shakespearean Institute at Stratford-on-Avon.

The topic under discussion at the IRC meeting will be "Shakespeare's England Today." Mr. Bush will also show colored slides taken during his English visit.

John Childers, president of the IRC stated that this will be an open meeting, so that all students interested in joining the organization may attend. The schedule of the entrance examinations will be announced at a later date.

PC Blue Key Presents Wofford Chapel Program

The Presbyterian College chapter of the Blue Key Honor Fraternity was received Thursday with great approval at the Wofford College chapel. Jim Barksdale started the program with a devotion followed by a few words by John Knox, president of PC's student body. The co-captains of the Blue Hose football

Cost of Attendance to be Raised At Beginning of Fall '58 Semester

Presbyterian College will increase its fees by $222 per year, effective next September, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

He said the soaring costs of operation in this inflationary period made it necessary for the institution to readjust its fee schedule, as all other schools have been forced to do in recent years.

The increase, which goes into effect with the start of the fall semester in September, 1958, will make the cost of one year at PC run $557.50 per semester or $1,115 annually.

President Brown pointed out that even after this adjustment Presbyterian College remains below the average of its denominational colleagues, Centre, Davidson, Hampden-Sidney and Southwestern. Other South Carolina colleges and universities also have been forced to make sizeable increases in recent years and contemplate additional hikes in the immediaet future.

In a letter to the parents of PC students, sent early today, President Brown wrote:

"This letter is to tell you of a change in College fees recently approved by our Board of Trustees for next year. The new rates will become effective with the fall semester beginning September 8, 1958.

"Under the revised schedule, the total expense for one semester will be $557.50 per student. This rate compares to the present charges of $446.50 each semester. The new schedule includes: tuition cost of $250; board, $190; room rent and service, $67.50; and a general fee of $50 which encompasses matriculation, student activities, medical and infirmary, library and all laboratory fees, and membership in the Student Christian Association.

"We sincerely regret the necessity for increasing fees, but I believe you can appreciate the position of Presbyterian College in this era of soaring costs. All institutions have been forced to make considerable increases in their rates during the past several years. Presbyterian College has made every effort to hold the line as much as possible. Records show that even after the increase PC remains below the average of its denominational colleagues Centre, Hampden-Sidney, Davidson, and Southwestern. Since 1940 one of the other South Carolina denominational colleges admiting men has increased its charges from 104% to 125%, and some additional increases are planned. During the same period Presbyterian College has increased its total charges only 82%, and its educational expenditures have already increased 122% per student.

"We all know that the cost of attending college represents, in some cases, considerable personal sacrifice. Because this matter of cost is of such immediaet interest, I want to take this means of sharing with you the reasons why this increase has become necesary. Several factors are involved.

"The first factor, of course, is easily understood becuase it is one which is encountered in every family budget. A college is not immune to rising costs any more than is any other family. There is no magic in college financing which can create dollars where none exist. It must pay its faculty, pay its utility bills and insurance, and maintain its buildings, just as does every other institution. These costs continue to rise more rapidly than our ability to meet them.

"Secondly, we face the moral as well as the economic necessity of making substantial improvements in the salaries we pay the faculty who teach our young people. Many of our teachers have consistently turned down more lucrative offers to remain at Presbyterian, but we cannot expect them to continue this sacrifice indefinitely. When necessary to make new appointmnets to the faculty, it is increasingly difficult to attract topflight personnel because of high salaries of the professions and industry. We are determined to correct this situation with a new faculty salary program which is necessary if we are to create and to maintain the kind of college you want us to be. Improvements in the salary program already have been installed and must be continued.

"Thirdly, the student's share of his instructional costs has declined steadily over the years, while other groups—the Presbyterian Synod of Georgia and South Carolina, alumni, private and corporate donors—have increased their support to PC. Even the new rates will not cover the cost of educating a student. Thus, every student in the College, in effect, even if he pays all fees, receives a substantial scholarship.

"Presbyterian College realizes that the fee increase will work a real hardship on many worthy students, and we request conferences early in the year with students whose educational program is threatened by the increased cost. Several congregations have indicated a willingness to establish scholarships to aid students of their own congregations. A number of educational loans are also available. At the same time, we urge students and families to be realistic as to their own ability to finance educational costs.

"It is my sincere hope that we may have your understanding of our problem and your cooperation in interpreting this problem to others."

Sincerely yours,
MARSHALL W. BROWN,
President

Wonderful Weekends

Now under the highways to neighboring towns and cities are wearing out. On weekends nausea settles down on the PC campus, and boredom saturates everything. It's a wonder that there aren't multitudes of suicides and droves of alcoholics on campus, because boredom is the root of all evil. Kirkegaard said that Adam was bored alone, so God created Eve, and then they were bored together.

We try the local theatres for relief, but they vomit in our faces by presenting movies with Sunset Carson, Chaztain, Bomish, Jane Smith, and other fabulous stars.

We can always sit down with a good book, but we still have the red-eye from reading weekly assignments.

So we sack out until we have dizzy spells and ulcerated backs.

WE faced the problem last year by having socials every night at the First Presbyterian Church, and inviting local girls. But the local boys became jealous, and the square dance had to cease.

Dances and weekend parties help, but there are still too many weekends with nothing doing. Several organizations have discussed presenting interesting films to college students; Saturday nights would be a good time to show them whether they are sponsored by organizations, administration, or who ever may be interested.

It is hard to say who the problem belongs to, but it definitely is a problem, and a solution would add to the enjoyment of our college.

New Moon Over My Shoulder

By JOHN SUMMERS

The rocket ship circled the moon for the last pass when the power plant knocked off, as the anti-magnetic field was broken by a series of low flying hockey pucks. The ship rolled over on its side and slowly started to settle on its pre-arranged descent to the surface of the uninhabited solar body. "Three hundred-two hundred—" came the voice over the loud speaker. "Two feet-one foot-ten feet-ten inches—touchdown," and the band played the last chorus of Victory March.

The side of the ship slid open, and the weary crew of scientists and test room repair men walked for the first time on the surface of the moon. The earth looked like a slowly spiraling globe over their heads, but no one looked at it because each of the men likes to look at pin-ups taken over Kenny Bond. The sod on the moon was loose; packed, and lacked dirt, but the crew of brave men pushed onward until they came to a great crater.

Dr. Behavard unfastened his can of rats and pulled out thirty or forty yards of nylon rope, and had some of the others lowered down into the crater. Suddenly, a great wave of moonlings rushed out of the hidden caves in the bottom and began shouting. A band of the moonmen played excerpts from Alfred Hitchcock's mystery movie mystery thriller, "The Greencheese Killer," which sounded like Moonglow in a Russian Monotone. All of the men were thrilled to be met by such a jubilant crowd, and they, too, climbed down the rope and shoup antennas with the ridiculous looking animals.

King Bari-Bari got up off the throne and shouted in Arabic numerals to the group, and they lifted their heads off the ground to salute their ruler. He was pleased by this, and threw trinkets of gold to them while scratching the knees of his left arm with his ear lobes. Dr. Wrektam, a geologist, walked to King Bari-Bari and talked trash with him about their lives in the service an old times at the local pub.

The rest of the crew were becoming bored with nothing to do but have these strange animals look at them as if they were from Earth or somewhere. They all sat down and began playing "Pollyanna goes to Memphis," when some of the moonmen osmosed over to them and asked by sign language if they could play, too. Being a friendly group, the crew said yes, and showed them the rules of the parlor game. These moonmen were very intelligent and beat everyone except Dr. Eaterling, who knews all about Parlor games.

Their king invited everyone into the cave for an opencave-kind of a dragon again, where you talk in the dark and fall into the room that is usually several fee below moon level. Here dancing moon-girl-men moved to the music of a special combo that consisted of two men beating on empty beer kegs, and another pulling hairs out of old coconut shells. These dances were apparently very entertaining to the moonmen, but to the earth people they looked like mooninon in sheeps clothing. (It was later found out that that is the difference. The females look like sheep, and produce lanolin plus.)

The party was drawing to a close, and the King announced that he wanted to get some sleep, as he played antenna ball for the Craterville Pirates. They were in the Moon Series and were fighting for the pennant against the Honeymooners the following morning. All of the crew climbed out of the pit and walked back to the space ship. They were quite upset, because back on earth they didn't have a pit to play in.

The atomic-powered engine blasted the ship off into the dark sky, and the flight to Earth lasted but three days. During this time, the men caught up on their diaries, and filed the pictures of the exotic sheep women into their copies of "Playboy" to be remembered later when they thought of their flight. As they neared the earth, a flash from the solar radio gave a press release from the Associated Moon Press, that in the ninth inning King Bari-Bari had knocked a cheesecake over the head of the captain of the other team, Prince Rickets, and had won the game, one to nothing. The crew lifted their hands over their heads and shouted joyfully, for they had made some good

Squaw Legend: Ruin of the Arrow

Anonymous (For Obvious Reasons)

Come with us now into the thrilling days of yesteryear when the white man was fighting the red man. (not to be confused with the modern tactics of high school warfare, but further back where the mesas were the sentinels and the rule was the arrow.)

The great war whoops of Sioux, Cheyenne, Apache, and Coyote could be faintly heard over the constant poundings of war drums. There, over by the flat rock, were two white men surrounded by the great hordes of red men. On each red man's face could be seen the thirst for scalps and the gleaming of hungry eyes. The chief stepped over to the two men and raised his tomahawk; just as he was about to bring it down, one man yelled, "We can ruin the arrow!"

Well, that just brought a "World Series" yell out of the spectators, for in those days a man just didn't ruin the arrow. His feet were stripped and he was given a lead of one arrow shot's distance. After that he ran as fast and as hard as he could, but where he would run to has never been found out for no one had ever made it. It was the general belief though, that upon crossing the Rio Grande a man had escaped the arrow; this boundary being set up by the Mexicans and Indians in a "freewater" deal a few years back.

Meanwhile, back at the powpow- preparations were underway. The chief shot an arrow high into the air and it silently stood upright about two hundred yards away. The barefoot white men began walking, sweat streaming down their faces and splattering apart in a dusty puff at their feet. They walked up to the arrow, stood looking at it, then broke it; the chase was on!

The men hadn't gone but a few hundred yards when the older one started lagging, and a little further on, fell completely. The other stopped for a second, seemingly wanting to help, but an arrow between his bleeding toes started him on his way again.

The pain in his feet was becoming unbearable when he glanced down and found a do-it-yourself moccasin kit. He quickly stitched them together, slipped them on, and ran on with new fervor.

A few more near misses prompted him to stop and see how close his pursuers were. When he looked, all he saw was one Indian just beginning to fire another arrow. It was then that he noticed his immense hunger. The arrow fell a short distance from him, and as he jerked his head around at its sound, he saw something shining. He picked it up with caution; it was his lucky day, a sandwich from Lonnie's Lunch.

He gulped it down and was again on his way when he saw the reason for his luck in finding the chow—an Indian squaw train. One of the squaws was motioning him over. He moved cautiously but hurriedly as his arrow-shooting friend was close on his heels; she wanted to help him. He explained to her that the penalty for violating the ruin was death; just as any good boy scout would have done, but he didn't wait on an answer. He quickly hid under a blanket as his friend rounded a mesquite bush.

Old Dave Sime stopped with the squaw just long enough to find out if anyone had been by, but explained the penalty for the violation of the ruin (TROOP 9, DEN 3). He got a negative answer and was on his way once more.

The squaw left the train and headed for the "Rio" hoping to get there before Dave could get back and find that he had been 'buffaloed.'

After a few hours, she came within sight of the river and roused her friend under the blanket. He came out, looked around, and began thanking his strange friend. Being a passionate man, he took a little longer in his thanks than he should have; Dave wasn't so stupid as they had thought.

An arrow, without any warning, wedged itself between his shoulder blades and he crumpled. Then, suddenly, another hit the squaw, piercing her heart—the penalty for violating the ruin was death (hats off). The ruin of the arrow had been avenged.

Bridge to the Sun

Ibsen once said, "Marriage! Nothing else demands so much from a man."

Bridge To The Sun, by Gwenn Terasaki, a new book from the University of North Carolina Press, tells of a marriage that was demanding of both man and wife.

Gwenn Harold, a young woman from Tennessee, meets Hidenari Terasaki at a Washington Embassy Party. Terasaki, an outstanding young Japanese diplomat and this American girl soon fell in love.

An International marriage has obstacles to overcome in any case; with one party being a prominent figure, it has even more.

Things went smoothly for the Terasakis until that fateful day in 1940. Gwenn Terasaki suddenly found herself an alien in her own country.

Sent to Japan, the war years for this couple were nightmares. Nightmares of worries over countries and worries over family.

This book gives the serious reader valuable views into life in Japan during the war, the amazing, tantalizing closeness that Terasaki came in preventing World War II and insights into the feelings of a strange people.

But above all, it is the portrait of a marriage, climbing the bridge to the sun. The premature death of Terasaki brought to an end that climb. But it was not in vain, for Gwenn Terasaki closes her book with:

"If it were to do over, even knowing what I now know, I would gladly do it again!"

Blue Hose and Terriers Clash on Johnson Field

Fireworks may explode over Johnson Field when Presbyterian College and Wofford clash here Saturday night—that is, if the pattern of past play is any indication.

And two of the nation's top small college players are expected to ignite the fuse.

These two arch-rivals have scored 16 touchdowns against each other during the past three seasons. That's an average of more than five per game: the Terriers averaging slightly over three and the Blue Hose two. And the result has been thrilling action with the outcome of each game hanging in doubt right down to the final whistle.

Even as the teams prepare to square off for their 41st meeting in this fast Little Three game of 1957, an individual battle shapes up between Presbyterian Fullback Ken Webb and Wofford Quarterback Charlie Bradshaw.

Webb, a fast 200-pound senior from Decatur, Ga., is expected Saturday night to move over the 2,000 mark in yards rushed from scrimmage as a PC varsity performer. He enters the game with 1,998 yards rushed in 372 carries thus far. That's an average of 5.3 yards per carry for his three previous seasons and the three games played this year.

Bradshaw, the Duke of Dublin, Ga., is away to another fast start in the manner of his All-State performance last year. He has paced Wofford to two wins in three starts thus far as the team sparkplug and ace passer with 18 completions in 33 attempts.

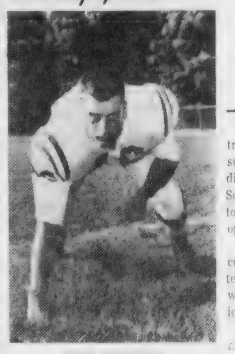
There'll be other stars also shining brightly in the anticipated wide-open ball game here Saturday night.

Rugged little Tony Benson, Chester halfback, has been the Presbyterian work-horse thus far this year. He's churned out 142 yards in 32 rushes to date, sparked backfield defenses and played the full 60 minutes against Lenoir-Rhyne last weekend. And in the Blue Hose line, special accolades have gone to ends Ted Leahy, of Atlanta, and Ken Gardner, of Greenville, and center Mac Copeland, of Athens, Ga.

The pass-snatching of ends Twitty Carpenter and Jerry Richardson, meanwhile, has been a major contribution to the Wofford passing attack. Halfback Frank Depreto has paced rushing, while tackle Roger Hagy, Terrier captain, and guard Ron DiBuono led the Terrier defenses.

All of these stars—and others yet to be acclaimed—will be out to make the 1957 clash another colorful chapter in this high-scoring series.

PC Deadlocks L. R. In Scoreless Game



The Presbyterian College Blue Hose went up to Rock Hill last Saturday night and battled the highly-touted Lenoir-Rhyne Bears to a 0-0 tie. The tie was a moral victory for PC as the Bears were favored by three touchdowns.

Mud and steady drizzle hindered the offenses of both teams. PC did not even attempt a pass, while Lenoir-Rhyne completed only two. The Blue Hose held the edge in rushing with 147 yards gained, as opposed to Lenoir-Rhyne's 119.

With five minutes left in the game, PC took a punt on their own forty-eight yard line and drove down to the Lenoir-Rhyne ten, where a fourth down attempt failed to materialize in the necessary yardage for a first and ten. The drive was sparked by quarterback Bob Waters, halfback Tony Benson, and fullback Ken Webb.

Benson, the junior sparkplug from Chester, led the Hose offensive with 58 yards gained, while Ken Webb, of Decatur, Ga., picked up 47. The big Presbyterian line finally asserted itself as Ted Leahy, Ken Gardner, and Bull Parrish sparked the linemen in containing the potent Lenoir-Rhyne attack. Sophomore center Mac Copeland, of Athens, Ga., with several vicious tackles, played a whale of a game on defense. Freshman Don Bridges, of Decatur, also turned in a very fine performance at guard.

Starting Guard . . .

BILL BOWMAN

Sock Spotlights Bill Bowman, Hose Captain

Bill Bowman, along with Ken Webb, co-captain the 1957 edition of the Presbyterian College football team. Bill hails for Monongahela, Pa., where he was rated as one of the better prep fullbacks in a very tough Pennsylvania high school league.

Since coming to PC, Bill has changed his position from fullback to guard. However, the rugged senior has had extremely bad luck as he has been plagued with injuries throughout his collegiate career. He broke his arm during his sophomore season, and has had recurring trouble with his knees and legs. The rugged lineman started off the season well by playing good ball in a losing cause against Clemson. However, since that time, he has suffered another knee injury in practice, and as a consequence, did not play against Lenoir-Rhyne and he may not see any action in the Little Three contest with Wofford this Saturday night.

While Bowman is in the game, however, he possesses a tremendous desire to win and is one of the better hustlers on the entire squad. The fact that he plays every game to the hilt is probably the primary reason that he is injured so often. Bill's co-captaincy reflects his teammates' respect for his great determination and spirit.

It is hoped that Bowman's injuries will soon disappear, and that he will be able to see action in most of the remaining games on the schedule. The fiery competition will certainly add to the team's strength and morale through his fine leadership and fierce aggressiveness.

Pika's and KA's Lead Intramural Football

Intramural football competition moved into its third round of play this week and sent Pi Kappa Alpha and Kappa Alpha forging into the league lead with identical records of four wins and no losses.

The Pikes defeated Sigma Nu in a close battle featuring both teams hitting hard and passing well. Don Segrest scored the only tally as the final score read 6-2. Their other victory was over Pi Kappa Phi. Sigma Nu beat off a late rally to keep Alpha Sigma Phi from winning 13-7. Outstanding player for the losers was Ed Galloway, who scored on a long pass play. Sigma Nu follows the Pikes and the KA's to take fourth place. The idle All-Stars retained their tie for first place but have only played in two games to date.

A request has bene made that all results of intramural competition be immediately reported to Bill Fulton or Paul Arrington. Failure to do so within a 24-hour period will result in a loss for the teams participating in that particular event.

Volleyball has been cancelled for the past week because of the wet grounds.

Run of the Hose

By BILL YEARICK

Last Saturday night the Blue Hose displayed an exact opposite contrast to the preceding week as they held powerful Lenoir-Rhyne to a scoreless tie. In fact the whole game enveloped itself into an entirely different set of circumstances than those that happened on the 21st of September. The Hose played a stronger team and held their opponents to a bare minimum against a formation designed to move against all opponents in practically all types of weather.

The contest was staged during a steady downpour with large puddles constantly serving as a threat to quick-hitting backs. It was only a matter of minutes before each uniform was covered with mud. New balls were changed every other play in order that handling would be as efficient as possible.

The score, always the deciding factor, proved relatively insignificant although it did provide some sort of moral victory for the Hosemen, coaches and followers. But three other outstanding features highlighted the game. The first turn of events marked the first time in several games the Hose conquered their age-old nmesis of fumbles. Not one time during the whole game did the Hose lose the ball. The second new twist was that during the whole game only twenty-one men were used. Two of the team members played iron men roles and played for the whole sixty minutes. Most of all the Hose played like a team—together and as one complete unit. Even though the mud and rain stole the show it was evident that the Hose far outshone the opposition.

Behind Closed Doors

One might wonder whether the game was actually won on the field or during a practice session. At any rate the coaches brought the team up to its physical peak that enabled them to upset the Bears of Lenoir-Rhyne. The players, however, didn't think this was enough and took it on themselves to search for a real answer to their losses. In a meeting behind closed doors the team found the time and desire to fire themselves up. In all respects the PC-Lenoir-Rhyne game was a complete team effort.

Causes and Effects

The question now is, where from here? One sports writer recently commented that the Hose were finally looking like a football team. Last Saturday's performance could easily indicate the makings of a successful season. Maybe it should be remembered that about this time three years ago the Hose started the season with successive losses to Furman and Clemon only to wind up with a seven-won three-lost record and a bowl bid.

Tennis Team Meet

The 1958 tennis team held its initial meeting this week and discussed prospects for the coming season. Led by Coach Jim Leighton the Hose are tentatively slated for road trips to the South and East. They are also continuing their policy of meeting the top teams in the nation. Matches should prove interesting this spring.

Mentor Men

The Presbyterian College coaching staff, Assistant Coach Redford, Head Coach Frank Jones, and Assistant Clyde Ehrhardt, have their hooks out for dog meat this week.

Coach Comments on Team Chances Ranks Wofford One of the Best

"Last Saturday night Wofford played a fine and very spirited game against South Carolina and eventually succumbed to superior personnel. The previous week, Wofford beat Lenoir-Rhyne, 13-6, definitely establishing themselves as the better ball club through aggressive defensive line play, fine running attack as well as passing attack," Coach Jones commented.

"Although Wofford has only four starters from last year's ball club, they have a great deal of experience on their first two ball clubs through returning lettermen. People think that this is one of the finest football teams in the history of the school and last week before the SC game, the Terriers were rated fourth in the nation among small colleges. They very definitely will be bouncing back this week to justify this highrating. Excluding Clemson, Wofford will probably be the toughest team we will play all year."

"As Lenoir-Rhyne was beaten by Wofford, the experts thought they would come bouncing back on us last week, but we ali know the opposition was extremely tough. This week it will take the very best team effort we are capable of to win. If the boys give us this kind of performance, they can beat a real good ball club."

Three PC Graduates Secure Big Positions in Fraternities

This year PC is well represented in National Fraternities by former students such as: Dr. William McLeod Frampton, Knight Commander of Kapppa Alpha; Robert D. Lynn, Executive Secretary of Pi Kappa Alpha; David A. Collins, Regional Executive Secretary of Pi Kappa Alpha; and Gregory Elam, Executive Secretary of Pi Kappa Phi.

This summer at the 47th National Convention of the Kappa Alpha Order in Jacksonville, Fla., Dr. Frampton, pastor of the Central Presbytreian Church in Anderson, was elected to the highest office in that fraternity, Knight Commander. While at PC, Dr. Frampton served as No. 1 of the KA local chapter, Beta Pi.

Another PC grdauate doing fine work in his fraternity is Robert D. Lynn, Executive Secretary of Pi Kappa Alpha National Fraternity. Mr. Lynn, a member of PC's Mu Chapter, is appointed by the Supreme Council and holds the highest paid position in the Pi Kappa Alpha. Actually he is the head of the organization that handles all correspondence and edits the Shield and Diamond, Pi Kappa Alpha National Fraternity magazine, published quarterly.

Also active in Pi Kappa Alpha work is David A. Collins, class of 1953. Mr. Collins, a graduate of Thornwell, is serving as Executive Secretary of the Southeast Section. This, too, is a full time job.

Gregory Elam, clas of 1955, is Executive Secretary of the Pi Kappa Phi. Elam was selected for Who's Who and was a member of Beta Chapter of Pi Kappa Phi back in his school days.

All of these men deserve recognition, being a credit not only to their national orders and local chapters, but also to their alma mater, Presbyterian College.

Infirmary Undergoes Changes for the Better

During the summer, the infirmary has undergone redecoration to make it more attractive and comfortable. Some of the summer school students painted the rooms and sanded the floors. Much of the credit for this should be given to Mrs. Bob Hellams, the infirmary matron. This is the first major work done on the infirmary since it was established on the campus in 1943. New blankets have been bought and some new equipment has also been added to the diet kitchen.

Food for the infirmary is prepared in the dining hall, except breakfast and special diets. The Infirmary has as many as 300 students pass through it for treatment each month. Just from the beginning of the semester on September 14, to September 30, 151 students have received treatment including 41 flu shots, and 31 bed patients. The Infirmary is set up to accommodate seventeen bed patients at one time..

Also done this summer was the removal of the supply of 1945-50 magazines. The Infirmary is still very much in need of a TV set. This would make time pass much quicker for the ill students—something that is presently a problem after lessons are done.

PC is fortunate to have such a complete and efficient Infirmary. Many schools of our size do not have facilities as well-rounded as ours. Dr. James L. Walker and Dr. James Macdonald are the college physicians. Mrs. Robert Hellams is the resident matron. Mrs. Bob is beginning her 14th year with the infirmary. She is assisted by two long-time faithful employees, Amanda Heard and Lawrence Garlington. Student assistants are Chuck Hendry and Jim Elliott.

team. Bill Bowman and Ken Webb were introduced.

John Summers and Lyman Harris shared in the program with a humorous skit.

The highlight of the program was a quartet composed of Lonnie Love, Dick Carter, Ed Galloway, Gene Wilson, an accompanied by Mike Furry on his electric guitar. The quartet sang "Annie Had A Baby," and "Sexy Ways," among others, followed by several encores, ending with "The Halls of Wofford."

During the halftime of the Wofford-PC game the Blue Key trophy will be presented to Wofford. They won the trophy by winning most of the athletic events and endnig the year with the most points.

The chapel program was a follow-up of the program presented at PC Wednesday when Twitty Carpenter, president of the Wofford College Blue Key, brought his group over for a program. The Collegiates were the highlight of the program with their singing. One of these wrote a song that was enjoyed very much by the student body. Wofford also had a ventriloquist that amused the audience immensely.

There is one sad part about this exploit into space. Just as the space ship neared the Landing grounds at the Laurens County Fair sight, the radio lead-in antenna caught on Margo's tent and the whole ship blew up, killing everyone, so the story of their experience is lost to al mankind. Except, that is, to the one survivor who told me the story, a student at PC, who still thinks twice about using Lanolin for his hair.

Two Students Have Local Radio Shows

One morning last month Clinton's first radio station, WPCC, signed on the air to mark the beginning of what is hoped to be a long and helpful term of service to the area. Already the dorms here resound with the wailings of many radios tuned to a single station's programs of assorted jungle rhythms, "rockabilly," semi-classical, and popular music.

Noteworthy among the station's staff of tune pushers and record changers are two talented and capable men from our own campus. John Summers, a senior, conducts a weekday show every afternoon from three to four, called "The Back Room." This program is pop music that is played over the sound of the gang in the Back Room. John also has a series of programs each Sunday morning including "From the Record File," "Magic in Music," and "Music for Sunday Morning." During the Sunday program, a local church service is carried by the station from eleven until twelve.

Clyde Michum, another senior, also conducts shows through the week, including Saturday and Sunday shows from one until sign-off time, and daily shows from four-thirty until six. Mitchum serves as engineer for the Clinton High program, the "Georgia-Jackie Show," which is broadcast daily from four until four-thirty.

The station is managed by Mr. Howard McCurry, who came to Clinton from Concord, N. C.

Next to his parents, the person who does most to shape a child's future is usually his teacher.

However, our amazing population growth has left us terribly short of teachers. In the next 5 years, we must find another 780,000 capable people to give our children the education they must have.

What can we do, right here in our own community? We can encourage college students to enter teaching as a career. And by working with our neighbors on citizens committees and in community conferences, we can make plans now to attract the good teachers we'll need.

Fraternities Battle Over Election

Kappa Alpha and Pi Kappa Alpha joined forces after the nominations and defeated the previously formed coalition of Pi Kappa Phi, Theta Chi, and Sigma Nu by a slim margin. Alpha Sigma Phi remains as the only fraternity which has not coalesced with either group; if they should join either before another election, (provided the two groups retain their present members, and provided they are not temporarily formed for this election only) it should provide a definite edge in number for either.

A spokesman of Kappa Alpha said, in defense of their action, "It is no secret that a coalition existed between the two largest fraternities on campus. However, this coalition was not formed until the nominations were tabulated and then only as a defensive measure. In the future we hope that the coalition will be dissolved, that fraternity prejudices will be overlooked and that the most qualified men will be elected to office."

A representative of Pi Kappa Alpha said, "It has been the past practice of Pi Kappa Alpha to refrain from seeking political assistance outside of its chapter suite, and it is with much regret that this traditional policy had to be recently altered in order to preserve and protect its campus interests. We sincerely hope that this problem will never arise again in the future campus politics, because it destroys the fairness due a deserving candidate for election. PC is much too small to adequately and successfully support two entrenched political parties."

A prominent member of the old coalition had this to say, "An old American right is the right of assembly and of collective bargaining. It seems that factions on the campus have not recognized this right until this week. However, since they have recognized it, there is no need to further emphasize the point."

Senior officers are Guice Potter, Bob Hill, Bill Roberts, and Tommy Richards. Representing the Juniors will be Ron Isger, Bob Mahews, Maurice Copeland, and Herbie Entrekin. The Sophomores elected Jack Taylor, Dick Wood, Larry Wood, and Bill Haygood. Freshmen officers are Rohe Esbaugh, Pat Griffin, Gay Maddox and Bob Horseman. Jim Eason and Paul Ard were elected to represent the freshmen on the Student Council.

313 students voted Wednesday, leaving a total of 207 who did not vote, since there are 520 students attending PC.

SENIORS

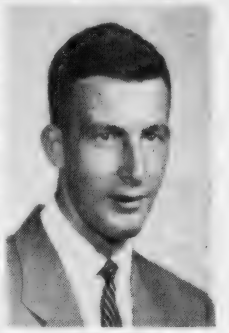
Bill Bowman dropped his name from the slate, leaving Guice Potter and Bill Webb to fight it out for the presidency of the Senior class. Potter accumulated 40 votes to defeat Webb who had 39.

Bob Hill with 45 votes defeated Roy Fowler with 34 for the vice-presidency of the Senior class. Joe Thompson dropped out of the race for treasurer, and Tommy Richards defeated Dick Hamby with 41 votes to Hamby's 38. In the race for Secretary Bill Roberts with 41 votes beat James Faile with 38.

JUNIORS

Ron Isger was elected President of the Junior class with 34 votes to 18 for Jim Shakespeare and 17 for O'Neil Crocker. Bob Mathews defeated Don Chapman in the race for the Vice-Presidency, 46 to 21. Charles Quinn, who was nominated on Monday, dropped out of the race. Herb Entrekin copped the position of Treasurer with 31 votes over Albert Copelan and Neil Bain with 18 each. Maurice Copeland received 36 votes to defeat Bruce Prince with 32 in the race for Secretary.

SOPHOMORES



Jack Taylor defeated Joe Hardin, 54 to 40, and became President of the Sophomore class, after Tom Wise dropped from the ballot. Gene Wilson also scratched his name from the running and Dick Wood became Vice-President, beating Chuck Hendry, with 52 votes to Hendry's 44. Larry Wood was elected Secretary with 52 votes over Mary Neal's 43; Ebby Mayfield dropped from this race. Billy Haygood piled up 60 votes to Will Wallace's 35 to become Treasurer; Jack Crandall withdrew from the election.

FRESHMEN

Rohe Esbaugh was elected President of the Freshman class. Esbaugh received 30 votes, Ard 21, and Kelly 13. Pat Griffin became Vice-President with 38 votes over Harrison Clayton's 28. Secretary of the Freshman class is Gay Maddox. She received 39 votes, and her opponent, Gail Ring, 26. Bob Horseman became Treasurer with 26 votes to 15 for Pat Dorn, 13 for Ron Boston, and 12 for Don Fowler.

Jim Eason and Paul Ard led the pack to become Student Council representatives. Underdogs in this race were Pat Griffin, Pat Kelly, Bill Wilkes, and Don Girvan.

Senior Class President

GUICE POTTER

Guice Potter was elected Senior Class President by a narrow margin in elections held Wednesday. Potter is an outstanding leader on the campus of Presbyterian College. He is a member of the Student Council, Blue Key National Honor Fraternity, and Scabbard and Blade Military Fraternity.

PC Adopts College Entrance Exam as Another Requirement Before Admission

Presbyterian College has adopted the Scholastic Test of the College Entrance Board as a requirement for admission, President Marshall W. Brown announced today. He said the standard will apply to all new students seeking entrance to PC at the beginning of the fall semester next September. Dr. Brown pointed out the college admission committee had suggested that all 1957 applicants take the test, and most of the incoming freshmen met this qualification. In his announcement about the decision of the administration and trustees to extend the College Board Test to all students, the president explained:

"It is our belief that the test will enable Presbyterian College to fulfill more completely its mission of providing a superior educational opportunity for students who seek higher education here. But there are two other important considerations: The test will serve as common denominator for evaluating applications, a measure beyond the high school transcripts which are so often of varying standards. In addition, faculty advisers and guidance counselors—upon studying the test scores of individual freshmen—can assist these students more wisely in their choice of courses and in their adjustment to college work."

President Brown emphasized that Presbyterian College is determined to maintain a well-balanced program of admission in the face of the increasingly large flow of applications. He said:

"We want students chosen not only for their outstanding scholarship but on the essential qualities of leadership and Christian character as well."

Among other South Carolina institutions, only Furman now requires the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test, but it is the standard for a host of other fine institions, including: Centre, Davidson, Duke, University of the South, and Washington and Lee.

The Scholastic Aptitude Test ("Morning Section") includes a verbal section "designed to measure the candidate's ability to read with understanding and discrimination, his comprehension of words, and his skill in dealing with word and thought relationships," and a mathematics section "designed to measure aptitude for handling quantitative concepts rather than achievement in the field of mathematics." In the verbal and quantitative aptitudes which the test is designed to measure, experienced educators wil recognize the qualities which provide the strongest basis for predicting a student's success in college.

All high schools are kept informed of the dates and locations for this test. It wil be given at testing centers, normally within a short distance of an applicant's home, on these dates in the months ahead: December 7, 1957; January 11, 1958; February 8, 1958; March 15, 1958; May 17, 1958; and August 13, 1958.

President Brown said detailed information may be secured from the College Entrance Examination Board, Box 592, Princeton, New Jersey.

Rocking Pneumonia and Asiatic Flu Goes Real Ape on Campus, Man

Last week, forty-one students were inoculated against the Asiatic Flu with a new vaccine. Student interest has been shown to be high on this health subject, as well as being uninformed on questions concerning this new disease.

In an effort to gather some facts, I interviewed Dr. James L. Walker, one of the college physicians, and Mrs. "Bob" Hellams, the infirmary matron.

Not too much is known about this new flu type. The symptoms are not unlike the common type flu known by the public for many years. There is usually a high fever of 103 degrees to 104 degrees. Muscular ache is common as is the sore throat and cough. The flu usually takes two to four days to run its course, and since intricate laboratory work is involved in the determination of the flu type, the victim is usually over his sickness before the lab can tell if his flu was of the Asiatic type.

The flu itself is not fatal, but complications such as pneumonia may set in, causing the illness to be more serious. The flu usually sets in very suddenly.

This type flu is caused by a virus that doctors have not before encountered. It started in Asia last year and spread westward as far as England. The U. S. is one of the last countries in its cycle and here it seems to be spreading from East to West. While no cases have been reported as definitely Asiatic flu in South Carolina, some cases have been suspected to be of that type in Charleston, and at Fort Jackson in Columbia.

The true value of prevention in the vaccine is not yet known, but appears to be reasonably effective. Enough vaccine has been ordered to inoculate the entire college, Mrs. Hellams stated. This is being paid for by each student in his college bills. There is a waiting list of over 200 students. Priority is being given to those whose parents sent applications in first.

Johnson Builds Hose Sports Serves College Arduously

Forty-two years ago Walter A. Johnson, a native of Milwaukee, Wis., came to Presbyterian College when the school had only 185 students enrolled to start another milestone in PC history. As football season starts, Coach Johnson is brought back vividly to the minds of sports fans all over the Southeast, because he has been credited with "doing more for South Carolina athletics than any other individual."

Most of the credit for developing the Presbyterian athletic plant which rates with the best among small coleges is given to Walter Johnson. When he was not giving his best to his college, he participated in athletic advances throughout the state on the theory that it would help each individual school.

As we look into the past, Johnson was instrumental in establishing the first coaching school in the South which was held at the University of South Carolina in 1922. To the forerunner of the present day Coaches Clinic, Coach Johnson served as football and track coach.

Among the tangible elements of Johnson's record are his promotions of Presbyterian College into the limelight along the athletic front. He fomented night football in the state by giving PC the state's first floodlighted football field.

Being the key figure in the founding of the state intercollegiate track and field meet, South Caro-

V Day for Nuclear Fishing

The satellites have left the drawing boards and are instead circling our globe as science makes another step in the advancement of previously unknown activities. For the first time we have left our universal home and are delving into the secrets of outer space, a place that makes us feel small and confined.

This achievement was, unfortunately, first proven by the Russians. The United States has been working on the plan for several years, and was on the border of sending their satellite into the heavens.

The only thing actually lost in this race to be the first power to place a satellite above the earth, is face. We boast of having the best in almost everything, which can be seen in most instances as true in comparison to other countries' reports given us. If we have all this, think what the Communists say. "Mr. U. S., you have the best in economy, standards of living, and scientific developments. However, look at us. We have stepped out front, beyond your bestness, and have now become the newer superlative in the eyes of the world." While we know we are capable of doing the same thing tomorrow that the Russians have done yesterday, we might have even been able to do it some time ago if "conditions" had been right. Regardless, we still lost the political touchdown that in some countries' cases might lose the game between Communism and Democracy.

This is, I believe, an exaggerated look at a comparatively small issue. But, it is an issue that counts politically. It won't mean that Russia dominates the earth as some have previously stated, but it should give us a good kick in the right place to use our resources, both material and mental, to their full advantage and keep our place in the field of research and progress.

Similar to Our Southern Racial Situation . . .

Three hundred years ago Dutch settlers settled in South Africa; these were the same people who came to America about twenty years earlier. There were French Huguenots, English, Germans. When the first Dutch settlers arrived there to establish their settlement, there were no natives in South Africa.

Today the whites are about 2.6 million, the coloreds around 1 million, the Indians about 350,000 and the balance natives—or about 8 or 9 million. So the European population is in a very small minority.

It was the European settlers that built up the country. While our pioneers went to the West, theirs went to the North. But these pioneers never attacked the natives; the Dutch pioneers opened up the country, and successive generations of Europeans built South Africa into what it is today.

The white men in South Africa have been there for several generations and cannot return to England or Holland. South Africans of English and Dutch descent who have been there for two or more generations wouldn't wish to go back to England. They must stay there, and their children and future children must stay there. They have nowhere else to go.

Integration would be fatal to the white man. The small white population would be overwhelmed. There would eventually no longer be a white or European civilization.

South Africa's Foreign Minister, Eric H. Louw, said in an interview with the American press, "We (whites) must retain the control of affairs in South Africa. It is quite out of the question to give the franchise to the non-Europeans on an equal basis. They are in a majority—of almost 5 to 1—and would eventually rule the country. And that would be the end of European and Christian civilization in South Africa.

"The whites would be in a very small minority and the Bantu and other non-whites would take control of the country. The white population would find it impossible to maintain its position as a European race—as has happened in some of the Central American countries. Alternatively the whites would have to leave the country."

Their trend of government is exactly opposite that of the U. S. South Africa is governed by fascists and its remedy for the racial problem, even in the church is more and more segregation. Our government is a democracy.

Getup Paint! Get Where We Ain't

by TOM GOLDEN

The stagecoach was thundering through the pass, exactly on time. The stage drvier was nervous, because he was carrying 500,000 dollars in government gold. In another half hour, the stage would arrive at Howard Johnson Gomey's way station. The driver's mouth watered, thinking of the delicious food served there. The specialty of the house (approved by Duncan Hines) was tortillas, served in 64 flavors.

The driver must have known that he wouldn't make it to the way station, because Black Bart and his gang had heard about the gold shipment. As shots rang out, the occupants of the stage began to look about. Miss Janie was terrified, but the other passengers quieted her down.

Just by chance, Lance Sterling and his sidekick, Fuzzy St. McNasty (boy, was he filthy) heard the shots. As usual, Fuzzy's hearing was bad, so he headed back to town, but Lance rode in and (just in the nick of time) and saved the gold shipment. Of course, the stage driver had been killed. Lance (just by chance) had been a stage driver, so he drove it to town.

Meanwhile back at the ranch, Black Bart and his boys shut the door of his black house. Black Bart paces the black rug on the black floor. Black Bart makes black plans to get even with Lance Sterling.

Lance gives the strong box to the sheriff, who shows surprise. The whole town is surprised.

Lance notices Miss Janie and the sheriff talking to an obscure figure in the alley leading to the saloon. Lance enters the saloon and orders a drink. Coughing, he asked the bartender what was in the whiskey. The bartender replied that he had added GL-70 and just a dash of Bluenite. Lance had only one thing to say about the drink, "It contains no lead."

At this point Lance notices that the sheriff and Miss Janie were coming out of Bart Laedi's office.

Whose Date?

(Editorial Note: In most westerns, at this point the hero kills the villian and wins the girl.) Bart, being chicken, tried to leave, but is shot in the back by Black Bart, who in reality is Fuzzy McNasty with a bath and a shave.

What is a Presbyterian Student

by NOBLE COLLINS

(Editor's Note: This is a reprint of an article written for the Blue Stocking several years ago by Noble Collins, a graduate of the class of '57.)

Somewhere between the age of adolescence and early manhood but long before that state known as maturity a strange creature known as a PC student is spawned. Being a total misfit in society (too old for school and too young for serious work), he must spend a four-year waiting period compiling experiences which will serve as topics for three-fourths of his conversation for the rest of his life.

During this period, a PC student is many things. He is the biggest man in the world with a rat cap on his head and the smallest man in the world with a diploma in his hand.

He is the epitome of innocence with a water balloon behind his back and the world's only conscientous objector in a class "A" uniform.

When he looks into a mirror, Beau Brummel, Don Juan, and Rocky Marciano all look back at him, but at a fraternity social he is horrified to see Emmet Kelly, Boris Karloff, and Mr. Peepers reflected in the eyes of everyone who ventures a glance his way.

His dormitory room is a many-splendored thing containing such spectacles as empty Pepsi bottles; dozens of cigarette butts; dozens of empty ash trays; a picture of a girl in an evening dress; a pencil-marked calendar with a sexy picture at the top; fifteen pairs of shoes (all under one bed) and enough assorted books to fill two libraries.

To all freshmen, uppper-cassmen are diabolical madmen whose complete vocabularies consist of one acidic phrase—"Gin, Freshman."

And to all upper-classman, freshmen are clumsy, "new boys" who know only how to say "I can't."

Nevertheless, there is a unity between the two that makes them inseparable in every phase of college life.

Yes, a PC student is everything that any other college student is and just a little bit more.

He is every good adjective you can think of, and most of the bad ones. Most of all, however, he is a disguise—never the same two days in a row, never revealing his true identity.

The Pearl of the Battalion

by W. H. ROBERTS

Curses upon us, we are freshmen at PC. We are the lucky ones who will serve loyally in the Cadet Corps for our next two years. And don't we look forward to the time when we shall become leaders of war!

What about this smug outfit which makes us get up in the wee hours of the morning and take our places in that "Long Gray Line." What else would we do but sleep?

Ah! but the Espriit de Corps of this outfit ignites us to leap out of our beds, don our starched khakis and race expectantly to the mess. They say it makes a better man, this military training. Between 0745 and 0800, life takes on a new meaning. When else could a fella swallow his breakfast, race the staff down to the field and sneak into formation before the platoon sergeant delights himself in counting you absent.

Peter Platoon Sergant, the pearl of the battalion. His is the proud duty to make your studies in the military outing enjoyable. Live modern, learn to like him.

Now let's look at our Daddy. Take us to our leader, that fine example of young manhood, the summit of three years of military training—our platoon leader. This beady-eyed, fat, happy little friend is the gentleman (by an Act of Congress) who polishes the platoon to its fine peak of perfect precision. Think of him what you may, but it is upon his shoulders that this responsibility rests. A Commanding officer is responsible for everything his unit does or does not do. One day each of you who remains in the ROTC prgoram will have this responsibility.

(The above was written by a sleepy-eyed, fat, sad, bitter platoon leader.)

New Sportsmanship Rule Added By SCA

Bill Fulton, chairman of intramural athletics, recently stated that a new change has been added to the rules concerning a sportsmanship code while a participant is engaged in intramural sports. The rule was passed by a unanimous vote by the Student Christian Association cabinet earlier in the week.

The new ruling is stated as follows: That any time during an intramural event any individual participating in that sport who continually harasses the referee is subject to dismissal from that event and possibly from that intramural sport. Also it was disclosed that any individual using profane language is subject to the same penalty. The final governing body will be the SCA cabinet.

Any referee who wishes to submit a report such as this should turn it in to any member of the intramural committee.

This move was thought necessary because of the continual harassment received by the referees during intramural contests. It is designed to improve the speed of games played and provide a more level approach to intra-fraternity competition.

Run of the Hose

By BILL YEARICK

WHAT PRICE GLORY

In the midst of all the turmoil of the 28-7 defeat at the hands of the Wofford Terriers, Ken Webb, starting fullback for the Hose, quietly and quite unassumingly gained 14 yards during the evening's activities to put his four-year total over the 2,000 yard goal. This marks the first time in the history of Presbyterian's football annals that any player has succeeded in topping this mark.

Obviously this is some sort of an indication of greatness in any player that reaches this mark. In essence this means that an individual must succeed in rushing for a total of 500 yards net during one season and achieve this feat for four successive seasons. This season is just three games old and already Webb has accumulated this fantastic mark.

Quite ironically this writer noted that for the exception of three games in his junior year, Webb has played in nearly every game since his arrival on the PC campus back in 1954. Aside from that one exception when he was out with a knee injury, Webb has managed to stay off the crippled list.

But it was almost to the two thousandth yard last Saturday night that Webb was tackled so viciously that he laid limp before the first home crowd of the season. When he finally stirred it was discovered that he had three front teeth missing. So, congratulations, fullback Webb, and may your records in the future be easier to attain!

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE

A good indication of future Hose teams shows that during the coming years some of the players will enter each contest with that all-necessary and sorely needed game experience. In the backfield, hometown product Bill Sease is making good along with quarterback Dusty Mills. A freshman nucleus on the fine can be found in guards Don Bridges, Ed Anderson, and Bob Jones, along with tackle Hardy Ledbetter. Other creditable performances have been recorded by halfback Bill White, returning from the service, and tackle Jim Kolb.

Still limiting the Hose are the vast amount of injuries suffered by various members of the team. Among those on the injury list include tackle Jim Lee and end Wilson Vastine. Backs Tony Benson and Ron Isger no doubt will see extensive action down at Tampa but to what extent they are able to play remains to be seen.

SHORT ROUNDUP

Already seen on the tennis courts is Coach Jim Leighton. The season is still a long way off but from all present indications it looks like another successful season for the Hose netmen. Coach Leighton is looking for (and we quote from a five-month-old telegram) an undefeated season.

Team to Take Florida Journey After Defeat Here by Wofford

by ROY FOWLER

Little is known of Tampa, the upcoming foe of the Hosemen this weekend except that they will be extremely tough. Tampa defeated PC last year by the score of 20-7, although the Blue Hose outgained them in the statistics department, and completely outplayed the Florida eleven in the second half. Presbyterian will definitely be the underdog, but they have to win their first game some time, and the game with the rugged Floridians could well be the one.

Wofford came to Johnson Stadium Saturday night and left again with another victory to their credit over PC. It was a case of too much of fensive power on the part of the Terriers. Reddick Still, of Spartanburg, playing his finest collegiate football game, was a thorn in the side of the Blue Hose as he executed the running pass play to perfection. Charley Bradshaw played his usual superb game and Frank (The Bull) Deprete lived up to his nickname as he ground out 77 yards running.

Presbyterian, however, uncovered a very promising freshman quarterback in the person of little Dusty Mills, of LaGrange, Ga. Dusty displayed a flashy job of ball handling and also hit on six out of 12 passes. This fine effort may gain the little "bundle of dynamite" a starting nod in the game with Tampa this weekend.

Wofford scored first in the opening minutes of the game on a three-yard spurt by Deprete. This proved to be the only score of the first half. Disaster struck in the third quarter as Wofford turned an intercepted pass and a bad PC snap from center into two quick touchdowns. Shortly after this, the PC offensive finally started rolling, as Benson ran beautifully for 15 and 13 yards respectively. Two screen passes from Mills to Webb, sucked the Wofford defense, and resulted in a TD for the Blue Hose, with only five minutes remaining in the game.

Still sparked the final drive of the Terriers for another Wofford touchdown as the game ended in favor of the puppy dogs 28-7.

Action Climax PC Intramural Football

The first round of intramural competition ended this week with a flurry of action. The second round will begin on Monday, October 15.

Last Wednesday the Pika's took one from the Theta Chi's by a forfeit. In the only game scheduled Thursday the KA's beat the All-Stars 19-0. Pi Kappa Phi and All-Stars won their games on Monday. The Pi Kappa Phi's beat Sigma Nu 14-7, and the All-Stars beat Alpha Sigma Phi 25-0.

However, the hottest action took place this past Wednesday. The first game was between Pi Kappa Phi and the All-Stars, with the Pi Kappa Phi's taking the game 14-0. The action then began between the KA's and the Pika's for top honors for the first round. The game was a hard fought one. The teams moved back and forth over the field without scoring. The Pika's came close to scoring in the first half, but time ran out. When the final whistle was blown and the score was still 0-0, the two teams decided to play for an additional 15 minutes. At the end of this overtime period it was still 0-0. The teams then decided to have a "Montana play-off." The Pika's finally won 7-0 and first place for the first round. The game showed plenty of strong defense on both sides.

Army Rifle Team Here

On October 21, 22, and 23 the United States Army International Rifle Team will fire a match with Presbyterian College and give any instruction desired by the college shooters.

The team is assigned to the United States Army Advanced Marksmanship Umit, and is composed of personnel who were well known college small bore position shooters and who are now on active duty with the United States Army.

James Lee In The Last Of His College Career

James "Chico" Lee, of Myrtle Beach, winds up his career as a hard-hitting Presbyterian tackle this year. The senior lineman has played consistent ball during his tenure at PC and will be sorely missed come next fall.

"Chico" derives his name from the tough teenage gang that used to roam the beaches of his hometown. Although Lee never belonged to the gang, his opponent tackles sometimes swear that he possesses the same kind of toughness. An example of this toughness came last year during the Catawba game. With only minutes remaining in the game and PC in the lead by one point, Catawba drove down close to the Presbyterian goal line and on the third down needed only one yard for a first and ten. The Indians tried two successive line thrusts at the spot which Lee occupied, and twice the burly tackle threw them back short of their mark. This fine defensive playing proved instrumental in the Blue Hose victory as the game ended a few minutes later.

JAMES LEE

Lee did not play ball during his sophomore year and thus gained a year of eligibility. He came on strongly during the latter part of the year and won a starting berth on the PC varsity for the last four or five games of the Hose schedule.

Lee never performs in what you might call a brilliant manner, but gives you the steady game every time that he plays. He is a good blocker on offense and a hard tackler on defense. Injuries have hampered him somewhat thus far this fall, but as he rounds into top shape, the big senior should add a great deal of strength to the Presbyterian forward wall during the remaining games this year.

hna's Little Olympics, which has been held annually at PC, Johnson has acted as director since 1926. He played a leading part in bringing collegiate boxing to this state, but PC has dropped it from its program in recent years. He was the instigator of PC having the first indoor swimming pool in the state.

He also helped build PC into a national tennis power and promoted the net game within the state. Incidentally, PC has never lost the State Tennis Tournament since its organization.

Coach Johnson's record as a coach, athletic director, sportsman, and gentleman will always be remembered by fans in the South. His forty-two years of continuous service to the Garnet and Blue has earned him the title of Dean of Southern Sportsmen.

Twice during these forty-two years he has responded to the call to National colors by serving the year of 1918 and the years 1941-1946 with the Armed Forces overseas. Upon his return after the war, he confined his duties to those of athletic director.

In 1935, the student body of the University of South Carolina presented him with a sterling silver service "in appreciation for an influence helpful to college sports far beyond the campus of the institution he directly serves."

September 10, 1940, was designated as Johnson Day to pay tribute to Coach Walter A. Johnson on his 25th anniversary of service to PC. On that day the Clemson Tiger-Presbyterian Blue Hose annual football opener was shifted to Johnson Field—the one and only time in the long history of the series with an overflow crowd of 6,000 fans watching.

When a voluntary contribution was taken by the Clemson Student Body, every cadet on the campus donated to present Johnson with an engraved desk set "in recognition of his leadership in developing intercollegiate athletics in South Carolina."

Four years ago Presbyterian College took an unprecendented step in bestowing the honorary doctor of laws degree upon the head of the athletic department—the one and only Dr. Walter A. Johnson.

Mrs. Harris Presents Scholarship To School

A scholarship in memory of the late Wilson W. Harris, of Clinton, has been established at Presbyterian College, President Marshall W. Brown announced today.

The grant, known as the Wilson W. Harris Memorial Scholarship Fund, has been set up by his widow, Mrs. Cornelia B. Harris, toward providing financial assistance to worthy PC students. She has given an initial amount and plans to add to it through the years so principal may be used for scholthat the income from the invested arships.

Mrs. Harris said her husband, a Presbyterian elder, who spent his life as editor of The Clinton Chronicle, always felt a close attachment to Presbyterian College. He was a member of the class of 1910 and thereafter remained in close touch with campus activities, especially with the work of student editors.

President Brown, in expressing appreciation for the scholarship fund, said that it wil serve as a fitting memorial to a man who served well his church, his community and his alma mater.

Twenty-Two Tested For IRC Membership

John Childers, President of the International Relations Club, announced today that at least 22 men passed the exam for entrance into the IRC. With such a fine turn out, I'm looking forward to a very succesful year."

The activities of the club began last week with a program called "Shakespeare's England Today."

Those new men accepted into the club include the following: Billy Piephoff, Bill Sistar, Don Hendrix, Bo Jeanes, Jim Monroe, Luther Bell, Don Kay, Ron Kay, Julian Butler, and Frank Richburg.

Others accepted include: Richard Faulkner, Joel Easterling, John Roberts, Jack Clontz, Andy Dickson, Ebby Mayfield, Billy Hatchett, Bob Bean, Billy Hagood, Ron Shields, Charlie Watts, and Phil Reagan.

Ten Founders Grants Highlight Expanded Scholarship Program

Ten Founders grants, ranging up to $2,000 each, highlight the expanded scholarship program Presbyterian College features for its 1958-59 session beginning on September 8, 1958.

High school seniors of superior intellectual achievements, through these grants and three other types of scholarships, thus are offered a broad opportunity to qualify for financial assistance toward obtaining a higher education.

The new scholarship program is more extensive than in the past, and the increasingly large number of candidates has caused the application date to be pushed forward. Interested seniors are urged to make their applications for the Founders grants before December 10, 1957, by contacting the Director of Admissions.

The ten Founders scholarships will be awarded competitively to quilified students entering Presbyterian College next September. They cover four years of study and offer each recipient up to $500 per year.

In addition, Valedictory Scholarships again are being made available to first-honor graduates of accredited high schools, and in special instances, to the second-honor graduate or member of the honor group. These grants amount to $500 each for the four years of study.

Ministerial candidates of Protestand faith are eligible for Ministerial Scholarships, provided intentions to enter this field have been declared before the local church. Each of these grants provides $1,000 for the four years of study.

A fourth type of financial assistance offered by Presbyterian College is the Grant-in-Aid. Through this program, students of good character and satisfactory academic standing, who cannot otherwise meet all of their college expenses, are provided work opportunities. As the number of these scholarships also is dependent upon funds available early application is advised here, too.

The Founders Scholarships, providing up to $2,000 each, have been widely sought after by students throughout the Southeast since the program was initiated three years ago. They are awarded on the basis of intellect, leadership and character. High school principals have been provided detailed information about these grants, but candidates may contact the college directly. The deadline for applying is December 10, 1957.

All high school seniors are eligible to take the preliminary tests, which will be administered at the local high school. Later, a group of finalists will be selected to visit the PC campus for interviews and other tests. Final decisions will be made after this visit

Queen Elections Again

Homecoming Queen elections were held Thursday. A final decision was not reached and runoff will be held Monday, Oct. 21, to decide between the top three contenders.

Rush Week for 1958...

Dear Editor,

Recently I noticed an article in one of the southern college's newspaper. It contained some pertinent and noticeable facts which could be applied to everyone who belongs to a fraternity here on the PC campus.

It seems to me that a fellow should choose his future fraternity on the actual sincerity of the group and not the mask which they often hide behind. Even as a freshman one can get tired of the already old smoke routine. I think this article is worth reading.

Rush Week for 1958 is a thing of the not too distant future. It may be the hardest fought and, in fact, the dirtiest Rush Week most of the upperclassmen will recall. But should it be so strenuous? Should such emphasis and effort be put into Rush Week?

Fraternity will be by far the most important factor in the lives of the Presbyterian College students during Rush Week, but it is not like that all the time. Only during Rush Week season do boys who normally are friends stop speaking to each other, and neighboring fraternities slash at each other with genuine hatred. Everyone puts studies at the very last of the list of things that really ought to get done some time or other.

Suspension of Values

Conscientious boys who usually stay well within their moral limits, under the strain of the competitive mania support or carry out policies they would abhor at other times. Rules are kept only by straining at interpretations, and then only because of fear of punishment. In short, there is a brief, but total, suspension of values.

Fraternities are the cause of this, but we do not keep up this emphasis throughout the rest of the year; with a sigh of relief we return to the customary patterns, the normally accepted morals and friendships, and the comparative de-emphasis of fraternities. We have given a false impression and the burden of it is beginning to hit the pledges soon. They will have been sold on the line that fraternity is everything, and that their fraternity would like very much to have them as brothers.

Anti-Climax

Now, after the pledging day, the climax of the entire year for the fraternity has been passed, and the brothers all tend to drop the fraternity and forget the pledges. If we seriously thought the fraternity was worth suspending all morals and duties for, we should try now more than ever to make of the pledges and fraternity something worth having.

No matter how loose the fraternal ties may be, the fraternities do mold the boys in them just as any consistent association may do. This fact calls for an evaluation of the fraternity. Does it develop the full potentials of its members?

Fresh Material

There is now fresh material, ready to form and be formed by the group. Every rusher who said his fraternity was the best should look at it now, free from Rush Season fever, to see if it really is forming the boys in the way that is best. They should be developing properly in education, ability to lead and to work, skill in athletics, social poise and manners, and general outlook on life. If the fraternity does not do this for them, it has been false to its rushees, and will disappoint and fail with its pledges.

This covers my sentiments to a tee. Fraternities are good and can help an individual a great deal. But is it not true that the values of the freshmen are misinterpreted and the values of a fraternity member twisted?

Why Not a Phi Beta Kappa Chapter For Presbyterian?

By SONNY EMBRY

For the last several years many people have raised the question, "Why hasn't PC got a Phi Beta Kappa chapter." This week The Blue Stocking interviewed Dr. George Bellingrath, the Academic Dean, on this subject. Dean Bellingrath stated that this was a subject that had been on the agenda of his office for some time now. The administration is definitely interested in a Phi Beta Kappa chapter, but not too much has been done so far in the realization of this interest. The interview seemed to stimulate some more interest on the subject, and it appears that work on getting a chapter will begin in earnest right away.

PC is very fortunate in having Dr. John Harris on our faculty. Dr. Harris, while he taught at Wofford, was instrumental in getting a chapter established there. Working with Dr. Harris on this matter, Dr. Belingrath hopes that PC will also be favored with a chapter of this honorary fraternity.

Phi Beta Kappa itself admits new chapters on four basic things: Alumni, Library, Laboratories, and Curriculum. PC strongly qualifies on the last three of these requirements, but it unfortunately cannot boast a long list of famous well-known personalities, or top educators in the country, although our alumni have been very successful. Admittance into the chapter once it is established is based on a list of standards of the National Fraternity, and the local college. Only ten per cent of a senior class can be admitted, and five per cent of a junior class. This, however, is only the maximum. The cream of the Dean's List makes up its number.

In talking to Dr. Harris, I found that a certain per cent of Alumni who attended college before the establishment of a chapter are tapped into it each year. This means that outstanding graduates with imposing records such as Mr. Andy Howard, Bill Toole, and Mr. Pete Hay might one day be tapped if PC is granted a chapter.

Phi Beta Kappa was founded on the campus of William and Mary on December 5, 1776, the year of birth of the United States. It is the oldest of the Greek Letter Fraternities. Unlike the other fraternities that were organized later, it chose in 1831 to become, and remain, a purely honorary society with high scholastic attainment in liberal arts as the prerequisite for membership. Besides Dr. Harris, Mr. Gray, and Mr. Cannon are also members of this fraternity.

Everything for the Ivy Leaguer

By JOHN SUMMERS

Durays Department Store has everything for the college man. Here you will find a complete assortment of all items necesary for the health, mental, and social well-being of the ivy leaguer. The store is located downtown in Snurdsville, S. C., just outside of the Clinton nasal area, and has special pick-up and delivery service at no additional cost.

One of the many items of interest to the collegian is their anti-class capsule that is guaranteed to give you everything from rickets to St. Vitus Dance. With this type of aid, one will have absolutely no reason to sweat getting a doctor's premission for an excuse. Stethescopes are a desirable accessory, but they can be obtained only for an additional charge of some $23.58 plus S. C. tax and shipping charges.

For those who are military minded, or who will have to live the life of an officer in the US Army, a training ship off the coast of Annapolis, wil certainly want to see our fine assortment of swagger sticks. We have sent two models from our store to show these in a nonchalant way on your campus. One of them wears a leaf and the other a portion of his cell on his shoulder. If you are interested, be sure to talk with one of them, and ask about our easy lay-away plan.

For the student who desires to have the intellectual look while not having to suffer from the night of, morning after taste of stale puff weed, we offer the smokeless pipe. This pipe has a built-in billows that smokes for you in a professional way. A small concrete core in the stem keeps the taste and tar away from you, while still giving the appearance of serious smoking. The pipe that filters the smoke away from your throat. Pipe tobacco mixtures include: Kudzu Kuzin, Tobac Killer, and the new asiatic variety, Nicoteenos Addicteenos.

Books are important to all students of learning, but they aren't everything. For the student who likes to feel scholarly and at the same time hates reading, we have hollowed out books. Only the page edges and cover remain intact leaving the rest of the volume to house such items as cigarettes, tooth paste, and a small can of Drano. Your pick of authors includes: Shakespeare, Hemingway, Milton, and Fraud.

Another item we are pushing this season is the goat skin liquid car-

"THANKS"

Run of the Hose

By BILL YEARICK

WANTED: ONE WIN

By all logical explanations the Presbyterian Blue Hose should have all their bad games played by this stage of season. So far the Hose have been outmanned, in some cases outplayed, and sometimes outguessed. In all the previous games witnessed by Hose fans a certain spark was seen to enlighten the frequent embarrassing defeats.

Reaching back into last year's season it was the same Elon Christian team that went down to defeat before an inspired second half comeback put on by the Battlin' Blue Hose at Rock Hill. This same win snapped a three-game losing streak suffered by the men from Clinton at the hands of Clemson, Wofford, and Davidson. Tomorrow the Hose will be out to start their 1957 winning ways against a ground-gaining ball club. Another advantage will be that the Christians will be on their home field, and Sid Varney, head mentor for Elon, will certainly be loking for sweet revenge.

The fans are still confident that the Hose can win if they can only get their machine in gear. The ground-gaining game is substantial and the passing is more than adequate. Also the Hose have in their favor that they have overcome their old nemisis of fumbilitis. Several new men have added depth to the line-up and are proving themselves cool under fire of the game pressure. Where is that win?

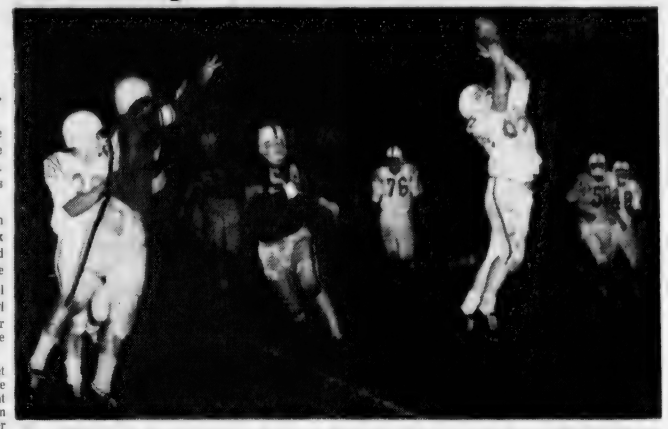
BLUE STOCKINGS' NAME HAS OLD DERIVATION

Many people have been puzzled and made inquires as to how Presbyterian College athletic teams came to be known as the Blue Hose. The truth of the whole matter is that no one really seems to know, including some of the old loyal faculty and alumni.

Some think that the term Blue Hose refers to the blue stockings worn by the Scottish Presbyterians. According to Dr. Walter A. Johnson, who has been here since 1915, early PC athletic teams wore blue stockings. This practice has been dropped for some time now for various reasons.

In a time when the school was in the transition period of acquiring a new name several monikers such as The Fighting Christians or Parsons were thought of until a final decision on Blue Stockings was made. Perhaps some not too energetic writer tired of spelling it out the longer Blue Stockings and shortened the well known nickname to Blue Hose.

Hose Team Journeys to Elon; Sights are Set on First Victory



Presbyterian College invades undefeated Elon this Saturday night, with sights set on winning its initial victory of the season. The Blue Hose, having tasted defeat at the hands of powerful Tampa, 39-14, last weekend will be making their third start this year against North State Conference foes. Earlier games in this league found PC whipped by Appalachian 20-7 while Lenior-Rhyne held to a 0-0 deadlock.

The inexperienced Presbyterian team has improved steadily each games, even though victory has yet to be recorded. Most impressive has been the way in which the passing attack has been developed in recent weeks. It is centered around sophomore quarterback Bob Waters, of Sylvania, Ga., who came into his own in the Tampa game as he completed eight of 17 tosses for 114 yards and one touchdown. The over-all PC aerial game amasses 201 yards on 14 completions in 29 attempts against Tampa. Waters' favorite target last weekend was freshman end Jim Kolb, of Sumter, who snagged four passes for 79 yards.

In Elon, the Blue Hose face a team that has rolled to three straight conference victories. Presbyterian Coach Frank Jones reports the Christians have a strong running game that must be contained if the Hosemen hope to duplicate their 1956 triumph. Led by bruising fullback Bob Stauffenberg, Elon sticks close to the ground and plays control-type ball.

Elon is coached by former PC assistant Sid Varney, and he is anxious to revenge the 20-13 setback handed them by the Blue Hose at Rock Hill last season.
